JEWS PLANNING FOR BIG CONGRESS

Want Some Means of Expressing Sentiment of a United People.

MUCH INTEREST HERE

More Than Two Hundred Attended Last Night's Meeting at Plainfield Theatre—National Election Will Be Held Soon.

More than two hundred of the leading Jews of Plainfield attended a meeting last night in the Plainfield Theatre, the purpose of which was to discuss the need and advisability of calling a Jewish national congress to discuss problems that now confront the race.

Every shade of Jewish opinion is to be represented in the coming congress, which will be the official mouthpiece of American Jewry, and will attempt to better conditions for members of that race, not only in America by in all countries. All of the Jewish synagogues, societies, camps and lodges in Plainfield were represented at last night's meeting.

The need of a congress of Jews to represent their people was explained by Mr. Rothenberg, of New York, one of the many speakers. Mr. Rothenberg first congratulated Plainfield Jews on the manner in which they had responded to a call for the meeting, saying that this evidenced the interest in a movement for a national organization for the Jews. Such enthusiasm in other parts of the country shows that the movement cannot but succeed, he said.

Mr. Rothenberg told of the horrible condition of members of his race in Europe. In all of the countries, he said, there were Jews who remained loyal to their respective flags and who were not fighting on the battlefields of Europe, even though they knew they were shedding the blood of brother Jews on the opposite side. One of the purposes of the congress is to care for the destitute in foreign countries, especially in Poland and Russia, but this will be but a small part of its work.

The Jews once had a country of their own, said the speaker, but of late they had been scattered in all parts of the world, subject to persecutions from all people, and it was a great tribute to the race that they had lived in the face of these trials.

One of the purposes of the congress, according to his plan, will be to consider problems of Jewish people in all lands and demand that they be treated as other citizens, even in darkest Russia and Poland. He said a national organization representing the millions of Jewish men and women in America would have great weight, even across the ocean.

There were 9,000 villages, all occupied for the most part by Jews, burned in Poland in the fighting there, said Mr. Rothenberg, and now old men, women and children are homeless and hungry there, without aid from any people. He expressed the gratitude of the Jews in America for the glorious privileges of living in this country, but urged that even the free and enlightened Jews have some medium of expressing their sentiment on matters that concern them.

Dr. N. Syrkin and Rabbi A. Kaplan, both of New York, addressed the audience in Yiddish.

Plans for the Jewish congress have been worked out. The idea was given encouragement by Plainfield Jews, and as soon as it has been explained to the people in all parts of the country a call for an election will be sent out. The people will then elect their representatives, much the same as members of the U. S. congress are elected, and the representatives will meet at some central point.

The following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, This world-war has demonstrated the weakness and tragedy of our Jewish people due to its disorganization as a living nation;

First, Be it resolved, that a Jewish Congress in America on a Democratic basis be convened at the next opportunity to discuss the Jewish problems and demand equal civil, political and national rights for Jews of all countries.

Second, That this Congress shall demand the abolition of all obstacles against free Jewish immigration and colinization in Palestine.

Third, That this Congress elect official representatives to present these demands to the next International Peace Conference.

CEMETERY SERVICE ATTENDED BY MANY

Parishioners of Plainfield and North Plainfield Catholic Churches Present.

Several hundred parishioners from St. Mary's, St. Joseph's and St. Bernard's Catholic churches participated in the annual program of prayers for the dead at St. Mary's cemetery yesterday afternoon, the exercises being similar to those held annually on All Souls' Day. The services at the cemetery were of an impressive nature, one of the features being a procession about the burying ground and recitation of the rosary by Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church; Rev. P. S. Hart, of St. Joseph's church, and Rev. James MacDonald of St. Mary's church.

Father Bogan made the principal address of the afternoon, his words dealing with the reasons for celebrating the feast. The numerous graves in the cemetery were bedecked with flowers for the occasion and many visitations were made by relatives of the deceased.

The gathering was one of the largest that ever attended such an event locally and the various church societies of the city and borough catholic institutions were present in a body.

TREAT FOR MUSIC LOVERS PROMISED

Mme. Rappold and Other Artists to Appear at Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

There is every indication that the concert of the Musical Club at the Plainfield Theatre tonight will be a very brilliant social and musical event. Probably never before in this city have four artists of such prominence appeared on one program. Every music-lover, therefore, has planned to take advantage of the unusual opportunity and seats will surely be at a premium by eight.

Miss Orrell, America's leading 'cellist among women, will open the program with Godard's Berceuse an Hugh Allan will follow in the pathetically beautiful Prologue from Pagliacci. After three lovely harp selections played by Miss Warfel there will be another operatic selection, this one the aria from Manon sung by Marie Rappold. This selection alone would make the evening worth while. Miss Rappold, who by the way, sings Friday morning at the Biltmore with Josef Hoffman and Scotti, has never sung in Plainfield before, but she has many friends here already and will have many more before tomorrow. Her duet with Mr. Allan will be especially looked forward to, while the last number of all in which Madam Rappold sings Gounod's Ave Maria with harp and 'cello, will surely be a most perfect close to a most beautiful evening of song.

DRIVER SLIGHTLY HURT WHEN AUTO STRIKES WAGON

An automobile driven by Russell McIntyre, of West Seventh street, crashed into the side of a delivery wagon belonging to Fred H. Firstbrook at Grant avenue and West Third street, Saturday night. The driver of the latter, Stewart Baker of Somerset street, was hurled to the roadway and sustained a bad gash on the head, beside numerous bruises. McIntyre was proceeding south at a good rate of speed and the force of the collision shoved the wagon in a half circle to the far side of the corner, leaving it badly damaged. The horse was uninjured.

Residents of the neighborhood hurried to Baker's assistance and after receiving temporary treatment he was sent to his home, where a physician attended him later. McIntyre was unhurt but the front of his automobile was badly smashed.

The blame for the accident has not been placed.

The tea and measuring party given Saturday afternoon at the Park Club, under the auspices of the Plainfield committee of the New Jersey Branch of the Prince of Wales Relief for Soldiers and Sailors was a huge success both financially and socially, one of the largest audiences ever in attendance at the Washington avenue auditorium being present. The club was attractively decorated for the occasion, flowers and autumnal foliage being used while American flags and emblems of the Allies adorned the various tables and portions of the hall. As a result of the affair about $400 was realized, which will be added to the work of the organization. Admission was determined by the height of the person, ten cents being charged per foot, and an additional cent for every inch over the foot.

The idea of the measuring party originated with Mrs. Rufus Delafield, the chairman of the local branch of the committee, and it was largely through her efforts that the affair was such a success. To show their appreciation of her work, the com-

JUMPERS' LEADER IN POLICE TOILS

Oliver D. Wilson Held in $200 Bail for Hearing Next Saturday Morning.

Giving emphasis to the assertion of one of their sect in the city police court two weeks ago that they would not be guided by man-made city laws, the Pillars of Fire once more openly defied the Plainfield police department last night, this latest step resulting in the arrest of Oliver D. Wilson, who conducts the Holy Jumper headquarters on Craig place, and directs the local activities of the cult. Chief of Police Kiely received an "inside tip" last night to the effect that the representatives of the sect were planning to hold a revival session at West Front street and Madison avenue and went to the scene with Sergeant Andrew Saffron and Patrolman John Kelly.

Wilson once more appeared as the leader and while other members of the sect circled about him on the sidewalk he stepped to the middle of the Madison avenue thoroughfare and started preaching. Chief Kiely remonstrated but Wilson had only a deaf ear for the police head's words and the chief ordered him placed under arrest.

After a night spent in a jail cell Wilson was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning. The prisoner asked for a postponement and the court magistrate put the case over until next Saturday morning, holding Wilson in $200 bail for trial. Members of the cult are making efforts today to get the bond, in default of which he will be kept in the city lockup.

Wilson was a member of the squad of eight jumpers who were arrested on West Second street, near Park avenue, several weeks ago, charged with violating the city traffic regulations. At that time he was given a suspended sentence with the understanding that a sentence of $20 fine and forty days in the county jail would be invoked on him if he was again arrested. This now hangs over his head and the city court has no other alternative but levying the sentence if he is proven guilty of the present charge next Saturday morning. Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represented the city in the case this morning.

The usual prayers for the dead were said in accordance with the annual custom of visiting the Catholic cemeteries on the Sunday preceding All Souls' Day. The local people were met by the father, mother, sister and brother of the dead priest and accompanied to the cemetery.

FAILED TO CARE FOR CHILDREN, IS ARRESTED

Because she failed to properly care for her three small children, Mrs Lizzie Minerd was in police court in the borough of North Plainfield yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct. Recorder Hand gave Miss Phillips an order for the children, but the woman begged for another chance and it was given her. If she does not keep the children clean and provide a good home for them they will be taken from her and cared for by the borough.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES IN THE BOROUGH

Both Young and Old Joined in Festivities Which Were Largely Attended.

The borough enjoyed the most orderly Hallowe'en in its history Saturday evening. A few children paraded the borough's main thoroughfare during the early part of the evening in masquerade and a number of parties which were held comprised the borough's program for the evening.

Miss Grace Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Finley Lewis, of North avenue, gave a masquerade party to thirty-two of her friends, who came from Plainfield and this place. The home was decorated by Mildred Deering. Twenty-two of the young folks were present and all experienced the time of their lives. Mr. Deering, who is a sleight of hand artist of no mean repute amazed the youngsters with his mystic feats. All of the young guests were in masquerade. The best costumes were perhaps those of Margery Vliet and Margaret Vail, who were dressed up as fairies and that of Miss Edna Jennings, who was dressed in white to represent the opera Carmen. Of course good things aplenty were served to the young guests during the evening.

At Wayside Park the Misses Griggs and Corbin gave a masquerade party to a hundred young people from Plainfield, Elizabeth, Somerville, Bound Brook, New York and Dunellen. At midnight masks were removed and refreshments including sandwiches, hot frankfurters, cake, ice cream and coffee were served. The music was furnished by Squier's orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, of Plainfield, and former residents of this place, will not move back to the borough as at first reported. According to the report they had decided to move into their house which will be vacated by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith shortly. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton did contemplate doing this, but as the place was rather large for their own use and as there is a brisk demand here for first-class houses to rent they decided not to do so.

Plains & Fanwood.

Modeled somewhat after the plan used by the Westfield grammar schools, S. Dana Townsend, supervising principal of the township schools, has successfully put in operation a banking savings system in School No. 1. Tuesday of each week is designated as the regular banking day when each child can bring money to school, although they can bring it oftener if they wish. Mr. Townsend keeps records of the amount each pupil turns in and every time a dollar is credited to one it is put into the Westfield Trust Company in the name and each succeeding dollar is added to the account. Nearly all of the pupils have deposited several dollars with the principal and are really interested in the new plan.

Quiet times are expected at the polls in both the township and borough tomorrow as none of the local candidates in either place have any opposition and as a result the voting is not expected to be very heavy. In the township Ira Gage Walker will be up for re-election to the Township Committee and George Johnston will be a candidate for assessor and also for member of the county committee. The appropriations to be voted on follow: Roads, $2,500; sidewalks, $300; poor, $500; fire department, $200; police department, $100, and public library, $300. In the borough Burton P. Hall is a candidate for the Board of Freeholders, William H. Hoar for mayor, Albert H. Ribie and Augustus Sheelen for members of the Common Council, Charles Sheeler for collector, and Horace G. Young for assessor. The appropriations: Streets, $1,800; lights, $1,500; police, $950, and general expenses $400.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Lambertson, who have resided on Fourth street, the borough, for the past year, have removed to Westfield to take up their residence.

Ralph Newell, of Plainfield, but who until recently resided in the borough, spent the week-end with Stoddard Nichol, of the borough.

The choir sang the elaborate anthem, "If We Believe that Jesus Died and Rose Again."

Today, which is All Saints' Day, the Holy Communion was celebrated at half past ten. The special offertory was for the Endowment Fund.

The local ice wagon narrowly escaped a serious accident near All Saints' Parish House this morning. Only the steadiness of the horses averted possible loss of life. A speedy auto was the cause.

PLAINFIELDER BACK FROM COAST TRIP

Wilbert Pennington Gives An Interesting Account of the Canal and California.

Wilbert Pennington, of Liberty street, who left Plainfield on August 28 for the Pacific coast, returned home Saturday night, accompanied by his sister, Miss Edith Pennington, the latter having been visiting with another sister at Portland, Oregon, since last spring. They came east by the northern route, stopping at Denver, Salt Lake City, Chicago and Washington.

Mr. Pennington was given a reception in honor of his return by his fellow members in the Reminiscent Club, music for the occasion being provided by Fred Zweilfel, the originator of what is known as the "one man band." The guest of honor gave an interesting account of his trip and also showed numerous pictures and photographs of the Pacific coast, many of which were taken by himself. A postal card projector operated by Charles Johnson enhanced the beauty of the numerous pictures as they were displayed upon a screen.

In speaking of the San Francisco fair, Mr. Pennington said, "It came up to his expectation and he believed it would be a great financial success, the attendances being very large." He enjoyed San Francisco very much and was also loud in his praises of the wonders of the Panama Canal, having an unusual opportunity to study it through the big slides which occurred last September. The boat on which he was making the trip through, the "Kroonland," was held up as a result of it, at the Gatun lock, where it remained for eight days. The Plainfielder secured half a hundred fine photographs through the Gatun district, a number of them showing the havoc wrought by the big slide. After visiting Los Angeles and the principal California cities, Mr. Pennington went to Portland, Oregon, stopping at the home of his sister, Mrs. B. M. Taylor, formerly Miss Laura Pennington, of Plainfield. He enjoyed one trip of 200 miles up the Columbia river and in his talk to the Reminiscent Club Saturday night he told of the wonderful salmon fisheries and displayed pictures to verify many of his startling statements regarding that great industry.

FRESHMAN RECEPTION PROVED BIG SUCCESS

In accordance with the annual custom the Plainfield High School Alumni tendered a reception to the Freshman class Saturday night. The event drew nearly the entire student body and many parents, the High School building being turned over to various forms of entertainment.

Dancing in the auditorium proved to be the center of attraction and it was there that Principal Lindsey Best and the faculty met the parents. The entertainment committee provided games of all kinds in the library, gymnasium and a half a dozen of the class rooms for the amusement of those who were unable to dance. Lemonade and cake were served and at 10 o'clock the affair broke up.

MANY WORSHIPPERS ENJOY SPECIAL MUSICAL SERVICE

A special musical service during which selections from Haydn's oratorio, "The Creation," were given was enjoyed by a large congregation at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon. Dr. E. Metler Davis, organist, was in charge of the service, and the regular soloists were assisted by a double quartet and a delightful program was rendered.

The soloists were Miss Lillian Vernon Watt, soprano; Miss Grace Carroll, contralto; Paul G. Haskell, tenor; Dr. Hugh Schussler, bass. The work of these soloists was especially pleasing and the various numbers were given a finished and artistic rendition.

DAN KEIDERLING TO QUIT THE LOCAL FIRE DEPARTMENT

Daniel Keiderling, who has been connected with the local fire department for many years, and driver for Chief Doane at the present time, has tendered his resignation to take effect during the present week. The matter may probably be acted upon by the Common Council at its meeting tonight. It is understood that Mr. Keiderling has purchased the business of the Central Livery on East Second street and will combine it with the boarding stable he has had an interest in for a number of years and quits the fire department to take charge of the new combination.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES IN CITY AND BORO

Dances and Other Festivities Provide Amusement for Young and Old.

Throughout the city and borough there were many Hallowe'en parties Saturday night. Among some of them were the following:

An old-fashioned barn dance was enjoyed by members of the Plainfield Country Club as a Hallowe'en entertainment. The event was attended by more than 150 club members and friends. Instead of the fantastic steps that have resulted from the ingenuity of modern interpreters of the terpsichorean art the old square dance steps were used.

Decorations for the club rooms were of corn, wheat, pumpkins, apples and autumn leaves. Refreshments consisted of pumpkin pies, apple pies and fruits of the Hallowe'en season.

The Clover Club girls gave a delightful Hallowe'en social at the home of the Misses Anna and Minnie Wuerfler, 712 Webster place. The evening was spent in playing games and dancing. Frederick Longsworth gave piano solos. Those present were the Misses Minnie Wuergler, Harriet Vails, Edith Hartpence, Freda Steir, Edith Higgins, Mollie Wuergler and the Messrs. Walter Hover, Clyde Vahl, Harley Farrel, Robert Ruerup, Frederick Longsworth, Henry Anderson, James Henry Condron, M. J. MacMillan. First prize was won by William Hover and second prize went to M. J. MacMillan. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

A masquerade and Hallowe'en party was given by Billie Nolan at his home on Arlington avenue, when a number of his little friends were entertained. Games appropriate to the season were enjoyed. The home was decorated in orange and black colors while pumpkins and jack-o-lanterns were scattered in various nooks throughout the rooms. Prizes were won by Dorothy Bohl, Mary Griffin, Irving Bohl and Miss Emmons. During the evening, Miss Anna McCarthy entertained the young people with selections on the victrola, after which refreshments were served.

About thirty-five guests from this city, New York, Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and Elizabeth enjoyed a Hallowe'en party at the home of Miss Mildred Weintrob, on East Fifth street. Dancing was the feature of the evening. The rooms were prettily decorated with orange and black and refreshments were served at a late hour.

Witches and weird spirits from Somerville, Elizabeth and Plainfield held high carnival at the home of Miss Adele Freeman on Park avenue. The home was elaborately decorated with autumn leaves and corn stalks intermingled with pumpkins. Games, music and dancing were features of the evening. Refreshments appropriate to the occasion were served at a late hour.

A Hallowe'en party was given at the home of Miss Ida Silverston, 421 Madison avenue, last evening. A delightful time was spent in dancing, singing, games and other amusements. Miss Silverston was a charming hostess. The home was decorated for the occasion, and refreshments were served at a late hour.

There were guests present from Elizabeth, Long Branch, Newark, New York and a few select friends from this city, among whom Miss Adelaide Nathanson was awarded a prize as impersonator of "Charlie Chaplin."

Hallowe'en revelry ran high at Truell Court Saturday night, when fifty guests of the house enjoyed a varied program of entertainment. The parlors, hallway and stairs were elaborately decorated for the occasion, festoons of autumn leaves and jack-o-lanterns scattered here and there lent that pleasing atmosphere of mystery to the surroundings. Games and dancing were the principal forms of entertainment and refreshments were served at a late hour.

SPORTS WILL BE FEATURE OF THE HOLIDAY PROGRAM

Store Open All Day Tuesday, Election Day

"Progress"—The Spirit of The GIMBEL Store

NOTHING more forcefully illustrates "Progress" than the rapid growth of the GIMBEL Store in New York.

In five years this store has solidly entrenched itself in the public's confidence and builded a business millions of dollars in excess of that annually done by stores founded generations ago in the metropolis.

"Progress" at every step symbolizes the growth of the GIMBEL Store—a store of ideas, ideals, and ACTION!

From the first hour that this GIMBEL Store was planned "Progress" has been constantly associated with it.

"Progress" was one of the foundations of the first GIMBEL Store more than seven decades ago. And no GIMBEL enterprise has ever been dissociated from that word of spirit of endeavor and action.

As one of the founders of the New York GIMBEL Store recently said at a meeting attended by other members of the firm and executive heads:

"November is to be distinguished by a sale for PROGRESS. It is not to be the style of sale for the purpose of being able to announce your having a sale, but because it is based on merits worthy of special attention on part of the public."

And there you have one of the fundamental reasons for the success of the GIMBEL Store—"based on merit."

What else but "Progress," energy, endeavor, "based on merit," could rear such a magnificent store, stock it with $6,000,000 worth of new merchandise, and command such a vast and steadily increasing patronage?

"Progress" in every thought and act!

Thoroughly modern in even the smallest detail, as thoroughly efficient as human endeavor, constant and sincere, can make it; wholly representative in its merchandise, and employing a system of pricing that makes it profitable for people to purchase here, it is not surprising that the GIMBEL Store should make such resistless headway in a field that presented seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

Out of the amazing activities of October, the month of GIMBEL "Fifth Birthday" Sales, into November, a month brilliant with the promise of still greater achievements, still broader and more ambitious sales plans, justifies, we believe, the GIMBEL claim that "Progress" is the spirit of the Store.

Welcome, November, at GIMBELS.

Broadway and Thirty-third Street, New York

Reading Character

is always interesting, but a study of a tradesman's business character as indicated by his advertising is even more interesting and always profitable.

Just glance over the advertisements in the Plainfield Daily Press of the merchants whose places you know.

Does not the merchant write his store character into his advertising? Is it not possible to form a pretty good idea of the store from the manner in which it makes its announcements in the newspapers?

Merchants are coming to realize more and more that when they write an advertisement they are painting a business portrait of themselves—indicating their business character.

They are more careful in their statements, more modest in their language and pay more attention to typography and illustration.

Advertising is prepared now-a-days more carefully than ever before and there is more of it every day.

And by the same token it is going to be more interesting and profitable to the readers.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

JAIL BREAKER MAY BE LOCAL PRISONER

Otto Johnson Confined in Local Cell Pending Further Examination.

Otto Johnson, alias "Steven Denski" and "Fred Miller," who is wanted by the local police on a charge of burglary and who is said to have escaped from the Summit jail on October 22, was arrested by the Elizabeth authorities yesterday and committed to the local jail. In the city police court this morning, Judge DeMeza held Johnson without bail for arraignment tomorrow morning.

The capture of this prisoner is considered an unusually important one, both to the Plainfield police and the authorities of Summit. He is suspected of having entered the home of Mary Templin, at 320 Park avenue on October 1 and stealing a quantity of clothing and household effects.

Johnson is twenty-three years of age and believed to be a slick character. He is believed to be the man who was arrested by the Summit police for stealing "free lunch" from a saloon. After being locked in the jail at that place he broke the cell door open and walked out.

BOY SUSTAINS FRACTURE OF LEG IN AUTO MISHAP

Mr. Ford's car is a taxicab and the wheels of the machine passed over the boy, who was playing in the road at the time.

GILBERT AS A WIZARD.

Curious Tricks of an Old Time Investigator of Electricity.

H. G. Wells has called attention in "The World Set Free" to a half forgotten worthy who, in "the spacious times of great Elizabeth," loomed large indeed. Science, to be sure, does not forget him, and one great English poet, Bryden, has proclaimed with resonant emphasis:

Gilbert shall live until loadstones cease to draw.

Nevertheless how many young students of electricity today ever heard of William Gilbert?

"It was Gilbert, Queen Elizabeth's court physician, who first puzzled his brains with rubbed amber and bits of glass and silk and shellac," says Mr. Wells, "and so began the quickening of the human mind to the existence of this universal presence. And even then the science of electricity remained a mere little [illegible] for 200 years, connected perhaps with magnetism—a mere guess that—perhaps with the lightning. * * * Except for the lightning conductor, it was 250 years before electricity stepped out of the cabinet of scientific curiosities into the life of the common man."

Gilbert's theories and guesses about magnetism—he concluded that the world is a vast spherical magnet—were serious and farreaching, and he embodied them in a book with a ponderous Latin title—the first great book on physics published in England. But his experiments were chiefly of the curio and plaything sort. An English collection of Elizabethan letters and anecdotes of court life quotes the opinion of a provincial young lady of quality, but recently come up to London to accept a position in the queen's household, who had witnessed some of them. She wrote home to her mother:

"The queen is now well recovered of her sicknesse, which was but litle, tho it lookt at first as it wold be greate. She puts much truste in her Doctor, one Gilbert, and soe doe her ladis for the moste parte, and I am laught at by alle but onely Lady Margaret for that I doe fear the man and his cures that they bee not such as are permited to Xtian (Christian) folke to undergoe. I have seen him playe strange tricks, takeing, for the diversion of the queen's ladis, a silke glove from one and her bedes of ambre from another and a scrappe of the writeing of her Love from another, if she have it about her and can be purswaded to give it uppe, and makeing the one to russle and give forthe speckles of fyre, and the others one to pick the other uppe by touching of it—and a blacke catte comeing in he rubed her that she brissled and gave forthe little fyres that daunced alonge her fugre in the dark as if the wyches that love blacke cattes were strokeing her back. Soche matters are of the divel and sholde not be medled with for sporte, they are not meet for good Xtians."

Poor, timid little lady! If she deemed Dr. Gilbert's tricks and cures of 300 years ago so perilous to the soul what would she have thought of the electric shocks, baths, massage and all the varied tingling, prickling, cracking and spark spitting electrical devices of our modern physicians?

Before the Toothbrush.

Before the invention of toothbrushes people used to clean their teeth with linen. This is evident from William Vaughan's "Fifteen Directions to Preserve Health," published 1602, in which the author tells those who want to keep the teeth "white and uncorrupt" that they must wash the mouth after every meal, "sleepe with the mouth somewhat open * * * and in the morning take a linnen-cloth and rub the teeth well within and without." In Vaughan's time several varieties of tooth powder were known, the recipe for one of the simplest being as follows: "Burne a piece of Corke till it looks like a Coale, then take it out of the Fyre and it will fall to ashes, wherewith rub your teeth."—London Chronicle.

FIRE CHIEF DOANE MAY GET FORTUNE

Cousin Dies in San Francisco Leaving a Large and Valuable Estate.

Probabilities of a windfall for Chief T. O. Doane, head of Plainfield's fire department, and members of the Doane family, are hinted at in a letter received by the chief Saturday from a San Francisco lawyer. The latter states in the epistle that Andrew Smith, who died in San Francisco a week ago, and who was a first cousin of Chief Doane's, left an estate that is to be divided among the Doanes. The amount is not mentioned but as Mr. Smith had inherited a considerable fortune from his father and had conducted a successful business on the Pacific coast for many years, it is not at all impossible that a large bequest is coming east. Mr. Smith was a native of Brooklyn and was the son of Chief Doane's mother's youngest sister. The mother died some years ago leaving Mr. Smith alone in the world as he had never married.

When Chief Doane was interviewed by a Daily Press reporter this noon he stated that he had received the inquiry but modestly declared he had no idea as to how much wealth Mr. Smith possessed. He forwarded the needed information, he said, but did not intend to build up any false hopes pending further inquiry.

"I am quite sure the bequest will not go over $40,000,000," the chief said with a smile, "and if it should happen that my individual share is only $5 it will be gratefully received, and I won't be disappointed."

Mr. Smith had a number of friends in Plainfield as he visited here on a number of occasions, the last time being about twenty years ago. His father was a "forty-niner" and made a lucky strike in the California gold rush.

LOCAL MAN ARRESTED ON CAPIAS FROM GRAND JURY

Herman de Valliere, manager of the Central Livery Company, was arrested Saturday on a capias issued by the Union county grand jury on an indictment charging him with conspiring to defraud the New York Telephone Company. He was taken to Elizabeth and held in $3,000 bail for trial.

According to the Union county authorities de Valliere is accused of entering into an agreement with Harry Grantzow, who is now a prisoner in the Union county jail, charged with padding the expense account he had with the New York Telephone Company.

BUSINESS MEN ADVOCATE ONE-PRICE IDEA PLAN

A. E. Force was the principal speaker at the noon-day meeting of the Round Table Club today. Luncheon was served in the dining room of the Hotel Kensington and a goodly number of members were present. Because of illness, Leslie R. Fort was prevented from attending.

Mr. Fort was to have been the speaker for today. Mr. Force discussed the one price idea in connection with the fair trade league now being considered by members of the Business Men's Association, and other members entered into a lively talk on the subject. This discussion will be continued at tonight's regular meeting of the business men.

ASSEMBLYMEN ADDRESS SPRINGFIELD MEETING

Republican Assembly candidates Morgan, Pierson and Runyon addressed a large gathering at the fire house, Springfield, on Saturday evening. Mr. Runyon spoke of the work of last winter's Legislature. He told how the Democratic members put every obstacle in the way of the nine Economy and Efficiency bills, but when they found that the Republicans were bound to pass them and fulfill their platform pledges that they voted for the bills. Mr. Runyon called attention to the fact that the last two Democratic platforms had an economy and efficiency pledge but the party, although in control, had not passed the bills nor fulfilled its pledges.

Mr. Morgan made a clear analysis of the Canal Abandonment bill, which the Democrats try to make out was originally presented with definite sale price of one million dollars and afterward amended to two and a half million dollars.

Mr. Pierson said that what he had to say would be proofs from the State records and controller's reports of all the statements about treasury balances and he would use the same documents to prove that the Democrats were talking without proofs and, in fact, Mr. Pierson said that he did not think that any statement of finances that was not accompanied with proofs from State documents was more than so much "hot air."

HOW TO BUY A SUIT OF CLOTHES

A great many men make the mistake of buying the fabric rather than the fit, the cloth rather than the cut, the material rather than the making.

Yet to buy a suit without regard as to how it is made is just as illogical as marrying a girl because her name is Maud, without regard to her looks or reputation.

Of course, if the fabric is all you are interested in, there are a lot of shops can fix you up — but ROTHBER'S IS THE SOLUTION IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR INDIVIDUALITY and STYLE. Priced at TWELVE to THIRTY DOLLARS.

A Galley o' Fun!

Officer (to recruit reporting sick)—What is the matter with you?

Recruit—Pain in my abdomen.

Officer—Abdomen be hanged; it's stomach you mean. No one under a captain has an abdomen.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

The Rev. Theddeus Morrison was troubled. At first he had been able to interest the young people of his parish and they had attended his early evening service in large numbers, but of late the attendance had been decreasing.

"I do not understand it," he said.

His fair young parishioner blushed and hesitated.

"The nursery," she suggested at last.

Now, the nursery was an innovation upon which the young preacher prided himself. In order that devout women, who otherwise might be kept at home, could attend church, he had set apart a room where their babies might be left in charge of volunteer nurses from the Sunday school. Of course, the idea was not original with him, but he was the first to introduce it in this particular parish, and he was hurt by the reflection that seemed to underlie the words just spoken.

"In such a parish as this," he protested, "that seems to me little short of an inspiration."

Again the fair young parishioner blushed.

"Will you put yourself in the place of an impressionable young man who has come to church because—well, because someone wanted him to?" she asked.

"With pleasure," he replied.

"Very well," she said. "Here we are. We have strolled here slowly through the side streets. I have been holding your arm"—here she laid her hand gently on the Rev. Thaddeus Morrison's arm and looked shyly up into his face—"and we have been talking—softly, sentimentally. It has been a sort of dream love without the spoken word. You know what such dreams are like?"

"Ye-yes!" answered the young preacher, drawing in a long breath.

"All peace and beauty and sentiment—a soothing mental panorama of perpetual bliss," went on the fair young parishioner, "and the service and the sermon do not in the least interfere with the dream. Indeed, they rather lead you on, and still further soften and idealize the picture. That's why lovers like the church; they do not come to make love, but the tranquil, devout atmosphere of the church helps to create love. So you continue your dream you are in love—with me; and I know it."

Again she looked at him, and he did not seem to be in the least disposed to hurry her.

'Now, remember, you are in love," she cautioned. "You won't in the least appreciate the point unless you enter heartily into the spirit of the affair. Are you in the right mood?"

"I am," he faltered. And this was not even a white lie, either.

"You have decided to tell me on the way home, and I know it—a girl always knows that—and I encourage you by holding your arm a little tighter and seeming to resign trustingly to you. You know how it is?"

"I do—now," the preacher admitted.

"Very well, then; we will now go."

Thus they passed up the aisle and through the door into the vestibule, from which opened a little anteroom—the nursery. Instantly the scene, the whole atmosphere changed. Three babies were squalling in rivalry, others were creating trouble in various ways; several mothers were scolding, one distracted woman was weeping, and the pandemonium reigned generally.

"How about that dream now?"

"It is gone!" he sighed.

"And, knowing it, am I to blame if I lose interest in the Sunday evening service?" she inquired.

"I'll have the nursery changed," he said. "I'll have it secluded, and then—"

"Well?"

"We—We might try this over again—just to see if the conditions are right, you know."

"But think!" she cautioned. "Suppose they should happen to be right?"

"I—I believe I am quite ready to run that risk," he answered.

JEFFERY WRITES A LETTER TO VOTERS

Boosts Candidacy of Jackson and Republicans for Assembly.

A live piece of campaign literature has appeared in New Providence township in the form of a personal letter from William Jeffery. A copy has been mailed to every voter in the township. Mr. Jeffery calls the attention of voters to an attempt made in the last General Assembly to cut off forty per cent. of the township and add it to the borough and tells who favored this deed. He gives Albert E. Jackson and Judge Runyon credit for defeating the proposition. Mr. Jeffery sums up his letter in the following paragraphs:

"Personally, I shall not allow any silly nonsense to intervene in my judgment in voting for Runyon, Pierson, Morgan and Jackson. I shall have one thought, and one only, the good of the township of New Providence, and for that matter the good of the borough.

"Brower and Honeyman will vote for Jones, and this my dear friend is a sufficient reason for all others of us to vote for Mr. Jackson."

MRS. MINTURN LEFT VALUABLE ESTATE

Clara J. Reed and Jennie Reed, of This City, Among the Several Beneficiaries.

New York, Nov. 1.—An accounting of the estate left by Mrs. Louisa Minturn, a cousin of Clara Josephine Reed and Jennie Reed, of Plainfield, made by the executor and filed today shows that $1,276,172.35 has come into their hands since their appointment, on October 14, 1913.

Mrs. Minturn directed that Clara Josephine Reed receive a life estate in $10,000, after which the principal is to be divided equally between two cousins, Lucy Mitchell, of Berkeley, Cal., and Jennie Reed, of Plainfield. Should Jennie Reed not survive her sister, then the share is to go to Bessie Lee, daughter of Mrs. Reed, who resides in Plainfield.

The accounting shows that the executors have set aside the $10,000 and have created a trust fund which represent a share in a $60,000 bond and mortgage on premises at 149 Manhattan avenue and 50 West 107th street, New York. Mrs. Minturn, who was 71 years old, died of heart disease on October 4, 1913. She was a daughter of the late William H. Aspinwall, who was connected with the shipping business. It was through her efforts that a hospital for scarlet fever and diphtheria patients on Sixteenth street, New York, was established.

36.50 McDougall Kitchen Cabinets for $30.00

ON THE CLUB PLAN OR FOR CASH.

The manufacturers have made a slight change in their new disappearing front cabinet and have authorized us to sell what we have of them on hand at the above price reduction.

The Disappearing Front is so made that when open it goes down ating, disappears down under the bottom of the cupboard it closes. When closed, it is held in position by a strong, specially designed catch.

Its operation is aided largely by gravity and a slight push or lift is all that is needed to operate it. It has no weights or springs and works on a metal track at each end which minimizes the friction—very substantially made and will not stick or get out of order.

The Disappearing Front is so made that when opne it goes down slightly below the level of the cupboard bottom. Then any dirt, crumbs or flour that might get into the cupboard, can be wiped out so as not to fall down in the slit in which the curtain works—that is an important sanitary quality that it took us months to perfect.

There will probably never be a more complete or convenient cabinet made than this new Disappearing Front McDougall—so if you ever expect to own a cabinet, you'd better buy one of these now and start saving hard work—preserve your health and lengthen your life.

NOVEL AFFAIR IN AID OF ALLIES

mittee presented Mrs. Delafield with a handsome bouquet of chrysanthemums during one of the intermissions of the vaudeville. Mrs. Noel Evans, who supervised the entertainment portion of the program, was also presented with a hugh bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The Prince of Wales table, which was in charge of Miss Anna Murphy, proved one of the features of the party, supplies made for the Allies by the local committee being exhibited, as well as the process of making the various articles being shown. Mrs. Edgar Delafield was in charge of a knitting table. The tea tables were in charge of Mrs. C. H. Franklin, Mrs. R. J. Letcher, Mrs. Harold Van der Linde and Miss Laura Osgood. Miniature flags of all the Allies, donated by C. H. Franklin and sold by Miss Elizabeth Johnston, brought in a goodly sum to add to the cause. The candy table was well patronized.

Just before the curtain rolled up, Mrs. Bender and Mrs. Noel Evans, presiding at pianos, rendered "Tipperary," while a chorus of voices joined in the chorus.

The biggest number on the program was the toy symphony orchestra conducted by S. Frederick Smith. Each selection received round after round of applause and encores were plentiful. "The Prince of Wales Orchestra" delighted with "The Spring Symphony" and "Wails of Spring." The orchestra consisted of the following: Violins, Miss Helen Harmon, Miss Alice Titus, Miss Mary Fiske, Miss Margaret Burnett, Miss Lyle Smith, Mrs. Edward Cox and Mrs. Noel Evans; 'cellos, Dr. Leonard Waldo and Henry Fiske; pianos, Miss Ruth Waldo, Miss Elizabeth Burke, Mrs. Howard Craig and Mrs. Coddington; triangle, Miss Mary Faber, drum, Miss Violet Johnston; shuffle, Miss Ruth Titus; trumpet, Miss Lillian Fiske; nightingale, Miss Antoinette Barclay and Mrs. Perkins, cuckoo, Miss Adele De Lecuw; cymbals, Noel Evans, and rattle, Miss Margaret Brown.

The sextet was especially well received, the voices of the participants being beautifully blended and expressive. The members were Mrs. Guy Bender, Mrs. William Burnett, Mrs. H. R. Moyer, Miss May Robinson, Mrs. Theodore Mantz, Mrs. L. C. Whittall; piano, Mrs. Charles H. Lewis; violins, Miss Lyle Smith and Mrs. Noel Evans. The numbers were "The Snow" and "Fly Singing Bird." The feats of magic performed by Henry Rankin, assisted by Mrs. Rankin, were the delight of the younger folks as well as the adults present. Hugh Gaston, of Somerville, the boy soprano, was a decided hit, and he was enthusiastically applauded at the completion of "In Verdue Clad." Shubert's "Moment Musicale," that delightful terpsichorean fantasy as originated by Mme. Anna Pavlova, the famous Russian ballet dancer, was executed with unusual skill and interpretation by Stella Butler, Jane Van Zandt and Margaret Meck. Each received a basket of flowers at the conclusion of the number. Banjo selections were rendered by Alfred Farland with wonderful technique, while William Holmes' rendition of Irish songs made him a popular favorite. He sang "The Little Irish Girl" and "Ould Dr. McGinn" in true elocutionary style.

The young women who acted in the capacity of nurses, attired in the regulation cap, kerchief, apron and gown, were the Misses Dorothy Jewett, Antoinette Barclay, Elsie Burke, E. Hawthorne, S. Shattuck, Violet Johnson, Frost, Gough, S. Van dr Linde, Holstein and the Misses Buckley and Miss Bomann.

The other committees were as follows: Reception, Mrs. Rufus Delafield, Mrs. John Constable Moore, Mrs. H. A. Fisk and Mrs. Neuman; measuring, Miss Huntington, J. H. Jewett, Harold Van der Linde and Mr. Jackson.

An Appeal to Americans

BY

The Commission for Relief In Belgium

Sole Clearing House for all Belgium Relief

We, as Americans, are enlisted for the war to save seven million men, women and children. It is the greatest commissary undertaking in the history of the world, and in the lexicon of America there is no such word as fail.

We Need Food Supplies as Well as Cash

Railroads, express companies, postoffices, governors and state committees are aiding. Our Flotilla of Mercy, comprising thirty-five chartered ships, is constantly carrying food. But—Our Supplies Are Far too Short!

Are You Helping? If Not, Send in Your Name Now!

Make out your check or money order, or send cash either to your state committee co-operating with this Commission or to the New York Headquarters:

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

A woman with buying to do never saves any time by omitting to read the advertisements. No does she always secure par-value for her dollar.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR SCOUT PARADE

Scout Commissioners Announce Details for Hallowe'en Celebration.

Final arrangements for the Hallowe'en Boy Scout party at the Scout Camp in Terrill road this evening were completed this morning. All scouts wearing uniforms under their costumes will be called upon to give the scout motto in whisper to the scout commissioners to make sure that only scouts are in line. Electric flashes and jack-'o-lanterns will be permitted in line, but no torches or other open flame lights.

Each scout will be required to have ten cents for carfare. The West End scouts will catch the train at Clinton avenue at 7:36; at Grant avenue at 7:38, and at the North avenue station at 7:41 for Netherwood. The East End scouts will wait for the other Plainfield scouts at the Netherwood station. This change in the program has been made by the commissioners because of the long walk from this city to the camp and back again. The return trip will be made by trolley. Scouts assembling at City Park will proceed to the North avenue station in time to catch the train at 7:41.

Arriving at the Netherwood station the trip to the camp will be made by the "Ghost Hoop Wriggle Walk," adapted from the weird rites of the Jamaica, West Indies, Obeahmen. At the camp the Ik-Mik-Dik hunt will take place within the boundaries of the camp site. Once they are found to the camp building, the Chief Ik-Mik-Dik will be brought forth from his lair and then will be revealed the mysteries regarding the Ik-Mik-Diks that has been a puzzle to Plainfield Boy Scouts for so long.

REVIVAL SERVICES LARGELY ATTENDED

"Boy Evangelist" Stirs Large Audiences With His Gospel Talks.

It was a day long to be remembered at the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday. Never before in its history has it been the scene of such interest as was manifested in the services conducted by the boy preacher, Charles Forbes Taylor. The church auditorium and Bible School room were crowded to the doors and many were turned away.

The young evangelist was present at the Bible School session, and in connection with his talk asked any one under sixteen years of age to give John 3:16. Alice Spangenberg responded and was presented by Charles Taylor with a book of his sermons.

"The Shepherd Song" was the theme of the boy's morning sermon and was full of eloquence and tenderness which few could resist. "He is my Shepherd because he bought me, because He feeds me, and because He folds me." The young evangelist pleaded with his hearers to accept the Christ who laid down his life for his sheep; to feed on his word, the Bible, for their spiritual life. He pleaded for more prayer inside the church and out, and for the assembling of Christians in the house of God. Not a person in that vast audience could doubt for a single moment the intense earnestness and sincerity of the preacher as the boy of sixteen pleaded with young and old to cling to the Good Shepherd, Jesus Christ, who

REAL HEAVIES TO FIGHT IN HARLEM

Jim Savage, New Jersey Champion, Meets Tom McMahon Friday.

Joe Levins, the new matchmaker of the American Sporting Club, of Harlem, which is the largest club in New York outside of the Garden, is very enthusiastic over the bout he has scheduled to take place next Friday night which will bring together Jim Savage, the greatest heavyweight ever produced in New Jersey, and Tom McMahon, the "Pittsburgh Bearcat," who are both contenders for the crown now worn by Champion Jess Willard. Savage has a clean cut decision over Frank Moran, who he outclassed in every way, until he knocked him out in the seventh round, while the "Pittsburgh Bearcat" is the only man credited with a real victory over Willard, who he defeated at Youngstown only a few months before Willard wrested the title from Jack Johnson.

Matchmaker Levins has informed the press that he is being backed by a strong syndicate of business men, who stand ready to even outbid the Garden to secure the champion for his first match in this city. Mr. Levins was formerly associated with Jack Curley in many sporting enterprises, and he no doubt had something up his sleeve when he arranged the match between Savage and McMahon.

MANY LOCAL FANS SEE RUTGERS WIN

Plainfielders Attracted by Appearance of Borough Boy at Harrison.

Many Plainfielders were present at Federal League park in Harrison Saturday afternoon when the hefty Rutgers College eleven scored a 44 to 13 victory at the expense of the Springfield Training School warriors. A weight advantage of approximately twenty pounds to the man gave the Jerseyites a chance to crush the New England line for yard after yard but the Rutgers men met unexpected opposition in the latter part of the combat when the Springfield machine got in some snappy, open battling.

Herbert Stine, a graduate of North Plainfield High School, played left tackle for the Springfield team and distinguished himself both on the offense and his defense. He broke up several well executed plays and did some accurate and hard tackling during the four quarters. Many disputes developed throughout the contest relative to the merits of various decisions and it was the concensus of opinion among the throng present that Springfield got the small end of the officiating end. This was evidenced by the hissing that followed several of the verdicts of the referee in charge.

Included in the Plainfield gathering at the game were Coach Ralph S. Patch, of the Plainfield High School team; William Wheelan, Chester Alpaugh, Sheldon Coudray, Walter Stine, Lawrence French, Samuel Tavener, Collis Case, Richard Pennock and numerous others.

GREAT BATTLE FOR ELECTION DAY BILL

Westfield High School to Meet P. H. S. Here Tomorrow Morning.

The Plainfield High School gridiron warriors will celebrate Election Day by hooking with the Westfield High School pigskin chasers on Parker Field tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the return engagement of the season. Every inch of ground is sure to be fought for tooth and nail as the Mt. Ararat aggregation is stinging under a 7 to 0 defeat administered by the local boys several weeks ago, and the Red and Blue players, with the county championship looming up ahead, are not going to be caught asleep at the switch.

Plainfield will be without the services of "Bus" Miller, who has done great work as a running mate of Pennock's until his injury in the Battin game. Either Geary or Mumford will fill his place at left tackle, although Coach Patch may not risk the latter owing to his recent recovery from a dislocated collarbone.

The lineups:

Plainfield.		Westfield.
Geary, Mumford	left tackle	K. Davies
Whelan	center	R. Cairn
Davidson	right end	McMillan
Somloch	right tackle	Marenghi
Hooper	right guard	Sortor
Peacock	quarterback	Gilmartin
Apgar	right halfback	Clark
Noonan	fullback	A. Cairns

HOLY CROSS TO PLAY FRANKLIN A. A. TEAM

Lively Election Day Contest Will Be Staged on Local Field.

Wilson will play, but Tom Ricketts is out of the game for the rest of the season. Barto will probably be in for a part of the game.

The game will be started promptly at 3:30. The Franklins will come in at 2 p. m. and will go straight to the field.

The lineup follows:

Holy Cross.		Franklin A. A.

HOLY CROSS WINS FROM METUCHEN

Home Goal Never in Danger in Saturday's Game—Score 14 to 0.

Holy Cross defeated the Metuchen Field Club, Saturday, in one of the finest games staged on Cricket Field this season, by a score of 14-0.

Although outweighed, the locals completely outplayed their opponents and at no period of the game was the home goal in danger. The fact that the Metuchens were unable to work a single forward pass and were only able to make first down on only three occasions is evidence of the strong defense put up by the locals. Captain Wilson was unable to play because of a wrenched ankle, but Caulfield, who played fullback, made a very favorable showing and hit the line with plenty of force.

Brown, who played great football against Holy Cross last Saturday, jumped the fence and played a wonderful game at end for the local boys. Lee, Howarth and Hohenstein also made their first appearance for the maroon and white.

T. Ricketts and Barto were injured and will probably be out of the game for some time. Webster, Brennie and Coyle were also unable to play, making six Holy Cross regulars out of the lineup, but the men who filled their places played better than the regulars.

The lineups:

Holy Cross.		Metuchen F. C.
T. Ricketts	left end	Lundy
Carty	centre	Massopust
Howarth	right guard	Wilbert
Benson	right tackle	Breen
Clarke	right end	Kro
J. Ricketts	left halfback	West
J. Manning	quarterback	Clarkson

Score by periods and summary:

PRINCETON STUDENTS WORK THEIR WAY

Statistics Show That 15 Per Cent. Are Registered Under the Bureau.

Princeton, Oct. 30.—Statistics of the bureau of self-help at Princeton show that fifteen per cent. of the students are working their way through college either partially or wholly. Two hundred and fifty students are registered under the bureau, which is in charge of securing employment for needy students.

George McF. Galt, a graduate of the university, is secretary of the bureau, and possesses a fertile mind for thinking out methods by which the students lacking pecuniary means are able to help pay their university bills. Last year there were many needy students in Tigertown, and the university authorities were induced this fall to secure employment for these in the university dining hall as waiters. Over 100 students are serving their fellow-students in the dining halls.

There was a sight hesitancy on the part of the faculty at first in employing the students in this capacity, as it was thought by some that it would create a distinction between the needy students and those with means and would be detrimental to the democracy of the university. With the installation of the student-waiter system this fall, however, all these doubts have disappeared and the scheme has proved thus far to be successful. Several of the most popular members of the freshman and sophomore classes are serving meals in the dining halls.

The students serve at two meals a day, in compensation for which they receive their board. As the board is the biggest item of expenditure this manner of securing assistance helps poor students materially. The work takes but two hours a day.

Other methods of making money undertaken by the students are multitudinous. The more wealthy students help out their classmates as much as possible by patronizing their enterprises. Under the self-help bureau the students run a bootblack parlor, which is managed by four students and which employs four boys; and also a clothes pressing shop, which does practically all the pressing on the campus.

Five students are managing this establishment and they divide the profits, which amount to considerable. The majority of the students working their way usually enter college with at least $250 to help defray their expenses the first year. The hardest year is the first and after that numerous and better ways of earning money open up to the students.

Lack of pecuniary means has no effect on the social position of the students. There is no better proof of this than the fact that two of the highest offices obtainable among the undergraduates are held by students who are helping to pay their own expenses to a considerable extent.

OLD JOHN STREET CHURCH TO HAVE ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Special services marking the 149th anniversary of the congregation are being held for six days at the John Street Methodist Episcopal church, New York. This society, the first of all Methodist societies in the United States, was founded in October, 1766.

Rev. Dr. Merton S. Rice, pastor of the Woodward Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Detroit, Mich., delivered the anniversary sermon at 10:45 o'clock yesterday morning. Preceding this a love feast was held at 9:30 o'clock under the leadership of Rev. Dr. Charles R. Barnes, of the Newark conference, formerly of this city.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Vaudeville will absent itself from the Plainfield Theatre today through the leasing of the playhouse to the Plainfield Musical Club. The usual program will be returned tomorrow however, with a gala holiday bill. The theatre will be opened at ten o'clock tomorrow morning for a special children's performance of the five-part feature photoplay, "The Wizard of Oz," based on the musical success used some years ago by Montgomery and Stone as their first starring vehicle.

The vaudeville performances will be given in the afternoon and evening as usual and will have as a headliner the tabloid musical success "A Night in Monte Carlo." Ten people are in the cast and they all know how to sing and dance as well as to be funny. Five other acts, all of exceptional merit, are also on the bill and there will be a special Charlie Chaplin picture entitled "The Mixup," given both Tuesday and Wednesday.

Everybody was well pleased with the awards and with the manner in which the Country Store was conducted last Friday night. Another one on even a larger scale has been arranged for Wednesday night, many handsome prizes having already been secured for the occasion. Keep the date in mind and number yourself among the lucky patrons.

CARNEGIE MEDAL TO FORMER LOCAL BOY

Garret E. Conover Rewarded for Act of Bravery in Saving Two Women.

Garrett Elliott Conover, son of Rev. Dr. Garrett M. Conover, of Asbury Park, and formerly of this city, is one of the two Jerseymen who have been honored with medals presented by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, Leon I. Horner, of Riverside, being the second one. Conover is nineteen and Horner is twenty years of age.

Conover has been rewarded for the rescue of two young women from the surf at Manasquan, Sunday afternoon, July 21, 1914. He was on the beach when Miss Serena V. Roome, of Freehold, N. J., and Miss Ruth K. Decker, of Stony Point, N. J., were caught in a sea puss and were swept to sea.

While others hesitated, Conover removed his coat and plunged into the surf. He reached Miss Decker first and brought her ashore. Though tired from his battle against the surf he went into the water again, and grasping Miss Roome, held her up until a boat put out. Miss Roome was unconscious when taken into the boat. Conover was exhausted when he reached shore.

Meantime, Miss Decker had been revived and she was one of the first to compliment Conover for his heroism, declaring that she owed her life to his quick work.

Conover is a senior in the Neptune High School and vice-president of his class.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Emmy Wehlen, the Vienese musical comedy star, will make her debut at the U. S. Astor Theatre today for the first time in Plainfield in "The Reckoning," a Metro production in five parts. Miss Wehlen, in a brief career before the picture camera, has attained a wide reputation and in this picture she shows hitherto unsuspected gifts as a tragedienne. The Metro Company recently has released some splendid subjects, notably "The Lost Voice," in which Francis X. Bushman appeared. It is said that Miss Wehlen's film to be shown today and tomorrow at the Astor is quite up to the Metro standard, if not superior.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

YOUR RESPONSIBILITY.

The greatest vote ever polled in the State of New Jersey should be cast tomorrow when county officers and members of the General Assembly are to selected for ensuing terms.

Men who voted down woman's appeal for the ballot and those who favored sharing the right of citizenship with them are alike awakened to the potential power that they wield as individuals as a result of the brave campaign of education that suffrage workers waged in New Jersey. That they aroused an interest seldom shown in this State was evidenced by the enormous number of voters who participated in the special election, and this interest has not died

Tomorrow man is king. The humble workingman, with his dinner pail on his arm, who can spare but a few minutes from the daily work that must be done if he is to provide food for his wife and children, walks into the polls erect in the knowledge that he has the same voice in the selection of officials to govern him as the capitalist who employs thousands of his class The President of the United States, who holds the highest office within the gift of any people, and in whose hands are held the reins of the greatest government the world has ever known, desposits his ballot in the same slot as the downcast, friendless "bum," and the the opinion of each has the same weight in determining who shall hold office. The vote of the "bum" may kill that of the President.

Are you, Mr. Voter, prepared to exercise such sovereign authority with the intelligence that it demands? It is a great responsibility and a glorious one, but are you worthy of it?

Suppose that you had the power to decide all questions on which you will vote tomorrow with your own voice. Would you stop and consider before you selected the men for public office? We believe that there are a large number of voters who would change their ballot if they knew that it carried the deciding vote, and yet this may become a fact. Your vote may elect or beat one man or many men.

In the selection of men to represent Union county in the next General Assembly there is little choice. Assemblymen Runyon, Pierson and Morgan have been tried and found to be true to the interests of the people, even under strong pressure from political bosses. Now these bosses, heads of the iniquitious liquor trust, are bending every effort to "punish them" by having the people of Union county reject their claims for reelection. The three men represented Union county with credit. They were prominent figures in the last Assembly and are competent by experience and intellect to sit in the legislative chambers. Democratic nominees have admitted that they are not competent to discuss issues of the campaign, and should therefore be eliminated from consideration by voters who are not bound to party lines by blind partizanship.

A TAX ON FRIENDSHIP.

If our Democratic friends will pardon the comparison, for no slur at their honesty is intended, they remind us of an amateur politician of bad repute who once ran for office in his home town. He asked a lifelong friend to vote for him.

"I am sorry Charley, but I cannot," the friend replied. "We have been friends a long time and I like you, but I am afraid to help put you in public office. You might go wrong."

"Hell, I thought you was a friend of mine," was the rejoinder. "Anybody would vote for a good man for office. I want somebody who will vote for me anyhow."

By their admission that they are not competent to discuss issues of the campaign with Republican nominees the Democratic candidates are asking their friends to vote for them in spite of their inability to meet the qualifications of their opponents.

On the question of a $1,000,000 bond issue for the purchase of the Wharton tract, which has been contracted for by the Water Supply Board, and whose members urge ratification of their act by the people there is a decided diversity of opinion. The opposition to this expenditure of public money is so great as to make approval of the bond issue extremely hazardous. No expenditure of such enormous proportions should be voted for until it has been proven for the best interests of the peoole, and a majority of officials familiar with the situation are opposing the purchase of the Wharton tract by the State. Prominent among those who oppose it are members of the New Jersey Conservation and Development Commission, who are to take over the work of the Water Supply Board within a few months. If they later find that the land is needed it can be purchased at the same price. Vote against the bond issue now.

American women are going to raise money for a monument to Edith Cavell, the English nurse who was shot by German soldiers for aiding Belgium soldiers to escape. Why put money into marble to honor a heroine of another nation, when thousands of children of our neighbors at home are sacrificed each year on the cross of commercial greed. If this money was used to better conditions of those who work in sweat shops it would do a thousand times more good and probably satisfy Miss Cavell, but our dear women would not get so much publicity out of their heroic charity.

"Don't kiss! When you feel like it, just approach each other, smile and pat each other's cheek. "Pat-pat' instead of kiss," says Dr. Grover president of the Huntington, W. Va., Board of Health.

That might be all right for some folks, but how about the wife who goes through her hubby's pockets while she is kissing him.

Edward Morrell, Clifton, N. J., has just received a postal card mailed at Hampton, N. Y., June 16, 1881.

They'll have to hurry up that New Jersey Central service a little. This is too much.

Press reports say that Roosevelt has gone on a "silent vacation." Meaning, we presume, that everyone but him will be forced to keep silent while he talks.

And now Bryan has gone from grape juice to ginger ale. Soon he will be winking when he says it.

Memories

Do you remember, Bill, the time
Old Farmer Medders' cow and put her in
The college chapel tied a singing-book
About her neck, and fed her from a bin
Made of the pulpit turned square upside down?
Remember how the whole small college town
Turned out next morning to observe the fun?
That was—let's see—in eighteen ninety-one.

Remember, Bill, the time we climbed into
The belfry of the college center hall
And tied a rope to that old tongue, then flew
Back down the stairway, scared for fear we'd fall
And break our necks? Do you remember how We chuckled o'er that stunt of rope and cow—
Our guilty doings—how with pain
we hid them?
Remember? Liar, Bill! We never did them.

Punishment

Punishment is what nobody knows how to administer.

Nobody knows whether there should be such a thing.

This isn't all we do not know about punishment.

We punish our children largely because we are larger than they, and to relieve our feelings.

Half the time we are wrong, but it takes us years to get wise enough to know we're wrong, or honest enough to admit it.

Much of the time when children are doing what we do not approve, the children are acting with better judgment than we have.

Some of the time they are not.

We punish criminals to keep other criminals from doing likewise.

But it never has had and never will have that effect.

We put men into prisons to complete the ruin of their lives that they themselves were unwise enough to begin.

We let them out, after a certain length of time, with no more chance for being or doing anything, than a tallow cat has of escaping from an asbestos dog that is pursuing it through Hades.

They may have improved some by the prison life, but society has been at large all the time they were in, and hasn't improved a bit, and the prisoner is mighty lonesome being good.

So ordinarily he goes back to his old ways just to be in the swim.

If anybody can cite a single instance where a human being was sure-enough improved by severe punishment, please point it out.

I'll bet a bottle of mush that you will cite a case of plain discipline—which is the modern prison's sane idea—which isn't punishment at all.

Punishment is what nobody knows anything about.

The above proves that we don't.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Dyspeptic

THE dyspeptic should never feel secure with a diagnosis of gastritis. What does it mean? Gastrum means stomach; the suffix itis means inflammation. Gastritis, appendicitis, neuritis, iritis—inflammation of stomach, appendix, nerve, iris. Sounds definite enough to the layman, perhaps, but signifies nothing in particular to the doctor.

You may belch or you may contain yourself in silence—that makes no difference with the diagnosis. If you have gastritis you have it, gas or no gas.

Chronic gastritis, sometimes called chronic "catarrh" of the stomach lining, is no more a definite diagnosis than is chronic "catarrh" of the nose or throat. "Catarrh" is not a disease entity, but signifies any inflammation of a mucous membrane under any condition. Taking medicine for "catarrh" is therefore a sorry experiment for the victim of the error. A catarrhal inflammation must be investigated by the physician to determine what cause is at play, and treated accordingly. Even "catarrh" of the nose or throat is as variable as regards cause and treatment as is measles and diphtheria.

Acute gastritis is usually caused by a corrosive poison accidentally or intentionally swallowed, and is usually fatal. Rarely an overwhelming bacterial infection may produce acute gastritis, and the outcome is then nearly as hopeless as in chemical poisoning. Never is acute gastritis attributable to a mere dietetic error alone.

Chronic gastritis, or "catarrh" of the stomach, is often the result of prolonged abuses, such as overeating, hasty eating and alcoholism. But more frequently it is part and parcel of tuberculosis, heart disease, Bright's disease, cancer, cirrhosis (hardening) of the liver or pyorrhœa (Riggs' disease). It may take the patient months to realize that his "dyspepsia" is not the primary cause of his poor health—months during which he spends his money on such junk as "dyspepsia" tablets and other medicines alleged to "digest your food" or "tone the stomach and strengthen the digestive capacity."

"Acute indigestion," when ventured as a cause of sudden death, is just a guess. Gall stone colic, perforation of stomach or duodenum by an ulcer, acute inflammation of the pancreas, angina pectoris (misnamed "neuralgia" of the heart), locomotor ataxia, obstruction of the bowel, and strangulated hernia are some of the conditions which really cause death in these cases of "acute indigestion."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Has Acid On The Stomach

Am a sufferer with acid on the stomach. Can this be cured? I am twenty-nine years old. Have had it six months. No food agrees. There is much burning, severe pain, much gas.

Answer—All healthy people have hydrochloric (muriatic) acid in the digesting stomach. You may have too much, or too little, causing delayed digestion, which permits excessive fermentation and the formation of other acids. Treatment would be widely different—hence we cannot advise you.

NOVEMBER

NOVEMBER, a month which is now being introduced by the calendar for the 1915th time in the hope of making it popular is a thirty-day sentence imposed by Nature on humanity and served out principally under an umbrella.

November is a month which would like to become winter, but which hasn't quite got the nerve. It is usually composed of ten rainy days, ten cloudy days and ten snowy days or freezing days with a pinch of sunshine between the various divisions. It is useful because it makes December seem pleasant in comparison.

In November the trees finish disrobing and as they wave their bare limbs against the sky, the wind converses through them. There is nothing more talkative than a November wind. Along about 10 P.M. on a bleak, damp night, a November wind likes nothing better than to come along and hang around the entire evening, reminding you that the rent is almost due, and that it is a long time until spring, and that Death by freezing is particularly sad, and that unless you pay your last winter's coal bill pretty soon, you will have to go to bed to keep warm. A November wind is more pessimistic than anything on earth, except a Wall Street operator during a spasm of public honesty.

November was invented by the Romans, who did so many terrible things in the early Christian era. It was so named because it was the ninth month at that time. The growth of business has compelled the addition of two more months since then, both of them being of much better quality.

In November automobiling, croquet and lawn socials begin their long winter's sleep, but football is very popular because it is easier to keep warm in a football game than it is in a house where the furnace is being repaired. Football in November is a game to decide whether the player will dent the ground or the ground will dent the player. The ground usually wins. Corn husking and riding to the polls in an opposition carriage are also two popular outdoor sports during this month.

There is nothing more talkative than a November wind

There are three great uses for the month of November. It kills malaria, flies and political campaigns. None of these are able to survive the climate of this month. If it were not for November political campaigns might go on right up to Christmas and entail vast suffering among the rich. Most of our public officials are elected in November, but we cannot justly blame the month for this.

November was first put prominently on the map by the Pilgrim fathers. About 1630, when they discovered that there were only a few days of the month left, they instituted a Thanksgiving festival, which has been observed ever since with increased gratitude and devotion as each November has worn away.

Why Football Appeals

BASEBALL wanes; football advances. While the leading baseball teams grapple in decisive games the collegiate devotees of the pigskin train their muscles for the first rushes of the season. Soon the big teams will be wallowing forth like behemoths to squash the minors, though some man fleet of foot and sure of eye may upset calculations and place Freshwafer on the sporting sheet for one glorious day.

The public likes football. Our institutions of higher learning build larger and larger stands, but they are never too large for the patronage when the giants of the gridiron clash. Football is so popular that it supports all other college sports and leaves huge surpluses for construction purposes. If the day ever arrives when larger accommodations will not be needed for the public football managers can come to the rescue of science and art with funds. So the time may come when the taxpayers of different states will find their burdens lifted by the football squads.

Football appeals for many reasons. It is a rough game, as games go; and yet it combines with physical prowess the utmost in co-operation and headwork. In addition it functions in an atmosphere which no other sport can match—an atmosphere of youth, colorful, enthusiastic, unselfish, idealistic. Professional baseball it outclasses completely in that respect. In baseball the contestants are more workers than players, spurred to effort chiefly by hope of rewards and promotions, performing as well with this club as with that, bought, sold and traded like so many prize animals or cogs in a great financial machine. Neither owners nor players are to be blamed for this; it is the inevitable result of playing games for money month after month and year after year. Slack baseball attendance, it seems is due less to competition than it is to general weariness with a sport over-advertised and professionalized to the minutest degree. People do not have the same chance to get tired of football; it is with us but a few months, occurs only once a week and money is not the primary consideration. The colleges would play their games if none attended but the student bodies.

Perhaps the knowledge that football players burn with a desire to serve the institution whose letter they wear has something to do with the popular enthusiasm over college football. The boys go out to battle not for themselves, nor for money, but to shed new glory on their alma mater, a place hallowed for them by song and story, the seat of tradition as ancient as a new country can possess. Baseball magnates might approach this spirit by specializing in home products. Instead of having a team of New Yorkers in Chicago uniforms playing a team of Illinois in Giant uniforms why not reverse the process? It is quite possible that the public would appreciate the change; there is a great appeal in local feeling.—Paterson, N. J., Press

BY E. R. BRANSON

It's Up To The Lad

Q. If a young man of twenty marries a girl of twenty-two, can the marriage be annulled by the young man's parents, providing they knew nothing of the affair. The witness believed and swore to the fact that the young man was of legal age. Is such a marriage legal?

A. In your state (Washington), the statute requires the consent of the father, mother or legal guardian if the young man is under twenty-one or the girl is under eighteen. However, the statute further provides that if either party to the marriage is incapable of consenting, for want of legal age, the marriage is voidable only at the suit of the party laboring under such disability. Hence, under the circumstances outlined by you, the parents cannot bring an action to annul the marriage. If such action is brought, it must be brought, in this case, by the young man.

Dividing An Inheritance

Q. Should a married woman, who owns property in her own name, die intestate, without issue, leaving a husband, father, brothers and sisters living, who would legally heir the property?

A. In your state (New Jersey) the statute provides that "when any person shall die seized of lands, tenements or hereditaments in his or her own right in fee simple, without devising the same in due form of law, and without leaving lawful issue, leaving a brother or sister, or leaving a brother or brothers and a sister or sisters of the whole blood, the inheritance shall descend to such brother or sister, or to such brother or brothers and sister or sisters, as the case may be, as tenants in common in equal parts . . ." In the event that one dies intestate and without lawful issue, and without a brother or sister of the whole blood, or any lawful issue of such brother or sister, then the inheritance will go to the father of the intestate, "unless said inheritance came to the person so seized from the part of his or her mother by descent, devise or gift, in which case it shall descend as if such person so seized had survived his or her father." Further it is provided that "nothing in this act contained shall be construed or taken to bar or injure the rights or estate of a husband as a tenant by the courtesy, . . . or to make void or in any way affect any marriage settlement."

Mary Had A Little Lamb

Q. In case a child is legally adopted, and the foster parents afterward remove to another state, may they lawfully take the child to their new place of residence? A. Yes.

How To Keep Hens And Save Money

Q. My neighbor keeps a large number of chickens which have damaged my garden considerably. This fall I planted oats in it and his chickens have scratched up about half the oats. I told him about it and he told me to tell my troubles to the town marshal. I have a lawful fence on the ground. What is my remedy?

A. If your neighbor, in consequence of his fault, has allowed his chickens to damage your property, he will be legally liable. However, it would be much better for you and your neighbor to exert every effort toward an adjustment of your difficulties in a friendly and neighborly way. Disputes of this character are profitless and often work great harm to both parties.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

The Life Line

The Woman Who Thinks Us "Nigh"

She happens to drop in on us on the evening of the maid's day out, just as we are clearing off our table. "Oh, let me help you finish!" she insists, picking up a dish and starting for the kitchenette. The dish in her hand contains a small piece of cheese. "Shall I throw it away?" she asks us; "it's not worth keeping, is it?" We hesitate. To be sure, the piece is too small to go on the table again, yet it is big enough to give the slight cheese flavor that we love to a dish of baked maccaroni. "No!" we answer, "I guess I'll have baked maccaroni to-morrow so as to use up that piece of cheese. That's the way I manage, don't you—work the scraps into something else?" But, to our amazement, our friend only stares at us blankly. As she stares, her mouth twitches slightly. Then she recovers herself, and hastily answers: "Yes! Of course!" But we know that her answer is a lie. We know that we have shocked her with our economy—that she is of the sort that despises watchfulness of one's income. She doesn't see that economy is equally as important as gain—that there's no use in filling up a dipper if the dipper has a hole in it. She lacks reasoning powers. She's still in her perambulator.

When The Circus Comes To Town

When the circus comes to town
Mamma dons her bestes gown
'N' says: "I do not care to go,
But the children like it so."

Nursie says: "I am so tired,
But you know that I am hired,
And the children need me, too,
So I'll go along with you."

Sister looks so dignified
And the children oft does chide,
Says she cares not for a show,
But she reckons she will go.

Daddy acts the part of sage,
Says: "Of course, one at my age
Does not care for all this noise
Like they did when they were boys!"

Says: "I'm feeling awful weak,
Guess I had better rest a streak;
Business is awful dull to-day,
Believe I'll go out to the play."

Then we children pass a grin,
For their talk is far too thin;
They are nearly dead to go,
But they hate to have us know!

Household Hints

TASTY SCHOOL SANDWICHES.

Chestnut Cream Sandwiches—Peel, boil, drain and mash large chestnuts. Rub them through a sieve and mix well with sweet cream. Add a touch of salt or sugar as is liked, and spread the paste on thin slices of white bread. Put the paste on the lower slice always.

Fig Sandwiches—Soak dried figs over night in cold water to cover them and then simmer over a slow fire until tender. Add half cup sugar to each pound of figs during the cooking. Chill them thoroughly, then chop to a paste and spread on thin white bread or on thin slices of pound cake.

Marshmallow and Nut Sandwiches—Toast some fresh marshmallows and mix them in a bowl with chopped English walnuts. Cut white bread and put the paste on the lower slice.

Cream Cheese Sandwiches—Get the square cheeses and see that they are perfectly fresh. Mash in a bowl to a paste, add a little sweet cream beaten up first and teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce to every cheese; salt and paprika to taste. Spread on thin fresh graham bread. Chopped olives or shavings of pimento may be added to this filling.

Bacon Sandwiches — Wisps of breakfast bacon, delicately broiled, make the most appetizing of sandwiches, especially if put between toasted slices of graham bread with lettuce and seasoned with paprika on red pepper.

Tomato and Horseradish Sandwiches—Slice a large tomato thin and sprinkle it with salt and pepper. Mix a little bottled horseradish with a tablespoon of olive oil. Spread thin slices of lightly buttered gluten bread with the horseradish mixture and put the tomato slices between.

Mayonnaise Sandwiches — Make mayonnaise, using plenty of red pepper and lemon juice. Spread on a bit of lettuce put between fresh gluten bread. Only a little of the mayonnaise must be used, as it is likely to drip when it becomes warm.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Gift Suggestion—Purchase as many yards of linen huckaback toweling as you wish, to make guest towels. Cut it in yard lengths, stamp and embroider one end, hemstitch the other. When invited to a "shower" or wish to give a Christmas present you have a nice little gift by embroidering the recipient's initial in the center of one end.

Use the Little Basins that pork and beans are sold in to bake fruit cakes in; they will bake in about twenty minutes and are better than one large one. Saves time and gas.

To Clean coil wire bed springs use a five-cent dish mop, which reaches all parts.

THE TABLE.

Meat Loaf From Leftovers—Put enough cold cooked meat through meat grinder to make two cupfuls. Mix with it one small onion and four crackers ground, one beaten egg, one level teaspoon celery salt, pinch of cayenne pepper, salt and enough gravy or broth to moisten. Line a buttered melon mold with cooked rice, fill with mixture and cover with rice. Steam 1½ hours. Turn out on chop platter and pour hot tomato sauce around it.

Fruit Cake—One cup sugar creamed with three tablespoons melted butter, one cup buttermilk, two cups flour, one cup raisins chopped fine, spices. Bake slowly. This is greatly improved by allowing to stand a week or two where it will not dry out.

All Around Cake—One-half cup shortening, one cup sugar, one cup sour milk or cream. Measure before sifting: two cups flour, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon baking powder, yolk of one egg. This formula can be used in various ways. Divided in half with four tablespoons cocoa or chocolate added, with vanilla flavoring, it makes fine devil's food cake. Or, mix nuts or raisins with half and bake in layers. Or, mix one generous cup of the batter with cocoa and make a marble cake by dropping a spoonful of white, then small portion of the dark.

Lemon Filling—Beat one egg and mix in three tablespoons cornstarch. If too stiff to be poured into one pint of boiling water, add a small amount of water. Stir constantly while the mixture is on the stove. It will soon thicken. Add to it the juice of one lemon, also the grated rind and a scant cup of sugar. Let boil for very short time. It makes a delicious filling for a cake.

AMERICAN ISSUE ON UNION COUNTY FIGHT

Advocates the Election of Runyon, Pierson and Morgan.

In a special edition devoted to the election tomorrow in New Jersey, the American Issue, official organ of the Anti-Saloon League, takes decided interest in the candidates for the State Assembly. It endorses the entire Republican ticket in Union county and makes a strong appeal for their election.

After printing the names of Charles L. Morgan, Arthur N. Pierson and William N. Runyon in black type, the Issue says:

"Here again the issue is unusually clear. These three gentlemen stood loyally by our issue in the last Legislature. Judge Runyon's notable address in behalf of our bill evoked round after round of applause from both friends and enemies of the measure. Mr. Morgan, with fine feeling said that he was glad to feel that he represented not only the men, but the women and children of Union county. Mr. Pierson, without comment, voted for the bill, and 'actions speak louder than words.' The liquor interests are, of course, determined to prevent their return to Trenton. Mr. Morgan, especially, is the object of their concentrated attack. We are sure that every independent Democrat, Progressive and Prohibitionist will feel it not only a privilege, but a duty, to rally to their support and insure their election."

I. W. W. WANT TO EXECUTE MEMBER

Ask Governor of Utah to Let Them Shoot Hilstorm to Death Today.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 1.—As an example of the extent of fanaticism reached by members of the I. W. W., the governor of Utah has received a demand from leaders of that organization in Toledo, Ohio, who want to execute Joseph Hilstrom, one of their number sentenced to die today for murder.

Hilstrom is a Swedish poet and wrote many "chants of hate" for the I. W. W. over the country. Members of the Toledo I. W. W. say that if Hilstrom is to be put to death, it should be at the hands of his comrades, for whom he has worked. They ask that the governor of Utah give them the $250 which will be spent for the execution. This money, they say, belongs to them.

Six men from the Toledo local have been chosen to "hobo" it to Salt Lake City and demand that they be made the firing squad. These members are Ernest Smith, Rodney Mehling, James Callahan, Jack Lever, Fred Cooney and S. Sangstad.

The men are expected to ask for the elimination of blank cartridges and to request that every gun be loaded to kill. The communication of the Toledo local concludes, "Let his (Hilstrom's) blood be upon the capitalist class of Utah and their political henchmen." It is signed by Mrs. Joseph B. Bates, as secretary.

NEW BRUNSWICK WOMAN HELD FOR EXAMINATION

Somerville, Nov. 1.—Mary Janetzkowski, of New Brunswick, is in the county jail here to await examination by physicians as to her mental condition. The young woman, who is about twenty-six years old, boarded a trolley car Friday at New Brunswick with the thought of visiting in Bound Brook.

As she got on the car she handed the conductor, P. McConnell, a five dollar bill and when he made change she refused to take it, telling him to keep it. After some talk McConnell noticed that she wanted to sing and she did. As the car got near Bound Brook the woman wanted to give McConnell more money.

After arriving in Bound Brook an officer was called and the unfortunate woman was taken before Recorder R. L. Reed, who committed her to the jail.

The woman had not been drinking but talks of religion and her lover.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Bibbley Wah Rode on The Apple Cart.

The Apples Rolled Down the Hill.

"ANY one can have a Bibbley Wah story. Who wants it?" daddy invited, taking the children on his lap.

"I—I!" cried Jack and Evelyn.

"After Uncle Ben's men had picked and packed in barrels all the best apples that grew in the beautiful orchard halfway down the hill to the Frenchles' house, there were still bushels and bushels left that were not quite good enough to eat, but still too good to leave on the ground. So Uncle Ben had them gathered into a big cart, and, after Anne had spiced and canned and pickled and baked and made into excellent pies all that everybody on the farm could possibly stuff, the rest were carted off to a big mill, where their juice was squeezed out into delicious sweet cider to drink and later to make into vinegar."

"Could Anne also make apple tarts?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes, indeed!" said daddy. "All the fall she used to bring apple tarts over to the children at 3 o'clock, when they played by the brook. Well, one day Bibbley Wah and the boys were helping the men pick up cider apples"—

"Did Uncle Ben pay them 5 cents an hour?" asked Jack.

"Yes, and, because every apple in sight could be used this time, Bibbley Wah really helped. She worked so hard that she got very tired, and when little children get tired, you know, they nearly always cry. 'Bibbley Wah! I want to see my ma-ma-ma!' Bobbie mocked her when she wept tears. But Uncle Ben made him stop and said that Bibbley Wah had picked up so many apples that she might have a nice ride home on top of the apple cart.

"This was a great treat and pleased Bibbley Wah very much, because the boys had to walk up the hill. Now, at the back of the cart was an end board that fastened with a small iron peg and kept the apples from tumbling out. The way to dump the load of apples was to pull out the peg. About halfway up the hill Bibbley Wah discovered the interesting peg. 'What a nice big nail!' said she, tugging at it. Out it came, the end board dropped, the apples went rolling down the hill and old Ned went on walking up the hill. 'You lost some apples!' cried Bibbley Wah to the driver, when she was tired of watching the pretty yellow and red balls roll down the hill."

"What did the driver do?" cried Jack and Evelyn.

"Got off the cart and made the kiddies help pick up about six bushels of apples," said daddy.

The children giggled. "You get two kisses tonight, daddy," said Evelyn, giving him a big squeeze, "because we liked that story."

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

John Sutner Tells Julia Osgood That He Suspects Tyler.

"Do you like Tyler?" asked John Sutner as Julia Osgood returned from taking a dictation.

"Is that the new cashier's name? I have not given him a thought, have scarcely seen him. Why? She seated herself and rapidly adjusted her typewriter to run off the letters.

"I have an uncanny dislike for him. I can not tell why."

"Why do you say uncanny?" asked Julia glancing up.

"I can't describe the feeling he gives me. All I know is I am uncomfortable when he is around. I feel like a man marked for trouble."

"How absurd!" scoffed Julia. "I did not think you were superstitious."

"That is where you are wrong. I am too sensitive to atmosphere not to believe in good and evil spirits."

"What do you mean? Has Mr. Tyler the evil eye?" laughed Julia.

"I suppose that is what it would have been called a hundred years ago. Does no one affect you that way?"

"Disagreeably? Yes. People talk to me when I am in a great hurry to get some letters off." Julia smiled archly at the discomfited young man opposite her.

"Nuff sed." John relapsed into silence, and the keys of the typewriter rattled noisily for the next two hours. Just before noon the door opened and Tyler entered. He had a message for Julia and having delivered it left, casting a sharp glance in John's direction.

"Do you see what I mean?" asked John when the door closed behind him, "I am half tempted to believe he knows some of my creditors, for I owe him nothing though he acts as if I had refused to pay a debt of long standing."

"You work your imagination overtime. I am beginning to believe you imagine half the exasperation you attribute to your creditors."

John groaned. "Read that!" he exclaimed, passing a letter across the table. Julia read:

"Mr. John Sutner,
"Fairport, Kas.,
"Dear Sir:—

"I regret that it is necessary for me to write again about the little matter of fifty dollars still due me on account. If the account is not squared on the first of next month I shall be obliged to proceed to collect by law.

"Hoping that all unpleasantness may be avoided by an early settlement, I am very truly yours.

"G. E. BARSTOW."

"Well, they can't draw blood out of a turnip," remarked Julia, staring at the letter.

"No, but they can crush the turnip. I think Jaynes is the kind of a man to give a man his walking papers if he had to have his wages garnisheed. To lose my job just now would be the finishing blow." As it was twelve o'clock he stuffed the letter in his pocket and rose to go.

"There isn't any one you can borrow from to tide you over?" asked Julia.

"Not a soul. I am as much alone financially as if Barstow and I were alone in the world. There is absolutely no place to turn."

Julia put on her hat and they silently walked down the steps together.

"Good-bye," she said as he tipped his hat at the corner where they separated.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

"I THINK every young man when he comes of age should consider taking out a life insurance policy as part of his civic duty and should think of the payment of the premium as a part of his annual budget, which is just as necessary as his board, lodging and clothes."

PREPARATIONS FOR THE FALL

In making preparations for the Fall, have you arranged for an account with The State Trust Company? Persons who maintain their accounts in New York, do not realize how convenient and profitable a local bank account is.

3% interest is paid on checking accounts; out-of-town items are collected at par; checks may be drawn payable in New York; and last, but not least, our banking hours have been arranged to meet the convenience of the New York business man.

An interview will convince you of the desirability of transacting at least a portion of your business with this progressive institution.

FEET ARE A FEATURE

Pretty shoes are as necessary as pretty clothes; more so this Fall than ever before.

The doctors and fashion creators have made trailing skirts as unpopular as the funny papers did duelling. The trails were quite as foolish as the duel, as dangerous—and they have now become quite as unfashionable.

Hence the greater popularity of the Van Arsdale women's boots.

Hon. WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS

AND OTHER PROMINENT SPEAKERS

—Paid for by Democratic Executive Committee.

It has been brought to our attention that a concerted attempt is being made by the saloon men to defeat Assemblymen Runyon, Pierson and Morgan in their candidacy for re-election to the Assembly, particularly because they voted in favor of the local option bill at the last session of the Legislature.

We are confident that all that is necessary to secure the re-election of these gentlemen is to call attention to this fact. We support them because of their attitude on that question in view, as well, of their excellent record on public matters in general.

The Boards which we represent have requested us to make this appeal in favor of the election of the three Assemblymen named.

George H. Batchelor, Pres't of Federated Bible Classes.

R. Henry Depew, Chairman Poster Campaign Com.

Walter H. P. Veysey, Pres't of Federated Church Clubs.

PLAINFIELD SAVINGS BANK

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

How to Become a Successful Saver

A young man started a Bank Account with $25.00 and deposited $25 to his credit each month.

As his income increased, he increased the amount of his deposits to $50, then to $75, then to $100 per month. Four years have now passed, and he has $4,000 to his credit.

This shows what can be accomplished by systematic saving.

R. M. GRANT & CO. GET SEWER BONDS

$145,000 of $300,000 Issue is Sold to New York Concern for $149.811.10.

EIGHTEEN PROPOSALS

Sewer Extension Ordinance Adopted—Central Avenue Widening is Deferred—Resignations of Patrolmen Fritts and Craig Are Accepted.

Eighteen proposals for the sale of an issue of $145,000 worth of sewer bonds were received by the Common Council at its November meeting Monday night, the bid being awarded to R. M. Grant & Company at a figure of $149,811.10 with accrued interest from date of issue. These bonds are part of the original issue of $300,000 authorized in March 1914, to defray the city's share of the cost of constructing the trunk line sewer to be built jointly by this city, North Plainfield and Dunellen. The issue sold Monday night makes a total of $250,000 and it is believed that the remaining $50,000 will not have to be used. The bonds sold Monday night bear interest at four and one-half per cent. and are of $1,000 denominations. They will be expired between the years 1940 and 1951.

Those unsuccessful bidders were: Turner and Beals, $148,661.50; Atwater and Wells, $102.131 per bond; A. B. Leach and Company, $146,796; H. L. Crawford and Company, $148,161; Clark-Dodge and Company $148,964.16; Robert Winthrope and Company, $149,610; Rhoades and Company, $148,861.35; Kissel-Kinnicutt, $148,644; Plainfield Trust Company, $146,450; Kissel and Company, $149,104.95; Koots Brothers, $148,451; George B. Gibbons and Company, $148,767.10; N. W Halsey and Company, $148,097.45; City National Bank, $146,565.51; Frazier and Company, $148,161; Bond and Goodwin, $148,820; Harris-Forbes and Company, $147,840.45. A committee composed of Councilmen Claybrook, Cox and Hyman was appointed by President Clay.

No one appeared at the public hearing Monday night held on the proposed sewer extension ordinance and as a result the measure was unanimously adopted. One protest was made against the widening of Central avenue at the public hearing held on this issue and as a result it was referred back to the street committee. Both of these bills were introduced by Councilman Blatz. Burke and Bonham, Incorp., were awarded the contract for macadamizing certain local streets as provided for in an ordinance passed at the October session. Mobus Brothers also bid for this work.

The resignations of Patrolmen John R. Fritts and Arthur Craig from the Plainfield police force were received and accepted. B. F. Stewart, of 415 John street, protested against a raise in rate which the Plainfield Union Water Company had levied on him and the matter was turned over to Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed.

Letters that have passed between the Plainfield and Piscataway township Boards of Health relative to the payment of bills aggregating $316.22 incurred through caring for a smallpox patient at Muhlenberg Hospital in August were read and indicated that the Piscataway board refused to satisfy the account. It is believed that the matter will be taken before the courts in a friendly suit.

O. F. Pierson, of 1018 East Front street, petitioned for a permit to install a 500-gallon gasoline tank and pump in front of the above address and the same was granted.

On behalf of the Board of School Estimate Councilman Claybrook reported that $30,000 had been set aside for the erection of a new six-room school in the east end of the city. The Central Railroad reported back on a communication sent them by the local Common Council requesting them to erect a new bank along the railroad property on Cottage place, near Richmond street. The company claimed that the ground did not belong to the railroad and that the retaining wall should be built by the city. The Board of Freeholders notified the Council that it would relinquish control of South avenue, between Richmond street and Terrill road and hereafter this thoroughfare will be cared for by the city. Reports read showed that six sewer permits and twenty-two building permits had been issued during the month. The appointment of Walter Emmons, driver of the hospital ambulance, as a special policeman, was confirmed by the Council. The mayor's message relative to the Pillar of Fire question was unanimously endorsed. A refund of $42.16 was ordered to be paid to Mrs. Martha Davie. This is the amount she has paid on a barn between the years 1909 and 1912 but which was removed to North Plainfield.

RUNYON EXPRESSES HIS APPRECIATION

Gratified Over the Success of the Republican Assembly Ticket.

Assemblyman William N. Runyon gave the following expression of appreciation today over the success of his candidacy as well as that of Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson and C. L. Morgan at yesterday's election:

"I am naturally much gratified at the result, even more so than I was a year ago, when the voters accepted us on faith alone, for it means in great measure that the course of the Union county Assemblymen in the Legislature has met with the approval of a large majority of the citizens. Especially am I gratified that Mr. Pierson and Mr. Morgan will again be colleagues of mine in a legislative session, because I have never witnessed more whole-hearted, intelligent and unselfish service on the part of any Assemblymen than was that which they rendered. And as for Plainfield's share in the vote, may I simply say that my earnest hope is to prove worthy in all ways of the splendid endorsement she has given, which carries with it a call to devoted service as well as a great responsibility."

WILL GIVE TALK ON PLATTSBURG CAMP

Many Citizens Request Former Mayor Stewart to Tell of His Experiences.

A number of prominent and influential citizens have signed a petition which has been sent to former Mayor Percy H. Stewart requesting him to give a public talk on his experiences in the camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., the affair to be given at the Plainfield High School on Thursday evening, November 11, and to be open to the public. No admission will be charged.

The petition sets forth that several have been fortunate to listen to a graphic account of Mr. Stewart's experiences in camp, feel that a larger number of fellow townsmen should be permitted to enjoy as well as to profit by the remarks concerning that timely work. It is further stated in the petition that "the fact that most of the world is aggressively in arms and at war, hence it follows that the present is not the time for theories. If we are prepared to defend ourselves the chances are good to escape the fearful calamity now being witnessed in Europe." The petition is signed by the following:

BURGLAR ATTACKS WILLIAM T. GRIER

Unknown Individual Enters His Home and "Beats Him Up."

POLICE ARE PUZZLED

Intruder Makes His Escape Taking a Gold Watch—Unused Bullets Found in Bedroom—Chief Kiely is Investigating the Case.

Attacked by an unknown individual as he slept in his home, 816 West Seventh street, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, William T. Grier, an official of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, was beaten about the head in a manner which called for medical treatment from Dr. P. B. Cregar. The case is being investigated by Police Chief Kiely who says it is one of the most baffling with which he has been confronted. Whether or not the intruder in the Grier home had entered for the purpose of burglarizing the place or whether he intended to assault the householder is not known but indications point strongly to the latter theory.

Mr. Grier, in a statement made to Chief Kiely this morning, said that he was awakened by a sharp blow on his head. When he opened his eyes he was confronted by a short thick set man who was raining blows on him. According to Mr. Grier he got out of bed and grappled with the culprit, but the latter succeeding in escaping through a window scaling a porch post. Mr. Grier says he then called upon Dr. Cregar for treatment and the physician dressed wounds in his head and right hand.

According to the victim the only thing missing this morning was a gold watch which had been lying on the dresser. Other than to say that the intruder was considerably smaller than himself Mr. Grier could give no description of him, not even so far as to tell whether he was colored or white.

Chief Kiely arrived at the Grier home a few minutes after incident was reported to the doctor and immediately set about an investigation. He found eight loaded bullets on the bed spread which was spattered with blood, and two bullets under the bed. Chief Kiely says that these bullets had never been inside a gun and that their condition indicated that they had been carried in a pocket for some time. Mr. Grier says that he never had a gun in the house.

Mrs. Grier, who was sleeping in another part of the house, told Chief Kiely that her husband talked considerably while sleeping and that he answered questions put to him in an intelligent manner while sleeping. The police think it possible that he might have started to talk while the burglar was at work and that the intruder became alarmed and struck him before trying to escape.

RUNYON REPEATS HIGH VOTE FEAT

His Popularity in Union County Vouched for by 12,379 Ballots.

SPLIT IN ELIZABETH

Excise Issue Makes Big Difference in County Seat Vote—All Three Republican Assemblymen Given Good Totals.

Carrying out the prediction that they would all be sent back to the House, Assemblymen William N. Runyon, of this city; Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, and Charles L. Morgan, of Elizabeth, were re-elected by the voters of Union county yesterday by overwhelming majorities. The total Democratic vote exceeded by 14,267 the Republican aggregate and Assemblyman Runyon once more earned the unique distinction of being the highest man in an election. The Plainfield man was given 12,379 individual endorsements and led all candidates for municipal, county and State offices in Union county.

The split on the excise issue in Elizabeth had a big bearing on the Assembly vote in that city. William Leonard and Edward Meek, the Democratic candidates, being given comfortable majorities over Morgan, Runyon and Pierson. The victory of the three G. O. P. office seekers is a triumph scored at the expense of the liquor dealers who fought tooth and nail to snow under the three winners. To this fact is also assigned the cause for the big Democratic vote in Elizabeth.

The Republicans, however, carried every district outside of the county seat and in most instances held their own with good margins to spare.

MRS. H. P. REYNOLDS DIES IN 75TH YEAR

Wife of Pioneer Druggist Succumbs to An Attack of Pneumonia.

Mrs. Mary Augusta Reynolds, aged 75 years, wife of Howard Prescott Reynolds, died yesterday afternoon at her home on First place, following an illness of one week with pneumonia. Her condition was serious from the first and owing to her advanced age did not respond to the treatment given. Her death was learned with deep regret on the part of many friends and acquaintances throughout the city and borough.

Mrs. Reynolds was born at Tolland, Conn., and following her marriage at that place removed to Plainfield, forty-four years ago. She had lived here ever since. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and for many years was active in the work there as well as in various Plainfield charities. She was a devout Christian and possessed womanly qualities which won for her much admiration.

The family lived for many years on Washington avenue, the borough, selling the property in recent years to C. W. McCutchen. Mr. Reynolds, who survives, was one of Plainfield's pioneer druggists. When he first came to this city he was engaged in the drug business about where S. H. Whitney's store is on East Front street, under the firm name of Marlow & Reynolds. Later Mr. Reynolds associated himself with R. M. Stelle under the firm name of Reynolds & Stelle. Afterward Mr. Stelle retired and Mr. Reynolds removed to Park and North avenues, where he remained for more than fifteen years finally selling out to the present proprietor, T. S. Armstrong. Mr. Reynolds has been in failing health for some time and is now an invalid.

The funeral of Mrs. Reynolds will be held at the late home at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. CATHARINE MADDEN.

Mrs. Catharine F. Madden, widow of William Madden, died yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home, 508 West Fifth street, following an illness of about a week. She had been a resident of this city for many years and was greatly liked by all who knew her. Mrs. Madden is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Mullane, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Henry Gaffney, of Jersey City, and Mrs. Den J Berlin, of West Fifth street; also two sons, George and John Madden, of this city. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church, Friday morning at 9 o'clock, and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

MME. RAPPOLD CHARMS AUDIENCE

Metropolitan Opera Star With Assisting Artists Give a Fine Concert.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Miss Lucille Orrell, 'cellist; Miss Mary Warfel, Harpist, and Hugh Allan, Baritone, Share Honors at Affair Given by Musical Club.

This city is deeply indebted to the Musical Club which provided such a beautiful evening of music on Monday night. And no lack of appreciation was shown, for orchestra, boxes, balcony and gallery were thronged with eager, applauding listeners. But perhaps the warmest note of welcome and appreciation for the distinguished artists who contributed to the program was the stage, no longer a stage but a veritable garden with tall cedars, white flashes of marble bench and urn, and the glimmer of flowers under colored hanging lanterns. Miss Edith Van Boskerck was responsible for this lovely scene in which the artists seemed to find a heightened inspiration.

From the beautifully finished playing of Miss Orrell's opening number, Godard's famous Berceuse, to the awed hush which followed Marie Rappold's Ave Maria, with 'cello and harp obligato, the evening was made magic with perfect music. The garden poured forth tragedy and comedy, tarantelle and prayer with an ardor, beauty and grace that were unfailing. The Prologue from Pagliucci which Mr. Allan sang with such feeling and dramatic power seemed to typify the evening. Here, too, there were "songs of tender memories," such as "Jean" and "Two Roses," sung by Madam Rappold with such limpid tenderness. The "love and passion" of the Prologue were later amplified in the duet from Don Giovannia, which Madam Rappold sang with such archness and Mr. Allan with such passion, while the "human fashion" of "hearts that weep and languish, cries of rage and anguish, and bitter laughter" were all depicted graphically later by the three Neapolitan songs of Mr. Allan's rendered with such inimitable artistry it seemed the singer's name must be an error, the right reading Scotti or Amato.

Miss Warfel, with her harp, alone seemed to belong in another world. Her numbers were interludes in the players' more human atmosphere and her liquid melodies and clear harmonies transported her hearers to distant days and scenes. Yet even this celestial instrument could render a patrol with stirring martial rythm.

All in all, the event was one long to be remembered, and perhaps after names and faces have faded from memory there will still linger vivid recollections of a baritone's virile singing, a soprano's lyric sweetness the matchless throbbing of a 'cello beneath a woman's hand and the heart-ensnaring melodies of a harp.

Large veteran forces are being concentrated at Lena, Vimy and Ypres on the front now occupied by British troops.

SOMERSET SLOW IN REPORTING RESULT

Hammond Has Majority Estimated at 1,350—Other Returns.

Somerville, Nov. 3.—Somerset county gave Ogden H. Hammond, Republican, a majority of approximately 1,350 over Samuel S. Swackhammer, Democrat, in their race for the Assembly. Because of the large number of precincts that have not reported it is impossible to get an accurate vote as yet.

William I. Robinson, Democrat was elected freeholder in Montgomery township. Charles F. Smith, Republican, was elected freeholder in Bridgewater, and Edward Brown Republican, was elected freeholder in the borough of Somerville.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

Joseph Robinson, of 815 West Third street, this city, was the only occupant of a jitney bus which skidded and overturned at Roselle Park yesterday morning. The vehicle afterward crashed against a pole and was almost totally demolished. Both the driver and Robinson escaped injury, the latter managing to climb out through a window without even receiving a scratch. Tax Collector William R. Townsend was among those who witnessed the accident and hastened to extricate the imprisoned men.

REPUBLICAN GAIN IN LEGISLATURE

Senators Lost to Democrats in Passaic and Cape May Counties.

GAIN STATE TREASURER

Probable Republican Majority on Joint Ballot Will Be 25—McCran Elected Senator in Passaic and Stevens in Cape May.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 3.—New Jersey repeated its performance of a year ago by going Republican in an "off year" election. Six state senators and an entire house of assembly were elected.

Both houses are Republican, and the returns indicate that the Republican majority of seventeen on joint ballot in the 1915 legislature will be increased in the 1916 legislature.

This means that the Republicans will name a state treasurer to succeed Edward E. Grosscup, chairman of the Democratic state committee.

The chief interest in the election from the viewpoint of the politicians is the relation that the returns may have in throwing light upon what may happen in next year's presidential campaign.

In 1912, when President Wilson was elected, the Democrats swept the state and had a majority of 46 on joint ballot in the legislature in January, 1913. The majority on joint ballot was reduced to 15 in the 1914 legislature.

The Progressive party vote, which was once large in New Jersey—Colonel Roosevelt having polled a total of 145,410 in 1912, running second to Mr. Wilson—was practically nil. There were Progressive candidates for the assembly in only six of the twenty-one counties.

As usual, Hudson county rolled up a big Democratic majority that was estimated at 15,000. The returns indicate that the so called regulars, led by Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead, did not "knife" the Wittpenn candidates.

Republican leaders had been counting on the German vote to be cast with the Republicans as a rebuke to the national administration, but the German strongholds of Jersey City and Hoboken and North Hudson showed no signs of Democratic dissatisfaction. The Democratic leaders said that the Germans stood by the Democratic ticket.

The Republicans carried Passaic county, electing Thomas F. McCram state senator by a majority approximating 7,000 and five assembly candidates, including John H. Adamson and Josiah Dadley, Progressives, running on the regular ticket, who had local option platforms of their own. They ran behind their running mates—Dalrymple, Hunter and Randall.

William Burno (Rep.) was elected sheriff of Passaic by the biggest majority of any candidate. Frederic C. Beggs (Rep.) was elected surrogate.

ENGINEERS ARE PAID

H. K. Corbin & Co. Given Extension of Time to Complete North Avenue Storm Sewer—Grades of Various Streets Are Accepted.

At the monthly meeting of the Mayor and Council, Monday evening, payment on $560 and four $100 improvement certificates, of an authorized issue of $35,000, was sanctioned by resolution. These certificates are issued to raise funds to meet bills incident to the construction of the borough's collecting sewerage system. They will be taken by the local bank. The bill of the H. K. Corbin Company, the constructing engineers of the sewers, for the month was $6,818.30; that of the Fuller firm, the supervising engineers, $401.85, and the bill of the borough's inspectors, $166.

In its monthly report the Fuller firm set $66,111.26 as the estimated cost of the sewer work completed to November 1. The Fuller firm reported that progress in sewer construction during the month had been retarded by ground water and running sand on Columbia and Grove streets and Washington avenue. As an example of this it was stated that the sewer digger working south along Washington avenue from the ejector station had only excavated fifty feet of trench in three weeks.

A petition for the placing of one or two street lights on the Equator tract was referred to the lighting committee. A petition signed by E. H. Dean, A. C. Siedentop, S. R. Krom and others asked that the sidewalk on the east side of Prospect avenue, opposite properties owned by the Watchung Investment Company, Paul Reusch and the estates of Adam Doalaman and Craig Marsh, be placed to grade owing to their present impassable state during stormy weather. A motion was adopted that the property-holders be notified that these sidewalks must be brought to grade within thirty days.

Michael A. Gallagher, the local realty agent, asked permission to make certain changes to his building at Washington and North avenues. The matter was referred with power.

H. K. Corbin & Company asked for an extension of four and a half months' time in constructing the North avenue storm sewerage system. This work was started on September 1 and was contracted to be finished by the first of the year. Judge Von Minden, borough attorney, advised the Council that this would increase the liability of the bonding company, and that its consent for such an extension should be obtained before it was granted. The matter was therefore laid on the table until the next meeting.

Samuel R. Schwartz, of the Equator Realty and Development Company, petitioned for the immediate placing of a hydrant at Dunellen avenue and Schwartz place. Mr. Schwartz said that since he had last taken the matter up with the Council that the cost of the hydrants had been advanced $1.50 and a further advance was looked for. Mr. Schwartz said that his company now expects to erect three more houses. The fire and water committee was authorized to place the hydrant at the desired location.

The Slavish Society, of the borough, asked permission to hold a celebration in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall on Thanksgiving afternoon. The law and ordinance committee was given authority to grant such a permit.

Mayor E. B. Latham stated that Richard M. Ryan, Assessor Peters and himself had visited Bonnie Burn Sanatorium and learned that Oscar Harrison, who has tuberculosis, could not be admitted there for less than $15 a week. The county has offered to contribute $12 of this amount and Messrs. Ryan, Craig and Castner were appointed a committee to see what arrangements can be made towards raising the remaining weekly sum of $3. The Mayor said that it was a really charitable act to send Mr. Harrison away as he has little children and the disease might be spread among them. He said that he would donate $10 towards such a cause and he knew a number of others who would do likewise. Samuel R. Schwartz said that he would be only too glad to donate $10 himself.

An ordinance relative to the acceptance of the grades of Sandford avenue from Bound Brook road to Third street; Schwartz place, from Dunellen avenue to Second street, and certain sections of Front street, Dunellen avenue, First, Second, Third and Fourth streets and Mountainview terrace, west of Madison avenue, was passed on its first reading and ordered advertised.

An ordinance relative to the control of sewers and sewer connections was also passed on its first reading and ordered advertised. According to this ordinance a fee of $3 will be charged for the privilege of making house connections with the sewer laterals at the curb. In the cases of new houses being built the road cannot be torn up for the laying of sewer laterals without the consent of the borough engineer, and when this has been granted a deposit of $[illegible] must be made with the borough treasurer to cover any expense the borough may be put to in placing the road back into proper shape.

Chairman Castner reported that the work of cleaning up Bonegut brook was proceeding satisfactorily. Mayor Latham asked Mr. Castner to explain Fireman H. Gise's delay in starting the laying of the twelve crosswalks in various parts of the borough. Mr. Castner replied that Mr. Gise had been unable to get the kind of stone he wanted. From the Mayor's attitude, unless Mr. Gise gets this stone pretty soon, somebody else may be given the contract of laying the crosswalks.

The Mayor instructed the street committee to get after the sewer contractors for their delay in finishing the scraping of the streets of the borough. The contractor, it seems, started the work, but stopped it suddenly.

Chairman Jones, of the finance committee, gave the total cost of the Madison avenue storm drain as $5,149.63. The commissioners, it is believed, will assess the property benefitted with 80 per cent. of this and the borough the rest.

The monthly report of Treasurer Stites showed a balance of $126.7[illegible] in the treasury. This compares with a balance of $155.08 at the last report. Disbursements for the month totaled $1,169.84.

Monthly bills ordered paid aggregated $9,942.98. Among these were two bills for street sprinkling totaling $87.96, and one for $992.16 covering the borough's proportion of the joint sewer work for the month.

WOMAN FAINTS AS HER HOME BURNS

Mrs. Charles Scribner Found by Firemen in High Weeds is Recovering.

A fire just outside of the city limits Monday night at 9:30 completely destroyed the home of Charles Scribner and damaged that occupied by a colored family named Robinson. The loss on the Scribner home was $1,500 and that on the other house about $600. It is said both were covered with insurance.

Engine companies Nos. 2 and 3, with the truck, answered the alarm. They arrived too late to save the Scribner home, but prevented others from burning. The two houses were located on Oak street, just south of West Third, in the Rock avenue section.

After firemen had extinguished the blaze and were on their way back to the apparatus for the trip to headquarters they found the body of Mrs. Scribner lying in some high weeds near the ruins of her home. It was believed that she was dead. In her arms were some articles that she had carried from the burning residence. Dr. Pettus was called and after an examination he said that she had merely fainted from the excitement. Mrs. Scribner was taken to the hospital and was considerably improved within a short time.

ENGLAND'S POSITION IN PRESENT CONFLICT

Dr. Arthur H. Graves Gives Able Address Before Monday Afternoon Club.

England's position in the present conflict, her people, their customs and habits were all portrayed in vivid word pictures, by Dr. Arthur Darmount Graves, formerly assistant professor of government at Yale University, in his lectures before the members of the Monday Afternoon Club in the Congregational church, Monday afternoon. Taking as his subject, "A Year in England During the Present War," the speaker told of his various experiences during the twelve months of his sojourn there. He was particularly impressed with the spirit predominating among the people during the present crisis and the prevalent animosity toward the Germans was especially noticeable even among the school children.

The conservatism of the nation cannot be realized until one actually mingles with them, said the speaker. Their attitude toward America, may be divided into two parts that among the people who have visited our country and those who have not. The former are entirely sympathetic with us while the latter's ignorance of our history and customs was evident.

The next meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club will be held Monday afternoon, November 8, at which time the program of the afternoon will be in charge of the department of miscellaneous topics. Papers on "Practical Banking" will be read by J. Herbert Case. The latter will be preceded by a discussion on "A Park for Plainfield" which will be led by Mrs. H. C. White.

HAMILTON COLLECTOR IN PISCATAWAY TOWNSHIP

There was a Republican landslide for William A. Spencer, the candidate for State Senator, in Piscataway township yesterday.

William Hamilton was elected collector over William H. Thornton by a majority of 146 votes. In South Plainfield, Mr. Hamilton's home district, his majority was 82 and in New Market, where he had the support of W. B. LaRue, who he defeated by 3 votes at the primary, it was 67. The East Bound Brook district gave Mr. Thornton a majority of 3 votes.

George Coriell defeated F. O. Nelson for the assessorship by a decisive vote. In New Market he received a majority of 86 votes.

Falks defeated Randolph for member of the township committee by a larger vote than when the two opposed each other the last time. New Market gave Mr. Falks 146 votes against 105 for Mr. Randolph.

Clarence M. Haight, candidate for Freeholder, polled a large vote in the township. In New Market, his home town, he received 149 votes out of a poll of 306. In the county, however, Mr. Haight ranked next to last among his four colleagues who lost out, receiving 7,879 votes. Mr. Dey, the only Republican Freeholder elected, received 9,049 votes.

BUSINESS MEN HELD AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

At the regular meeting of the Business Men's Association Monday evening there was the largest attendance of members in the history of the organization. The most interesting was the report of the campaign committee, which has been assisted by Harry B. Salter, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in Trenton. Under the new organization methods the results and responses were most gratifying; the old "timer" and pessimist being left alone to close his store shutters at night like his grandfather did.

The life of the meeting, however, was in the optimistic observations on trade conditions in the city, all stating that business was better and that citizens are trading and shopping more in Plainfield than previously, individual instances being given. It was resolved to increase the service in trade, to give reliable goods, one price and to require of their clerks better and more polite attention to the public and without "gum chewing."

LONE DEMOCRATIC MEMBER DEFEATED

Common Council for 1916 Will Be Composed Entirely of Republicans.

One Democratic member of the Common Council, Theodore Martin, was defeated, and four others, all Republicans, whose terms expire this year, were re-elected at the polls yesterday. Martin relinquishes his office in the First Ward to Charles Sminck, the Republican candidate, his defeat being accomplished by a majority of 130. Juan A. Babcock and John H. Cose, Republican-Democrat Councilmen-at-Large, were elected and Elias H. Bird was also chosen a Councilman to represent the entire city. Lewis H. Booth, Republican, will represent the Second Ward in the Council; Thomas Hylan, Republican, was re-elected from the Third Ward, and Charles Graves, Republican, was re-elected from the Fourth, after a spirited contest with Charles P. Senger.

William R. Townsend, the only aspirant to the collectorship, received the highest local vote, a total of 2,534 ballots being cast in his behalf. William N. Runyon, candidate for the Assembly, scored the highest city total in a contested office, getting 2,265 votes. All three Republican Assemblymen got good majorities in Plainfield.

NAVAL WAR BOARD TO MEET.

Dr. William L. Saunders, as one of the vice chairmen, and who presides, has called a meeting of the Naval War Board, to be held at the India House, New York, tomorrow. Dr. Saunders says that every member had signified his intention of attending the meeting, which will be an important one. He declines to discuss the topics that will be considered by the board.

JAMES K. ARNOLD ELECT ED TAX COLLECTOR BY BIG MAJORITY

Interest in North Plainfield centered around the expected fight for the collectorship, but little opposition to James K. Arnold, the choice of the primary voters, developed. Manning F. Gano, a Progressive, entered the race after four Republicans had been eliminated at the primaries, but the vote he polled yesterday was insignificant alongside of Arnold's. The latter's majority figured 634. Arnold will take office January 1 to complete the unexpired term of George F. Brown, whose death occurred recently, and it will be necessary for him to run again in 1916.

Some surprise was occasioned by the 233 majority Assemblyman Ogden H. Hammond scored over Samuel S. Swackhammer in the borough. The 474 votes given the Bernardsville man in North Plainfield aided considerably in putting him back in the Senate and defeating his North Plainfield opponent.

As in other districts throughout the State, North Plainfield went decidedly Republican and when the Council is reorganized for 1916 it will have three new Republican faces in it, viz., Mayor-elect William L. Smalley, Chifford McGee and John A. Wilson. The borough voted against the Wharton tract phrase by a majority of 234 and elected Fred Hand and Robert W. Rogers, the latter a Progressive, recorder and coroner, respectively.

DUNELLEN POLLED BIG VOTE; TICKET SPLIT

In a heavy vote at Dunellen yesterday, J. H. L. Peters, Democrat, was elected assessor over Charles A. Coriell, Republican, by a majority of 32 votes and Isaac J. Stites, Republican, defeated Forman G. Neighbour, Democrat, for the collectorship by a majority of 43 votes.

E. B. Latham, the unopposed candidate for mayor, received 370 votes out of a poll of 493. William A. Castner and Richard M. Ryan, the Democratic councilmen, who ran without opposition for re-election, received a total of 339 and 326 votes, respectively.

Among the county candidates William Florance, the Democratic candidate for State Senator, defeated William A. Spencer, Republican, by 71 votes.

Charles Anderson, Richard J. Galvin and E. Leon Loblein, Democratic candidates for the Assembly, were given comfortable majorities. The Democratic freeholder candidates, however, lost out in the borough with the exception of Anthony J. Gebhardt. Clarence M. Haight, the Republican candidate, topped the list with 258 votes. J. Elgin Bennett and Anthony J. Gebhardt were tied for second place honors with 202 votes. William S. Day was fourth with 200 votes and G. Francis Eden fifth, with 195.

MANY APPROPRIATIONS PASSED IN TOWNSHIP

The following appropriations were voted by the borough of Fanwood at yesterday's election: Streets, $1,800; lights, $1,500; police, $950; general expenses, $400. Republican candidates for the Assembly were given good majorities and Mayor William H. Hoar, a Republican, was re-elected by an overwhelming count.

Assemblymen Runyon, Pierson and Morgan received 85, 78 and 79 votes, respectively, while the Democratic candidates, Leonard, Reville and Meek, were given 25, 17 and 23 votes, respectively. Albert H. Riblet and Augustus Sheelen, both Republicans, were elected to the Common Council without opposition, and Charles Sheelen and H. G. Young were unopposed for collector and assessor, respectively. Burton P. Hall, Republican, was named for the Union County Board of Freeholders. Howard Potter, Republican, defeated Frank Mulligan, Democrat, for coroner, by a count of 82 to 24.

Y. M. C. A. TO INAUGURATE A MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will start in a few days a campaign to interest every member of the community in its work. For six days over 250 men and older boys will give all their time outside of business or school in an effort to enroll 800 new members.

The interest the present membership is taking in the many kinds of activities promoted by the association justifies the belief of the officers and directors that for every man or boy in Plainfield there is something at the Y. M. C. A. they should have. It may be the business men's class in the gymnasium, where busy men get recreation and store up health three times a week, or the social rooms where billiards and pool may be enjoyed with none of the objectionable features of the ordinary pool room, or the employed boys' brotherhood where the boy gets the help he needs to make a success in life.

The religious work of the association has a virility that appeals strongly to men, and in the weekly teacher training class the man who is anxious to become more efficient in teaching a Bible Class gets just the training he needs. In fact every man or boy finds something that seems to have been planned just to fit him, and boys from twelve years up to over seventy are loyal rooters for the "Y. M."

SUFFRAGE LOSES IN THREE STATES

200,000 Adverse Majority Is Indicated In New York.

150,000 IN PENNSYLVANIA

100,000 Is Estimated Rebuff Given by Voters of Massachusetts — Balloting Seems to Have Been Done Without Regard to Old Party Lines or Political Affiliations of the Electors.

New York, Nov. 3.—New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania all decisively defeated the proposals submitted to the voters to give suffrage to women.

In this state the figures early today indicated that the suffrage amendment had been beaten by at least 200,000 votes, with the five boroughs of New York city and the up state counties about equally strong in supporting the overwhelmingly adverse verdict.

In Massachusetts the majority against was more than 100,000, villages, towns and cities returning figures of about 2 to 1 against the suffrage proposition. Boston, like this city, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, voted heavily against the gallantly aspiring women.

Smothered by the Politicians.

In Pennsylvania, where suffrage received considerable support in the rural counties, the Republican organization, swinging state and big cities, smothered the suffragists. The count of votes was so slow that no accurate estimates could be supplied, but the opinion was that Pennsylvania had voted down suffrage by at least 150,000.

Everywhere the vote on suffrage seemed to be cast quite irrespectively of party lines or affiliations. Communities that elected Republican officials turned a cold shoulder to the suffragists.

Communities that elected Republican officials calmly rolled up a large vote against the proposition that women should be given the right or privilege of voting. Right and left, in big cities and in the countrysides, suffrage was roughly handled.

If the majority in this state is increased beyond 200,000, as is expected, the movement has met with a worse defeat here than in New Jersey, where it went down on Oct. 19 by 51,000.

CONSTITUTION LOST, 350,000.

New York City Delivers Heavy Blow Against Charter.

New York, Nov. 3.—Returns and estimates on returns indicate that the state voted against the new constitution by a majority of at least 350,000. Only three counties in the state up to early today had sent reports indicating a vote in favor—Oneida, Elihu Root's home county; Ontario and Chautauqua. Oneida led with an estimate of 1,400 in favor.

The counties comprising New York city delivered a smashing verdict against. From returns from one-half of the 2,079 election districts it was figured that the city counties would give at least 261,000, perhaps more. The returns then were from 1,585 election districts, and the vote stood: Yes, 35,618; no, 105,231, or 69,613 against. Manhattan was contributing the lion's share of this vote, the estimated vote against in that borough of New York county being 79,600.

William Barnes lost his own county, Albany, by 4,000 at least, according to an estimate. Senator Brackett had failed in Saratoga by at least 3,420. Aldridge admitted that Monroe had declared against, and so had Hendricks in Onondaga, without giving figures.

Partial reports from Erie county indicated that Greiner had not been able to stave off defeat and the vote might be 10,000 against. William L. Ward was conceding Westchester by at least 3,000.

PATERSON ELECTS RADCLIFFE

Fourteen City Officials Slated to Lose Their Jobs.

Paterson, Nov. 3.—Sheriff Amos H. Radcliffe (Rep.) was elected mayor of Paterson by a plurality of 1,600 over I. Willard Deyoe (Dem.). Fourteen city officials are slated to lose their jobs.

Passaic, Nov. 3.—The voters of this commission governed city rejected civil service by a majority of 250. Had the proposition been adopted fifty eight officials would have had life positions.

RUSSIAN AID FOR SERVIANS IS SLOW

Italian Offensive Against Austria Said to Be Broken.

London, Nov. 3.—Fulfillment of promises of aid from Russia is being awaited anxiously by the hard pressed Servians, who are preparing to retreat safely into the mountains before the advance of the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians.

It is believed they can accomplish this. A Russian contingent is variously reported as having landed at Varna or to be approaching Bulgaria through Roumania.

On the western front, except for some fighting in Champagne, there is little or nothing going on, but on the eastern front at least three or four big battles are in progress.

The Germans continue their efforts to approach Riga from the west, the Russians are attacking west of Dvinsk and among the lakes south of that city, while attacks and counter attacks are almost continuous on the Styr river in Volhynia and along the Stripa in Galicia.

The great Italian general offensive launched a fortnight ago has broken down, the Austrian war office asserted, after the loss of 150,000 men by the attacking forces.

MEXICANS HIT 11 AMERICANS.

General Funston Warns Combatants to Be More Careful.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 3.—Bullets fired by the contending Mexican factions in Agua Prieta hit eleven persons in this city, including eight U. S. troopers. Bullets fell like hail on houses here while the battle was at its height.

General Funston, who has arrived here, has warned the combatants that the wounding of Americans must cease.

The Villistas have stopped firing, their ammunition apparently having been exhausted. The losses in the battle are not definitely known.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER LOSES

His Brother William Wins, and Assemblyman Both Opposed Is Elected.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Nov. 3.—John D. Rockefeller lost in his police fight against his brother William when John J. Sinott, the Democratic nominee, who was backed by William, won over Seabury C. Mastick, the Republican nominee, who was supported by John D., by more than 200 votes.

Walter W. Law, Jr., assemblyman, who was opposed by the Rockefellers and the wealthy residents along Broadway, was elected by 1,650. He carried Cortland, Ossining and Greenburg by 1,800, but lost Rockefeller's town by 150.

CONGRESS SEATS FILLED.

Republicans Win Four of the Five Vacancies In the House.

New York, Nov. 3.—Vacancies in five congress districts were filled—three in New York, one in Pennsylvania and one in South Carolina. Last year the Democrats elected their candidate in two of these districts, the Twenty-third New York and the Fourth South Carolina. The results follow:

Dist.	Representative Elected.
23d New York....	William S. Bennet (Rep.)
31st New York....	Bertrand H. Snell (Rep.)
36th New York....	Norman J. Gould (Rep.)
24th Penn.....	Harry D. Temple (Rep.)
4th So. Carolina..	Samuel J. Nichols (Dem.)

CINCINNATI GETS REPUBLICAN

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—George Puchta (Rep.) was elected mayor of Cincinnati by a plurality of about 18,000 over Charles Sawyer (Dem.).

OHIO STILL STAYS "WET"

Kentucky, Maryland and Mississippi Chose Democratic Governors, and Tammany Hall Elects Local Officers In New York City — Congressman Fitzgerald Defeated For Judge.

New York, Nov. 3.—Republicans showed gains in the general elections throughout the country. Of four states electing governors, however, Democrats won three. Four Republicans and one Democrat were elected to congress vacancies.

The next New York legislature will be Republican. The holdover senate stands Republican 34 to 17. The new assembly will be: Republicans, 95; Democrats, 53; Progressive, 1; Socialist, 1.

Suffragists received worse defeats in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania than they did recently in New Jersey.

New Jersey, Wilson's home state, went Republican again, that party gaining two assemblymen and one senator, giving it working majorities in both branches of the legislature.

Ohio rejected prohibition.

Thomas B. Smith was elected mayor in a clean Republican sweep of Philadelphia. He was the Penrose candidate.

Tammany elected its district attorney and sheriff in New York. In Brooklyn Congressman Fitzgerald was beaten for supreme court justice.

G. O. P. WINS MASSACHUSETTS

Republicans Get a Governor, First Time In Five Years.

Boston, Nov. 3.—The Republicans made a clean sweep in Massachusetts, electing a Republican governor for the first time in five years, also a Republican lieutenant governor and all his associates on the state ticket, a Republican executive council and a legislature heavily Republican in both branches.

Samuel W. McCall defeated David I. Walsh for governor by a plurality of about 12,000. Calvin Coolidge, for lieutenant governor, defeated Edward P. Barry by a much larger plurality.

Later returns may change these figures somewhat, but there is little question of McCall's election by about the same plurality as that by which Walsh defeated him last year.

The vote of Nelson B. Clark of Beverly, the Bull Moose gubernatorial candidate, showed a big falling off from the 32,000 received by Walker last year and a tremendous slump from the 128,000 given to Bird in 1913. Early returns indicated that Clark would not receive anywhere near the 3 per cent of the total vote cast for governor, which is requisite to enable the Progressive party to remain a legal political party.

William Shaw, the Prohibition candidate, who is general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor made the most of this fact and expected to draw votes enough from McCall to elect Walsh, but fell below his expectation.

Boston gave Walsh a plurality of 22,476 instead of the 30,000 confidently predicted by the Democratic city committee and promised to Walsh early in the campaign.

OHIO REJECTS PROHIBITION.

"Wets" Apparently Have Won the Election by 80,000.

Cincinnati, Nov. 3.—The latest returns indicate that prohibition has been defeated in Ohio by about 80,000.

Had the "dry" amendment been carried 7,787 saloons, 106 breweries, 17 distilleries and 29 wineries, valued at $65,000,000, would have had to close Jan. 1, 1917.

The fate of a Republican congressional gerrymander substitution of local for state control of liquor and proposed exemption of municipal bonds from state taxation is in doubt.

Mississippi Goes Democratic.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3.—Mississippi elected Governor Bilbo and a full set of state, county and district officers, as well as members of both branches of the legislature, the election being merely a ratification of the nominations made by the Democratic voters at the state primaries.

TO HOLD MOCK TRIAL.

The bi-monthly meeting of Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. C. S. Fraternity of the World, will be held in the "Frat" rooms in the First National Bank Building tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. After the business there will be a mock trial. R. W. Aldrich is attorney for the defense while Alexander D. Doig will represent the fraternity. G. Lewis will preside.

FOOD HIGHER IN GERMANY.

Amsterdam, Nov. 3.—German newspapers received here tell of the continued rise in the prices of food which amounts to about two cents a week on many articles. There is a popular belief that as soon as a way is opened into Turkey by the German army that food prices will fall.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE.

The cornerstone for the new Netherwood Reformed church will be laid on Sunday afternoon, November 14, with appropriate ceremonies.

BOARD WILL REQUIRE HEALTH CERTIFICATES

Further Protection to Children Taken by Dunellen School Officials.

Dr. M. J. Whitford, the physician of the Dunellen schools, submitted his report at the monthly meeting of the Board of Education, last evening. He said that he had completed an examination of all the pupils and that their general health was good. The doctor said that the parents had paid attention to the defects in their children, and as a result there has been a marked improvement in the condition of their teeth, hearing, etc.

A resolution was passed which makes it necessary for children detained from school with contagious diseases to furnish certificates of health from the school physician before they can be re-admitted to the schools. The school has heretofore taken such pupils back on certificates furnished by other physicians.

Superintendent Rentschler's report showed that 96 per cent. of the enrollment of the schools were present during the month of October. This record was only beaten by one other school in the county.

Bills aggregating in the neighborhood of $3,500, were ordered paid, and it was found necessary to float a demand note for $3,500; $1,300 of this total represents the monthly payroll of the teachers and $910 the first quarter's tuition for pupils attending Plainfield High School.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Eight members of the association enjoyed an invigorating "hike" yesterday afternoon across the Watchung Mountains. The party left the association at 2:30 and returned to the East Front street quarters at 4:30, at which time tea was served.

A field hockey club is being organized at the association. All members wishing to enter this sport are urged to register their names at the office and attend the first meeting of the squad, which will be held next Wednesday afternoon, at which time Miss Winifred Mann, the physical director will explain the rudiments of the popular pastime.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

One of the best photoplay and vaudeville entertainments yet offered here marked the opening of the first half of the week at Proctor's Theatre. Every act on the bill went with a vigor and vim, that gave it the earmarks of a big time high class vaudeville entertainment. Ywaxy, the violinist, was added to the program at the very last minute for good measure. The Amoros Sisters furnished the big surprise of the evening when they closed the show with a round of applause. The last novelty stunt that one of these lively French girls do, is a flying leap to the curtain as it is moving upward and clinging to it head downward until its return to the stage. The Hicksville Minstrels might better be described as a "Laughing Riot" of gingery, peppery comedy. The big girl act comes in for its share of glory, on what comes very close to being an all star bill, the wardrobe is clean and nice, the dancing and singing numbers all hits, and the nine artists all clever entertainers. Then there are Romer and Mitchell, a clever team of women who to favor the management postponed their visit to Rochester to fill in three days in Plainfield.

Perhaps one of the most realistic photoplays is "The Soul of Broadway," with the star Valeska Suratt. Her vampire role is remarkable and the settings are the most elaborate of their kind ever incorporated into a picture.

"The Darktown Revue" is the big act for the last half of the week beginning tomorrow, and the feature photoplay is the Family Cupboard, starring Holbrook Blinn, the well known stage favorite. The program is in keeping with the standard set the first week of the new regime, and judging from the large attendance the patrons are aware that Proctor's is offering an exceptional big show.

EDWARD CARSON SUCCEEDED.

London, Nov. 3.—Sir Frederick E. Smith has been appointed attorney-general to succeed Sir Edward Carson, it was announced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Plainfield citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Anthony Wahl, R. F. D. No. 1 Plainfield, says: "I had such distressing pains in my back that I could hardly stand and it was out of the question for me to stoop. I was all crippled up and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me almost immediate relief and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally when a cold settles on my kidneys and they act as a preventive of any serious trouble."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wahl had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.—Adv.

IK-MIK-DIKS VISIT BOY SCOUTS' CAMP

Social Side of the Organization is Inaugurated at Hallowe'en Affair.

The social side of the Boy Scout headquarters building in Terrill road was inaugurated Monday night, when the scouts from almost every troop in the city gathered at the new building and beside a blazing hearth passed through the weird incantations incidental to Hallowe'en. There were almost as many parents present as scouts.

Those in charge of the boys were Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl, Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach and Scoutmasters H. Douglas Davis, Ernest K. Powlison, the Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and Cedric Ostrom, whose troop has regular meetings in the camp.

The chief interest centered in the identity of the Ik-Mik-Diks. In a weird walk through the woods, the boys came upon the Chief Ik-Mik-Dik, impersonated by Second Deputy Commission Sprowl.

The defeated candidates were former Senator George B. Burd, Fred W. Bond, Francis G. Ward and Knowlton Mixer.

The vote out of a total registration of 85,000 was Kreinheder, 40,456, Heald, 38,201; Hill, 34,208; Malone, 31,730; Ward, 29,240; Mixer, 30,436; Bond, 28,446; Burd, 27,395.

The contest was a bitter one, the so called Units, an anti-Catholic organization, indorsed Bond, Burd, Mixer and Hill. The Democrats supported Kreinheder, Heald, Ward and Malone. The Republican support generally went to Kreinheder and Hill.

Of the men elected Kreinheder and Hill are Republicans, Heald and Malone are Democrats.

Steinmetz, electrical inventor, as president of the common council. Herbert M. Merrill (Soc.) was badly beaten by Walter S. McNab (Rep.) for assemblyman. Republicans were successful for the other city offices.

36.50 McDougall Kitchen Cabinets for $30.00
ON THE CLUB PLAN OR FOR CASH.

The manufacturers have made a slight change in their new disappearing front cabinet and have authorized us to sell what we have of them on hand at the above price reduction.

The Disappearing Front is so made that when open it goes down ating, disappears down under the bottom of the cupboard it closes. When closed, it is held in position by a strong, specially designed catch.

Its operation is aided largely by gravity and a slight push or lift is all that is needed to operate it. It has no weights or springs and works on a metal track at each end which minimizes the friction—very substantially made and will not stick or get out of order.

The Disappearing Front is so made that when opne it goes down slightly below the level of the cupboard bottom. Then any dirt, crumbs or flour that might get into the cupboard, can be wiped out so as not to fall down in the slit in which the curtain works—that is an important sanitary quality that it took us months to perfect.

There will probably never be a more complete or convenient cabinet made than this new Disappearing Front McDougall—so if you ever expect to own a cabinet, you'd better buy one of these now and start saving hard work—preserve your health and lengthen your life.

Temperance
NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by
THE W. C. T. U.

Says Woodrow Wilson: "Every self-governing community which constitutes a social unit should have the right to control the matter of the regulation or of the with-holding of licenses."

Says William H. Taft: "I think the solution of the liquor question is in local option by which the sale of liquor is forbidden in communities that, by the expression of a majority of the voters show that public opinion will sustain the enforcement of such a law."

Says Theodore Roosevelt: "The friends of the saloon-keepers denounce their opponents for not treating the saloon business like any other. The best answer to this is that the business is not like any other business, and that the actions of the saloon-keepers themselves conclusively prove this to be the case. It tends to produce criminality in the population at large and law-breaking among the saloon-keepers themselves. When the liquormen are allowed to do as they wish, they are sure to debauch, not only the body social, but the body politic also."

New Jersey has a few towns and cities where the people have the right in their charters to vote on the license question, and they invariably vote dry. These are Bridgeton, Millville, Collingswood and Haddonfield. Bridgeton voted wet in 1902, and the increase in drunkenness and crime was so pronounced that at every election since the people have given increased no-license majorities; and in 1914 the majority was 740.

But for the liquor strangle-hold on cities the people in all New Jersey municipalities would have the same right of self-government. Try to break it by voting for candidates who will support a local option bill.

The New Jersey Excise Commission appointed by Governor Fort in 1908 in its report made the following sensible recommendations:

"The people residing in any city, borough, town or township knowing the conditions of their own municipality, the character of the different persons residing therein, the various locations where the places for the selling of liquor may best be located in their respective municipality, knowing the methods or at least the desires of their own people in regard to the selling of trafficking in liquors should be allowed to decide this subject for themselves."

Thirty-seven brewers, 8,000 saloon-keepers and 8,000 bar-keepers are all saying to legislators, Dont you dare permit the people to get a chance to vote on the license question! Isn't it about time for 500,000 Protestant church members to assert themselves? What do you say to our representative?

What arouses the ire of the liquor traffic Not speeches, songs, sneers nor cartoons; but the temperance vote.

A writer in Everybody's Magazine says that "several saloon-keepers have policies on her son's life—a speculation horribly common among saloon-keepers."

New Jersey has one liquor dealer for every twenty-three of its boys and young men. Fortunate is he who escapes these death traps set for the sons by the fathers of the State, who license the business.

S. M. Biddison, of Ridgefield, New Jersey, says that he found that of the 10,000 inmates of the Sing Sing and Auburn prisons during the last five years, 80 per cent. were made prisoners through whisky.

James C. Kline, of Chicago, the general president of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, states that barroom demagogues have cost the loss of life property, and public confidence, and many times have brought defeat to the cause of labor.

"National prohibition means widespread poverty, suffering, and degradation," says a circular sent out by the brewing trades and other labor bodies. The Central Labor Union, of Pasadena, California, says this idea is not only ridiculous and untrue but shows a lack of the power of observation."

Ten thousand homes have been devastated by tornadoes in eight of our States in one day. This fact is used effectively by insurance companies in securing new policyholders There is not a day in the year, nor an hour in the day, that the liquor traffic is not wrecking homes. Let us insure our homes against this great wrecker by forever annihilating it from the nation.

According to the report of the Washington, D. C., Children's Home, the liquor traffic sent more than 500 of the city's children out into the street to be cared for by this one home. Three times the home has received a whole family of children after the drunken father had shot the mother before killing himself. It is claimed that there are today in this country 865,000 liquor-made orphans.

Preparatory services will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight, and the regular communion service will be held Sunday morning.

RUNYON FOR SPEAKER.

Having been re-elected to the House of Assembly by a substantial majority, William N. Runyon, of this city, becomes the logical candidate for speaker at the session which begins in January. His name has been frequently mentioned for the place, but heretofore nothing definite could be predicted as there was no telling whether the Republicans would have a majority in the Assembly. The voters of the State settled that matter yesterday, and now it is up to the Republicans to recognize the superior ability displayed by Mr. Runyon last year as leader of that party's forces, and select him as the speaker.

With all due respect to the other Republicans elected yesterday, Mr. Runyon stands head and shoulders above every other Assemblyman-elect. He is one of the few that is not identified with a political machine, and no one displayed more independence of thought than was the case with him at the 1914 session.

A REPUBLICAN YEAR.

As had been pretty generally predicted, the Republican party was successful in almost every State in the Union at yesterday's election. Here in New Jersey the hold on both houses of the Legisfature has been strengthened, assuring the election of a Republican treasurer at the coming joint session. The issues yesterday were purely State and local, and had the suffrage election not attracted interest two weeks before and brought out a large registration, the probabilities are that the vote yesterday would have been the lightest in many years.

Off years, as the Newark Eagle says, are proverbially unfavorable for the party in power in the national government, for then party discipline is relaxed, local issues come into active play and all the humors of the people are expended. The off-year election is a kind of popular vent. In none of the States was there an administration speaker in the campaign, and, properly enough, the administration was not identified with the State campaigns. But, nevertheless, one lesson Congress can take from the election results yesterday, and that is the great political importance for the national campaign next year of changes in the tariff to protect American industries against the import flood that will set in immediately after the close of the European war.

It was so hard to stir up any interest in the councilmanic race that the re-election of all the Republican candidates was a foregone conclusion. Messrs. Cose, Babcock, Hylan and Graves have done their work so well that no thoughtful voter would think of making a change in any of their places. The new members, Messsrs. Bird, Booth and Sminck are all able additions to that body. It is to be regretted for some reasons that the Democrats have no representation in the Council, but the men who have been chosen can be depended upon to care for the best intrests of the whole people, regardless of politics.

Suffrage has gone down to defeat in three more eastern States. Considering the total vote cast, the victory for the antis is not great, and even the papers in New York which have been opposing the cause see nothing in yesterday's result to warrant any expressions of great joy at the defeat. We can merely repeat what was said after New Jersey voted against the proposition, "it is merely delayed."

The election of Charles S. Sminck as councilman from the First Ward and Levis M. Booth in the Second Ward, brings to the service of this city two men peculiarly fitted for the positions both by training and temperament. We predict that when their terms are ended it will be said that the city never had more faithful and conscientious members of the Council.

English newspaper gave columns to the trivial accident to King George and carried reports of the death of thousands upon thousands of citizens who were fighting for the country in less than one-tenth the space. No wonder the people in Europe are fighting, but they should be joined together against the common foe.

There are not many features of an election that are pleasing to newspaper men, but this one at least stopped all the silly prattle about Wilson's marriage and King George's fall from the back of a five foot horse.

In Breathitt county, Kentucky, they shot up an election officer and took his ballot away from him and committeed other acts of violence. We wonder if the women want to mix in politics there.

Villa has defied the United States army and says he will shoot into this country when he gets ready. Before he does he had better get ready to run.

Poor Serbia! She lay in the path of progress of German kultur and for that she must die.

These Human Fish

Don't you like to meet a feller colder than a winter frog,
With a handshake like a codfish

Don't you like to have him sitting,

Listening until he's found out everything that you may know?
Never telling you a sentence of the things that he may think,
Never giving anything at all for what he surely gets,
Simply smiling like a Buddha—it would drive a man to drink.
One could throw him in the river

Poultices

Poultices are what you put on a boil.

It doesn't hurt the boil much, and keeps the owner amused.

Any human who is serving as the site of a boil is glad to be amused.

He not only invites amusement—he dares it.

Poultices may be made of bread and milk, or antiphlogistine, if that's the way to spell it.

The poultice would not be such an exciting indoor sport were it not for trying to keep it warm.

A poultice that is so hot you can't touch it with the bare hands can cool in four seconds until it gives the patient the chills.

If any automobile company could discover the principle that cools a flax-seed or bread-and-milk or anti—well, if anyone were to find out how these things cool so quickly, the manufacture of motor car cooling-systems would be revolutionized.

A thick boiling-hot bread-and-milk poultice applied to a red-hot engine would have the thing half-frozen in twelve minutes.

Anyone trying to get anything done between the time of putting on one hot poultice and the time for putting on the next one, has a mighty staccato job.

The only real good a bread-and-milk poultice can bring about is when it is applied to the inside of a stomach that is suffering from hunger.

Letter To The Kaiser

Minonk Junction, Ill., En Route, October 20. Dear Bill—Just between us emperors, I wish you would come across with your idea of what is to be gained by keeping this war going. I have been asking around at Cadiz, Ohio, Red Pump, Maryland, Ligonier, Indiana, Rabbit Roost, Kentucky, and other important centres, and I find that it is generally held by the best thinkers that you have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the entire world that you are a bad guy to tackle, and heaven knows nobody would ever rouse you again on purpose. The rest of the world will go around in its sock feet for the next twenty years, if necessary, and humor you like a spoiled kid, to keep from getting your dander up. That is, if you quit now. While if you go on and somehow or other you should get walloped—well, the smallest nation would take keen pleasure in pulling your royal nose every chance they get. Why not quit now while the whole world respects your scrapping ability, and while your bluff is as good as old wheat in the mill?

Hey, Bill?

Yours anxiously,
Offagin.

The Cathartic And The Appendix

IF THERE is one cut and dried pathological idea fixed in the lay mind it is that a good physic is good medicine no matter what ails you.

And if there is one domestic mistake which may be said to cost a life much more often than it saves a life, it is this very obsession.

Contrary to the almanac theory, doctors nowadays do not invariably begin the treatment of an illness by administering a physic. Nor do they begin the examination by inquiring about the bowels.

There is at least one fairly popular ailment which is made distinctly worse by a physic, and that is acute appendicitis. There are other conditions which are aggravated by physics too, but in the case of appendicitis the resort to aperients without medical advice is far too often the straw that turns the scales against recovery.

Why? Because if there is any remedy appropriate for the treatment of acute appendicitis it is absolute rest. That means not only rest in bed, but an absolute fast for at least forty-eight hours, and exquisite care to avoid every unnecessary exertion, even turning in bed.

What is the purpose of this "physiological rest"? It places the intestine in a splint—as nearly as such a thing may be accomplished in life. It endeavors to prevent the spread of inflammation from the localized infection in the appendix. If the infection can be absolutely localized for forty-eight hours, the patient will recover, as a rule—not always, by any means.

Now, anybody with half an eye can see how dangerous the administration of a cathartic of any kind would be in such circumstances. A dose of castor oil or salts taken in the presence or at the beginning of an attack of acute appendicitis is liable to rupture the appendix, spreading the infection all over the abdominal cavity and producing fatal peritonitis (inflammation of the bowels).

So remember, please, that it is a risky business taking castor oil or other cathartics when you are not quite certain whether you are developing appendicitis or not.

Perforation spells purgation nine times out of ten.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Ruptured Friend

Some anonymous, and therefore not serious person wishes to know if he should advise a ruptured friend to avoid operation and try wearing a plaster device instead.

Answer—Usually we ignore unsigned letters. Further, we cannot give advice for hypothetical cases or those of friends. In this instance, however, we will break the rule to answer—don't do it unless you would rupture the friendship.

Coffee Not A Drug

Kindly tell me whether (1) coffee is a narcotic; (2) a drug; (3) a habit-forming drug.

Answer—It is not a narcotic, nor a drug, nor is it habit forming. It is a beverage, healthful for most people, perhaps injurious to nervous people.

DUCK HUNTING

EARLY in the spring the wild duck leaves the south for the summer resorts on Hudson's Bay and as he wings his way north, life is one long Fourth of July for him. What with dodging chilled shot and yawning gun muzzles, he rarely has a chance to enjoy the scenery for so much as a minute at a time.

Duck hunting is a favorite athletic sport in America. The game of golf is supposed to have a firm grip on its victims, but a golfer is fickle and unenthusiastic beside a duck hunter. When the weather gets nasty and the cold wind roars wickedly, a duck hunter will leave a cozy club corner, an evening with his fiancée, a winning hand at poker, a wheat squeeze in which he is the squeezer or a bulletin board of the world's championship series in order to be present at sunrise in a rice swamp waiting to be attacked by a wild duck.

To enjoy duck hunting in its prime, the hunter must first select a day on which the Humane Society wouldn't allow a dog to be kept out of doors. He should then dress himself in canvass clothes, put on twenty-pound hip boots, put forty pounds of ammunition and a sandwich in his pockets, rent a leaky boat and row five miles in a gale, bailing out with his cap. Having done this, he should build a blind of reeds and lie in the mud until evening, smoking a pipe for warmth and occasionally breaking the ice around his legs. Many men can only afford one day of such bliss each year, but they look eagerly forward to it and will not accept any substitute, although they could soak themselves all night in a tub of ice-water in the back yard at far less expense.

Because wild ducks are of a retiring disposition, and do not warm up to humans, it is often necessary, when assassinating them, to attract them by means of decoy ducks. Decoy ducks are made of rubber and are used to attract the real birds in the same way that prominent directors are used to attract investors in a stock company. When the wild duck has stopped to share the meal that the decoy duck has found, the hunter, who corresponds to the promoter, gets in his deadly work.

The wild duck when roasted is so delicious that it pays to remove his feathers one by one after a long day's hunting. Duck hunters pay an average of $2 for every duck they shoot and usually give most of them to their friends. This makes a duck hunter second only to a theatre treasurer in popularity and it is no trick at all for a good shot to get elected to the legislature.

Views Of The Press

Islands Of Literature

HOW much the world owes to the masters of literature who have put upon the map the islands upon which some of the most stirring events in fiction have occurred can never be properly estimated, any more than the amount can be computed which the imaginations of authors have contributed to the wealth of delight found in their works. Foremost among the delectable spots wholly surrounded by a sea of words is the island home of Robinsoe Crusoe, dear alike to young and old readers of De Foe's immortal work.

Singularly, the popular conception, which frequent reference to facts fails to correct, is that the solitude, unbroken until the imprint of a naked foot on the sea sand was revealed to a wary eye, existed on the real island of Juan Fernandez off the west coast of South America. That is because popularly the fictitious hero of perhaps the most widely read book in the world except the Bible is identified with Alexander Selkirk, who spent several years on that island and whose real narrative may have been the basis for the later work of fiction.

But De Foe distinctly places the scene of the castaway adventures of his hero on the other side of the South American continent, near the mouth of the great River Oronoque, or Orinoco, as now spelled. The land most nearly corresponding to it is the island of Tobago.

Next, perhaps, to the island home of the immortal Crusoe is that purely invented scene of romance where the chief incidents of "Treasure Island" go forward. A recent writer says that Robert Louis Stevenson, among whose most lasting contributions to the world of letters he so largely enriched in this story of pure adventure, was led forward to its composition by making a map of an imaginary island, out of which grew his first great story, of which it has been said: "Doubtless man may write a better book for boys than 'Treasure Island,' but doubtless man never has, and probably never will."

Imaginary haunts of imaginary men and women on islands, real or unreal, have added much to the charms of both prose and poetry from pens more or less famous. From the island home of the "Swiss Family Robinson," "The Coral Island" of R. M. Ballantyne, the seagirt spot described in Captain Marryatt's "Masterman Ready," to the islands depicted in the latest novels of Cyrus Townsend Brady and Miss Mary Johnston there is an ever-growing list of regions "beautiful for situation and the joy of the whole earth," which have been wrought from the minds of genius and embodied in words for the enjoyment of the world. These man-made regions frequently surpass in interest the real ones known to readers and are invested with the charm of the "remote, unfriended and alone." To their creators are due the thanks of all who have ever enjoyed reading or being read to about [illegible]—Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Enginemen's Magazine.

BY E. R. BRANSON

Protecting The Factory Girls

Q. Is there an eight-hour law for working girls in Ohio? If so, can anyone report a merchant who is violating that law?

A. The Ohio statutes provide that "a day's work in a mechanical, manufacturing or mining business shall consist of eight hours and be so enforced unless the contract therefor expressly provides otherwise." The statutes further provide that "the chief inspector of workshops and factories, with the approval of the governor, shall designate eight female visitors. . . . Such visitors shall visit all shops and factories in their respective districts in which women or children are employed, including mercantile establishments, as often as possible, to see that the provisions and requirements of the laws relating to the employment of women and children are strictly observed and carried out." There are a number of statutory provisions following this, with reference to sanitary and moral conditions and providing for the inspection of such working-places to see whether there is proper and adequate heating, lighting and ventilating and to enforce the law with respect to separate dressing rooms. It is further provided by law that "every person, firm or corporation employing females in manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishments shall provide a suitable seat for the use of each female so employed and permit such females to use them when not necessarily engaged in the active duties of their employment." There are still other provisions pertaining to health and morals and provisions looking to the prevention of injury by contact with machinery.

Common Law Marriages

Q. Will you kindly tell me whether common law or informal marriages are legal? In such cases, is a marriage license required?

A. In most of the states statutes have been enacted authorizing certain persons, such as ministers, judges and magistrates, to perform the marriage ceremony. There are further requirements, with reference to the license, the number of witnesses and the signing and returning of the marriage certificate, and penalties are usually provided for violations of the law. In some of the states the courts have held that, where these formalities are not observed, the marriage is void. In other states it has been held that, if the statute does not expressly make such marriages void, they will be valid if the parties have entered into the contract in accordance with the common law.

Boundaries

There is Everything in this life for many people, all because they See Everything in it. In advance they Appraise the Boundaries of their Possibilities by putting definite form to them.

Start Appraising right now. What is there that you have done that you should not have done had you seen the End instead of the Beginning? Appraise the Complete alongside of the Incomplete. Face your Shortcomings squarely and seriously. That which is worth Finishing—Finish; that which promises nothing—Discard.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How the Old Mandarin Ruled His People.

"I KNOW another Chinese story," said daddy, smiling.

"Tell it—tell it, daddy!" cried the kiddies.

"Once upon a time there was an old mandarin who had power of life and death over millions of poor people and quite a few rich ones. He himself lived in a wonderful palace, with a garden of twisted old trees around it. He had many servants and wore beautiful yellow silk coats, all embroidered with great gold dragons that meant power."

"Was he a relative of the old mandarin whose daughter was turned into a dove?" asked Evelyn.

"No; he was an ancient mandarin, but the one I am telling you about lived in our time. Well, this mandarin was much troubled by the terrible poverty in his province. The Yangtse river would overflow its banks and spoil hundreds of acres of rice fields, so that thousands of poor little children and their parents would have nothing to eat. Then next he was troubled by the rich people of his province coming to him with word that their cities were horribly dirty and uncared for because they could not get the lazy poor people to work for them and clean the gutters that ran past their palaces.

"For a long time this want and complaining came to his ears, and then he decided to use his great power as mandarin."

"What did he do?" cried both children.

"He called all his courtiers in council and gave out two tremendous orders."

"What? Something terrible?" asked Jack.

"He ordered every rich man in his province to buy a wheelbarrow. This cost a great deal of money, for wheelbarrows filled the province, and the money they set going went into the pockets of needy men and helped stop the poverty. Then he ordered every poor man who had a family of small children without food to take a wheelbarrow and clean the gutters in front of the palaces. Then he ordered the rich men who owned the places to pay the poor men well for doing this cleaning, so that, with their wages, they could buy food for their families."

"It sounds very wise," said Jack, who liked cleverness.

"It was wise," said daddy. "For by these orders he stopped both the poverty and the complaints throughout his entire realm."

The children waved a kiss and ran off to bed.

"I want a real kiss—come back!" called daddy.

Both Jack and Evelyn ran back to him.

"We'd give you four kisses for another story," they hinted.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. DA VINCI LEONARD

In Which John Sutner Reveals His Troubles to Julia Osgood.

John Sutner closed the office door and sank down by his desk, burying his face in his hands. So absorbed was he that he did not hear the door open, at least he did not look up, till a cheery voice said:

"Are you taking a nap?"

He raised a face so drawn and white that Julia Osgood started.

"What is it?" she asked, pausing with the hatpin head in her hand, forgetting to pull it out. He did not answer, and she took off her wraps and came over to his table.

"Has anything happened? You have not lost your job, have you?"

He shook his head. "Not yet. I have been going through hell trying to save it," he answered after a pause. Perhaps it was a relief to talk. Julia certainly was a good listener, and such sympathy as the friendly face showed always comforts.

"You know that letter I showed you the other day, the threatening letter giving me till the first of the month to raise fifty dollars or have my wages garnisheed? Well, I decided to take it to the boss——"

"To Jaynes?" interrupted Julia.

"Yes; I heard that he used to be poor, and I thought I might make him understand the situation, and——"

"I don't understand. Why did you not write to the creditor and offer to pay a certain sum every month till the debt is paid?" asked the girl.

"I had already done that, and the offer was curtly refused. The only other thing I could think of to do was to make a plea for mercy when the blow fell."

"Well," prompted the girl, for John had stopped and covered his face with his hands.

"I can't talk about it: it was awful."

"What could he do? He must either grant your request or refuse to do so, as far as I can see." The girl looked belligerent.

"He did neither; he cross-examined me like a lawyer and when he learned that I had debts of years standing and could get no credit he looked black.

"'Young man, I'll inquire into your case,' he said. 'It strikes me as a very unsafe proposition to have a bookkeeper, who handles as much money as you do, chronically in debt. A man who persistently lives beyond his income is dishonest; he's using what does not belong to him. I have been poor. I have earned less than half of what you are getting and I lived on it.'"

"Was he married at the time?" flashed Julia indignantly. "If so, it must have been to a different wife than the present Mrs. Jaynes."

"He softened a little when I told him that I was saving now, that neither my wife nor I had had any training in the care of money and our ignorance had digged the pit into which we were plunged. He looked severe as he said:

"'It certainly takes the young people of today to make the money fly.'"

"Perhaps he was thinking of his own charming son," remarked Julia with asperity. "Rumor has it that he spent a hundred a week at school."

"That would only make his father the harder on young men," sighed John.

"I suppose so," said the girl, rising and gathering her papers together for work. Just then Tyler opened the door and seeing John sitting idly at his desk looked him over with haughty disapproval.

"He had no errand in here. I wish he would keep out," said Julia spitefully when the door closed behind him.

"As I told you, he is watching me," said John bitterly, "and it did not escape his notice that I had not gone to work."

"It's only a quarter past one, and it is none of his business, anyway," grumbled Julia.

NEW BRUNSWICK ELKS BEAT LOCALS

Good Scores Made by Former Champions on Local Alleys.

Rolling in mid-season form, the New Brunswick Elks, champions of the Elks' League, rolled their first series of the present season, Monday night against the Plainfield Bills, on the local alleys, and won all three games. The second game was the closest of the evening, New Brunswick tallying 917 to Plainfield's 907.

With a total of 959 in the first, New Brunswick won by nearly 100 pins and in the final game the team went to 1024, the best score of the Elks' League season to date. In this game Greenewald rolled 242 and Coyne and Bastedo each registered 203. Burton went to 198 and Harkins stopped at 178. Tom Coyne, who was reported to have a bad arm, rolled in his usual form with scores of 225, 189 and 203, an average exceeding 205 for the night. There was only one change in the make-up of the team from last season.

Following the bowling a social session was held during which honors were paid to John J. Campbell, who up to this year has rolled anchor on the Plainfield team. Because of his duties as Deputy County Collector, he cannot spare the time this year to roll and his teammates paid fitting tribute to his efforts of former seasons.

The scores:

RESTA DRIVES 100 MILES IN 56:55:71

American Tires Stand Terrific Strain for Entire Distance Without Trouble.

Holding steadily to the terrific pace of 105.39 miles an hour—a new rate of speed for American motor competition—and having the luck never to be obliged to stop for either tire or engine trouble, Dario Resta, the little dark Italian who already held the Vanderbilt Cup and the Grand Prize for this year, yesterday at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway added to his collection of victory-emblems the Harkness Gold Challenge Cup.

His blue Peugeot machine, French-made and American-shod, swept over the distance of 100 miles in 56 minutes 55.71 seconds and finished nearly three miles ahead of its nearest rival. Besides the trophy and a cash award of $5,000 and the cheers of about 25,000 spectators, Resta had the satisfaction of knowing that he had driven within less than 26 seconds of the world's 100-mile record, which was made over the two-mile concrete track at Brooklands, England, and stands at 56 minutes 29.93 seconds.

Second to Resta yesterday was "Wild Bob" Burman, a husky young American, driving another blue Peugeot. He might have been closer up except that he had to stop at the twenty-sixth mile for a tire replacement. While the actual ripping off of one wheel and putting on another consumed only about ten seconds, the time lost in slowing down and then getting up speed again put him hopelessly out of the running. He averaged 102.43 miles an hour and won $3,000 in cash.

Third in the race was Eddie Rickenbacker, at the wheel of an American-made Maxwell, which ran with the regularity of a chronometer all the way through the long drive and never varied its speed from the first lap to the last, but which didn't have, by an appreciable number of miles an hour, the gait of the French machines. Rickenbacker drove a good race and didn't have to stop, but his machine was too slow. (Imagine 98.38 miles an hour being SLOW!) He won $2,000.

Three other machines started—two Peugeots, with Ralph Mulford and Johnny Aitken at their wheels, and a Mercedes, guided by Ralph De Palma. But Aitken was forced out at twelve miles, De Palma at forty, and Mulford, after a heart-breaking, stern chase of the leader, in which his chances looked fine for winning the trophy, went out on the 92d mile.

HOLY CROSS LOSES TO HEAVIER TEAM

Defeated by Score of 6 to 0 in Snappy Game by Newark Players.

Holy Cross suffered its first defeat of the season yesterday, when it went down before the Franklin A. A. team, of Newark, by a score of 6 to 0.

The game was fast and snappy. A good crowd saw the local team lose to the heavier visitors.

Captain Wilson won the toss and elected to receive the kick. Bratch kicked off to Wilson, who made ten yards. Holy Cross could not gain on three attempts, and Clarke punted to midfield. Franklin fumbled on the first play and it was Holy Cross' ball on the 45-yard line. Holy Cross again found a strong defense and Clarke punted to Ost, who made a beautiful run of 30 yards.

From this point the Franklins ripped up the home boys' line until Hatfield went over the line for the first and only score of the game. Bratch missed the goal by a narrow margin.

Toward the end of the first half J. Ricketts and Clarke pulled a long forward, which carried the ball well into Franklin territory. Holy Cross began to shown some real football now and made things pretty warm for the Franklins. Manning, Wilson and Caulfield carried the ball to the 15-yard line when time was called.

In the third quarter, with 2 yards to go on the last down, Wilson plunged to the 13-yard line. Here the old stone wall defense of the Franklins again showed itself and the local boys lost the ball on an uncomplete forward. The Franklins now turned the table and started a vicious attack on the Holy Cross line and pulled off 4 and 8 yards at a clip, until the ball reached midfield. Coach Stallings sent fresh material into the fray as the third period ended in hopes of checking the Franklins.

The Franklins, however, worked the ball to the Holy Cross 7-yard line and then Holy Cross took a decided brace and saved another touchdown.

The ball was punted out of danger by Clarke and in the final minutes of play the ball stayed around midfield, and when time was called it was in Franklins' possession on their own 45-yard line.

BASKETBALL AT HIGH SCHOOL.

A large crowd filling both galleries witnessed the first and second teams of the Zephyrs and Athenians, colored, play basketball in the High School gymnasium last night. The first teams of both clubs won, the score of the Zephyrs being 11-1 and the Athenians 24-10. There was dancing after the game.

HUNTING SEASON TO OPEN NOVEMBER 10

Increase in the Number of Gunners to Enjoy Sport in New Jersey.

The 1915 hunting season will open on November 10 in New Jersey and thousands of hunters are on edge for it. Arms and ammunition dealers say that their advance sales show that there will be an increase in the number of gunners in the fields this year, partly because the war feeling has caused many of our citizens to learn the art of handling a gun and there is no better way than to put it to good use by hunting.

There was a time when hunting was really a slaughter, but those days are passed and the game of today is always given a chance to get away by the sportsman. It is an ironclad rule among the fraternity not to shoot a rabbit sitting, and, as for bird shooting, it is fast becoming an art, as practically every shot is made at a single bird and there are more failures than successes.

The greatest advancement in the game of hunting is shown in the dogs that will be used this year. There has been a demand in this State for good hounds, setters and pointers and it has been met to a great extent by New Jersey breeders. Several Newark dog owners, among them George Flammer and Harry Vosberg, have led the way in this, and their dogs are known far and wide for their wonderful intelligence and their ability to trail or point game.

Another change and a welcome one is the falling off of so-called private preserves. A few years ago there was a tendency on the part of hunters to band together and lease acre upon acre of ground and post it against all outsiders. This scheme has been a costly one and didn't pan out just right, as frequently the owner or owners of the leased property would hunt over it several days prior to the coming of the sportsmen and make a cleanup. Another item was the expense of maintaining really private preserves. At first the members would be very enthusiastic over the prospect of having private grounds to shoot over, but when they come to reckon the cost against the service or pleasure derived they quit, and in this way some of the hunting sections of the State have been restored to the hunter who cannot afford private preserve membership.

That there will be good hunting this season is beyond question. Rabbits are especially plentiful and quail, partridge and pheasants are more numerous than in previous years, partly due to the mildness of the weather last year. Ordinarily the heavy snow storms kill off 50 per cent. of the feathered game in this State, but during the entire winter season passed there was not enough snow to bother them.

Reports from the different hunting counties show that where the State Fish and Game Commission has liberated game for propagating purposes it has thrived exceptionally well and the commission has been most liberal in the number put out.

HOUNDS LEAD WATCHUNG HUNT A MERRY CHASE

The holiday run of the Watchung Hunt Club yesterday provided fine sport for the riding members. The hounds were met at Dog Tavern and thrown in nearby. The chase led back of Fanwood and Westfield, through Metuchen to the Coriell farm at Fanwood, the finish. There were four checks on the chase. The country was very trappy and many fences were encountered. Although the field was well strung out, all managed to catch up at the checks. The hounds were fast and gave the riders a lively chase.

The following finished: Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H., Mrs. William Hughes, of England; A. C. Fox, H. A. Bourne, H. W. Evans, S. D French, A. E. Beling, Col. C. E. S. Bellows, Huntsman Harrison and the whip.

PARVIN WINS TENNIS MATCH.

Rodney Parvin added another tennis victory to his string Monday afternoon, when he defeated Wright McAnneny on the Country Club courts after a hard match for the championship of the Plainfield High School. The first set reached 10-8 before he could grab it. He lost the second 4-6, but took the next two, 6-3 6-4.

N. Y. HORSE WINS BIG STAKE.

San Francisco, Nov. 3.—Peter Scott, owned and driven by Thomas Murphy, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., won the $20,000 stake trot at the Exposition Park here yesterday in three straight heats. The first money amounted to $10,000. Miss Perfection was second and Spriggan third.

P. H. S. LOSES FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Westfield Defeats Locals by Score of 6 to 0—Ragged Football Featured.

Playing the brand of football that nearly cost them the Battin game, the Red and Blue team of the Plainfield High School suffered the first defeat of the season at the hands of the Westfield eleven on Parker Field yesterday morning by a score of 6 to 0. Ragged football cropped out in the locals' play every time they had a chance to do something. Despite the wind both teams tried considerable kicking, the visitors getting the best of them by using their heads to better advantage.

Westfield kicked off to open the game, but got possession of the ball after the first two plays. Noonan missed a drop kick on account of the wind and Westfield kicked out of danger. The Red and Blue again lost the ball on a fumble near midfield. Brower, the visitors' diminutive quarter, gained twenty yards on several line plunges, but on their five-yard line Plainfield held for three downs before Cairns could carry it over. Clark missed the goal. Westfield again kicked off and held Plainfield for downs. An exchange of punts and several intercepted passes kept the ball see-sawing around the middle of the field. Noonan grabbed a forward intended for Welch and had a clear field when he tripped.

A raking over the coals by Coach Patch put a little ginger in the Red and Blue eleven at the start of the second half and following the kick-off Westfield was held for downs. Plainfield only had a chance for two plays, however, when a bad pass by Whelan allowed Welch to drop on the ball. On the locals' five yard line Captain Pennock's charges held for downs and then Noonan kicked out of danger. Westfield was held for downs and yielded the pill to the locals on their forty yard line, but Noonan had to kick after three unsuccessful attempts to gain through the line. Westfield's kickoff to start the last period allowed Peacock to run back ten yards. First down was barely made two times on end runs and line plunges by Daniels and Noonan, but on an end run by Apgar he fumbled the ball when he was tackled on the visitors' thirty yard line. Westfield kept out of danger by kicking. Plainfield had carried the ball to midfield when the whistle blew.

Miller's loss at left tackle was felt, although Mumford played a good game considering his long layoff. Daniels' loss gave way early in the game and it was up to Noonan to do most of the ground gaining. Not a single forward pass was completed in the game, the wind robbing both Davidson and Fitch of several. Cooper retired in the third quarter with a bad gash over the eye.

The lineups:

SHELVIN AT YALE TO COACH SQUAD

Former Star Called in An Attempt to Prevent Season of Defeats.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 3.—Tom Shevlin reached New Haven at noon yesterday and was generally regarded at the afternoon practice of the team as the real head of the Yale football organization for the remainder of the season. When asked whether Shevlin was in control Nelson Talbott, spokesman for the Hinkey coaching regime, evaded the question. Captain Wilson also declined to give a direct answer. When Shevlin was questioned he good-naturedly said: "I don't know what they do call me. You'll have to ask the powers that be. I am here to help coach."

NEW TRIAL FOR DOCTOR.

Minneapolis, Nov. 3.—Arguments on the appeal of Dr. Charles H. Hunter, of this city, from his conviction on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Lena Kummer, of Hastings, Minn., will be heard tomorrow in the Supreme Court. Dr. Hunter was convicted of having performed an illegal operation upon the girl, resulting in her death. When the girl died last November Hunter issued a death certificate giving pneumonia as the cause. Relatives took the matter up and an autopsy revealed the facts. Hunter admitted the operation, but contended it had been performed by a physician unknown to him and that pneumonia had been given as the cause of the girl's death to spare her relatives from the distressing details. Dr Hunter faces a sentence of from 5 to 20 years, unless he is granted a new trial. He has been practicing in this city for twenty years, and was implicated in the death of another girl, but was not convicted.

FAREWELL SUPPER GIVEN TO FIREMAN

Daniel Kiederling Entertains Colleagues as He Retires From Department.

Daniel Keiderling, who has been driver of Chief Doane's automobile for the past five years and who has been a member of the fire department for more than nine years, gave a farewell supper to the firemen at headquarters last night, previous to his retirement from the service. He will leave next Saturday to take over the business of the Central livery and combine it with the boarding stable on East Second street in which he has had an interest for some time.

Mr. Keiderling's wife prepared the supper at home and it was served by him with the assistance of several of the men. The feast was followed by a social time during which the retiring driver expressed regret at severing the pleasant relations he had had for many years but stated that the change probably meant a better future. "Son" Claassen acted as master of ceremonies for the men and conveyed the best wishes of every member of the department to Mr. Keiderling, for complete success in his new undertaking. Vocal selections were rendered by Edward Mosher, John Guinee and Otto Gunther, while James McDonough contributed an exhibition of fancy drumming. Phonograph selections were a feature during the entire evening.

Mr. Keiderling's retirement has been received with keen regret by Chief Doane and the city officials as he has been a very efficient man during his connection with the department. Chief Doane is particularly regretful at his going and declares that since "Dan" has been driving his car he has never at any time felt anything but absolute security no matter at what speed they were proceeding to a fire.

LAWYERS ON THE GRILL.

Trenton, Nov. 3.—Nine lawyers are to appear before the Supreme Court today at the opening of the term, to show cause why they should not be disbarred. The record is one which has never been equalled in the judicial history of New Jersey. The barristers summoned to appear are: former Police Judge Simon Hahn, Joseph B. Breidt, Jacob Lubetkin, J. Edward Smith, Carl Raisch, Arthur D. Colver, Robert L. Eaton, Addison P. Rosenerans and former Prosecutor Matthew Jefferson. Most of them have already been disbarred from practicing in the Court of Chancery. It is said that unless the defendant lawyers seek to inject other matter as a defense, the court will rest on the testimony and records of the Court of Chancery.

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR ATTENDS

Bakhmeteff and several other members of the Russian embassy staff are attending the wedding here today of Miss Hope Truxton Beale, the young kinswoman of Mme. Bakhmeteff and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Beale, and Mr. Eaton Cromwell, son of the late Oliver Cromwell, of Washington and New York, and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia. How to Become a Successful Saver

A young man started a Bank Account with $25.00 and deposited $25 to his credit each month.

As his income increased, he increased the amount of his deposits to $50, then to $75, then to $100 per month. Four years have now passed, and he has $4,000 to his credit.

This shows what can be accomplished by systematic saving.

FEET ARE A FEATURE

Pretty shoes are as necessary as pretty clothes; more so this Fall than ever before.

The doctors and fashion creators have made trailing skirts as unpopular as the funny papers did duelling. The trails were quite as foolish as the duel, as dangerous—and they have now become quite as unfashionable.

Hence the greater popularity of the Van Arsdale women's boots.

More in the public view than ever before!

BEQUEST FOR OLD LADIES' HOME STILL UNUSED AFTER NINE YEARS

Sum Exceeding $70,000 With Interest, Bringing it up to About $100,000, was Bequeathed by Catherine R. Webster for the Establishment of Charitable Institution in Plainfield.

Just why the city of Plainfield has not been provided with an Old Ladies' Home purchased with funds set aside in the will of the late Catherine R. Webster, who died in this city October 26, 1906, has become a matter of much concern to those parties interested in the bequest; and there are many of them, for the testator left numerous relatives and intimate acquaintances. In the final document endorsed by the deceased, provision was made for a fund to purchase land for, and to erect, a charitable institution of this nature and also a fund to maintain it after completion. Despite the fact that nine years have lapsed since the death of the testator nothing of a material nature toward fulfilling the final wishes of Miss Webster in this respect has been accomplished. John H. VanWinkle, Sr., a local lawyer, is the sole surviving executor and queries coming to the Plainfield Daily Press by interested citizens prompted the Press to secure Mr. VanWinkle's reasons for the unaccountable delay.

The executor admitted that the fund available for the fulfillment of this clause totaled a sum in excess of $70,000 and further stated that this money was on deposit in a local banking institution. This amount, with the interest that has probably accrued during the nine years that have elapsed, should total nearly $100,000.

The item in the will referring to this bequest follows:

"All the remainder of my estate which may remain in the hands of my executors or the survivor of them, I do give, devise and bequeath the same to my executors or the survivor of them in trust for the following use, the real estate remaining unsold to be sold at such time and in such manner as they may think best for the purposes of said trust, and make, execute and deliver good and sufficient deed or deeds for the same, and from the funds in their hands, I do authorize and empower my said executors or the survivor of them, to purchase a lot of land in the city of Plainfield, N. J., of suitable size on which to erect or assist in erecting a building for the purpose of founding a home for aged and infirm women, to be known as 'Ladies' Home,' a deed for the said tract of land so purchased with its improvements thereon, to be executed and delivered by my said executors or the survivor of them to a corporation to be organized for the purpose of said Ladies' Home, to be held by it and its successors and assigns forever, for the purposes aforesaid, the remaining part of my personal estate I do order and direct shall be invested and kept invested by my executors on good security for the purpose of said trust and held by them until the founding of said Ladies' Home and shall then be used by them in assisting to build and complete said building, and the balance of said funds remaining in their hands to be transferred and assigned to said corporation when created and fully established, as an endowment fund for the purpose of assisting in the support and maintenance of the same."

The late Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Miss Webster, advised Mr. VanWinkle to take the initiative looking to the formation of "a corporation to be organized for the purpose of said Ladies' Home, to be held by it and its successors and assigns forever, for the purposes aforesaid." The executor selected the following Plainfielders to compose this corporation: George D. Hallock, Charles E. Vail, Clarence B. Vail, former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Horace G. Phillips, William D. Murray, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges and William J. Buttfield.

When interviewed by a Daily Press reporter members of this body declared that but two meetings had been held since their appointment on June 3, 1910, and further stated that nothing of a material nature had been accomplished. One of the men said that repeated efforts had been made to "stir up the executor," but that little satisfaction had been given. He said that Mr. VanWinkle as a rule laid aside queries by informing the corporation that the "money was in the bank" and "the work was progressing." The members of the corporation believe that the body has long since become extinct as a working committee and a majority have expressed a desire to withdraw.

Mr. VanWinkle, the executor, and John H. VanWinkle, Jr., who has assisted him in directing the estate, told a Daily Press reporter that incorporation papers had been filed and that every effort had been made to facilitate the work. Both gentlemen claim that the will as drawn by Craig Marsh was so complicated that years have been required to satisfy its terms. Mr. VanWinkle, Sr., said: "I have given the complicated affair considerable attention for the reason that I do not wish to have any comebacks from beneficiaries after settlements are made. The will is long and the items are numerous. We are now finishing an exhaustive survey of the document and the completion of our work will now be a matter of only a short time."

Asked if there was any possibility of Plainfield having an Old Ladies' Home, built with funds provided by this source, by next spring, Mr. VanWinkle replied that there was. He further stated that a number of excellent sites were now under consideration but desired not to give any definite locations or probable purchase prices. The executor intimated strongly that he and his son were handling the issue for the corporation and during the interview the latter body was in no way referred to.

Members of the corporation have not risen to criticize the work of the executor nor do they charge him with mismanagement of the estate. They simply want to know what progress has been made to date and want to place themselves out of the reach of any possible suspicion that might be directed at those intrusted with the handling of this item in the will.

It is said that since Mr. Marsh's death the inactivity has been unusually noticeable and certain members of the corporation will request that a meeting be held in the year future and if this is not complied with they will withdraw.

The corporation has nothing to do with the handling of the money of the estate and, in fact, has amounted to nothing but a printed committee. Joseph B. Coward was appointed an executor of the estate by the testator at the time of her death but he has since died, leaving Mr. VanWinkle in exclusive control. Harry Coward and William F. Arnold witnessed the drawing of the will.

Other bequests made by Miss Webster included $1,000 for Muhlenberg Hospital; $500 to be invested and the interest used in caring for the cemetery in the rear of the Friends Meeting House on Watchung avenue; $500 to be invested and the interest to be paid to the superintendent of the First Day School for the purchase of books; and various other items, a majority going to relatives.

The will further empowered the executors to sell the old Webster homestead, located at East Second and Church streets, and until recently occupied by the Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, at public auction.

JURY DISMISSES SUIT OVER FIXTURES

Somerville, Nov. 4.—A jury in the District Court yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of no cause for action in the suit of W. H. Burke and Company, of this city, against Peter and Lrontine Moine, of Bound Brook. The plaintiff sought to recover damages in the sum of $500. PLAINFIELDERS AT THE FAIR.

Among the New Jersey people registered at the Panama Exposition the past week were E. W. Van Jandt, G. L. Bristol and Lizzie H. Vail Allen, of Plainfield.

EAGLES' FAIR IS WELL ATTENDED

Many Pleasing Attractions Keep Crowd Interested Each Evening.

The attendance at the first annual fair of Freedom Commandery, No. 5, Knights of the Golden Eagle, is increasing each evening, while new and novel features are introduced at each gathering to add to the interest of the occasion. While dancing is one of the leading attractions, much interest is shown in the country store where the demure damsels make goo-goo eyes at the courteous clerk with the raven locks while the bad boys hide under the counter and feast on the block sugar.

Then the fancy goods booth, where everything from the lace handkerchief to the indispensible paper of pins, is palmed off on the guileless youth and married men as excellent presents for the best girl or confiding wife.

The "hot dog" emporium is also well patronized, as are also the flower girls, refreshment counter and other establishments.

The fair, which commenced last Saturday, will continue until and including Saturday night in Armory Hall.

NOTT FIRE ENGINE SENT BACK BY CITY

Apparatus That Failed to Make Good is Loaded on Freight Car.

The final chapter in the city's deal with the Nott Fire Engine Company of Minneapolis, for the purchase of a seven hundred gallon auto pumping engine was enacted yesterday when the big "flivver" sent here on the contract was loaded on a Jersey Central flat car to be taken back to the factory from which it came. The engine was ordered a year ago last July but was not delivered here until the early part of this year. Repeated attempts to make it come up to expectations failed, utterly despite the bringing of all kinds of experts. The contract was finally declared to be null and void by the councilmanic fire committee, although the Nott Company offered to make a big reduction in the original price. The company has since quit the manufacture of this type of engine.

The big engine has been kept at the Netherwood fire house, from which it was taken to the Richmond street freight yard. It will be accompanied back to Minneapolis by another Nott apparatus, the combination chemical wagon which was brought here with the idea of selling it to the city for the West End house on West Fourth street. The concern had the latter machine all finished up for immediate service even to the point of lettering it "Plainfield Fire Department" on various conspicuous parts. The city, however, decided to accept the bid of the International Motor Company for the West End combination vehicle, hence the return of the Nott property.

Robert Woodhouse, of East Seventh street, has been the local representative of the Nott Company and recently placed an attachment on one of the machines for money due him on sales and storage. This matter was afterward settled amicably so there was no hindrance in the removal of both machines yesterday.

MAYOR EXPLAINS TAX BILL ITEMS

Taxpayers Complain About Charges Made for Removing Snow Last Winter.

DISREGARD OF LAWS

Efforts Will be Made This Coming Winter to Break up the Habit of Allowing Snow and Slush to Remain on City Walks.

Numerous local taxpayers are expressing considerable surprise and annoyance at finding charges on their tax bills for removing snow and ice from their sidewalks last February. When asked for an explanation of the items by a Plainfield Daily Press reporter this morning, Mayor Leighton Calkins said:

"Numerous complaints were lodged with the city authorities last winter, not against the taxpayers who are now feeling grieved, but because of the habitual disregard by certain people each winter, of the ordinance requiring property owners, or tenants, as the case may be, to remove all ice and snow from sidewalks within twelve hours of daylight after same forms or falls thereon. Accordingly, I issued a notice on February 3, calling attention to the ordinance, and stating that I had instructed the police to report all violations promptly. The notice was prominently displayed in the local papers.

"In spite of this warning, three hundred violations were reported during the next two days. Accordingly, on Saturday, February 6, I issued, and there was prominently displayed in both local papers, a second notice, to the effect that the street commissioner had been instructed, as provided by law, to clear off the walks of delinquent property owners as fast as possible. The law requires the street commissioner to certify the cost of such removal to the tax collector, so that it may be charged on the tax bills.

"No doubt in some cases there may be difficulties attending a prompt compliance with the ordinance, and, as in the case of a quick succession of snow falls, or a sudden forming of ice, complete compliance with the law may be difficult. We all recognize this fact. On the other hand, the convenience and safety of the community as a whole must be considered; and if a property owner, for good reason, is prevented from cleaning his walks, he should not in reason feel aggrieved if they are cleaned for him, at cost, especially as this is the law. It involves no criticism of his conduct. But it should clearly be understood that property owners whose walks are cleared for them by the city are not thereby relieved of their own obligation in the matter. The ordinance provides a penalty in case of a conviction for failure to remove snow and ice within twelve hours, as above stated. The street commissioner steps in, not to relieve the property owner, but to make the streets safe and passable for the public.

"It ought not to be necessary to say that arrests will not be made for first offences, nor without reasonable warning and requests to comply with the law. But an effort will be made this coming winter to abate what has become, in certain cases, an open and defiant disregard of the law, as is shown by the complaints regularly filed each winter against certain property owners, who apparently are quite willing that the city should clear their walks, because it costs less than for them to do it themselves."

URGES RETURN OF THE POSTAL CARDS

Board of Trade Anxious to Learn Sentiment of People on Consolidation.

Owing to the absence of a quorum the Board of Trade held no meeting last night as intended. Only three members had arrived up to a half hour after the time for calling the meeting to order.

Since the last meeting 1,000 return postcards have been mailed to residents of the city to ascertain the sentiments relative to consolidation with North Plainfield. Many of the cards have been returned but the Board is anxious to hear from the remainder and the secretary wishes to urge all who received the cards to indicate whether they are in favor of or opposed to the consolidation proposition and return the same to the secretary. The cards are ready for mailing and all that is necessary is write the word "yes" or "no" as indicated, sign the cards and drop it in a letter box.

If there is a strong sentiment shown the Common Council will be petitioned to call a special election, but if the opposition is shown to be the stronger no action will be taken.

HORSE THROWS HIS OWNER UNDER TRAIN

Somerville Baker May Die as Result of Injuries Received Today.

Somerville, Nov. 4.—George Roller, proprietor of a bakery in this place, was painfully and perhaps fatally injured about 1 o'clock this afternoon, when an unruly horse pushed him under a train at the New street crossing of the New Jersey Central Railroad.

Mr. Roller had stopped at the crossing to permit the train to pass. He was afraid of the horse and alighted from the wagon to hold the animal's head. The horse became unmanageable while the train was passing and in its attempts to break loose threw Mr. Roller against the train. His head and body were badly bruised. His right foot went under a wheel and all the flesh was removed from the foot.

He was hurriedly taken to the Somerset Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Thomas Flynn. It is impossible to state the extent of his injuries until a more thorough examination can be made, but it is believed that he is in a serious condition.

COURT REVERSES COUNCIL ACTION

Madison Avenue Proceedings Are Declared "Clearly Irregular."

MOY IS SUSTAINED

His Contention That Property Owners Were Not Given Legal Notice Upheld by Justice Parker in Reviewing Fred Endress Case.

Proceedings of the Common Council of Plainfield in connection with the widening of Madison avenue were reversed by a decision of Justice Parker filed in the Supreme Court of the State yesterday.

The decision was in the case of Fred Endress against the Common Council of Plainfield taken up on a writ of certiorari to review proceedings of the Council in approving plans of special commissioners for the widening of the street and the levying of assessments for the work. Mr. Endress was assessed benefits that were $2,393.50 in excess of damages. He was represented in the case by Attorney George W. V. Moy, of Plainfield, and the principal contention of Mr. Moy in arguing that Council proceedings be set aside was sustained by the decision of Justice Parker.

The case was a highly technical one and the issue was a contention of the plaintiff that the Council had not complied with provisions of the city charter in adopting plans of commissioners after they had been amended without giving property owners an opportunity to object to the findings of the board. The widening of Madison avenue was referred to a board of commissioners which adopted plans and maps for the work. Notice to the public of the consideration of these plans was duly given and they were adopted with the report of the commissioners on December 7, 1914. Between that time and December 30 the Council found the need of changes in the plans and maps and referred the matter back to the street committee. In some manner it found its way back to the special commissioners and on December 30 they adopted certain amendments to the plans which brought about a material change in the footings on assessments. On the night of December 30, the same day that the amendments were recommended by the commissioners, the Council approved the amended report. Mr. Moy applied for a writ of certiorari for his client on the grounds that the Council should have given notice of the change in plans. His contention was that the amendments to the report made of it a new report. In sustaining this point Justice Parker said that the Council had taken certain steps not in accordance with the charter of the city and that the reference back to the commissioners without public notice was "clearly irregular." He held that the same notice and opportunity to object to the amendment report should have been given as in the consideration of the original report, "otherwise drastic changes might have been made and the public left in ignorance."

The present status of the matter is that plans for the widening of Madison avenue must be taken up anew by the Council and if an amended report is to be adopted by the commissioners this must be advertised so that property owners will have advance knowledge of its purport.

WAYWARD GIRL IS FOUND IN THIS CITY

Ethel Harris Accused of Theft in Dunellen Goes Back to State School.

Ethel Harris, aged 17 years, who was until recently employed as a servant in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Burns, on Third street, Dunellen, was yesterday taken to the State School for Girls at Clinton Farms, from which place she was taken by the Burns family three weeks ago.

The girl while alone at the Burns home Monday afternoon selected three gowns belonging to Mrs. Burns and left the place. Upon the return of the latter she discovered that her gowns had been taken and the girl was also missing. The police were notified. An investigation disclosed the fact that she had upon request been given a night's lodging at the local industrial home and she was later identified there by Mr. Burns and Marshal Smalley, of Dunellen.

The girl was taken to the Dunellen lockup after which the missing gowns were discovered. The girl has already spent more than half of her life at Clinton Farms.

ROUMANIA ABOUT TO ENTER WAR

Looks Like Another Big Victory for German Diplomacy in Balkans.

ALLIES ARE INACTIVE

Kaiser Sends Troops to Force Decision in His Power, While Entente Powers Refuse to Listen to Appeal for 500,000 Men.

London, Nov. 4.—Roumania's entry into the war may be expected at any moment.

Developments of the past twenty-four hours indicate that she is preparing to make a decision and as usual Germany is moving her men on the European chess-board so as to force the little Balkan country to aid her armies. The Allies are pursuing their customary policy of waiting.

Recent demonstrations in Roumania have led the Kaiser to believe that the country would go against the central powers and German troops are being sent to the Roumanian frontier. It has been reported at the Hague that the Roumanian ministry would soon resign, which is not pleasing to the Germans.

On the other hand a Roumanian dispatch to the newspaper "Genevois" at Geneva says that the Roumanian government will not further consider the proposals of the entente powers unless at least 500,000 Anglo-French troops are sent into the Balkans at once. There is little possibility of the Allies complying with this demand, and if the statement is true Roumania may soon be fighting under the standard of the Kaiser. Another such victory for German diplomacy in the Balkans would probably shatter hopes of the Allies for support from Greece.

Bulgars Lose Heavily.

The local police maintained splendid order over Hallowe'en. Only one complaint was registered and that came from F. O. Spurdle, of Washington avenue, late Monday night. Mr. Spurdle was about to retire when he heard something crash against the front door of his home. He hurried out and found a brick on his porch. In the distance could be heard the cries of derision from the departing miscreants. He immediately telephoned the police.

Marshal I. V. Smalley was assigned to the case. He lost no time in following the disturbers, believing that the gang would return. This is the very thing that the miscreants did and inside of a half hour the entire gang, made up of boys ranging between the ages of twelve and fifteen, were all in police headquarters. They were kept there for an hour and after a severe reprimand delivered by Recorder Campbell they were let go.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds are moving from the Richard M. Ryan house at 323 First street to York, Pa. This house has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Townley, of Madison avenue, who will take possession the first of the month.

Contractor and Mrs. H. B. Eckert entertained Clifford Colen, of Newark, over the week-end.

Edward Lewis, of North avenue has resigned his position in the office of the Pond Tool Works at Plainfield to accept a position as salesman for George N. Giles.

ARM NOT FRACTURED.

Ralston Peters, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peters, of Dunellen avenue, injured his right arm quite badly when he fell on it while playing in the yard of his home, Monday afternoon, with another boy. By Tuesday the arm had swollen badly and couldn't be touched without causing Ralston considerable pain. Thinking that his arm might have been fractured the parents had a physician take an ex-ray photograph, but fortunately it failed to show any fracture.

$10 FINES IMPOSED.

William Smith, of New Market, and Edward Manning, of Clinton avenue were both fined $10 a piece when arraigned in Judge David S. Campbell's court, Tuesday, on charges of disorderly conduct. Manning was arrested Monday night in front of Margentino's by Marshals Smalley and Mohan.

POLICE TELEPHONE SYSTEM INSTALLED

Instructions Given Residents of Fanwood as to the Use of the Same.

Now that a police telephone has been installed in a police box at the corner of Martine and North avenues residents of the borough may obtain assistance by means of their residence or business telephones. A. B. Wilson, local manager of the telephone company, requests that residents follow this procedure:

"If assistance is required, call central and state that you live in the borough and require police or fire assistance. The operator will endeavor to connect you with the police marshal, and it is requested that you remain at your telephone until the latter answers his telephone unless this is impossible, as in case of a fire which might destroy the telephone connection. This is requested due to the fact that in an amergency a subscriber is liable to give any letter and when the operator obtains an answer from the police marshal, she might be unable to get the party back, due to the misunderstanding of party line letters. If you remain at your telephone, the operator will provide the necessary connection and the police marshal in time will answer the telephone. Then the constituent can give direct the advice needed by the marshal in the performance of his duties.

"The telephone number will not be listed nor given out to anyone, neither will a party desiring connection with the police marshal for the purpose of obtaining information be connected with him. For this reason, a subscriber should state to the operator that he requires police or fire assistance."

36.50 McDougall Kitchen Cabinets for $30.00

ON THE CLUB PLAN OR FOR CASH.

The manufacturers have made a slight change in their new disappearing front cabinet and have authorized us to sell what we have of them on hand at the above price reduction.

The Disappearing Front is so made that when open it goes down ating, disappears down under the bottom of the cupboard it closes. When closed, it is held in position by a strong, specially designed catch.

Its operation is aided largely by gravity and a slight push or lift is all that is needed to operate it. It has no weights or springs and works on a metal track at each end which minimizes the friction—very substantially made and will not stick or get out of order.

The Disappearing Front is so made that when opne it goes down slightly below the level of the cupboard bottom. Then any dirt, crumbs or flour that might get into the cupboard, can be wiped out so as not to fall down in the slit in which the curtain works—that is an important sanitary quality that it took us months to perfect.

There will probably never be a more complete or convenient cabinet made than this new Disappearing Front McDougall—so if you ever expect to own a cabinet, you'd better buy one of these now and start saving hard work—preserve your health and lengthen your life.

Don't get confused in the "Smoke of Battle" and get in the wrong trench!

STIRRING DISCOURSE ABOUT "THE GOSPEL"

"Boy Evangelist" Points a Large Audience to the Way of Salvation.

Charles Taylor preached a splendid sermon at the Park Avenue Baptist church last evening on "The Gospel." The boy said there were several heads to the sermon, all short, definite and to the point.

"First, what the gospel is not. Nearly everything in this world is adulterated. Your American coffee reminds one of brick dust, sugar recalls the sandpit, and the milk suggests the cow with the iron tail—the back-yard pump. One of the substitutes now-a-days for the gospel is social reform. Social reform is a good thing in itself but it never can take the place of the gospel. We are told that if we take a man out of his surroundings his heart will be touched and he will gradually become a Christian. What better surroundings could Adam have had—he walked in the Garden of Eden. Judas walked and talked with Jesus three years. Even the angels who lived in glory and sang the praises of God, sinned and were cast into hell.

"Second, another substitue for the gospel is religion, and there's a great difference between the two, otherwise we're no better off than the Hindoo or the Mohammedan: they have a religion, but without God in it. You don't know what life is until you have in your heart the old-time gospel which will so transform your heart and your face that people won't know you.

"Third, what the gospel is. It's good news, or I wouldn't be here. It's the news of a Savior who left heaven and his Father's love, and the company of angels, who came to a sin stricken world to die for you and me—all because He loved us. Won't you take this old-fashioned gospel, this good news, this wonderful love into your heart?

"Fourth, what will the gospel do? I believe in preaching in such a way that the business man can tell at a glance what it's all about, and here it is: The gospel will place you in God's family, make you one of his children. It will give you victory over sin as nothing on earth can; no matter what your be-settings in may be. The gospel will take away the fear of death, for death is only bringing your nearer the Savior face to face."

This was one of the most convincing sermons the boy has preached, and made a marked impression upon the audience. This evening he will preach his last sermon, and many will undoubtedly wish to avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him. Perhaps one of the greatest results of his evangelistic work has been the reconsecration of church members. Tomorrow evening he will give his lecture embodying the story of his life. This will be of special interest, particularly to all who have listened to the preaching of this gifted boy.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR THE HOSPITAL DANCE

Arrangements are nearing completion for the first of the series of subscription dances which will be given in the Plainfield High School Auditorium this winter for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. The initial function will be held on Friday night, November 19, and indications point to its being a gala affair. The committee has secured Frantzen's orchestra from Sherry's in New York city to furnish the dance music. Admission tickets can be purchased at the door on the night of the dance or from any member of the committee.

Persons unable to attend the dance may contribute toward the subscription by sending in their donation to the treasurer, Mrs. Harold S. Brown, 967 Madison avenue. Anyone wishing to donate the use of their palms for decoration in the auditorium is requested to notify the committee. In order to gain as much as possible the committee is cutting down the expenses to a minimum. The chairman has appointed a large floor committee and every attendant is assured of a good time.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

After the gymnasium class Saturday morning there will be an entertainment for school boys under the age of twelve years. Alan S. Williams, of New York, will give a talk on snakes, accompanied by moving pictures. He will also have a number of specimens with him.

The employed boys and High School Bible class will be held tomorrow night, preceded by a supper at 6:15. The class session will commence at 6:45.

The Boys' Club will also meet tomorrow night from 7 to 8.

RED MEN OPEN BIG CAMPAIGN

Will Endeavor to Secure Many Members During Next Year.

As previously announced, members of the Improved Order of Red Men in New Jersey and throughout the country will commence on November 8 a campaign for greater activity in Red Men's circles. In New Jersey there will be a "come back" week to induce former members, who had been dropped for non-payment of dues, to rejoin the order. This campaign will cover one week, and all of the 200 tribes in the State will participate. Officers of the Great Council of the United States have personally urged each tribe and every member throughout the United States to put forth special efforts to reinstate former members and it is thought that in this way the membership throughout the United States will be increased by 75,000.

As an inducement for members to induce palefaces to join the order in this State the Great Council of New Jersey has offered the following prizes:

First prize to the member proposing the greatest number of new members over twenty-five, a gold watch.

A gold watch will also be given to the member securing the next greatest number over twenty. The member receiving the third greatest number over fifteen will also receive a gold watch, while the fourth prize will be a gold emblematic ring for the greatest number of adopted members over ten.

All members securing three adoptions will receive a beautiful lapel button.

A plan is also on foot to have each tribe in New Jersey subscribe for one share in a building and loan association for the benefit of the orphans of deceased members of the order. By this means in eleven years the surplus for the orphans' fund will be $39,600, which will put this fund on a sound financial basis.

MISSIONARY ALLIANCE.

The service at the Christian and Missionary Alliance in the German Reformed church at Duer street and Craig place will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and at 7:30 in the evening. The study of the advanced International Sunday school lesson is held every Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. Mrs. Albert Jeamby, of Cranford, will have charge of the service tomorrow night.

A FIGHTING MAN.

At last Washington has put a fighting man in charge of troops on the Mexican border. After innumerable outrages by Villa and Carranza troops along the Rio Grande, not to mention the numerous raids by Mexican bandits into this country, all of which have resulted in the killing of a number of American citizens and soldiers, Gen. Funston has been detailed to protect U. S. lives and property and as is characteristic of the man he wants to fight. Gen. Funston was a soldier in the glorious days when the United States resented an insult or injury to one of its citizens in any land, and he still holds that standard of national honor dear. He has asked Washington for authority to take his troops into Mexican territory and drive back the armies of warring factions who have been and are still firing across the river. He should be allowed to act at once. Not even Bryan, were he still a member of the cabinet, could hold back because of fear of international troubles. Villa has an army of about 10,000 men, and is an outlaw in his own country. Carranza has been recognized by this government but he admits his inability to preserve order in the northern counties of his country and his own army is about to be annihilated by the revolutionists. He would appreciate action from the United States, and even though he were to object his complaint would not be a serious one. Funston is the right man in the right place and he has the right idea. A fighter has been needed on the Mexican border for some time and Funston is a fighting man.

WIDE CITY STREETS.

Instead of widening city streets in the heart of the business section the tendency seems to be to narrow them. A permit has been issued to a property owner on Somerset street just off Front to extend his store some seven feet toward the curbing. A short time ago there was a movement to have Somerset street widened at this point but instead the city fathers are permitting property owners to use up a part of the small space that is left. This policy will not reflect credit on the administration in later years. The man who originally laid out Broad street in Newark was probably cursed in his day but now the people call him blessed. The authorities should be alive to the fact that Plainfield is growing, that it is getting bigger and better every day and that the Plainfield of the future will need more street space in which to move and haul its loads of commercial goods. If we cannot widen our downtown streets we should at least prevent their being made narrower.

The liquor interests which threatened to "punish" Assemblymen Runyon, Pierson and Morgan by defeating them for re-election in Union county are now able to realize their strength. The three gentlemen were rewarded for their courage in supporting a local option measure against orders from liquor bosses when they appealed to the people. The people make mistakes, but they seldom fail to recognize loyalty and merit in a public servant.

"If I had lived two centuries ago and advocated what I do now I would have been hung"—William Jennings Bryan.

"Backward! Turn backward! O time!"

Vincent Astor says the condition of the laboring people has greatly improved during the last few generations.

Yes, they have learned to dodge 'em.

A group of ice-houses went up in flames recenty and, according to a newspaper report, "twelve hundred tons of ice were reduced to ashes."

AWAIT PRESIDENT'S SPEECH ON DEFENSE

His Words Expected to Resound to All Quarters of the Globe.

New York, Nov. 4.—When President Wilson lays before the American people his summary of international conditions on which he bases his new program of national defense, his words will resound tonight to all quarters of the globe. The eyes of all nations are upon the great Republic of the North American continent. A new policy of this great Republic is being written. It will resound as a warning word to nations great and small; not as the clanking of the sword of the conqueror nor as the threat of power, but as the decision of the greatest world power now at peace that that great era of trust and faith between nations and people has not yet arrived in the development of civilization.

President Wilson will lay before the world tonight the whole case on which the administration bases its belief that many millions should be spent at once for the defense of the nation against invaders. He will ask that the American public manifest their support in such unmistakable fashion that Congress will heed their wishes without undue delay or controversy at the coming session.

The President has builded his case on the best advice that surrounds him. He has been aided by the best minds in the army and navy and the most intimate study of world conditions as ascertained by American diplomats abroad. For over a year political leaders and frightened capitalistic interests have been urging greater preparation. The administration frowned upon this purely personal propaganda, and took up the question of national defense only when the very safety of the nation was threatened by the wholesale disregard of treaties in a war-mad world. Founded on world conditions as they really exist, and not on personal opinion, the program of the administration was formulated, and adequate provision was made to take care of enemies within as well as without the country.

The outline of the additional expenditures planned by the administration has already been given out at Washington. $1,746,000,000 will be spent for defense in the next five years if the plans are approved by Congress. This sum may be modified to a considerable extent. The normal expenditures would be a round billion, and the added measures advocated by President Wilson would reach three-quarters of another billion.

BOONTON HONORS ED. HOBBIE.

Edward Hobbie, son of William F. Hobbie, of Watchung avenue, and a former well-known Plainfielder, was elected to the Boonton Common Council, Tuesday by a flattering vote of the Republicans. He ran second on the ticket and only thirty-two ballots behind the leader. Mr. Hobbie has resided in Boonton only two years but has made hosts of friends during his short stay, as has also his wife, who was formerly Miss Sophie Barlow, of the borough. Mr. Hobbie is connected with the Mississippi Glass Company in New York.

The B. L. B. Again

How did that busy little bee
Improve one shining hour
And slam his stinger into me
With all of that horse-power?

What is the secret of his strength
That I somehow might borrow?
He's scarce three-quarters-inch in length,
I'm now six feet of sorrow.

If hanging 'round the clover tops
And turning juice to honey
Enables him to make such pops,
His job is sure worth money!

A Letter From The Czar

Inatrenchovitch, October 21—Dear Offagin—I am in mourning. I recently had an ultimatum to expire on my hands. I sent it to Bulgaria, and while there it died. Apparently its death was caused by neglect. Nobody paid any attention to it. It just pined away and died of homesickness. Did you ever have an ultimatum that you had raised from a pup, until you had grown attached to it, go away among total strangers and expire? It was one of the finest little ultimatums I ever had about the place. But it has taught me something—this tragedy. I'll never have another one around me. One becomes attached to little things like that, and then they up and croak.

Yours dejectedly,
Nick Romanoff.

Some Testimonial

The Bunk Bros. Ironclad Blow-Out Sleeve Co.

Gentlemen—I had a bad blow-out in one of my tires. Over the resultant hole I placed one of your ironclad blow-out sleeves. This made that part of the tire so strong that there were blow-outs all along the rest of the tire, within twenty miles afterwards.

Enthusiastically yours,
Stunge Wright.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Face Powder

THE modern use of face powder, as we have ventured to affirm, is not only justifiable but advisable as a healthful habit, when it is necessary or when a woman thinks it is necessary. Decked out in the latest style of pigment milady feels happier, looks like she feels, and, from obvious psychological influence, really is a healthier person for the time being.

However, there are some dangers she must avoid. In the first place, she must beware of those paints and other accessories of the toilet which contain lead, wood alcohol, mercury, and similar harmful ingredients. In the second place she must be careful how she powders, lest she suffer conjunctivitis.

Conjunctivitis is medical highbrow language for sore eyes—inflamed lining of the eyelids.

The particular kind of conjunctivitis caused by face powder is characterized by blurring of vision, inability to use the eyes for near work, and frequent seizures of intense itching of the lids. If the eyes are rubbed to relieve the itching the lids are liable to become swollen. There is a sticky, stringy secretion of mucus from the lids.

The fine powder applied with a powder puff gets into the eyes, especially rice powder. The rice powder produces a sort of mucilage when moistened with the tears, the woody rice cells swell, and their angular corners cause irritation of the delicate lining of the lids. Rubbing obviously aggravates the condition by adding insult to injury.

The trouble is quickly relieved by flushing the eyes with normal salt solution (teaspoonful table salt dissolved in a pint of boiled, still warm water). Allow the solution to run over eyeballs and in the sac of the lids quite freely, to wash away the irritating matter. Then smear the edges of the eyelids with equal parts of vaseline and lanolin, sterilized and put up in a collapsible tube. Work a small quantity of the ointment into the eyes. It is harmless. Repeat the irrigation and the application of the ointment twice a day until relieved. But of course the powder puff must be tossed into the scrap basket and a little more homeopathic powdering indulged in for a while. A little too little powder generally looks nicer than a little too much anyway.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tying Off Varicose Veins

Is it possible for a doctor to tie off varicose veins in the leg without cutting?

Answer—Yes. A needle threaded with the proper ligature is passed through the skin, under the vein and out at the other side, the ligature then being tied over gauze. This is a bloodless operation and can be done under local anesthesia.

Annoying Dandruff

Will you please send me instructions for the relief of an annoying case of dandruff? asks A. F. F.

Answer—Gladly, if you will comply with our requirements. They are a stamped, addressed envelope.

Abdominal Breathing For Periodic Pains

Some time ago you described a breathing exercise which was recommended to relieve painful functional trouble in women. Can you repeat the instructions?

Answer—Write for personal reply if you want it. Or watch for Talk entitled "A Woman's Doctor's Contribution" to appear within a few days.

Dr. Brady will answer all questions pertaining to Health. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. THE GENTLE AUTUMN

THE gentle autumn takes place about half way between the sunstroke and the chilblain, and lasts until just before the coal man buys his new automobile. It is that period of the year when the mercury goes steadily down hill and prepares to crawl into its bulb and hibernate.

The gentle autumn would be a great relief from summer, if it were not for autumn itself. Mankind is too busy working in the autumn to enjoy it properly. Autumn is the time of the year when the last winter's overcoat must be dug out of the attic, and the vines and flowers must be put to bed, and the modest geraniums must be rooted up and lugged down cellar. The furnace also begins to obtrude during the autumn. It is not as voracious as it is later on, but it must be nourished on kindling and coal almost every morning, and as the worried householder realizes that he now has another mouth to feed, he sometimes wishes that autumn had never been invented.

Autumn is very beautiful in spots, but poets do not sing about it as much as they do about spring. This is because about September most poets stop writing and begin to hunt real jobs. The universal opinion of those who do not write is that autumn is a sad and melancholy time when nature's beauties slowly die and heaven weeps large cold tears over the last baseball games.

This is quite largely true. The death of the leaves is a particularly distressing thing, and will continue to be until Mr. Burbank invents a brand of leaf which will not die on the lawn or in the eave spouts.

Autumn is the time of the year when we make the saddening discovery that large families of moths have been guarding against race suicide in our last winter's clothes. Housecleaning also rages in the autumn, and great numbers of political boomlets fall into the long sleep that has no waking. Nothing is sadder than to see a plucky little boomlet, which has struggled all summer in an adverse climate, only to die under a snowdrift in the shank of the autumn—except to see the candidate

Autumn is the time of the year when the last winter's overcoat must be dug out of the attic who has hoped to sit at ease under its shade, but who is now hunting for a job which he does not want and hopes he will not find, but which he has to have.

Autumn is the advance agent of winter, and frequently gets behind the show. It is full of days which are too cold for comfort, but not cold enough to permit the burning of $6 coal with anything like pleasure. The American autumn is like the English summer—only comfortable in spots. But the English summer is the only English season which is comfortable at all. This explains why the United States has gained 95,000,000 people from England and vicinity in the last 100 years.

Views Of The Press

War, The Doctor

A REPORT comes from London that as one result of the war there has been a great decrease in the number of persons suffering with imaginary ailments who fancy they are in need of medical advice and treatment. The offices of fashionable physicians who up to a year ago had been receiving large fees from wealthy neurotics and hypochrondriacs have become comparatively deserted, and they report that their practice has fallen off to an alarming extent since the war began.

Thus we are directed to view war in a new aspect, as a beneficent physician. The "treatment" it furnishes in this way is direct, even if purely psychological and without the patients being conscious of the benefits they are deriving. That the ailments thus cured were largely imaginary does not essentially alter the character of the phenomenon. Most ailments are imaginary, to the extent that they are aggravated if not originally induced by nervous weakness and the chance to concentrate the mind on symptoms, though the suffering is none the less real.

The most important factor in effecting a cure is the diverting of the attention to another channel. It is the common experience that a pain or disorder in any part of the body is quite likely to disappear with the development of another trouble that is more painful or serious. An added stress or strain in one's environment, or an accumulation of extra responsibilities is often enough to effect a complete cure in cases of nervous origin by exercising a diverting and stimulating influence. The patient is "taken out of himself," as the saying is, and is forced to forget his trouble, unless it is actually something that is vital.

It is a wholesale condition of this sort that has been affecting England, and indeed all the belligerent countries. Minor personal troubles have evaporated to a remarkable extent in the face of the national emergency. In this respect, and undoubtedly in many thousands of cases, the war has been acting as a vigorous tonic. Minor maladies and trivial troubles have disappeared in the tidal wave of general trouble that has been afflicting Europe. It is one item that is worth pondering in any attempt to discover and catalogue the direct benefits of a conflict that is crowded with miseries and horrors.

Best New Books

BY CATHERINE COOK

HARDING OF ALLENWOOD, by Harold Bindloss. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York. $1.30 net.

How an American farmer won a fortune and a bride against heavy odds is here told with an appreciation of the zest of life that comes to the man whose courage is high, whose strength is equal to his task and whose lady love is beautiful but not too kind, yet altogether adorable—all this and more make "Harding of Allenwood" a novel worth reading.

It is a rousing story of how a young American from Dakota not only overcomes the prejudices of an English country gentleman but saves that gentleman's land from being seized by loan sharks, reforms his son, who is something of a rake, marries his daughter, and all because the American knows the value of a steam plow on the prairies of Saskatchewan.

THE AMERICAN COUNTRY GIRL, by Martha Foote Crow. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York. $1.50 net.

Making country life attractive to girls is the latest popular movement begun by the Department of Agriculture at Washington. It is encouraged by State and County school superintendents, who realize the importance of keeping young people on the farm.

In October, 1914, Congress voted a special appropriation of $10,000 a year to be given to each state, this sum to be expended in organizing clubs among women to create a community spirit to study ways of earning money by sale of farm products. In fact, Uncle Sam has decided to educate his country nieces and nephews.

Over 250,000 boys and girls belong to organized canning clubs. The United Farm Women is an important organization that bids fair to become an important political factor in these United States. One of the objects of this organization is to build good roads and The Lincoln Highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific is one step already accomplished.

The author, Martha Foote Crow, is well known throughout the West. Formerly Dean of Women at the Northwestern University and a member of the Wellesley and University of Chicago faculties, her teaching experiences in many states, in East and West, have brought her into close contact with country girls, many of whom are college girls who have made successful claims in government land.

Farms are no longer isolated. Telephones, automobiles and good roads are making community spirit and splendid co-operation is received from the government agricultural stations. All this and more is to be found in this attractively illustrated book.

THE LITTLE SHEPHERD OF BARGAIN ROW, by Howard McKent Barnes. Reilly & Britton Company, Chicago. $1.25 net.

Business life has its own special brand of romance. Cupid as a busy little floor-walker in a department store has just as good an aim for the hearts on the inside of a bargain counter as he has for those outside.

Now and then he shoots an arrow that flies away into the general manager's office. Then real trouble begins.

A play having the same title as the above is being successfully presented by Sarah Padden, to whom the novel is dedicated. The illustrations are from photographs of scenes from the play.

ECONOMIC ASPECTS OF THE WAR, by Professor Edwin J. Clapp. Yale University Press, New York. $1.50 net.

Neutral rights, belligerent claims, and American commerce in the years 1914-1915 are here viewed in the light of history. Many startling facts are supplied by the author, who has delved into diplomatic correspondence in Washington, bringing out information that is very disquieting.

Americans who believe that Europe's extremity is America's opportunity will find many unpleasant surprises in this carefully written volume. The author is Professor of Economics in New York University. The publishers are the Yale University Press.

If American scholarship is to be relied upon for the truth and soundness of the facts and conclusions in this book, then the United States will do well to turn its best attention and energies to the safeguarding of its domestic affairs.

THE TREASURE OF HIDDEN VALLEY, by Willis George Emerson. Forbes & Co., Chicago. $1.25.

The horrors of the San Francisco earthquake and fire in April, 1906, is the climax of this very real story about real people. A New York man goes west to search for a lost mine. He finds trouble, and plenty of it.

The main theme in the story deals with politics and labor troubles among the western miners. The love story lightens an otherwise dark picture of social injustice.

Snap Shots

By Jay E. House

Now that a good many other superstitions are being exploded, it may be safe to say that country women do not cook as well as the town men who are employed for that purpose.

Professor Harvey Worrall, the statistician, says three per cent. of the laughter is due to amusement. The other 97 per cent. is the result of attempts to be polite.

At some period of her life every girl looks forward to the time when she will return to her home town at the head of her own theatrical company.

No matter how little a man leaves when he dies, it is more than he will need where he has gone.

A barber's idea of a cheap skate is a man who doesn't maintain an individual shaving mug.

The average woman uses language in her everyday conversation that would shock her if she heard it on the stage.

Any game that is played between December and March can work up a reputation as a sport.

Every man to his taste. Buck Kilby says he'd rather have a receipt for the rent than a reputation for generosity.

If you earnestly desire to provoke laughter and applause hit somebody with a slapstick.

The rule in a small town is that if you see a man carrying a bottle you must make a joke about it.

The Life Line

The Woman Who "Saves" Her Clothes

Who doesn't know her—the woman whose closet is stocked with up-to-date clothes, and yet who wears her last year's suit "to save the others"? "But why did you get them at all?" her friends argue with her. To which she blandly replies: "But one has to have clothes!" Yes, She has clothes. She's obeyed that dictum of convention—to the letter. But wearing them—that's another matter, and a matter which she should consider pretty seriously. Does she wish to win for herself the opinion that "She's not used to clothes"? For the world is quick to take one's own valuation; if we consider ourselves worthy of the best in life, others will consider us so. There are kings, and there are tramps. And a king would not expect the respect of his subjects if he were to go about looking like a tramp. Let the woman who wears her old, worn clothes, to "save" her good clothes, ask herself if her self-respect is of the king order or of the tramp order. She's shuffling along.

Make Kitchen Work Easy

This is the age of efficiency.

It is the age of time-saving and labor-saving devices.

Every invention that makes for economy of operation and betterment of output is given a place in the shop or factory.

Why not apply this principle to the home?

An All Gas Kitchen makes housework easier for the wife and mother.

It saves time and labor.

It makes for economy of operation and betterment of output because gas is the most economical kitchen fuel and cooking can be done more satisfactorily with gas than with any other character of range.

Hot water in any desired quantity is practically always available in an All Gas Kitchen. And hot water is needed in every home every day.

Equip your kitchen in the modern, sanitary, convenient, economical way. Let us tell you how it can be done.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Julia Osgood Considers Love Important As Well As Money.

"Money is the greatest power on earth, for it affects every phase of a man's life. To prove that you have but to deprive a man of it and watch him dwindle and change." John Sutner stabbed his pen into the paper viciously.

"You're morbid," remarked Julia Osgood without turning around.

"Am I? I should like to have you prove it to me. There is nothing that paralyzes a man like the inability to face the world squarely. Put a man in a financial pinch long enough and pinch him hard enough and you squeeze every bit of manliness out of him. Mortification, why the word means death; death to his soul, to all that is the best in him."

"Come, now, you are laying it on uncommon thick. What is to become of all our old notions about love being the motive power of the world?" asked Julia, smiling over her shoulder.

"I may be wrong, but I think I am safe in saying that it would be an unusual love that could stand the pinch of real poverty. Most women have no respect for a man who cannot make money. She resents the humiliation of going around in narrow skirts when wide skirts are the fashion. Her last year's hat is an accusation against her husband. Things get on her nerves, and show in her temper. There is no use talking, peace in the home is largely a matter of being well fed and well groomed."

"It is a good thing that I will not take your word against yourself. I should be sorry to believe you meant all this. If it has come to be a fact that women love a man only so long as he can clothe her in style, no wonder marriage is getting to be a failure." Julia looked reproachfully at her companion.

"All the same, it is pretty nearly true that 'Where poverty comes in at the door, love goes out of the window.' By poverty I mean poverty, not a decent competency," reiterated John.

"While I agree that money is a very convenient thing, and a certain amount of it is necessary——"

"That's my point; when you get below the dead line, below necessary expenses, then self-respect dies; the best of the man dies. I'd sell my soul for three hundred dollars," interupted John passionately.

A slight sound made him look up. Tyler was standing with his hand on the door as if about to enter. The door opened and he came in, but John had an uncomfortable feeling that he had been standing there listening to his heated remarks. He passed to Julia's desk, gave her some instructions about her work and left the room.

For a time both were silent. Julia was the first to speak.

"I wish you would not say such things as you have been saying this afternoon. In the first place you do not really believe them."

"Don't I?" interrupted John bitterly.

"And even if you did," went on Julia, "you had better not air your views so generally. No telling how long that gumshoe Tyler had been standing there, and you say he does not like you. Just now you cannot afford to run any chances of a false impression."

"You're right there," sighed John wearily, leaning his head on his hand. "It would be about my luck to have him report some of my elevated sentiments to the boss."

"Has that creditor you told me of garnisheed your wages?" asked Julia after a long silence.

"Yes, I received a letter saying the order had been sent, but Mr. Jaynes has said nothing about it to me. I suppose he is making the inquiries he proposed to find out whether I am worthy to be an exception to the rule that a garnishment means a loss of position. I am not very hopeful of the result." There was despair in the tone.

"Why?" asked the girl.

"I have not been here long enough to make friends, and I left so many creditors in Alpine that the drift of public opinion would be dead against me. You know what a black eye one business man talking to another could give a person. They all feel the same, that a man who cannot pay his way has no excuse for living."

"Well, hope for the best till the worst comes," said Julia encouragingly.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

"The Family Cupboard" is the title of the photo-play feature at Proctor's Theatre today, and that well-known actor, Holbrook Blinn, will be seen in the leading role. One of the coming features in addition to the Triangle films, and "The Birth of a Nation," will be the famous "Carmen," starring Theda Bara, which is said to rival in splendor and acting the other "Carmen," in which Geraldine Farrar appears.

Both of these features appeared in New York simultaneously October 31 and it is said that Theda Bara "Carmen" was superior to the Geraldine Farrar version. The vaudeville entertainment the last half of the week, in addition to the feature film, will include "The Darktown Revue," with ten singers and dancers and comedians, who will enliven things generally, and there will also be Archer & Belford in comedy supreme; Wolsey & Mehr, mirth makers, and other features too numerous to mention. A program of great variety. The Proctor shows are creating a stir in amusement circles and if the present high standard is maintained the big business is bound to continue. Today matinee this Saturday will give the "kiddies" an opportunity to get presents as usual.

"Of course, not! Why do you ask?"

"When I talk about God and want a Bible you and father say: 'Wait till you're older.' How old must I be, mother?"

Yes, mother, how old? Why do you give the children books of fairy tales before they can read with "Little Son from Mother" written on the fly leaf? Why do you not give the Bible? Then the red lips will say "My own Bible" reverently for there is a baby reverence for holy things. Why should you withhold His word from them for twelve or fourteen years Mother, it is for you to see that your child knows God and His teachings at an early age.

Canning Compounds.

Information has been given to the Department of Agriculture that the canning season has brought the usual demand on the part of housewives for salicylic acid and boric acid. These preparations are sometimes sold in the form of powder under various trade names and are recommended by the promoters for use in preserving canned goods in home canning. In the directions for use the housewife is told to fill the jar with the fruit or vegetables, cover with water and add a teaspoonful of the preserving powder, the use of which is prohibited by the Federal Food and Drugs Act because it is injurious to health.

TO MAKE BETTER CITIZENS.

Many Schools Are Helping Bureau of Naturalization In Campaign.

The campaign being conducted by the Bureau of Naturalization for better citizens of the United States is making constant headway, according to a report just issued by the Department of Labor. Several schools throughout the country have signified their willingness to undertake the work of instructing candidates for citizenship, and several of them have opened special night classes for this work.

The Labor Department in its report says that among the 14,000,000 foreign born residents in the United States in 1910, 1,650,361 foreign born whites were classed as illiterate. The report states that a number of these foreigners have been admitted to citizenship despite their unfitness, because the courts have been reluctant to refuse citizenship where proper educational facilities have not been provided.

"In many places," says the Labor Department's report, "the public schools have, under the inspiration of the Bureau of Naturalization, now opened their doors to the foreigner so that he may be instructed in the duties of American citizenship, and in these localities the courts have readily responded to the new order of things and refused citizenship unless the candidate could come up to the higher standard which has been brought about by the Federal supervision. This system the bureau has tried out for years and with success in various localities, and there is now scarcely a State in the whole country that does not have citizenship classes carried on either by the public schools or under the direction of private agencies."

One of the latest volunteers in this work, according to the Bureau of Naturalization, is the superintendent of the public schools of Huntington, N. Y. The night schools of Huntington will open November 1, and sessions will also be held in two grammar schools. Instruction will be given in oral and written English, and in civics, and it is expected that there will be an enrollment of over 100 before the end of the year.

The Bureau of Naturalization, as it does in other districts, will from month to month furnish the superintendent with names and addresses of aliens residing within the jurisdiction of Huntington, who file petitions for naturalization or declarations of intentions of becoming citizens of the United States. This enables the school authorities to get in touch with such applicants and to give them valuable assistance in preparing for citizenship.

"It is confidently believed by those who have made an exhuastive study of existing conditions," the Labor Department says in conclusion, "that this great nation-wide educational movement will beyond question change that portion of the alien body which is now in a condition of helpless dependence and mere self-maintenance to a state of productive capacity."

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Bibbley Wah Skated on a Mudpuddle.

Her Chubby Legs All Stiff at the Knees.

"BIBBLEY Wah night!" cried the children.

"One beautiful fall day," daddy started, "when Jack Frost had just begun to seal up his little brooks and puddles and pools, Bibbley Wah's mamma decided to take her to visit a very rich old aunt who had a great deal of money. She was very fond of her little grandniece, and everybody knew that some day Bibbley Wah would be a poor little rich girl. So her mamma wanted her to look very nice and please the old lady. A child never got such a scrubbing and haircombing and toothbrushing as did Bibbley Wah, and at last, when she was all dressed in a clean white gown with a blue ribbon on her Dutch cut, her mother tucked her into a very pretty brown velvet coat, all new for the visit.

"'Now, my dear,' said her mother, 'run out and play on the porch till I dress and come for you. Then we'll go on the choo-choo.'

"So Bibbley Wah went outdoors, and the first thing she saw was a beautiful glistening film of ice over a little puddle that the last night's rain had made in the gutter in front of her home. 'What nice ice to skate on!' she said, remembering how Bobbie had taught her to slide on ice last winter. She walked back several feet, watched the beautiful new ice and ran with all her might to slide across it, her chubby little legs all stiff at the knees. Splash! she went right into the deepest part of the mud puddle, for the pretty ice that had deceived her was only a thin skim."

"She spoiled her new coat!" cried Evelyn.

"She picked herself up, and all down the front of her new velvet coat dripped little streams of brown mud, the beautiful pearl buckle was hanging by one thread, and her little white kid gloves were as brown as her coat. Weeping bitterly, she ran into the house to show her mamma what the naughty ice had done to her."

"What did her mamma do?" Jack wondered.

"She just sat down and cried. Then she undressed Bibbley Wah, put all her soiled clothes in a tub of cold water, and the beautiful new brown velvet coat with mud ground into it she hung in the sunshine till the air dried it into a coat—well, good enough to play in. Then she telegraphed the great aunt, who had a wonderful dinner and day all planned for them, that they had unfortunately missed their train and would visit her a week from that day—in time to make Bibbley Wah another velvet coat."

"That makes two coats Bibbley Wah ruined," said Jack.

"I much fear Bibbley Wah was very hard on all her clothes. She liked having fun so much better," daddy explained.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The new bill which opens at the Plainfield Theatre today offers as the headline feature a big musical revue act similar to the "Revue of 1915" which was presented at the playhouse several weeks ago. It is entitled "College Days," and it is by the same author who wrote the "Revue." The Woods Amusement Company is responsible for its production and is one of a half dozen successful musical comedies which it has on the road.

"College Days" has a cast of twenty-five people, eigateen of whom are girls, the principals are all well known performers and capable of presenting clever comedy and well rendered songs. The act is beautifully costumed throughout, and should prove one of the best things of the kind yet booked at the Second street playhouse.

Additional vaudeville acts will be on the bill for the last half of the week and the second of the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" pictures will be presented this afternoon and tonight. The first was given last week and made a distinct hit. Another "Country Store" has been arranged for tomorrow night when many valuable prizes will be awarded to the patrons. Remember that the purchase of an ordinary ticket may bring you a present worth many dollars. Everybody has a chance as there is absolutely no partiality shown in the awards. The bills for Friday and Saturday will be lengthened out with special photoplay features secured from the leading agencies in the country, thus assuring Plainfielders of getting the biggest value for their money when they patronize the Plainfield Theatre.

Completely distinct from the old English productions of "The Bohemian Girl," familiar to three generations of American operagoers, the coming attraction at the Plainfield Theatre matinee and night, Wednesday, November 10, presents the great Paris version, revised and rescored by Balfe for the gala fetes of the French Second Empire, winning for that brilliant Irish composer the decoration of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor from Napoleon III. This production presents a full grand opera complement of soloists, chorus, corps de ballet, engaging upwards of one hundred people. The five great stage pictures promise to display one of the most massive and elaborate scenic environments ever presented on our local stage, and all resources of modern stagecraft is said to have been brought to bear on the incidental details of the presentation. An added feature will be the special orchestra. The cast has as its more important members Edith Allan, Henry Taylor, Mildred Rogers, Francis Tyler and Ralph Nicholls.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

At last Jess Willard will come out from under the willows and show some of the stuff that made him a champion that day down in the hot sand beds of Cuba. He has ended his contract with the wild west show and announces that he has accepted terms of New Orleans fight promoters for a fight to take place soon after December 10. The engagement is purely a mercenary one and Willard is not in the least danger, for he will meet a third rater yet to be selected through elimination fights. The promoters hope to make his guarantee for the big fight by using his name to advertise the elimination bouts. Even under such arrangements it is good to see the heavyweight champion in action. A champion nowadays puts his crown in a glass case and charges for a peep. Perhaps some day a real fighter will get to the top before the inclination to fight has been battered from him.

While not classed as one of the "big games" the battle between Pittsburg and Washington and Jefferson Saturday of this week will bring together two of the fastest teams in eastern football. Coach Glenn Warner has an organization in the smoky city that is yet unbeaten and the W. and J. aggregation still marks up nothing in figuring scores made by its opponents, notwithstanding that it has played Yale already this year. The two teams are evenly matched and both play the open, fast game. Warner may be expected to uncork some entirely new plays and the Washington and Jefferson aggregation will give Glenn's boys the hardest fight of the season. It will be a contest worth watching.

Cries of help from Yale have brought Tom Shelvin back. Everytime Old Eli tries a coaching system that results in a weak team in the middle of the season a hurry up call is sent for Shelvin and the famous end packs his grip and drops in from New York. He was called in a few years ago when conditions were much the same as now and he so rejuvenated a mediocre squad that it went into the "big games" good enough to make a creditable showing. As proof that Yale is desperate the entire Hinkey system was shelved the day Shelvin shoved his burly shoulders into a sweater and walked onto the field and if Yale is not defeated disgracefully in all of her big games this year the credit will be his. The name of Shelvin should be given a prominent niche in Yale's hall of fame.

When the Federal leaguers get together for their annual meeting, today, big steps will be taken towards peace. Propositions, while not official, yet of the "gentlemen's agreement" kind, will be considered from organized baseball magnates. Even Ban Johnson, he of the big noise stuff, has acceded to the plan to get the baseball war to a quick end. Johnson's circuit has not been hit as hard as the National; but the big fellow realizes that the blow might come at any time. There is one thing Johnson insists on, however, if there are any peace conferences, that being the banishment of Jim Gilmore. In the recent peace confab at Philadelphia Johnson would not go into the room where the other magnates were until Jim Gilmore had made his exit. The National League, too, is against Gilmore, personally. Jim draws down a salary said to be $15,000 and expenses. Pretty soft stuff for a fellow to head a baseball league, when he does not know anything about baseball, or enough to qualify him to handle the league, at least. Jim will look a long way to get another job as soft, if he is ousted from the Feds. That is one reason why Gilmore is not for peace; it means his job.

ONE P. H. S. REGULAR OUT OF GAME FOR SEASON

Report cards came out at the Plainfield High School yesterday and found but one regular on the football squad below grade. Somloch, who has been a tower of strength on the right side of the line, was the one affected.

His loss will, however, be partly offset by Berrien, a regular for two years, who has announced his intention of coming out to fill the hole. He is a senior this year and studies have prevented him from playing until now. Starting with this afternoon Coach Patch will put the fellows through their paces, making ready for the game with South Side at Newark, Saturday.

GIRLS UNDECIDED AS TO THEIR FIRST GAME

The two managers of the P. H. S. and N. P. H. S. girls' basketball teams have gotten together and as a result the first two games for the city championship will be played on January 7 and 14, and if the third game is necessary it will be staged on a neutral court. Whereabouts the first game will be played is still in doubt as the girls from over the brook want it to be played in the City High School gymnasium and Irma Goode, the Red and Blue captain, has not yet consented to it.

Borough Team Gets Early Lead on Opponents in Practice Game.

The North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team defeated the P. E. G. S. combine in a hard fought practice game last night in the Plainfield High School gymnasium by a score of 17 to 6. The borough team held the upper hand from the first chirp of the whistle while the local team was decidedly lacking in team work and shooting. At the close of the first half the North Plainfielders held the better end of a score of 12 to 4. The second half, although more closely guarded, netted the N. P. H. S. aggregation five points, while the city five were held to two foul goals. Frequent fouls were called on both quintets. Miss Spencer was the scoring factor for the visitors, the diminutive forward netting five pretty field goals.

RECORD PRICES FOR HARVARD-YALE TICKETS

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—The final flood of applications for tickets to the Harvard-Yale football game to be played at the Stadium on November 20 came in today, and the supply will not cover over one-sixth the applications. Prices for tickets bought from speculators this year will make new records. Only those who carry million dollar bank accounts or who are Harvard or Yale students or grads will be able to edge their way into the Stadium. Accommodations will be at the highest figure known and several hundred dollars a seat may be paid. The big Stadium cannot hold all the Harvard and Yale men and their friends on the day of the game. Theoretically, it is impossible for anybody but Harvard and Yale men and newspaper men to see the game, for the 44,000 seats are divided equally between the two universities and the students and alumni of each demand more than the supply. But the lure of lucre opens the game up to speculators to a certain extent, and if one cares not for a mere hundred or two, he can get inside and see the game.

The distribution of tickets will begin tomorrow. Those who asked for one seat will be accommodated first and then the two-seat applicants will get their pasteboards so long as they last.

CARTERET MOVES UP GAME.

The Carteret Academy first team plays the Morristown School football team on the grounds of the latter, Whippany road, Morristown, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The reason for playing on Friday this week instead of as usual on Saturday, is owing to the fact that the Harvard-Princeton game coming this Saturday at Princeton will draw there not only football enthusiasts from all over New Jersey, but most members of the school teams as well.

BOROUGH TEAM WINS FIRST GAME

Recreation A. C. Basketball Five is Defeated in Fast Contest.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team was triumphant in its first game of the season, defeating the Recreation A. C. last evening in the P. H. S. gymnasium by the score of 39-24. Although rough, the game was intensely interesting, the winners by a spurt in the latter part of the half totaling a number of points which gave them a commanding lead when the conflict terminated.

This was the first engagement for both sides, and each contingent has the nucleus from which a strong team can be built. The borough boys were more accurate in their shooting and took advantage of the opportunities when they were presented.

After being seven points in the rear when the first half was concluded, the score standing 20-13, the Recreation combine commenced the last period with a rush, and a basket and five fouls soon tied the score. The deadlock only lasted a few minutes, the boroughites going on a scoring rampage and totaled sixteen points in the last ten minutes of play to their opponents' four.

The playing of the High School guards, Kirch and Dilts, was very creditable, both displaying remarkable defensive abilities while both players were factors in the scoring department. Van Mater, in the pivot position, was a big asset to his teammates, outjumping his taller opponent most of the time. Captain Conroy commenced the season with a sextet of pretty field goals.

Alleger and Ricketts upheld the scoring end for the city team, the former dropping three two-pointers while the latter shot a basket and seven fouls.

PITTSBURG TO PLAY UNBEATEN W. & J.

One of the most important football battles to be played Saturday will be between the University of Pittsburgh, Glenn Warner's powerful eleven, which has not met with defeat this season, and the Washington and Jefferson team, coached by Bob Folwell, which also is undefeated, and has to its credit a victory over Yale. The game will be played at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh, and it is believed that the attendance of last year, which was 25,000, will be exceeded this season. It is contended by many that Folwell has developed the forward passing more than any other coach, his teams of the last two years showing particular finish in this style of play. Glenn Warner, on the other hand, has the reputation of bringing the unusual plays into football, this being noticeably true when he was coach at Carlisle. The Pittsburgh team this year is conceded by many football men to be one of the most powerful in the country. When the eleven faces Washington and Jefferson it will have all of its star men in the line-up, with the exception of Miller, at halfback, who was injured in the game with Carlisle, and may be out for the rest of the season.

MRS. H. R. STOCKTON WINS GOLF PRIZE

Turns in Low Gross Score in Tournament at Essex Club.

The women's invitation golf tournament at the Essex County Country Club yesterday, with ninety entries, marked the close of the tournament season in the metropolitan district. Mrs. E. Klipstein, a high handicap player from the Essex County Country Club, made good use of her familiarity with the course, and took first net prize with a card of 109, 25-84.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, of Plainfield, won the low gross prize, going out in 47, and coming in with 43, for a total of 90. Her score would have been lower except for a few missed short putts, but the putting of all the players was poor yesterday. Mrs. C. J. Fraser, of Baltusrol, started out well, but all her approach shots went over the greens and into the pits, sending her gross score up to 94. Six women reached the eleventh hole in 3. This is a par 4 hole, and the mystery was explained by the fact that the hole is undergoing repairs, and the distance was shortened by a hundred yards. Mrs. J. C. Barclay, however, got a real "birdie" on the fourth hole with a fair drive, a long approach dead to the pin, and an accurate putt for a 3, one under par.

PENN CAPTAIN IS DROPPED FROM TEAM

Four Other Players On First String Also Out of Squad.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 4.—The football situation at the University of Pennsylvania reached a crisis yesterday, when Captain Ned Harris was dropped from the first team, three other players, Welsh, Grant and Stack, were declared ineligible by the faculty, and Howard Berry quit the team and moved his belongings from the training house.

In addition to this, "Fy" Dickson, field coach, and Dr. "Buck" Wharton, line coach, took entire charge of the team for the Dartmouth game, and it is rumored that they will continue in charge until the close of the season. Dr. Williams will officiate in the Princeton-Harvard game next Saturday, and Dr. Terry has found it impossible to make the trip to Boston. This action is said to have been the cause of the move taken by Dickson and Wharton.

Provost Smith also took it upon himself to rebuke the students for their failure to support the team.

NO MORE 500 MILE AUTO RACES TO BE SEEN

Sheepshead Bay speedway has been closed until summer. Manager Everard Thompson, when seen after the automobile race on Election Day, said:

"I am convinced that the public wants shorter races. I believe that the day of the 500-mile race or even the 350 is over. While the 100-mile event of this afternoon was one of the most wonderful races I ever saw, it was quite evident that more enthusiasm was aroused by the match race between DePalma and Burman than by the 100-mile event. Of course, we want to give the public what it likes, and while I am not in a position right now to say what we will do in the future, the experience gained today will be useful to us in determining our future policy."

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

Every day, through campaigns of classified advertising, "slow-selling" property is sold.

The following advertisement, prepared by AMELIA BRIZZIE, of the North Plainfield High School, won the first prize of $10.00 in the advertising contest conducted by The Plainfield Trust Company.

The Habit of Saving

"Habit is a cable—we spin a thread of it every day until at last we cannot break it." How true this is of the saving habit. And the best part of it is—we don't WANT to break it.

Many a man has seen his way clear to grasp a fine business opportunity because of a few hundred dollars in ready money.

Start preparing for your opportunity NOW by opening a 4% Interest Account with The Plainfield Trust Company. Then you'll be ready when it comes.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE FALL

In making preparations for the Fall, have you arranged for an account with The State Trust Company? Persons who maintain their accounts in New York, do not realize how convenient and profitable a local bank account is.

3% interest is paid on checking accounts; out-of-town items are collected at par; checks may be drawn payable in New York; and last, but not least, our banking hours have been arranged to meet the convenience of the New York business man.

An interview will convince you of the desirability of transacting at least a portion of your business with this progressive institution.

FEET ARE A FEATURE

Pretty shoes are as necessary as pretty clothes; more so this Fall than ever before.

The doctors and fashion creators have made trailing skirts as unpopular as the funny papers did duelling. The trails were quite as foolish as the duel, as dangerous—and they have now become quite as unfashionable.

Hence the greater popularity of the Van Arsdale women's boots.

More in the public view than ever before!

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.—Adv.

Plainfield Branch of Needlework Guild of America Hold Annual Meeting.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Mrs. F. O. Herring Again Chosen Head of Local Organization—Founder of Guild Makes Interesting Address—Tea is Served.

Election of officers, reading of reports, an exhibition of 4,223 articles made during the year and a talk by the founder of the organization, occupied the attention of the members of the Plainfield branch of the Needlework Guild of America, who met in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday afternoon, for their twenty-fourth annual meeting. Mrs F. O. Herring, president of the local guild, presided. Mrs. Frederick Butler, chairman of the nominating committee, read the following nominations for officers, who were re-elected: President, Mrs. Frank Otis Herring; vice-presidents, Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Miss Lucy Talmadge, Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. C. W. McCutchen; secretary and treasurer, Miss W. Grace Wilcox. Mrs. John B. Dumont is honorary president of the local branch.

Reports from the secretary and treasurer showed the organization to be in a flourishing condition, ten new directors being added to the guild during the past year, making a total of forty-nine. Letters of appeal for clothing were read from several charities of the city, which were ordered placed on the consignment list to receive garments, which are annually distributed among the poor of the city this week. Included in the splendid display were articles, especially designed for winter use; flannel and muslin underwear, shirts, sacks wrappers, nightshirts and gowns sheets, towels, stockings, bed shoes, knee-caps, jerseys, hoods, shawls, mittens and many others too numerous to mention.

Following the reports, Mrs. Herring warmly thanked the directors, as well as the associate members of the guild for their co-operation throughout the year. She gave a concise report of the annual meeting of the Needlework Guild of American, which was held in Philadelphia, on May 6, which she and the secretary, Miss Wilcox, attended. Two hundred and seventy presidents were present at the gathering, while delegates from the 398 branches throughout the United States were also present.

Much interest was evidenced in the talk of Mrs. John Wood Stewart, of Glen Ridge, founder of the guild in America, who told of the founding of a similar branch in Lyons, France. Arriving in Lyons in July, 1913, Mrs. Stewart, in company with several acquaintances, visited a Fresh Air Home for young women. There she found the first of four series of fifty girls each, most of them of the higher type of working girl. Asked by the president to talk to the young women aboutAmerica, Mrs. Stewart acquainted them of the fact that open air homes existed in America and soon started to tell them of the work of the Needlework Guild of America, of which many working girls were members. This initial interest was the nucleus of the Lyons Needlework Guild, and after visiting them on several occasions and inviting them to her home, she consented to take steps to form a permanent organization there.

"It was then decided that on every third Sunday of the month they should come to my house,' said Mrs. Stewart, and a committee was appointed to prepare garments between times which they could take home to make and return to me when finished. Ten or more became directors, and almost everyone became members. With the aid of several influential women of the city, as well as the Mayor, we called a meeting at the home of Mme. Paviot, daughter of a former President of the Swiss Republic. Representatives of all denominations were present, and from these officers were duly elected. In every detail, except in name and the men officers of the guild, the Needlework Guild of Lyons was modeled precisely as are the American branches.

"I left Lyons in July and passed over to the secretary the garments which the working girls brought to my house, explaining to the girls and all other directors that there would be a distribution, according to the rules of the guild, in autumn.

"Lyons has a population of six hundred thousand, of which fully one hundred thousand belong to the wage-earning class. I have been informed on good authority that not the men in all Lyons have an income over twenty thousand dollars. It is a city of enormous and many factories. Remember these facts.

"In early September refugees from Belgium began to arrive, and our Lyons Needlework Guild, with the

GIRL TELLS UNION OFFICIALS THEY LIED

Dramatic Testimony in Ritz-Kellogg Suit Over the Holly Farm.

Newark, Nov. 5.—The testimony of Karl Schaffer, official interpreter of the Union county courts and of John A. Galatian, chief detective of the prosecutor's office in Union, was flatly contradicted in Chancery Court here today by Miss Loretta Clark, stenographer for David W. Kellog, Jr., in the suit of Frederick Ritz, of Elizabeth, against David W. Kellog, Sr., of the New York bar, and others.

In Thursday's hearing the two men swore that they went to the office of the younger Kellog last spring for a talk on the Holly farm and that Mr. Kellog had told them the property belonged to his father and he (the son) did not have the right to sell it.

Miss Clark testified today that she was a witness to the entire conversation and that no such statement was made by Mr. Kellog. She said he told the men that the property was his, but that his father acted as attorney for him and they would have to see the father if they wanted to purchase the farm.

After the court had adjourned Miss Clark told Schaffer and Galatian that they had "lied."

Young Kellog took the stand this morning and testified that the property was owned by him and not his father, because he bought a judgment against the Holly heirs. He also contradicted the statements of the two Union county officials. They were later called to the stand again and retold their story, adding that Miss Clark was not in the room during their conversation with young Kellog.

Former Justice David testified that on one occasion the elder Kellog had told him, "John Kellog is my son. I own the judgments. If you want to buy the property you will have to do business with me."

The main issue in the suit relates to the ownership of a judgement for $5,712.67 obtained by David W. Kellog, Jr., of Glen Ridge, against the heirs of John B. Holly in January 1913.

The complainant is the owner by assignment of another judgment for $8,520.94, which the Chemical National Bank of New York obtained against the senior Kellog in April 1905. If he should succeed in establishing his contention, set out in a bill of complaint filed by him through John J. Stamler, of Elizabeth, that the first named judgment really belongs to the man against whom his own judgment runs, he would seek to satisfy it by going after the Holly farm in Piscataway township, near Plainfield, which was sold last January under a writ of execution to satisfy the judgment against the Holly heirs.

It was testified yesterday by Sheriff Edward F. Houghton, of Middlesex, that at the sale the farm was bought in by the junior Kellog for $98.34, which was the exact amount of the sheriff's fees and costs. Armstrong Mulford, a real estate dealer of Plainfield, testified that the farm which contained approximately twenty-three acres, was worth about $12,000.

MEN'S CLUB DINNER WILL BE AN INTERESTING EVENT

The Men's Club, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, will hold its first dinner of the season Tuesday evening, November 9, at 7 o'clock. Dr. William L. CHANCE TO SHARE IN FOREIGN TRADE

U. S. Department of Commerce Seeks Information From Local Manufacturers.

WILL COMPILE DATA

Chamber of Commerce Names Committees for the Purpose of Aiding Plainfield Industries to Increase Their Business.

That Plainfield manufacturers have a golden opportunity to share in the rapidly increasing foreign trade was shown last night at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce when the secretary read a communication from the United States Department of Commerce asking for data as to any hampering of ocean freight in foreign shipments, together with other information relating to what the local factories produce for foreign trade. Other communications were received from exporters and others asking for similar information were read. It was pointed out that the National City Bank of New York was making every effort to bring manufacturers in touch with buyers for the South American trade, while other commercial institutions in New York were seeking information about the manufacturing enterprises in this part of New Jersey.

It was pointed out that this was a part of a general movement by the heads of large financial and industrial institutions to place the manufacturing enterprises of the country in a position to grasp and to hold a larger share of the foreign trade than it has

BROOKLYN CALL FOR REV. H. L. MARTIN

Pastor of Temple Sholem Accepts Flattering Offer From Big Church.

Following a year of successful work in Temple Sholem, this city, the Rev. Dr. Herman L. Martin has tendered his resignation to the trustees of the church and has answered a call extended to him by the congregation of the Ninth Street Temple (Bne Sholoum), Brooklyn. Announcement of his acceptance of the Brooklyn call was received with keen regret by his friends here today and he will make an official declaration of his future plans from the pulpit of Temple Sholem during the services tonight.

Dr. Martin came here on December 1, 1914, after completing an eighteen-year term as pastor of the Eighty-sixth Street Temple in New York city and his pastorate in Plainfield has been an unusually progressive one. He has formed a host of acquaintances and by his personal efforts has added twenty-eight new members to the Temple Sholem roll during the one year. He is also given credit for the establishment of a Hebrew Sunday-school in connection with his church and this has been a foremost feature in his work here.

The Brooklyn church to which Dr. Martin will go on December 1 has a congregation twenty-four times the size of the one in this city and the edifice is one of the handsomest in the country. It is located in the beautiful Prospect Park section of the city, and among the attendants are many wealthy and influential Brooklynites.

Although he will assume active charge of the Brooklyn pastorate in December, Dr. Martin will continue to live in this city, his family now being located on West Sixth street. One of his daughters attends the Plainfield High School.

WORK IN FOREIGN AND HOME LANDS

State Y. M. C. A. Auxiliaries in Conference Hear Interesting Addresses.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Twenty-two Auxiliaries Have Membership of Over $3,000—Receipts Total $11,207.11 — Luncheon Closes Two Days' Session.

With a large number of delegates in attendance, and with an attractive program, this morning's session of the twenty-first annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries of the Young Men's Christian Associations of New Jersey began its two-day session here yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Arthur Rugh, national secretary, of Shanghai, China, in his talk on "Glimpses of Educational work in Foreign Lands," told of the great work which the Y. M. C. A. is doing in China, the attitude of the Celestial Government and how the people are anxious for an extension of the work. He said that ten years ago there were practically none of the higher classes in the association, but today there were upwards of 17,000 students and others who are members. He said that the Chinese were now anxious for an extension of the work, and were willing to furnish funds to support such institutions, but the great need was for workers.

Charles R. Scott, of Newark, State secretary for boys' work, gave an illustrated talk on his recent trip to the Pacific Coast, through Canada and return, showing the work for the boys in the Y. M. C. A. camps and homes.

The session was opened by a devotional service, led by Mrs. James W. Syers, of Elizabeth, while the "Quiet Moments," or closing of the session was in charge of Mrs. Riley A. Vose, of Newark.

Following the afternoon session yesterday a reception and informal entertainment was tendered the visiting delegates, among those taking part in the program were: Miss Florence Nichols, piano; Roy Titsworth, solos, and Arthur McFarlan, with the banjo.

There were about 175 delegates present and the auditorium was tastefully decorated with flowers, palms and autumn foliage. Luncheon was served today at 1:30 in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church.

A reception committee, composed of Mrs. Samuel Case, Mrs. Arthur Osmun and Mrs. Arthur Genung, met the visiting delegates at the train, while Mrs. H. C. Krebs, Mrs. John G. McLaughlin and Miss E. B. Little comprising the entertainment committee, saw that the visitors were amply cared for at the headquarters.

Promptly at 3 o'clock, Mrs. J. T. Hyde, of Orange, chairman of the Women's Executive Board, called the meeting to order, and following the address of welcome by Mrs. Philip S Suffern, president of the local auxiliary, and the response by the presiding officer, the roll was called Each delegation in answering, gave a two-minute report of the work accomplished by its individual organization These reports, while short, were all to the point and beside giving much valuable information, showed that the Y. M. C. A. work was gaining in nearly every part of the State.

The discussion of Y. M. C. A. work, in which a majority of the delegates participated, offered solutions for many of the problems confronting the auxiliaries in various parts of the State.

During the business session, Mrs George M. Seaton, of Elizabeth, the treasurer, showed that during the past year the receipts reached a total of $11,207.11, while the disbursements were $9,521.

There are twenty-two auxiliaries in the State, Atlantic City, Madison, Plainfield, Perth Amboy and Montclair being the five largest. The total membership is over 3,000.

The Perth Amboy auxiliary extended an invitation to the conference to meet in that city in November, 1916 and this matter will be decided at a meeting of the executive board to be held in Newark at a future date.

SMALLEY PLANS BOROUGH POLICY

Mayor-elect Working Out the "Value for Taxes" Idea for North Plainfield.

FAVORS STREET WORK

Will Appoint Frank Mobus Chairman of Councilmanic Street Committee —Proposes to Spring Some "Eye-openers" During His Initial Term.

"Value given for taxes paid," or one hundred cents for a dollar, is the sum and substance of the municipal government policy outlined today by Mayor-elect William L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, and on January 1, 1916, he promises to put this slogan to the test. A firm believer in governmental efficiency and at the same time an economist when economy is needed, Mr. Smalley has made tentative plans for a complete revision of present legislation in the borough, and if his ideas materialize it is a foregone conclusion that his stay in office will be featured by many thrills and some needed improvements will be wrought. In announcing his working policy the mayor-elect took particular pains to make it plain that his plans would in no way be a reflection on the service which Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., has rendered the borough, but added that the improvements contemplated have long been needed.

In an interview with a Plainfield Daily Press reporter Mr. Smalley said: "In a municipality like North Plainfield it is not a question of how high or how low the taxes or valua-

His wife, who was with him when he was arrested yesterday in Washington, admitted that she has accompanied him through all of his wanderings, and the couple told of having visited Plainfield when their disappearance was first noted by the authorities of Haverstraw.

CHRISTIAN SORENSON IS HONORED ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Christian Sorenson, of 737 Webster place, was given a reception at his home yesterday afternoon and evening, in honor of the seventy-sixth anniversary of his birth. He was the recipient of many callers and messages of congratulations and good wishes. In the evening a party was arranged. Among those present were relatives from New York, Perth Amboy and Boston. A telegram from his daughter-in-law from San Francisco, California, came during the evening in which good wishes were expressed from the family at the golden gate.

Mr. Sorenson is in fine health and hopes to reach the centurymark. For many years he was president of the Webster place Outing Club, a social organization which met at his home and which had in its membership many prominent East End residents. His son, C. D. Sorenson, Jr., has a wide reputation as a musician and was for many years manager of Arthur Pryor's band, also at times doing trombone solo work in the concerts. He is at present traveling in the West. Mr. Sorenson, Sr., has one daughter, Miss Christina Sorenson who resides at the Webster place address.

MRS. L. H. MATLACK GIVEN BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

The young women members of Mrs. Matlack's Bible class at the First Baptist church gave their teacher a surprise at her home on Clinton avenue, last night, on the occasion of her birthday anniversary. Mrs. Matlack was given a "shower of roses," each of the fifty members of the class present giving beautiful roses attached to which was a card bearing an appropriate sentiment.

Mrs. Matlack was completely surprised and pleased with the plan of the young women for showing their love and loyalty. As the roses were presented to the teacher she read the sentiment on each card. After an enjoyable evening of music and games refreshments were served. The company departed at a late hour after an exchange of best wishes.

The officers of the class are: President, Miss Marie Moore; vice president, Miss Minnie Serrell; secretaries, Miss Florence Manning and Miss Lorraine Dunn; treasurer, Miss Nellie Lake; committee [illegible], Mrs. Edith Melick, Mrs. Jessie Conover and Miss Carrie Coombs.

Dunellen Maidens Organize I've Cooked My 1st Sunday Dinner Club

She scorched the meat a little and put too much salt in the potatoes, but it was an appetizing meal, said all the judges, and Miss Dorothy Cameron, of Dunellen, is this week the proud possessor of a membership in the "I've Cooked My First Sunday Dinner Club," of that city.

Miss Cameron made a mark of 87, which was just two points above passing. If she had put one more pinch of salt on the Flannigins or had left the roast on a few seconds longer, the dinner would have been rejected by the board of censorship, and she would have been denied admittance to the club.

Miss Cameron is employed in the Dunellen Bank. The "I've Cooked My First Sunday Dinner Club" is an organization of prominent young women of the borough who hold clerical positions, and wish to become proficient in the art of cooking. In order to qualify for membership the candidate must cook a passable Sunday dinner. A board "sits" in judgment over the work of the applicant.

SAMUEL B. MERRELL, OF DUNELLEN, DIES

Pioneer Citizen Passes Away at Advanced Age of 86 Years.

Samuel B. Merrell, aged 86 years, one of the last of Dunellen's pioneer citizens, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George W. Day, after a brief illness with double pneumonia.

Mr. Merrell was a native of Hunterdon county, being born near Flemington, October 18, 1829. At that time the State, with the exception of small cities along the Hudson and Delaware, was mostly rural. His father was a native of the vicinity of Flemington and his mother was born at Pennington.

Mr. Merrell grew up on the farm of his father. In his early twenties he accepted a position as salesman for Hiram Deats, of Quakertown, a manufacturer of farm implements and stoves.

In 1853, Mr. Merrell married Miss Mary Runyon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Runyon, of New Market, which then included the territory of Dunellen. In 1854, Mr. Merrell resigned his position with Mr. Deats and moved with his wife to Piscataway, locating on the farm occupied at one time by the late Manning Randolph.

After a short residence with Mrs. Merrell's parents the couple purchased what is now known as the Humpston property. The old railroad depot was in that vicinity and Mr. Merrell sold a strip of land to the railroad when the tracks were straightened out in 1866. After the death of Mrs. Merrell's mother in the sixties, the couple moved to the homestead, where they resided until 1882.

In 1860, Mr. Merrill started baling hay for the New York market and when the Civil War broke out he found himself well prepared to carry on a profitable business in selling baled hay to the government. Mr. Merrell carried on his hay business for about twelve years and upon giving it up took up road work and teaming. The laying out of the borough of Dunellen in 1867-78 found Mr. Merrell, through his equipment for road work, well prepared to take an active part in the enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrell celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Day on December 3, 1903, and a little over a year later Mrs. Merrell died. At the time of Mrs. Merrell's death the couple were making their home in the Hetfield building. Since then Mr. Merrell had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Day.

The deceased was a member of the First Baptist church, of New Market. In politics he was a progressive Republican. He believed that women should have the vote and cast his last vote for the suffrage amendment. At one time Mr. Merrell was recorder of this borough.

Mr. Merrell is survived by two daughters and one son, Mrs. Walter Hunt, of Philadelphia; Mrs. George W. Day, of this borough, and Asa R. Merrell, of Newark.

The funeral will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Day at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Interment will be at Samptown cemetery.

CHURCH SOCIAL.

The officers and teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday-school will entertain the parents and scholars at a social in the chapel this evening. All parents are cordially invited and urged to attend. The meeting is called by the officers and teachers with a view of meeting the mothers and fathers and in a brief way acquaint them with the work that is being done. A very interesting program is being prepared and refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Frances Harrison, of New Market road, is able to be out and about following a long illness.

Mrs. Grace Gangloff, of Greenbrook road, is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. W. Goodwin, of New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Basten, of Fourth street, entertained Mr. Basten's father from New York, Wednesday night.

R. J. Fisher, of Washington avenue, a salesman for the house of Spaulding & Son, with territory in the middle west, who has been home since last Saturday, left last night for Buffalo.

Contractor Ellis, of Plainfield, is filling in and grading the grounds about the new Walter M. Fowler house on Washington avenue.

John P. Faber, of Washington avenue, is suffering again from stomach trouble and has been granted a month's leave of absence by the Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Company, of New York, which employs him as mechanical engineer.

The work of resurfacing New Market road is proceeding rapidly under the direction of the county.

The Apgar Construction Company is building an addition to the residence of William E. Terry on Washington avenue.

Mrs. William Ryno, of Center street, who has been ill for the past ten days, is reported as being somewhat improved.

Miss Florence Gooch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gooch, of Fourth street, has recovered from an attack of tonsilitis.

Arthur Bogardus has purchased an automobile.

The members of the Father Lights Missionary Society will be entertained by Miss Mattie Giles at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. John M. Dayton, of Main street, has returned from a visit to Peekskill.

Lester Randolph and LeRoy LaRue, both of whom are employed in New York, are taking courses in banking and finance at the night school of New York University, and have discontinued commuting for the winter. They are stopping at the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A.

Word has been received here of the death on Wednesday evening, at the home of his daughter in Brooklyn, of Henry G. Hummer, who for many years was steward of the Piscataway Industrial Home and who resigned that position some two years ago. Mr. Hummer was about 79 years of age and the news of his death came as a shock to many warm friends who had known him during his time as steward of the home.

NEW MARKET.

The meeting of the Township Committee was held at Hotel Nelson, last evening. Routine business and the passing of bills occupied the greater part of the session. Joseph Cotignola, representing the interests of the Italian village of New Era, was present to make inquiry as to the progress being made by the Committee in reference to the Glaser fertilizer plant located in New Era and which has been the source of much complaint from the property owners of that village for more than a year past.

Action by the Committee on this complaint has been necessarily slow, as they hesitated to take the legal steps to do away with the alleged nuisance, through a realization that even though they should be successful it would involve considerable expense to the taxpayers.

The question of listening again to the familiar complaints of the representative of New Era was finally adroitly side-stepped for the evening by a motion to hold a Board of Health meeting on Tuesday, November 9. An assessment map of the township, which is mandatory by a recent statute, came in for some discussion, owing to the receipt of a letter from the State Board of Equalization of Taxes in which it was offered to furnish outline maps of the township but which offer was qualified by the statement that a matter of some six square miles, most of which lays north of the Lehigh Valley track, and is contained in recent suburban development, would require detail sheets in connection with the outline maps furnished by the State.

A public hearing on this matter was advocated but no date for such hearing was made at the meeting.

'Plains & Fanwood.

William C. Strong, of Martine avenue, has returned home after a business trip of a month's duration through New York State and New England.

Captain S. B. Saunders, of the Valley road, has returned from New Orleans, where he went several weeks ago on business.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Episcopal church was held this week on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. L. Jesperson, of Martine avenue.

Miss Margaret Henderson, of Forest road, has left to spend several weeks with relatives in Massachusetts.

Mrs. R. G. Meggy, of North avenue has returned from visiting friends in Trenton.

An unavoidable delay has held up the placing of a high-powered arc light at the junction of Martine and North avenues, but A. I. Nichol chairman of the committee on lights water and fire, expects to overcome it in a few days. As soon as it is placed the two ordinary street lights will be taken from that corner and stationed on lower Martine avenue.

The semi-monthly business meeting of the local lodge, Jr. O. U. A. M., was held in Excelsior Hall last night.

The Tuesday Afternoon Bridge Club has resumed its weekly meetings again for the first time since the fore part of the summer, and will hold a meeting next Tuesday afternoon.

The Scotch Plains Boy Scouts held a Hallowe'en party in the lecture room of the Baptist church last night. Games were played and supper was served. Walter Morell won a prize for having the best costume.

How to Keep Our City Moving

We must keep moving. A city booms only so long as its manufacturers and merchants keep moving. The wheels of every line of endeavor must be kept turning if the city is going to develop, and what is of deeper concern than the wheels of Plainfield kept turning?

Should every one who has the interest of Plainfield close at heart buy goods from our merchants, the benefits all around can easily be seen. Thousands of dollars that would otherwise go out of the city will be kept circulating here and contribute a big share towards making a bigger and busier Plainfield.

A dollar spent at home will keep that dollar at home and all will share in the profits.

SHOP IN PLAINFIELD.

More and more Plainfield women are having a true appreciation and realization of the advantages of shopping at home. The othefr day a lady was very much impressed with the showing of the new woolens and silks and admitted she often went to New York for many needfuls, but now that she had seen Tepper's splendid assortments, the high character of the goods and the remarkable low prices she resolved then and there to save time and money and shop only at Tepper's. Another lady was impressed with the beauty, the variety, and the values of the Infants' Wear Department which she failed to appreciate until now. The moral is plain—you will do as well (or better) by shopping in Plainfield.

SMALLEY PLANS POLICY

tions are, the main issue lies in what the people are getting for the money they pay into the borough treasury. The average man does not hesitate in paying standard prices for the commodities of life if he gets his money's worth, and the same principle applies to governmental affairs.

"The streets of North Plainfield today are in a deplorable condition, partly due to neglect and partly to the wear and tear they have been subjected to. It will take a lot of money to repair them and it is my aim to put them in proper shape. During my term of office there will be no roads constructed or reconstructed of dirt; stone will be used exclusively. Sewers and other modern necessities are essential to the welfare of a municipality but the roads are the primary feature in the development plans. Nine out of every ten persons today ride either in horse-drawn or motor-propelled vehicles and a town with neglected thoroughfares is unattractive to, and unsought by, prospective property owners or house renters. Somerset street is in a disgraceful condition and during the major part of the time it is filled with dangerous mud-holes, these being caused in some cases by methods used in sprinkling. I single out Somerset street as an example because it is the most traveled road in the borough and around it the municipality's business centers.

"I am also decidedly in favor of widening Somerset street. We have but few stores in the borough and they are located in the main along this thoroughfare."

One of Mr. Smalley's especially interesting proposals is to minimize the appropriations for the rental of borough municipal offices and the upkeep of buildings. Although he would make no definite endorsement of the fact, indications lend credence to the belief that his plans will eventually lead to the establishment of a borough hall in North Plainfield, every facility being available for such a place for the centralization of government forces. In speaking of the question, Mr. Smalley deplored the waste of space in the commodious fire house on Somerset street. At the present time the ground floor is used for housing one small, antique fire engine. It is Mr. Smalley's belief that the present quarters of the tax collector and several other municipal departments could be done away with and all be brought under one roof where the fire house now stands. He claims that there is more room in this one building than the borough will need for this purpose in twenty-five years to come.

For a long time past there has been an agitation on foot in the borough for new fire fighting equipment, but when approached on this subject Mr. Smalley was reticent, aside from admitting that he had the matter under consideration, and would have something to say about it in his inaugural address. The present fire engine does not measure up to the service given by even the ordinary horse-drawn combination chemical and has been in use in the borough for fifteen years.

Mr. Smalley stated further: "The tax rate in North Plainfield will be higher. In view of conditions, however, this is not alarming. Sewer bonds fall due next year and they have to be paid. People will not hesitate to pay the added amount, however, if they get full value for their money. I will insist that every employe of the borough, no matter in what department he may be a worker, earn every cent he gets and if I find any loafing there will be a stirring up."

Mr. Smalley will be working with a Common Council that is made up of Republicans with but one exception, Frank Mobus, and the mayor-elect has only words of praise for the ability and integrity of this officeholder. He unhesitatingly announced that he will appoint Mr. Mobus chairman of the councilmanic street committee, declaring that he has an intimate and thorough knowledge of all that pertains to road building and maintenance and that as a large property holder his interest is North Plainfield's interest. He added that the entire Council is composed of men born and bred in North Plainfield; men who have grown up with the borough and know its needs.

COMMISSION RULE MOVE IS AFOOT IN ELIZABETH

Elizabeth, Nov. 5.—Commission government may figure in an election here in a few weeks, it was reported Wednesday. Democratic leaders opposed to General Dennis F. Collins and his following, as well as Republicans, are said to be preparing a petition for commission form of government.

The petition, if it really has been made up yet, has been kept well under cover, but there are half a dozen men prominent in politics here who admit they have been sounded on the question.

In view of the fact that the Board of Works is Republican, as well as the Mayor, the commission government plan is not being supported as ardently as it was a year ago, but, nevertheless, it has considerable strength and may eventually figure in a campaign.

The election of Adolph Dahlinger as councilman from the Sixth ward, a position made vacant by the death of Paul T. Carroll, has again given rise to rumors of more Democratic factional fights and discord. Dahlinger was the candidate backed by General Collins, and by his election, it is asserted, the general has sufficient votes to land the contrelleship in January.

AFFIRMS SETTING ASIDE OF PEACE JUSTICE'S CONVICTION

Trenton, Nov. 5.—Upholding the act of 1908 stripping justices of the peace in jurisdiction in cases cognizable in a district court where such a court exists, the Supreme Court has affirmed the Hudson Common Pleas in setting aside the conviction of Alfred Benjamin, charged by Deputy Game Warden Edwin Raynere with violating the fish and game laws by having for sale feathers of certain birds.

The case was tried before a justice of the peace in Jersey City, where Benjamin lives. The conviction was set aside by the Court of Common Pleas on the ground that under section 31 of the district court act the justice of the peace had been deprived of jurisdiction.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT STRIKES SEPT. DEATH RATE

Trenton, Nov. 5.—Statistics compiled by the State Department of Health, show that during September there were 3,034 deaths of residents and sixty-four of non-residents in New Jersey. This makes a resident death rate of 12.80 for the month. There were 711 deaths among infants under one year, 232 deaths of children over one and under five, and 859 deaths of persons aged sixty years and over.

The total number of deaths for the same period during the last three years has been as follows: September, 1912, 2,990; 1913, 3,032; 1914, 3,070.

The deaths from typhoid fever show an increase over the previous eleven months, but correspond exactly with the number of deaths for the same period a year ago. It is pointed out in the report that although the total number of deaths has varied but slightly since 1912, the increase in population makes apparent a gradual decrease in the death rate for each year.

WILL WED AGAIN.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—Miss Ruth Everson, of Oakland, is completing preparations for her wedding to Col. David C. Collier, the railroad magnate of Southern California, and former president of the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego. The interlocutory decree of divorce granted a year ago to Mrs. Collier will be made permanent today, and it is said the railroad man will take his new bride next week. Col. Collier was the builder of the Southwestern Pacific Railroad. His first wife, Ella May Copley, of San Diego, married him in 1896, and gains an absolute divorce from him today. Col. Collier is now located in New York, where he is forming a Pan-American trade syndicate. Col. Collier is 44 years old and his bride-to-be is 22.

ADVENTISTS MEET.

Los Angeles, Nov. 5.—The most important council ever held by the leaders of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination in the seventy-one years of its history was opened this morning at Loma Linda, Cal. The council will extend three weeks, during which many phases of the church work will be discussed. The question of increasing the strength of the denomination in foreign lands will be the most important subject presented. Elder W. A. Spicer, secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, who has just returned from an eight-months' trip amog the mission stations of South Africa, will lay before the council his report of the needs in the dark continent for more money and more missionaries.

TICKER CASE BEFORE COURT.

Boston, Nov. 5.—The Massachusetts Supreme Court will consider today the question whether the Public Service Commission exceeded its authority when it ordered the Western Union and the United Telegram Company to furnish Calvin H. Foster, a Boston broker, with ticker service of quotations on the New York Stock Exchange. The Western Union is a New York corporation and the Telegram Company is a New Jersey corporation. Both contend that to comply with the decree they would have to appropriate the property of the stock exchange for the benefit of Foster and thereby destroy valuable contracts with the exchange, contrary to the provisions of the Federal Constitution. The companies claim the service was refused because of information received that Foster had been connected with "bucket shops."

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

PLAIN-COLOR CARPETS

Their Importance to Modern Schemes of Furnishing and Decoration

The increasing popularity of Carpets in plain colors is readily appreciated when the advantages afforded by this style of Floor Coverings are considered.

For decorative schemes which include fine tapestries, and figured upholsteries and draperies, the Plain-Color Carpet provides a wonderfully effective foundation—one of perfect balance, quiet dignity and elegance. Moreover, the unbroken surface of solid color seemingly increases the size of the room.

Conspicuous seams are avoided by the use of our Carpets in very wide widths, and the usual difficulty of obtaining the exact shade of color wanted is practically eliminated when choice is made from our complete stock of Plain-Color Carpets, which we are showing in more than

GOES HOME DRUNK AND BREAKS UP FURNITURE

Peta Bernatti, who lives at 16 Stony Brook place, went home last night in a drunken condition, according to a statement made against him in the borough police court this morning, and used profane language toward members of his family, broke up furniture and otherwise played the drunken father of the Harry Blaney type. He was let off by Recorder Hand with a warning and a suspended sentence.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Tokio, Japan.—Heroic and religious incidents in the history of Japan will be depicted in dances to be given by eight of the most beautiful Japanese peeresses at the crowning of the Emperor this month. The dances depict the great events of the past, and they tell their story by rhymic movement of the arms. The beautiful Japanese girls will portray the doings of the gods which give to man all of his blessings. The sun goddess will again be coaxed from her cavern, the dynasty of which Emperor Yoshihito is the latest descendant will again be founded and brought to imperial greatness. Peasant dances goodluck dances and other folk dances of the Japanese will be given before the Emperor and his guests after the coronation.

Los Angeles.—The decision of the American government to recognize Carranza and to close the avenues of aid to his rival, General Villa, was a severe blow to the hopes of Senora Torres de Villa, the wife of the Mexican general, who has been living in exile here. With her as a balm to her fears is her child, who was born here four months ago. She married Villa almost under the roar of cannon, and remained by her husband's side for many months. Her coming gave rise to a story that Villa was preparing for the inevitable collapse of his cause and that he had sent his wife and a large hoard of money ahead. Senora Villa denies all knowledge of such a scheme.

New York.—Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of the late President of the United States, is taking a course in the drama at Columbia University. She was a Pennsylvania girl, daughter of a noted engineer. She was a widow when she married Benjamin Harrison in 1896. She is greatly interested in the drama, and has come from her Indianapolis home to take the course.

Los Angeles.—Probably the first woman in the United States to be vested with Superior Court jurisdiction is Miss Orfa Jean Shontz, a prominent woman attorney of this city, who this week took office as a referee in juvenile court matters. She will hear all cases involving girls coming before the juvenile court, and has all the powers and duties of a Superior Court judge, save that of making final decisions.

Minneapolis.—The first woman law graduate in Germany and one of the dozen women doctors of law of Germany, has been visiting in this city. She is Dr. Alix Westerkamp, who, in 1908, broke all precedent for German education when she was graduated from the University of Marburg with the law degree. She has been superintending the women's legal aid bureau at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and more recently was general secretary of the German Association for the Protection of Minors, with headquarters in Berlin. Dr. Westerkamp is an advocate of militarism as a great factor in physical development and teaching hygiene and sanitation to the German people. But she is frank to say that militarism is not the ideal of civilization. Although qualified by training to the practice of law, she is excluded from the examinations for the bar, because she is a woman.

Washington.—Miss Lyda B. Conley, of Kansas City, is the first woman of Indian descent to be admitted to practice law before the Supreme Court. Her admission was moved by Solicitor General Davis. Several years ago she attracted attention by resisting an attempt to remove the bodies of her ancestors from an Indian burial ground in Kansas City. She carried the litigation to the Supreme Court and there argued her own case. She lost it, however. Her appearance was with special permission of the court.

St. Louis.—Mrs. Rachael Stix Michael, widow of Elias Michael, millionaire philanthropist of this city, has completed six months of volunteer work in hospitals, dispensaries and settlement houses in New York and Boston, and has returned to St. Louis to devote her time and her fortune to charitable work. She has fitted herself for social service work, by studying the condition and needs of the unthrifty and the best methods of aiding in uplift work.

Attractive Setting for Concert at Plainfield Theatre

Stage Setting for Concert by Mme. Rappold at the Plainfield Theatre.

Perhaps the most elaborate stage setting at a social function in this city, was that arranged for the concert given at the Plainfield Theatre on Monday night by Mme. Marie Rappold, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and her assisting artists, Miss Lucille Orrell, Miss Mary Warfel and Hugh Allan.

The decorations, representing an old English garden, was the work of Miss Edith VanBoskerck and Miss Laura Lee Rogers, of this city. The effect was reached through beautiful marble statuary and seats. Two scenes were presented by having a drop curtain, one introducing the other. Stage decoration has become a distinct profession which is being given much attention on the part of prominent artists and much praise has been given to Miss VanBoskerck and Miss Rogers for their work. The picture which is here reproduced was taken by Nathan Wardner, of Plainfield, and gives an excellent idea of the beautiful stage setting which was so greatly admired by the large audience at the concert.

EVANGELIST WILL TELL STORY OF HIS LIFE

Charles F. Taylor Closes Revival at Park Ave. Baptist Church Tonight.

"And the spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst, come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." From the last chapter in the last book of the Bible, Charles Taylor preached with tenderness at the Park Avenue Baptist church last evening on "Last Things." This was his last sermon here, and his words touched the hearts of the large congregation that filled the church.

Said the young evangelist, "You have been coming to these services night after night for three weeks, and you have listened to the Gospel of Jesus Christ preached from this pulpit every night. This may be the time I shall ever have the opportunity of appealing to you to accept the Savior. My last message to you is, look to Jesus and He will carry you safely home.'"

The service was unusually impressive and was closed quietly in order that the congregation might take with them the deep impression made by the words of the evangelist who evidences such a tremendous power. This evening he will give the story of his life, and this lecture will undoubtedly draw a large crowd to the Park avenue church.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The biggest and best thing in the tabloid musical comedy line that has ever been seen on a local vaudeville bill is the Wood's Amusement Company's production of "College Days,' which came to the Plainfield Theatre yesterday for the last half of the week. It has a cast of twenty-five people, eighteen of whom are girls, while everyone of the principles is a cracker-jack in his or her particular line. The audience was kept in roars of laughter at times, while at others their attention was held tight by clever songs and dances. "College Days" is by the same author as "The Revue of 1915," seen at the same theatre several weeks ago and which caused favorable comment throughout the city.

In addition to "College Days" the new vaudeville bill has several other fine numbers, among them the Lester Brothers, three comedy acrobats who present an absolutely new and novel act full of fun, and Beaumont and Nelson, with a piano and vocal musical offering. Both numbers received numerous encores at the performances yesterday afternoon and last night.

Another of those popular "Country Stores" will be conducted tonight. Scores of presents have been secured to be given away, among them a diamond ring. There will also be silverware, household goods and wearing apparel given to the lucky patrons who attend either performance.

CHILD WELFARE MEETING.

A meeting of a council of child welfare organizations of Plainfield and vicinity was held in the Plainfield High School Wednesday afternoon. Different Parent-Teacher Associations read reports of their activities during the past year, and plans for the work of the coming season were discussed. Mrs. William Sandford presided at the gathering.

TROUBLES OF WILSON ADMINISTRATION

Miss Janet Richards Discusses International Affairs at First Lecture Here.

The diplomatic troubles of the Wilson administration as brought on by the present European war were related in chronological order to Plainfield women yesterday afternoon by Miss Janet E. Richards in her lecture on the public questions of the day at the Hartridge Auditorium.

It was Miss Richards' first lecture of the 1915-16 season. Despite a cold rain the auditorium was filled to capacity. Many of the women brought needle-work with which they might busy their fingers during the lecture.

Miss Richards, who is a resident of Washington and moves in its diplomatic society, evidenced a knowledge of international affairs that was refreshing. She talked in an intimate manner of the sinking of the William P. Frye, an American liner, and of the subsequent flood of diplomatic literature that passed between the United States and Germany. Events next taken up by her in order were the sinking of the Lusitania, the resignation of William Jennings Bryan as secretary of State, the sinking of the Arabic, the Dr. Dumba case and the munition plots which resulted in the arrest a few days ago of Lieut. Fay, who admits he is an agent of the German government.

Miss Richards added many personal touches to current history, especially the Dumba case. She told of the arrest of the American war correspondent Archibald and the finding of secret messages from Dumba to the Austrian government in his possession. Miss Richards is a close acquaintance of Archibald. Her comment on his statement that he thought the communications were innocent was, "If this is so he certainly is a very credulous young man for a war correspondent."

She explained the purpose of the Fay plots in a manner that is not generally accepted by the public, but one that proved interesting to her audience. The purpose of Fay and his associates, as believed officially, she said, was to blow up police boats of the U. S. guarding the three-mile limit, and the big English cruiser just out of the neutral zone off Sandy Hook, so that Germans vessels interned in this country could make a dash for liberty.

Miss Richards called attention to the fact that all of the diplomatic differences between this country and Germany had been settled except those arising from the sinking of the Arabic and the Fay case.

While President Wilson and Secretary Lansing were having troubles with Germany over her war policy of sinking, she said, they were also confronted with innumerable diplomatic breaks with the English over the British policy of seizure. Correspondence in this matter has just begun.

After relating events of current U. S. history, Miss Richards took up the policy of preparedness. Prepared ness, she said, meant preparedness in case of attack, and she told of the total inadequacy of the U. S. navy and army and of how it should be strengthened.

THE FORUM

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I have read with much interest your article of last evening with reference to the "Old Ladies' Home," to be established with funds bequeathed by the late Catherine R. Webster. Your reporter was misinformed by some one. The amount of this fund could not be determined until last December, when the estate of Joseph Webster was settled, who had a residuary interest in the estate of Catherine Webster.

There can be no possible reflection on the executor, our honored and esteemed John H. Van Winkle, who has worked on this case much beyond what the law would have required of him. The delay, if such exists, rests with the trustees. There is $80,000 now in the bank drawing 4 per cent interest since last December, absolutely at the hands of the trustees. With this, a building must be constructed and the land purchased. They cannot buy an old building, according to the terms of the will.

Where is the endowment to come in? How is the institution to be carried on? A matron must be employed, and servants, perhaps nurses, and food, heat, light, etc., provided. I estimate that the entire amount on hand is scarcely enough for the endowment, let alone buying a tract and constructing a building. It looks like adding one more to the already too many charities with which this vicinity is over-loaded. Some of the incorporating trustees have left town or died, but enough remain to carry forward the work and this they must do without compensation for they are trustees of a charity. The point is this, to so divide the fund that a proper and substantial building can be constructed and lot purchased and still leave enough to endow the institution to provide for its running expenses.

For myself I cannot see how $4,000 per year will run an institution of this kind. Cannot some one step forward and add to the amount in hand? Shall we buy a lot and construct a building, and use up the money this way or use, say half of the fund to build and purchase a lot and not leave enough to run the concern, and depend on an already overloaded public to eak out with the expenses.

WILLIAM M. STILLMAN.

CHANCE TO SHARE TRADE

been possible for them to do in the past. Another object of this movement is to place the industries in a way to withstand any industrial reaction following the end of the great European war. By securing a large share of the foreign trade it would be an easy matter for those industries now rushed with orders for war supplies to swing their factories to the production of the commodities needed in times of peace without any long interruption necessary to readjusting the industrial plants of the country, with the attending disarranging of the economic system.

As a result of this discussion the chair appointed a manufacturers' committee, consisting of C. B. Repp, I. N. McMenimen and Garret Keating, to secure and compile data required. This data is to include the information required by the national Department of Commerce, together with data regarding the products of the local factories, what lines of goods they are equipped to make and full information concerning markets of the world with lists of foreign buyers. It is aimed to make this information complete for both the manufacturer in Plainfield and for the buyer in New York and elsewhere.

A committee of three, C. B. Repp, Garrett Keating and D. W. Litteli, was appointed to meet with similar committees from other civic organizations of the city and make the necessary arrangements for the letter-carriers' State convention to be held in this city on Memorial Day.

The Chamber of Commerce was also invited to send delegates to and participate in the convention of the International Trades' Council to be held in the Astor House, New York, on December 6, 7 and 8. The members of the manufacturers' committee were designated as delegates to represent Plainfield on this occasion. It was also decided to affiliate with the Commercial, Agricultural and Civic Federation of New Jersey. This is really the State Chamber of Commerce.

A vast amount of routine business, which was considered, made the session a very busy one and plans for future work indicate that the organization is at the commencement of the most active period of its existence and if these plans are carried to fruition untold benefits will accrue to Plainfield and its people.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

That clean sport is always popular is evidenced by the amount of interest being shown locally in the coming football game between Holy Cross and the team of the Battleship Wyoming. Uncle Sam's boys will come to Plainfield for their annual game on November 13, and they will be accompanied by the ship's band so that no Plainfield resident can miss the game because of failure to remember the date. The Wyoming squad is almost as popular here as the Holy Cross players. In their past games on local gridirons members of the navy team have shown themselves to be aggressive, gentlemanly sportsmen and they will always find a welcome in Plainfield. Those who attend the show at the Plainfield Theatre this evening will be shown slides on the moving picture screen of the two teams. In addition to the lineups there will be slides of Capt. Wilson and other Holy Cross stars.

A young man does not have to enter the army in order to learn discipline. In fact the modern football coach is more of a czar than a general in command of a battalion on the field. This was proven beyond contradiction at the University of Pennsylvania Wednesday when the coach dropped the team captain from his first string of players—sent him back to the scrub team to learn his football A, B, C's. It was a pretty hard blow for the young captain, but football is a hard game and it teaches lessons in a hard way.

Saturday's struggle between Princeton and Harvard will be the classis of the season in eastern football. Poor old Yale seems to be hopelessly out of the struggle unless Tom Shelvin can imbue the Eli warriors with some of the forgotten fighting spirit of the days when he was king. Shelvin did it before and may be able to repeat, but he has a poor lot of material to work with since Lagore was dropped. Princeton and Harvard are both in fine condition for the fray tomorrow and they may settle the championship of the east.

Sheepshead Bay promoters announce that there will be no more 500 mile races. They are following the lead of fighters who cut to ten rounds, no decision bouts, and soon DePalma, Burman, Oldfield and others will be demanding big guarantees without the risk of losing a race.

There was a "peace" conference between officials of organized ball and the Federal League yesterday, but up to time of going to press none of the participants had recovered sufficiently to make a statement.

Willie Pickens and some other dressed up American highwaymen wanted to hold a big auto race in Mexico, but Carranza says no. Pickens is a bright boy, but he had better stay on his home lot. No one has ever carried money out of Mexico yet except Huerta and he is not enjoying it exceedingly at this moment.

HARVARD AND PRINCETON IN FIT SHAPE FOR FOOTBALL CLASSIC OF '15

Princeton, Nov. 4.—Coach Rush probably would have liked to continue hard work on the Princeton eleven today, but the proximity of the Harvard game forced him to lighten the practice. A snappy signal drill occupied an hour of the afternoon, and there was lots of kicking practice. Jim McCormick put the touches on the interference of the backs, and Rush put the men through all their formations to perfect the plays.

Just at that point in the practice a cold, driving rain came, and the head coach sent the men to the baseball cage for the remainder of the session. In the shelter the team started to work on their shattered defense. As actual scrimmage was impossible the players lined up against the scrubs in dummy scrimmage. Tackling was prohibited, but the scrubs ran through some of the Harvard plays, and the regulars worked the defense formations against the plays.

This work took up the remainder of the afternoon, Rush excusing the men from strenuous practice. It is thought that two days of rest before the big battle will do more than anything else to restore the confidence and the ginger of the forwards. The power of the defense could not be definitely judged from the tactics of the afternoon, but the men appeared in better spirit, and went through the plays with more snap that heretofore.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—There was a complete letup this afternoon for the Harvard football players who will start Saturday's game at Princeton, the work being only on signals for the regulars, who, however, spent a lot of time perfecting their plays and also went over the layout of the defenses. The coaches have worked the team very hard this week, but all the men are in first-class trim, and the feeling at Cambridge is that the eleven is many per cent. better than it was a week ago. The scrubs have worked the Tiger plays against the varsity in first-class fashion, and therefore the coaches now figure that Saturday's battle is likely to be decided on the results of a kicking game. Both teams, so the men in charge here believe, will have to rely on an approach attack, and then depend on drop kicks for their scores. All this, of course, does not provide for the fumbles, blocked kicks and breaks of the game.

The entire undergraduate student body came down to the field and cheered the team while it ran through its final drill. Later there was some brisk football, the freshmen beating the substitutes by a touchdown, and the third varsity team fighting for twenty minutes against the substitute scrubs. After this was over the coaches, Haughton, Leary, Gil Browne, Reggie Brown, Parmenter, Wigglesworth, Storer Logan and Pennock, made up the nucleus of a team which ran off a lot of intricate forward pass plays.

COACH "SPEEDY" RUSH PUTS PRINCETON ON THE FOOTBALL MAP

McLean (left), Captain Glick and "Speedy" Rush.

At Princeton a new era in football has been ushered in by "Speedy" Rush, the former coach of the University School of Cleveland. Rush made a fine reputation as a prep school coach, and at Princeton has done as much as his best friends hoped for. One sensible move that Princeton is making this year is to keep Captain Glick at quarterback. Driggs is said to be punting better than ever, while Tibbot is one of the season's finds as a drop kicker. McLean, the star tackle, has been showing remarkable form. Princeton, on the whole, has a well balanced team, strong in every department and well versed in fundamental football. It looks now as if the football honors of the year would be divided between Princeton and Cornell.

SOME DON'TS FOR BOWLERS

In its "Bowlers' Guide," a little booklet published by the American Bowling Congress, there appears "A Few Don'ts" for the benefit of bowlers, especially beginners at the game. These "Don'ts" are as follows:

Don't try to learn in a day.

Don't use too much speed at first.

Don't grip the ball too tight.

Don't loft the ball.

Don't play the side ball until you have mastered the center delivery.

Don't swing the ball but once before delivering it.

Don't start with a bump; walk one and run two steps.

Don't deliver the ball with the right foot in front.

Don't step on or over the foul line. A slow, accurate ball is better than a swift, wild one.

Don't think you can change the course of the ball after it has left your hand.

Don't expect a "strike" every time you hit the head pin.

Don't blame the pin boys if you get a "split." They will spot any pin you call their attention to.

Don't throw away a "spare" because you think you are entitled to a "strike."

Don't think the other fellow has all the luck. Plug away; things will change.

Don't use any unnecessary motions.

Don't quit bowling on account of a sore finger. You have other fingers on the same hand.

Don't put your whole thumb in the finger hole. One joint is enough.

Don't use a large finger hole. Big holes make the ball lop-sided.

Don't roll the ball down the alley when there is a ball in the pit.

Don't use a wide grip if you have a small hand, or too narrow for a big hand.

Don't use chalk on your shoes. It not only cracks the leather, but leaves the runway in bad condition for whoever follows you.

Don't think your wrist is gone if it hurts after bowling a few games. Change your grip and throw the strain somewhere else.

Don't bend your back when delivering the ball. With your feet far apart and knees bent you can start the ball with little or no sound.

Don't expect alley owners to change everything to suit you. There are others to satisfy.

Don't be superstitious—13 is better than 12.

Don't think it necessary to be a Sandow. Many lightweights bowl well.

Don't tell your wife that you carried off the honors. She may see a morning paper.

Don't bring suit against the publisher if you find your score or average printed wrong. The chances are he never say you bowl. It is possible that someone else has made the mistake.

Don't get discouraged, you can learn. Any able-bodied person, with ordinary nerve and a good eye, can become quite expert with little practice.

Don't use profane language on the alleys. Assist in elevating the game.

Don't tell anyone what you are going to do. Wait until after the game and tell them what you did.

Don't let the alley owner use pins that are worn out. Inform him that good pins make good scores, and that good scores make good business.

Don't ask him to cut prices. He cannot keep the alleys in condition at cheap prices.

Don't overlook the fact that bowling is the most healthful of all indoor sports.

P. H. S. READY FOR GAME AT NEWARK

Local Boys Patch up Holes in Line for South Side Contest.

The Plainfield High School cohorts sporting the Red and Blue on the gridiron this year will go to Newark tomorrow to play the South Side High School.

The locals will be without the services of Somloch at right tackle, as scholar deficiencies will prevent him from playing the remainder of the year. Berrien, tackle for the past two years, has overcome a schedule of six subjects and showed up for practice yesterday and will fit nicely into Somloch's shoes. Mumford, who played part of the Westfield game to see if his recently injured shoulder would stand the strain, will probably get Miller's place at right tackle, he still being out with a twisted ankle received in the Battin game, and Geary will be ready to fill in at either point if needed.

A large bunch of rooters will make the trip with the team, leaving the local railroad station on the 12:58.

NO HOPE FOR PEACE, SAYS FED OWNER

Harry Sinclair Returns From Conference With Garry Hermann.

There is little hope for an ending of the baseball war, according to Harry F. Sinclair, owner of the Newark Federal League club, who returned from Cincinnati yesterday. Mr. Sinclair conferred with Garry Hermann while away.

He said the meeting between the two indicated no early settlement of the baseball war, that he had for a long time been a friend of Herrman, and that there was nothing but an informal discussion of the situation. Charles Weeghman, of Chicago, he said, was not present. He remarked that the two baseball interests seemed to be as far as ever apart. Sinclair spent yesterday afternoon at the Federal League offices in New York city, there being a conference between himself, President Gilmore, of the Federal League, and two other men, but President Gilmore said that the meeting had nothing to do with baseball; that the subject was not even mentioned.

RUTGERS MEN TAKE A WEEK OF REST

Coach Sanford Allows Men to Recover From Springfield Battle.

New Brunswick, Nov. 5.—Football practice has been discontinued at Rutgers this week owing to the fact that no game is scheduled for Saturday. The coaches were much dissatisfied with the work of the team against Springfield Saturday, and decided that a week's rest would do the players good. Some of the men came out of the Springfield contest in bad shape. Nash broke his shoulder early in the first quarter, but gamely refused to be relieved until the last few minutes of play. Wittpenn and Scarr were badly bruiseed as a result of the encounter, but will be able to play against the All-Stars next week. It is doubtful whether Nash will get back into the game before the Stevens' contest. On Election Day Coach Sanford took a number of the players to New York to witness the New York University-Bucknell encounter.

CARRANZA WANTS A BASEBALL LEAGUE

Mexican Chief Will Confer With Organized Leaders in United States.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Secretary John H. Farrell, of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, lef today for Chicago, where a special train will be made up for baseball club owners from the United States and Canada bound for the annual meeting of minor baseball clubs at San Francisco. The National Board of Arbitration will consider several hundred disputed baseball cases on the train enroute.

Secretary Farrell said the meeting will be attended by a representative of the Carranza Government, who will seek territory for a baseball league in Northern Mexico under the rules of organized baseball in the United States.

Over 1,000 professional baseball players were idle this summer as the result of continued rains, which caused many leagues to abandon or shorten their schedules. The five-year term of the members of the National Board of Arbitration having expired new members are to be elected in San Francisco next week.

HORACE ADAMS TO MARSHAL THE CLINKS IN PLAINFIELD CAMPAIGN

During the course of the next two weeks Plainfield will pass into the hands of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Clinks: exponents of cheerfulness, liberality, independence, nicety, kindness and sobriety. At least, this is the object of the local organizer, Horace Adams, who, when not engaged in clinking, presides as clerk of the local District Court. Organizer Adams is rounding up a host of would-be Clinks and when the charter roll is drawn up it is expected that over 200 names will adorn it. Forty-three Plainfielders are already affiliated with the mother Lodge of Clinks, instituted in the town of Westfield, February 22, 1915, and incorporated to protect itself from a piracy of its plans and to remove the possibility of panhandling, on June 23, 1915.

When the Clinks start clinking in Plainfield the city will be transformed into a modern paradise. So sayeth the enthusiastic backers of the movement. There'll be no kicking, war talk will be tabooed, and contentment will be the keynote. Just how the policy of the order will work out in this city is a point of keen interest among those affiliated with the movement.

A Clink is the correct answer to the principle of consistency. He recognizes that the abuse of liquor or any other article of food, drink or item of habit, personal whim or hobby, is a proposition of personal temperament and individual control. He further denies the right of any dyspeptic individual to force upon him the same alleviating dose, if he does not choose to take it. He likewise respects anything that is reasonable and rational. He did not put the big in bigot. The organization, contrary to the general belief, is not a special pleader for the support of the liquor business; it is anti nothing. It does support a person's own choice of consistent conduct without a denial of his individual rights in securing it.

The parent organization in Westfield has given its divergent initiation fee to the District Nurse Association and has contributed to the band concert fund of Westfield. It has spent its remaining dues in free smokers and social for its members and on September 18, 1915, had an enrollment of 901.

garments made by our working girls, was first in the field. This fact I wish to impress upon your minds. The ladies and the girls sought second-hand garments as well as new, and the home of the secretary became a distributing station. The next step of our Lyons Guild was to establish war workrooms, to give employment to the refugees and to the women of Lyons, and among those threatened with starvation (for the war closed shops and factories) were some of our own guild members."

Speaking further, Mrs. Stewart told of her audience with Queen Mary of England, the latter's interest in the American Needlework Guild, and the ultimate formation of "Queen Mary's Needlework Guild," which holds a large membership even in America. Concluding, she urged the local guild to join with the other branches in making an "American Needlework Guild War Relief," a factor to help in making supplies for the war sufferers. A motion was made that cards be sent to the members of the guild to ascertain the sentiment on the new work.

Following the meeting, tea and a social hour were enjoyed. Mrs. E. L. Booth and Mrs. Frederick Butler poured.

THIRTY-THREE DAYS FROM NEW YORK TO CALIFORNIA

Word received today by Mrs. Elvain VanName, of this city, from Mrs. Alexander Mallinson, brought the information that the latter had reached Monrovia, Cal., on October 27, after an eventful trip of a month and two days. Mrs. Mallinson writes that the passengers on the steamer had to be taken across the Isthmus by rail and a boat met them at Balboa, from which point they went up the Coast to San Pedro, the harbor for Los Angeles, and thence to Monrovia.

Mrs. Mallinson's trip was delayed because of the slides in the Panama Canal and while she was in that zone she had the opportunity of witnessing one of the slides. She intends making her home in the future in California.

Almost Made a Word.

Has bad handwriting ever managed to add a new word to the language? There have certainly been some narrow escapes. A correspondent sent to Sir James Murray for the New Oxford Dictionary the mysterious word "brean," which he found in a story by R. L. Stevenson. It was presumed to be an obscure Scottish term, and the presumption lasted till Stevenson wrote back that the word he had written was "ocean." Had the author been dead "brean" would no doubt have figured in the dictionary as sanctioned by "R. L. S."—London Observer.

Central Asia.

The people living in the cotton belt of central Asia represent a conglomerate of all the races and nations that in ages past have inhabited these regions, from pure Aryans to full fledged Mongols. They all adhere to the Mohammedan faith and speak various dialects of the Turkistan-Bokhara language except in the southwestern part, where the influence of the Persian language is felt.

A Galley o' Fun!

THE ETERNAL FEMININE

Another Allegorical Slander on the Sex

In a vision I saw the end of all things Mundane, and the cessation of time. And before an angel stood a youth, a man and a woman. The flushed face of the youth glowed with expectation; the eyes of the man were lit with joy, as one who has toiled for the great reward. The woman, too, looked pleased and expectant; but then a shade crossed her face and she bit her lip with vexation, for she thought of herself: "Lo! there are no other women here to behold me exalted above them!"

And the angel beckoned to the youth and gave him a robe, saying: "Here is the garment of perfect happiness. It hath little difference from the vestment of youth that now apparels you; but this will last forever!" And the youth cried joyously: "It is far more beautiful than the one I wear!" And he passed on, singing blithely.

The man received his robe, and his face was as a face illuminated, and he spake, saying: "Lo! The way has been long and the burdens I have borne were heavy, but now I am clothed in sweetness and light!" And he went his way rejoicing.

Then the woman drew near, and in her bosom her heart sang as a bird. For was she not to have a new habiliment?

But, the robe being placed upon her, she glanced down at it and said: "Are you sure it becomes me?"

And the angel answered: "The garment of perfect happiness is becoming to all who are becoming to it."

But the woman heard him not, for her eye had detected a flaw in the weaving.

Now, this flaw was of her own doubt; but she saw only the flaw and questioned not its cause.

"I can fix it over," she thought; and she sat down and picked at the flaw. Then, as her fingers seized upon a filmy strand of hope (for hope is the woof of happiness, and contentment is the warp), the threads ran, and in a moment the garment of perfect happiness was revelled into a hopeless tangle of dull colored threads at her feet.

Then the woman cried aloud: "Oh! The flimsy thing! Let me try on something else please!"

But the distributer of the garments of perfect happiness was gone.

And the woman burst into tears saying it was just too mean for anything but that that was the way she was always treated!

Application

Ain't you mean to say such things!

THE HUMAN DREADNAUGHT.

Sir Giles—And mark ye, Sir Percival, the time will come when no man in light marching order will carry more than 200 pounds.

WRONG MEANS, BUT DESIRED RESULT.

Sunday-School Teacher—Now, since Johnny has told us that it was Joshua who commanded the sun to stand still can anyone tell us why he commanded it to do so?

Willy—Please, Ma'am, I s'pose it was because Joshua didn't know anything about the earth turnin' on its axis.

A PROSPECT OF ENLIGHTENMENT

First Cannibal.—The missionary says his people do not make war on their enemies in order to eat them.

Second Cannibal.—They do not! Then, I suppose he can give us a whole lot of new reasons for killing people.

UNDER THE LOCAL OPTION PLAN

First Citizen—Did you vote to allow the saloons in this ward to keep open on Sunday?

Second Citizen—No, sir! If a man in this ward wants a drink on Sunday let him go to some other ward. That's what I do!

AS THE TIMES CHANGE

Years pass.

"I ask you for predigested cereal and you give me bread!" cries poverty, now.

But wealth laughs in the same old mocking, thoughtless fashion.

When it comes to keeping a secret men are worse than women!—with regard to the secret of success.

—Finding work for workers and workers for work is a quest for which the classified advertisements are peculiarly adapted.

Reading Character

is always interesting, but a study of a tradesman's business character as indicated by his advertising is even more interesting and always profitable.

Just glance over the advertisements in the Plainfield Daily Press of the merchants whose places you know.

Does not the merchant write his store character into his advertising? Is it not possible to form a pretty good idea of the store from the manner in which it makes its announcements in the newspapers?

Merchants are coming to realize more and more that when they write an advertisement they are painting a business portrait of themselves—indicating their business character.

They are more careful in their statements, more modest in their language and pay more attention to typography and illustration.

Advertising is prepared now-a-days more carefully than ever before and there is more of it every day.

And by the same token it is going to be more interesting and profitable to the readers.

AMUSEMENTS.

You May Find a Worker Trained and Fit to do Your Work.

A worker whose salary you will voluntarily raise in a short time!

"Getting along" with half competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

The quest for the Competent Worker is important enough to justify a real campaign of classified advertising in the Plainfield Daily Press—although it does not often require a very long campaign.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.—Adv.

THE FORUM

November 4, 1915.

Dear little friend:

I have just received your letter about the squirrels and I am going to see if I can explain things; not only so that you need not worry too much about your little four-legged friends, but also that you may know why it may be necessary before long to do something to prevent squirrels becoming too numerous in Plainfield.

First of all let me say that, besides the people who do not want squirrels killed, there are just as many other people who have told me that they are afraid it may be necessary to shoot some of them unless a way can be found to make them stay out in the woods where, you know, squirrels really belong. You see, people have encouraged them to come to town and have made things so comfortable for them, that they stay here now all the year round, and bring up their children here; and these children grow up and have children of their own. So that it has become quite a problem for all of them, in these hard times, how to find food and shelter in a city. And that is why your little friend comes to your window-sill, and sits up as you say with his paws across his chest in so pathetic a manner that you feel sorry for him.

But I should like to have you consider whether you are really doing a wise or even a kind thing in thus encouraging squirrels to stay in Plainfield. I do not mean that it is necessarily wrong to tame and pet little wild animals. But is it altogether right to teach them to be unafraid of people, and to go into people's houses, without also teaching them to behave properly when they get there? Do you not think that perhaps it is your duty, if you take from a squirrel that natural fear of people which keeps him away from their houses and gardens, to be responsible for him, at least until you complete his education by teaching him not to steal and destroy things?

You see we must all manage somehow to get along in this world so that our own enjoyments will not interfere with the enjoyments of other people. There are many things which would be perfectly all right for you or for me if either of us were a Robinson Cruso on an island of his own, but which are all wrong in Plainfield. If you have chickens you are bound to keep them in your own yard, because your next door neighbor has an equal right to keep a garden in his yard; and chickens like gardens and cannot be trusted to stay away from them.

So it is with squirrels: only you would be surprised to know how many things they like beside gardens. For instance, they like clothes and even shoes which are put away in the attic; and they have a special fondness for window awnings, though I am not sure whether it is the taste of them which they like so much as to use pieces for making nests. They have some other bad habits, too. They drive song birds away, by robbing their nests and attacking their young. And many of them besides being very dirty are diseased, and for that reason are not safe to touch or to have about.

There are two sides to the squirrel question like most other questions. And when you are a little older you will understand, even if you do not already, that it is not strange that people who have had their gardens and houses injured by these little animals, which of course do not know any better, are not as fond of them as you are. Lots of people like the same things; but somehow people who make pets of squirrels and rabbits seldom have nice gardens.

Suppose you had a canary bird and I had a cat. And then suppose my cat ate up your canary bird, and kept on eating them up just as fast as you got them. Wouldn't you almost think killing too good for such a bad cat? Of course awnings and vegetables and fruit are not canary birds. And squirrels are not cats. Still, something must be done to save the houses and gardens.

And so, if there is no other way to stop squirrels behaving like rats and other pests; perhaps it would be right to let people shoot them. But they could do this only on their own property. Nobody could give anyone the right to go around Plainfield with a gun and shoot squirrels on another's property without his consent. On the other hand, as I have told you, you may lose your right to protect your own squirrels if you let them go uninvited into other people's houses, especially as you may be just a little to blame for their bad manners.

Nothing will be done until we feel that we know what is wise and just. Perhaps everyone who has tame squirrels will be willing to catch them and set them free in the country, and stop encouraging others. Or perhaps somebody will come along and suggest a practical way, without shooting some of them, to send the rest scampering off into the woods and hills, where I think it really was intended that they should live.

Yours sincerely,
LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

URGES RETURN OF THE POSTAL CARDS

Board of Trade Anxious to Learn Sentiment of People on Consolidation.

Owing to the absence of a quorum the Board of Trade held no meeting Wednesday as intended. Only three members had arrived up to a half hour after the time for calling the meeting to order.

Since the last meeting 1,000 return postcards have been mailed to residents of the city to ascertain the sentiments relative to consolidation with North Plainfield. Many of the cards have been returned but the Board is anxious to hear from the remainder and the secretary wishes to urge all who received the cards to indicate whether they are in favor of or opposed to the consolidation proposition and return the same to the secretary. The cards are ready for mailing and all that is necessary is write the word "yes" or "no" as indicated, sign the cards and drop it in a letter box.

If there is a strong sentiment shown the Common Council will be petitioned to call a special election, but if the opposition is shown to be the stronger no action will be taken.

Coats, $38.50

Only at Wanamaker's, for this sale from beginning to end has been carried out in a typically Wanamaker way.

The mere fact that prices are lower than those asked for equal quality anywhere in New York is not the main feature.

The Big Facts Are:

1. Majority of the suits and coats are trimmed with furs, real furs (beaver, nutria, skunk opossum, raccoon, etc.) bought many months ago before the advance in prices. Some of the furs were locked in a trunk to keep them from makers who offered to buy them at an advance. Thick, soft, beautiful, durable pelts, worth from 15 to 50 per cent. more than the day they were bought.

2. Every fabric is selected and bought by us with the help of our fabric expert. Not in job lots of undesirable colors, but in selected fashionable colors for which we paid a higher price by the yard.

3. The fashions are new, the latest youthful, graceful styles. Every garment is the copy of a higher-priced model. In one case a $97.50 suit has been reproduced.

4. All the 6,000 garments were made to our order. Sometimes a sample was sent back to the tailors four and five times so that style and workmanship would be quite perfect.

We can describe this sale no better than by saying that it is equivalent to offering our own regular first-class selected stock at sale prices.

Young women will realize its difference from the conventional sales of odd lots picked up here and there from manufacturers.

And Unraveled Her Day's Weaving.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Penelope Kept Faith With Odysseus.

"IF you children would like another Greek story I know one," said daddy, taking Evelyn on his lap, while Jack sat on a little stool.

"We almost like Greek stories best of all!" they cried.

"One of the brave Greeks who fought in the Trojan war with Achilles was Odysseus. His wife was a beautiful girl from Sparta, one of the splendid Greek cities, and when he went off to Troy he left her with a little son, Telemachus, alone at home. Now, Penelope was very fond of her husband and waited faithfully for his return. But after the war ended, ten years afterward, he still did not come back, so that many of his neighbors and friends believed he had been killed in battle. Now, Odysseus was a very rich man and owned beautiful fields and a palace where his wife and little boy lived. When he still did not return and nobody heard from him other Greeks came to the palace, begging Penelope to choose some one of them as her husband. As the time went on and she would not make up her mind to marry anybody, these Greeks began to live on her property, wasting her goods, begging for her love, while her son, Telemachus, was too young to defend either his father's palace or his mother's peace."

"How old was he?" asked Jack.

"About fourteen years old. Finally, as the beautiful Penelope had to give these men some excuse for not marrying, she said that she must first finish weaving a shroud for Odysseus' very old father, who now lived with her. Then to get rid of them, each night she raveled out what she had woven that day, so that the shroud never did get finished and her lovers never did win her."

"She loved her husband very much, didn't she?" said Evelyn.

"Then one night after everybody in the old palace was supposed to be asleep Penelope softly crept out of her bed, felt her way to her loom and unraveled all her day's weaving. But one person in the palace was as wide awake as Penelope. One of her maids spied upon her and betrayed her and the secret of the unfinished shroud to the Greek lovers. Of course, they were very angry and roughly told Penelope that she must decide to marry one of them at once, when home came Odysseus, who drove them all out of his palace and lived there with his beautiful wife who was so faithful to him and his fine young son, glad and happy to be back home after so many years of war and long travels," daddy finished.

"Some night will you please tell us another Greek story, daddy?" begged Evelyn, who always hated to have stories end.

"If somebody gave me a big hug I might," said daddy.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS DAN LEONARD

Dr. Ellson Proves Himself a Real Friend in Need.

"Hello, Sutner," called Dr. Ellson, bringing his machine up to the curb. "I'm going your way. Climb in."

"Thank you, Doctor; this looks good to me." John climbed into the empty seat and leaned back luxuriously.

"Man, you are looking tired. A bookkeeper has to take a lot of exercise in the open to keep in condition. I am afraid you have not been doing it," said the doctor, as the machine started off.

Sutner smiled drearily. "Work, even inside work, is not what kills a man; it's worry. If you doctors could find something to cure that you would be real benefactors of the race." The doctor noticed that there was a drawn look about the mouth and circles under the eyes.

"Oh, we prescribe for that, all right; the trouble is nobody will take our medicine," he laughed.

"Meaning?" Sutner looked up inquiringly.

"It's not my formula, but it is a good one.

"'Don't fret about what you can't help, for it will do no good.

"'Don't fret about what you can help, but go to work and help it.'" He smiled brightly in the young man's face.

"Anybody but a doctor or a maker of maxims would see that in 'going to work to help it,' you must do a lot of planning and balancing of ups and downs, that most people call worrying. Besides, nobody likes to own himself defeated and after reason tells him there is no way out of his dilemma, he keeps going over the throws of his evil fate trying to believe he has missed some little opening that would serve as a loophole of escape." Sutner's smile was not free from bitterness.

"Probably the needed loophole is some friend whom he has forgotten or has failed to tell of his dilemma." The doctor smiled kindly into the troubled face.

"I am poor in friends as well as in money," sighed Sutner, looking dismally down the road.

"Look here," said the doctor, turning the machine down a side street leading to the country. "You are in some kind of trouble. We will take a little spin in the country, and you tell me about it. Perhaps I can help you out. Anyway the ride will do you good."

"You are very kind. I appreciate it more than I can say, for I have been very lonely these last months. But my story would not interest anyone. It is too sordid. There are no high lights in it; just common every day pinch and mismanagement. They always spell snarling creditors."

"The only way out of that hole is systematic saving that will enable you to nibble the edge of your debt and finally wear it away." The pause was unbroken by Sutner, so the doctor went on.

"When I first started to practice I had a good dose of pinching, I can assure you. I wanted to put out the sign, 'Small fevers thankfully received.' But I never went in debt because I cared too much for my comfort to do the necessary worrying. I went hungry instead one or two days." He chuckled reminiscently.

"You were wise. I wish I had," said Sutner gloomily.

"Now that I am past the squeezing point, let me throw you a rope." He slapped Sutner on the back.

Sutner sat up with a jolt and stared at the man at his side.

"You don't know what you are proposing," he exclaimed. "I haven't a thing to offer as security that would bring five dollars under the hammer."

"You have your honest face," replied the doctor, smiling.

"My honest face!" repeated the man. "Jaynes says a man is not honest who lives off of other people by not paying his debts."

"In that case I'd lend them. I will lend you enough to pay the most churlish of them. You have had your lesson so I am not afraid you will stay under the yoke of debt longer than necessary."

"If you would lend me fifty dollars to keep my wages from being garnisheed, I think I could manage the rest some way." There was a flush of delighted surprise on his face as he wrung the doctor's hand.

INVESTING IN CHILE.

Well known American business firms have for some time been making large investments in various Latin American countries, particularly in mining enterprises in South America. Among the enterprises enumerated by the Passaic Herald in a recent issue are the Armour packing plants in Argentina; the Dupont nitrate mines in Chile; the Bethlehem Steel Company's immense iron mines near Coquimbo, Chile; the Morgan interests in the Cerroede Pasco Copper Company's mines in Peru; the Braden Copper Company's extensive copper plant at Rancagua near Santiago, Chile, and last, but perhaps greatest of all, the Guggenheim corporation, known as the Chile Exploration Company, now completing the gigantic copper industry at Chuquicamata, near the town of Calama, on the Antofagasta Railway.

The mineral region of Chuquicamata is situated in the barren Chilean "pampa," 150 miles from the port of Antofagasta, at an altitude of 9,500 feet, and forty miles from the snow-capped peaks of the Andes. Numerous mining and engineering problems presented themselves, some on account of the character of the ore and others on account of the location. The electrolytic process for obtaining the copper being decided upon, a tremendous amount of electrical power was required. Owing to the scarcity of rivers or water from any source in this immediate section, it was found necessary to build a power plant on the coast at Tocopilla and to carry the power of 110,000 volts by a transmission line of 100 miles in length to the mill site at Chuquicamata.

The mining camp is said to be a model of its kind. Careful attention has been giving to the living conditions and accommodations of the employes. There are now about 350 North Americans and Europeans and more than 3,000 natives housed on the property. To meet the question of sanitation efficiency the company secured the services of one of General Gorges' staff at Panama. Policing is done by a company of carbineros, the mounted police of Chile, who have quarters at the camp. Many plans have been laid for the betterment of camp life. It has been a daring enterprise, but the plant stands today a complete success, a new departure in the production of copper, a model mining camp, and one of the greatest copper producing industries of the world.

THE NOTT ENGINE DEAL.

Plainfield has loaded the Nott fire engine sent here sometime ago onto a flat car and sent it back from whence it came with the bald statement that it did not come up to specifications. While this information carried in the news columns of the Press yesterday may cause a breath of interest among taxpayers generally, but few of them realize the amount of money that has been saved the public fund by careful consideration of this one article. It was first offered to the city for a sum close to $8,000, and looked like a bargain, but investigation upon the part of city officials brought out defects. With each new discovery came a corresponding reduction in cost until finally the city decided that the engine would not be a good investment at any price. With becoming modesty the attention of taxpayers might be called to the fact that the Press was the first to print the statement that the engines had proven a failure in other cities and that the Nott Fire Engine Company had stopped the manufacture of this type of fire engines because the article was inferior. The Press is proud of its part in this deal, and taxpayers should be proud of the part played by city officials.

SEAMEN'S LAW IN EFFECT.

The new national seamen's law, generally glorified by its advocates and specifically damned by its opponents, went into effect yesterday on all ships under the American flag on the oceans and Great Lakes. Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and others who backed the law in its passage through Congress claim that it gives the folk who go down in ships to the sea a squarer deal and goes far toward relieving seamen and shipping from the thraldom of medieval economic abuses. Its opponents, on the other hand, claim that the "unreasonable" burdens cast by it upon ship owners will compel the already dwindling merchant marine of the United States to furl its sails and silently drift into harbors of rot. Only time can tell whether or not it will work for the best interest of the country, but it has the virtue of having been intended to benefit a class of working men who have suffered long without the right of appeal.

Two hundred dollars for a kiss was paid to Lilian Greuze, the prettiest nurse in France, by a fellow-passenger on the French liner Rochambeau which arrived yesterday, says a New York report.

"Little Pal" provides Mary Pickford with one of the most unique roles in which she has ever been presented. In addition today there will be several other comedies and dramas of splendid quality. Tomorrow "The Spender," a gripping production by the Pathe Company, will be exhibited, with George Probert in the leading character. Probert achieved one of the dramatic hits of last season when he played a leading part in "The Lure."

Provoking

Can there be aught that more provokes a man
Than to be sitting at his desk, engaged
With some deep-laid and business-getting plan
By which his bad-trade-grief might be assuaged—
Sitting like that—we'll leave details to you—
When all at once the telephone breaks out
In one long ring as if 'twould ne'er be through,
And you grab up the dinkus while you shout
'Hellah! Hel-LAH!'—to hear, like gentle breeze,
Fair Central's voice: "Wrong number. 'Scuse me, please."

Matter Of Religion

The man had been talking two hours, and his audience had gradually dwindled down to a few.

The weary ones on the nearby park benches were trying to sleep despite the oratorical noise.

"Where shall I go," wailed the orator, "to get my rights—where shall I go to get justice?"

"You tell 'im, Bill," said one of the bench-warmers. "I'm a Universalist."

Crackers

Crackers are divided into two general classes: Fire and edible.

Nobody eats firecrackers except goats.

Kids are very fond of firecrackers, also.

Edible crackers are divided into a great many classes, none of which the advertising department will allow us to name.

One popular kind of cracker makes a fine corner-stone for a welsh rabbit.

A welsh rabbit founded upon one of that kind of crackers is a mighty temporary structure.

In England crackers are called biscuits.

They do that for the same reason they call pies, tarts.

If English people lived in this country and ate more pie they would not have had war declared against them by anybody.

Piety and peace go hand in hand.

Bent's water crackers are to be used next year as armor for submarines. They are called Bent because they can't be.

These are eaten at with various kinds of cheese.

And when one of these crackers has been toasted, it is no delicacy to offer to a toothless man, except as a souvenir.

A toothless person can never be called a crackerjack.

A Letter From the Czar

Underthebedovitch, October 15—Dear Offaginsky—I had more bad news from my army yesterday. A report came to my ears that the boys had been getting rough with Von Hindenberg's party. This in spite of my careful teachings in hospitality. I had told them to remember always that we had plenty more towns and all the trenches anybody wanted to dig, but that we couldn't have a new Von Hindenberg every day. I must get word to the front of the German army, which is in the immediate vicinity of our rear, to pass the word along to any of our boys that they overtake, that this rough stuff must be cut out. Somebody will get hurt one of these days and then who would tell his mother?

Hoping you will make this explanation public, so as to clear my skirts of any intended violence, I am, yours for more speed,

Nick Romanoff.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Nature Of Diabetes

DIABETES is a condition in which the body fails to metabolize, or utilize in the normal way, glucose, the blood sugar derived from sugar, starch and possibly other food elements.

It occurs at all ages, more often in males, sometimes running in families, is probably more frequent among the well-to-do classes, and it is certainly very frequent among Hebrews and very rare among Negroes.

The disease may be experimentally produced by removing a portion of the pancreas, or "sweetbread," of an animal. Studies of such animals have already taught physicians how to cure most cases of diabetes, as we shall explain in a later talk. The pancreas, in health, supplies to the intestinal canal several ferments, one of which converts sugars and starches into glucose or blood sugar. The pancreas also supplies to the blood an "internal secretion" which is essential for the utilization of blood sugar for the needs of the body.

Diabetes is now believed to be due to some inherent or acquired defect of the internal secretion function of the pancreas. For some unknown reason the cells of the pancreas which elaborate the internal secretion fail to do their work thoroughly.

Rapid advance in our knowledge of the ductless glands (pituitary at base of brain, thyroid in neck, suprarenal capping each kidney, spleen, and in one sense, the pancreas itself) is being made these days through laboratory and animal experimentation. And among other advantages accruing to the human race from these investigations we are now able to number the practical control of diabetes in the majority of cases. In the near future it is quite possible that we shall witness the conquest of this hitherto baffling disease.

Before we take up our readers' queries let us utter just one of those unorthodox slanders for which this contumacious column is so infamous. Which of the "new schools," the non-medical systems of healing in modern times, has given the world a great invention that has met with universal acceptance as a remedy or a prophylactic against any particular disease? Which has produced a Pasteur, a Lister, a Carrel, a Koch, a Flexner or a Crile?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Baby Should Have No Tea

Our baby, seventeen months old, takes milk, tea and sugar, but does not seem to gain weight. Please advise me what to feed him.

Answer—Stop the tea till he is at least twelve years old. Give him oatmeal gruel, meat broths, milk, rice and fruit juices.

Hot Air

Here's a question you ought to be able to answer definitely, writes E. W. K. cryptically. Which is more hygienic for a dwelling, steam heat or hot air?

Answer—Hot air, of course. A steam heating plant works best when ventilation is a wee bit below qualifications. A warm air plant is most effective when ventilation is perfect.

Chilblains

Please tell me what to do to prevent and relieve chilblains.

Answer—Send in your stamped, addressed envelope for letter of advice.

Vest Pocket Essays

WEALTH

WEALTH is a rare and blissful condition of man, in which he doesn't care what happens to the cost of living. It is the most delightful form of arithmetic known. You subtract expenses from income and have anything from a pianola to a trip to Europe left over.

Just how much the remainder will be, depends on the locality, however. In New Hampshire a man is wealthy if he doesn't have to chop his own wood. In North Dakota a man is wealthy if he has to buy an automobile in order to ride down to his barn at milking time.

In France a man is wealthy if he has a stocking full of money. In Ireland a man is wealthy if he has any stocking at all.

In Arkansas a man is wealthy if he can buy store tobacco. In New York City a man isn't really wealthy until the department of justice has held a special session on him.

In America it is more popular to be wealthy than it is to be wise or healthy or good or famous. This is because it is very easy to become wealthy in this country. It is so easy that a great many people who are strictly honest get wealthy in spite of themselves. But it is still easier the other way.

Some people achieve wealth by saving their money; some by making it impossible for the other fellow to save his. Some get wealthy by inventing new machines; others by inventing new evasions. Some get wealthy by guesswork on the Board of Trade; others prefer cinch methods with a City Council. In Iowa men get wealthy by growing two ears of corn where only one grew before. In New York men achieve the same result by planting flat buildings on last year's cornfields.

Wealth is so highly esteemed that a great many people trade their stomachs for it. Others trade their nervous systems, their vacations,

In France a man is wealthy if he has a stocking full of money their baseball games and their reputations for it. Wealth enables a man to stop worrying about rent day and the price of coal; on the other hand it makes him worry about Congress, the bank reserve, the tax levy, the meanness of the attorney-general, the price of automobile tires and the continued good health of T. Roosevelt.

In fact, there are so many worries connected with wealth, that it would hardly be worth having if it were not for two things—the envy of our friends and the fact that we don't have to envy them.

Views Of The Press

Soldiers That Reason Why

THE German War Office recently published a copy of an order issued by General Joffre to the French troops ten days before the great allied offensive on the western front was launched. The order was found on the bodies of dead soldiers and was published by the Berlin Government to show that the Allies were making a supreme effort in their desperate drive. It was intended to give the impression that, if that effort failed, the Allies might be known to have "shot their bolt." But the publication of this order to the French soldiers serves a still better purpose, for it is a compliment to the intelligence of the rank and file in France. It indicates that the Frenchman will fight better if he knows what he is fighting for.

General Joffre's order dwelt upon the self-sacrificing spirit of the French soldier. It should be cultivated, he urged, by allowing him to understand the movements in which he participates. "It is, therefore, necessary," his instructions continued, "that officers of all grades from to-day onward explain to their subordinates the favorable conditions under which the next attack of the French forces will be conducted."

It was then specified that an abundance of ammunition had been provided, the number of machine and field guns doubled. The great English army, long awaited, had at last arrived, while the Germans had weakened their western line by drawing troops away from the campaign in Russia.

A similar order made public later in Paris, heroically addressed to "The Soldiers of the Republic," announced that the great offensive would begin on September 25 and that it would continue night and day until the final triumph. The slogan was to be "Remember the Marne!"

These efforts to inspire courage and determination in the French soldiers by giving them a knowledge of the situation tends to show that they are something more than mere automatons. Evidently there has been some slight change, at least, in the fighting-man type since Tennyson described the soldiers of the Crimean war in his familiar lines from "The Charge of the Light Brigade":

"Theirs not to reason why—
Theirs but to do and die."

People's Legal Friend

BY E. R. BRANSON

An Eight-Hour Day

Q. Is there a law in the state of Indiana limiting the number of hours a man may work who is responsible for other men's lives? Is there a law stating how many twelve-hour days a man thus employed may work consecutively?

A. The Indiana law has various provisions with reference to labor. One of them is: "Eight hours shall constitute a legal day's work for all classes of mechanics, workingmen and laborers, excepting those engaged in agricultural or domestic labor, but overwork for an extra compensation by agreement between employer and employee is hereby permitted." The law says, also: "No person under sixteen years of age, and no female under eighteen years of age, employed in any manufacturing or mercantile establishment, laundry, renovating works, bakery or printing office shall be required, permitted or suffered to work therein more than sixty hours in any one week, nor more than ten hours in any one day, unless for the purpose of making a shorter day on the last day of the week, nor more hours in any one week than will make an average of ten hours per day for the whole number of days which such person or such female shall so work during such week." There are further provisions as to posting notices with reference to the number of hours and as to the employment of children and women, and there are still other provisions with respect to dangerous machinery and with reference to safeguarding health and personal security.

The Ladies' Shares

Q. A man residing in the state of California dies and leaves no will, and he has a child by his first wife. What part will she receive and what part will the second wife receive—the one he was living with at the time of his death? And will the first wife receive anything at all? She has the child with her and is living in the state of Missouri.

A. In view of the fact that there is some conflict in the authorities, and in view of the further fact that your question is not sufficiently explicit, an answer thereto cannot take a positive form. It may be said in general, however, that the doctrine of community property prevails in California and it has been held that the wife "has no proprietary right during marriage, and, on her husband's death, takes her moiety by inheritance." Upon divorce, the wife takes title to one-half the common property. A valid marriage is a prerequisite and there are varying statutory provisions. Among other things, the statute provides that "upon the death of the husband, one half of the common property goes to the surviving wife and the other half is subject to the testamentary disposition of the husband (that is, a disposition of it by will) and, in the absence of such disposition, goes to the descendants equally, if such descendants are in the same degree of kindred."

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

Settle It

Deal in Definites. Know the time and Place of Things. And build upon them. Do not allow Indefinites and Misunderstandings and Misjudgments to crumble away your efficiency, put streaks of darkness into your Happiness and stick crutches underneath your arms. Deal in Definites.

Settle It.

How many of us remember the story in one of our first school readers of the Old Gray Rat whose Decision could not be brought into play as he meditated all alone in that old tumbledown barn, not knowing whether he ought to leave or stay. Every other rat had left, fearing calamity, but this Old Gray Rat stayed and stayed until finally the building collapsed, crushing and burying him in its ruins.

Settle It.

If your Mind is Unsettled, if your Positives and Negatives are brought together in deteriorating conflict, there is nothing under the sun that can make you valuable to yourself and to other people, excepting to Settle, once for all, in one way or other, the trouble that causes the friction. You can't work Positively when something Negative is gnawing at your vitals. Resolve to—Settle It.

It Couldn't Be Done

Somebody said that it couldn't be done,
But he, with a chuckle, replied
That "maybe it couldn't," but he would be one
Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried.
So he buckled right in, with the trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried, he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that,
At least no one ever has done it."
But he took off his coat and he took off his hat,
And the first thing we knew he'd begun it;
With the lift of his chin, and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting or quibbling;
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done,
There are thousands to prophesy failure;
There are thousands to point out to you, one by one,
The dangers that wait to assail you;
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin,
Then take off your coat and go to it;
Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing
That "cannot be done," and you'll do it.

SAFEGUARDING THE MEAT SUPPLY

Fully 60 Per Cent. of Animals Slaughtered Under Federal Inspection.

MANY ARE CONDEMNED

More Than 32,644 Carcasses of Cattle and 60,000 Carcasses of Swine Rejected Because of Tuberculosis—Heavy Loss From Hog Cholera.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—More than 58,000,000 meat animals were slaughtered in establishments under Federal inspection during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915. Since approximately from 58 to 60 per cent. of the animals killed in the country are slaughtered in establishments where Federal inspection is maintained, it appears that about 100,000,000 meat animals are now being killed each year in the United States.

Of the animals subjected to Federal inspection 299,958 were condemned as unfit for human use, and 644,688 were condemned in part. Thus a little more than 1½ per cent. of all the animals inspected were condemned either in whole or in part. These figures include only cattle, calves, sheep, goats and swine.

Tuberculosis was the chief cause of the condemnations. More than 32,644 carcasses of cattle and 66,000 carcasses of swine were entirely rejected on account of this disease, and in addition parts of 48,000 cattle and 440,000 swine. Hog cholera was responsible for the next largest loss, nearly 102,000 swine being condemned entirely on this account.

The annual appropriation for the Federal Meat Inspection Service is now about $3,375,000, so that the cost to the people would be between 5 and 6 cents per animal if the service was confined entirely to the inspection of the animals and carcasses. In addition, however, great quantities of the meat and produces are reinspected. In this item there was a very considerable increase during the last fiscal year, the reinspection resulting in the condemnation of a total of nearly 19,000,000 pounds of products of one kind or another. Furthermore, 245,000,000 pounds of imported meat or meat products were inspected and more than 2,000,000 pounds condemned or refused entry.

In the course of its work, the Bureau of Animal Industry, which is in charge of the meat inspection service, has discovered a new method of destroying trichinae in pork, which is an additional safeguard to human health. Refrigeration at a temperature of 5 degrees, F., or lower, for a period of 20 days will destroy these parasites which occasionally give rise in human beings to the serious disease kown as trichinosis. Hitherto the only known safeguard against this disease has been thorough cooking of all pork and pork products and those persons who neglect this precaution have always been more or less exposed to the danger. Unless pork is known to have been subjected to refrigeration as above indicated it should be thoroughly cooked. The microscopic examination of pork for the detection of trichinae has been abandoned as the usual methods have proved inefficient.

HOLDS MUNICIPALITY CANNOT ENFORCE FACT STATE WAIVES

Trenton, Nov. 5.—That a municipality as a creature of the Legislature cannot enforce a contract waived by the Legislature, is the substance of an opinion of the Supreme Court by Justice Parker dismissing the appeal of the borough of Norh Wildwood and Annie Taylor, a resident of the municipality, from the order of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners fixing a rate of thirty cents per thousand gallons for water supplied by the Wildwood Water Works Company. The order of the Board was in fact, the extension to North Wildwood, of a rate previously approved for Wildwood.

The order was attacked upon the ground that North Wildwood has entered into a contract with the company under which water was to be furnished at a lower rate, namely, twenty-five cents a thousand gallons, with a minimum charge of $10 a year. It was contended that the Public Utility Commissioners could not abrogate this contract without consent of the contratcing parties, which had not been given. In showing that, while the contract might be enforced by the water company, though not by the city, Justice Parker said:

"While the municipality itself has not assented to a change in rate, the State, its creator and parent, has done so through a specially constituted agency. If the water company was here complaining that its contract rights were being impaired, a different question would be presented, but the contract right of one of the State's creatures may be waived by the creator."

—It there's a new owner in charge of the little store down the street, the chances are that a "Business Opportunity" advertisement has been "at work."

MANY SUFFER FROM PHYSICAL DISABILITY

National Tuberculosis Ass'n Makes Plea for Examination Day.

In a plea for every man and woman in the United States of adult age to join in a movement for annual or other periodic medical examination of themselves, which will be launched on December 8, The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis presents figures in a Bulletin just issued which shows that practically 100 per cent. of the supposedly well people of the United States over 30 years of age have some physical defect or impairment. About 70 per cent. of these impairments were of a more or less serious nature. There were besides about 3 per cent. of defects of a minor character.

The figures which the National Association presents are based upon the careful studies recently made by the Life Extension Institute among two highly specialized groups of people, the first group consisting of workers in the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, and the second group consisting of employes of commercial houses, banks and trust companies in New York. The records of these examinations show that practically none of those examined, men and women, are normal in the strict sense of the word. Another striking fact in the examination is that only 10 per cent. of those who were impaired were aware that there was anything the matter with them. This fact alone, the National Tuberculosis Association points out, is sufficient to make every man and woman in the United States give careful consideration to the necessity for at least one physical inventory of his entire body a year.

The largest group of more or less serious impairments discovered were those showing sugar, albumen or casts in the urine. More than 45 per cent. of the above-mentioned groups showed defects of this nature. In the same groups about 23 per cent showed abnormal blood pressure while nearly 27 per cent. showed combined disturbances of circulation and kidneys. Organic heart disease thickened arteries, lung trouble leading to possible tuberculosis, nervous affections, digestive troubles and venereal disease were among the other impairments discovered, practically all of which had escaped the notice of the individuals examined.

During Tuberculosis Week which will be celebrated throughout the United States from December 6 to December 12, a national medical examination day will be observed on Dec. 8. Groups and individuals will be urged to make arrangements for physical examination on that day. A circular describing in detail how the advantages of medical examination day may be obtained and indicating certain physical impairments which everyone should look for will be sent on request from the office of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East 22d street, New York city.

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

The fitting of American youth for their life work is today recognized as the advance step in modern education. The interest in this rapidly developing phase of education leads to the expectation that all sections of the country will be represented at the annual convention of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, at Minneapolis in January. To prepare the way for the convention a survey committee meets at Minneapolis this week. Among the leaders in the movement are Charles R. Richards, director of Cooper Institute, New York; Dr. Leonard Ayers, head of the provisional education bureau of the Russell Sage Foundation, and Dr. Mary Woolman, specialist in the industrial work of women.

What an American boy or girl will do to gain an education is exemplified in the report of student earnings at Columbia University. Some of them who mastered the new dances turned their ability into teaching dancing classes. Others skilled in tennis gave lessons. Tending furnaces to earn their bread and butter was a common occupation last year among the students. Hospitals found that many were only too willing to spare their blood for transfusion, at thirty dollars an ounce. The role of waiter was assumed by not a few, and many a restaurant had its dishes washed by those who thirsted for knowledge.

SEVEN COMMUNITIES "DRY."

Collingswood, Nov. 5.—Licenses Tuesday were barred from Collingswood, Haddonfield, Haddon Heights, Audobon, Oaklyn, Westmont and Haddon township for two more years by what probably was the largest vote ever polled on this issue, which is submitted biennially under a law enacted in 1873. In this borough, of 1,200 votes cast, only 60 favored license, and the proportion was almost as large in the other boroughs. In spite of an effort by the liquor interests to change the condition of affairs.

THE TEST OF THE "PINCH."

There are few things you buy and use which are not fairly good—until the "pinch" comes.

But when that pinch comes—when you want satisfaction what a difference there is in service.

We have come to the rescue so often, when the pinch comes, that it isn't strange this office has so many friends.

BOY SCOUTS ARE INVITED TO ATTEND

Will Listen to Address by Former Mayor Stewart on Experiences at Camp.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the address to be delivered to patriotic Plainfielders on Thursday evening, November 11, at the Plainfield High School by former Mayor Percy H. Stewart, on his experiences in the Plattsburgh training camp, have invited the boy scouts of Plainfield and vicinity to be present on that occasion with all the members of the scout council. Two uniformed scouts from each troop in the city have been called for to serve as ushers and general attendants on that evening and to serve as a special guard of honor for the speaker.

Scoutmasters are asked to pick for this service scouts who have distinguished themselves either at the recent championship competition or through some especially meritorious service, handing the names of the scouts selected to the district deputy commissioners who will forward them to the commissioner at the earliest possible moment. Selections should be in the commissioner's hands so that a report of the selections made can be rendered to the scout council Monday evening.

Scoutmasters have been especially urged to have their troops present at this address because it has especial interest to boy scouts as well as helpful to scoutmasters. Scoutmasters sending in an estimate of the probable number of scouts that will be able to attend will have reservations made for them. No admission fee will be charged.

Buyers Are Found by Advertising—Because They Are Opportunity-Hunters!

If you have something to sell—real estate, personal property of any sort—there's a buyer for it. You don't know who he is, or where he is. You'd be helpless in trying to locate him—but for the fact that he is trying to locate you!

For buyers are opportunity-seekers. And they have learned that the Plainfield Daily Press classified columns are "the Happy Hunting Grounds" for opportunities. Thus, when your "ad" starts upon its quest it meets the man for whom it was written—also up on his quest. And that's how "results" follow classified advertising.

—There's a job for you—if you have a good head and willing hands and feet. But you must advertise yourself into the job.

SOMEBODY MADE A BIG BLUNDER

Councilman Stahl Criticizes Plans for West End Avenue Work.

NEARLY EXPOSE SEWER

Engineer Wheeler Before Borough Council to Discuss Plans for Filling of Roadway up to Bridge—Current Bills Amount to $3,770.94.

That somebody made a big blunder a year ago when plans for sewer work and the West End avenue bridge construction were adopted in the Borough of North Plainfield, was declared in the Borough Common Council last night by Councilman Julius J. Stahl.

Mr. Stahl's comment came during a discussion with Engineer Wheeler of the George W. Fuller Construction Company, of plans for fills leading up to the bridge. There is a sewer pipe close to the surface of the roadway on Rockview avenue which runs up to the bridge and through the parapet wall. It was suggested that the roadway be filled up to this bridge and Mr. Wheeler said that he would prepare plans and estimates for the work. He was called in by members of the Council in order that the improvement might be made at once, as there is less than a month of weather yet in which such work may be done. Mayor-elect Smalley, who attended the meeting, and was invited by Mayor Clark to sit with him in the chair, called the attention of members of the Council to the fact that the contract with the construction company called for the filling of this roadway to an even grade up to both ends of the bridge. There was no definite decision on the matter, but it will be worked out in the next few days and work started in time to cover up the pipe and surface the roadway before cold weather sets in.

Bills amounting to $3,770.94 for the month of October were approved by the finance committee and ordered paid by the council. These amounts were distributed as follows: Police, $560.50; fire, $257.91; hydrants (rent for year), $1,440.

Sewer expenses for the month of October as approved was: Harrison company, $6,819.34; Frank Puglin $7,764.55; Engineer Fuller, $1,029.45; sewer inspection, $634.29.

A policy insuring for $1,000 all fixtures, maps, furniture and books in the city building at 191-93 Somerset street, used as a fire hall and Council chamber, was received and referred to the finance committee for examination before being filed.

A deed from the Washington Park Realty Company for ground for the pumping station that had been approved by attorneys and recorded was received and ordered filed.

A letter from Mrs. George F. Brown, widow of the late tax collector, expressing her appreciation for the resolution upon the death of her husband, was received and filed.

An advance of $200 was allowed on the poor account.

On resolution of the finance committee the budget allowance for the shade tree commission, amounting to $250, was ordered paid.

Engineer Wheeler reported that sewer work on Grove street was being held up by a big pile of dirt in the middle of the street. The Board of Freeholders will be requested to move this.

The Council went into executive session for the transaction of unknown business after the above matters were considered.

VETERAN BORO GROCER TO RETIRE FROM BUSINESS

J. K. Arnold, for thirty-five years a merchant on Somerset street in the borough of North Plainfield, will retire from business within a short time.

Mr. Arnold is in the grocery business at 92 Somerset street. He was elected tax collector of the borough in the election of November 2 and will assume his duties January 1. Before that time he will dispose of his business and devote his full time to the borough office. Mr. Arnold first began as a borough merchant in 1885. He was then where the Chatham Hotel is now located on Somerset street, and has been on that street since. He fills the unexpired term of the late George F. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Mali, of Plainfield and New York, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eva Mali, to David Chester Noyes, of New York, son of Mrs. David W. Noyes, of Boston.

Miss Mali, who made her debut last year, is a younger sister of Miss Gertrude Mali. She is a member of the Junior League, of New York, and appeared last winter in several of the entertainments given for charity. Her father, who is Belgian Consul General, has been the head of the Belgian relief work in New York, and his daughters have aided him.

Mrs. Mali was Miss Frances Johnston, daughter of the late John Taylor Johnston, who was the first president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and also president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Miss Mali is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Johnston, and a cousin of Mrs. William H. Appleton.

MYRTON E. GLOVER WEDS MISS HOWARTH

Rev. W. I. Steans Officiates at the Home of Bride's Parents in Westfield.

Miss Florence Howarth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Howarth, of Mountain avenue, Westfield, and Myrton E. Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Glover, of West Fifth street, this city, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. W. I. Steans, of the Westfield Presbyterian church. Miss Mary Clark, a cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and Melville Roseberry, of this city, was best man. The flower girls were the Misses Harriet and Marjorie Howarth, sisters of the bride, and the ushers were Eric Miller, of this city, and George Howarth, a brother of the bride.

Immediately following the wedding the newlyweds were tendered a reception, many guests from this city being in attendance. The ceremony was largely attended by friends of the couple from Plainfield, Fanwood, Westfield, Elizabeth and other nearby places. Late in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Glover departed for a wedding trip through New York State. Upon their return they will reside temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Howarth at Westfield.

Both are well-known in this city. Mr. Glover holds a position in the New York office of the New Jersey Central Railroad, and was formerly employed in the local commercial department of the Public Service Corporation. He attended the Plainfield High School and later the Plainfield Business College, from which he was graduated in 1913. The bridegroom is also prominent as an athlete, having been actively identified with Y. M. C. A. basketball teams, and Holy Cross football teams for several years.

The bride is widely acquainted both in this city and Westfield. She attended the Westfield public schools. The couple received numerous handsome and useful gifts, including cut-glass, silverware and linen.

John H. VanWinkle, Jr., of the law firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son, who has been associated with his father in the settlement of the estate of Catharine R. Webster, in answer to a story published in the Plainfield Daily Press on Thursday last, today makes a statement in which he sets forth in detail the progress already made in the matter. He adds that it is his father's intention to select a site for the proposed ladies' home upon which the building will be erected soon afterward. Mr. VanWinkle's statement follows:

"Noticing an article which appeared in your paper under date of November 4, 1915, entitled 'Bequest for Old Ladies' Home,' etc., I take the liberty of replying to the same. I deem it advisable, since your article states only some of the facts pertaining to the estate of Catharine R. TRANSFER STOCK TO ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH

After Thirty-five Years Parishioners Become Owners of Netherwood Property.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Netherwood chapel, organized in 1880, was held last evening at the residence of Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue. Through the generosity of a friend the control of the stock of the chapel on Netherwood Heights was recently purchased by A. G. Hagerdorn and transferred to the vestry of St. Stephen's church, the present occupants of the chapel.

Mr. Bowen resigned his position as secretary which he has held for thirty-five years since the chapel's organization and last evening the records and stock were transferred to the officers of St. Stephen's church, who are now the new owners of the property.

Rev. Henry Mesier, rector of the church, acted as chairman of the stockholders' meeting and Archibald Cox, the secretary. The members of St. Stephen's church are being congratulated in the ownership of the church in which worship has been sustained in recent years.

GARWOOD MAN RELEASED UNDER BONDS OF $1,500

Adolph D. Washburn, of Garwood, whose automobile struck and killed Silas Morgan, of Westfield, at the latter place Thursday afternoon, was taken to Elizabeth yesterday and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Robert L. Eaton to answer to a charge of manslaughter perferred by Chief of Police Rosecrans, of Westfield. Judge James C. Connolly, of the Union county courts, later ordered Washburn's release after $1,500 in bonds had been furnished by Albert J. Beckley, of Westfield.

A sister of the dead man visited the Higgins mortuary in this city and ordered the remains sent to the victim's former home in Dover. Morgan was well known in and about Westfield, where he had worked as a huckster for several years. He was conversing with a group of companions on Central avenue, Westfield, when struck by Washburn's car. The auto owner is a grocer.

SCIENCE BATTLES TO SAVE A LIFE

New Blood Transfusion Process Used to Restore Louise Campbell to Health.

SUCCESS IS PROBABLE

Special Train Brings Specialist to This City to Aid in Fight—Many Persons Volunteer to Give Precious Fluid.

Specialists from this city and New York have been making a desperate attempt during the past week to save the life of Louise Campbell, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan G. Campbell, of 5 White terrace, Newark, by conducting blood transfusion operations as an offset to leukemia, from which the child is suffering following an attack of pneumonia. The disease is almost always fatal.

The child was brought to this city and taken to Muhlenberg Hospital in order that she might be under the constant care of her uncle, Dr. William H. Anthony. The latter is being aided by the highest medical skill in an effort to save the girl's life. Blood transfusion was resorted to this week, the new Lindeman process being used. Dr. Lindeman, the discoverer, was brought to this city for the first time Tuesday night, on a special train so that the operation might be performed with every degree of experience. Thus far the treatment seems to be meeting with considerable success and today the child was reported as "holding her own."

According to the old method of transfusing blood the patient's veins were connected with the radial artery, giving the fluid by means of a rubber tube kept to the proper temperature by a saline solution. This always proved a trying ordeal to both principles. By the Lindeman process the fluid is taken from a healthy person through numerous hypodermics and injected in the patient at various points of the body, with practically no loss and little shock.

Mr. Campbell is connected with the executive department of the New Jersey Central and seven men from his office volunteered blood at the first operation. They were all rejected, however, because of high or low specific gravity and out of five other volunteers only one could be used. This was Dr. William B. Gray, one of the internes at the local hospital, and from whom nearly two pints of the life fluid was taken. The physician was considerably weakened at the end of the ordeal, but his sacrifice brought a wonderful improvement to the patient. Thursday ten more volunteers were examined, but could not be used.

Dr. Lindeman has now resorted to advertisement in metropolitan newspapers to secure the needed blood to carry out his plan. A large number have already responded and will be examined this afternoon. Dr. Gray contributed another quantity of blood yesterday, the amount being small as the physician deemed it unwise to transfuse any more than was absolutely necessary, thus avoiding injury of possible heart shock to the plucky young doctor.

It is said that leukemia is fatal in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred and while the end is not in sight prospects of success with little Miss Campbell are said to be good. The only draw-back now seems to be the supply of blood, although scores of men in various departments of the New Jersey Central have assured Mr. Campbell that they will lend themselves whenever needed. Several local physicians have also announced their willingness to be "hypoed" if the red corpuscles in their veins have the proper specific gravity.

PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS PLAN FOR A BIG DAY

RECREATION FOR MAN NECESSARY

H. C. White Tells Men's Association of Warren Chapel of Its Importance.

REVIEWS WORK HERE

A. E. Estes Gives Inspiring Address on "The Flag of Our Country"—Men Prepare and Serve Supper Without Help of Women.

That man requires and will have recreation, formed the keynote of an interesting and instructive address on "Recreation Needs in Plainfield" at a meeting of the Men's Association of Warren chapel last night by Henry Crofut White, president of the Recreation Committee, of this city. Alfred E. Estes, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spoke on "The Flag of Our Country; Your Flag and Mine."

In opening his remarks Mr. White stated that he wished to make it plain that he did not come to the meeting to preach, but simply to tell of the work of the recreation committee in Plainfield and vicinity. He said that the work here was in its incipiency, yet it had been attended with such good results that a Chautuqua session, which he attended during the past summer, accorded to Plainfield the foremost place in the ranks of cities of its size in work of this sort.

He told of the starting of the work; how they had established municipal dances in the Washington School and now were forming a community center there. In the Washington School they now have public speaking clubs, sewing clubs, edu-

SURPRISE PARTY FOR D. R. CONOVER

Greeted by Large Company of Relatives Upon His Return from the Theatre.

A masquerade birthday surprise was tendered David R. Conover, of 74 Jackson avenue, the borough, at his home, last night, when more than fifty relatives and friends joined in wishing him many happy returns of the day. Upon his return home from one of the local theatres about 9 o'clock, Mr. Conover's entrance was greeted with shouts of surprise from the large number of masked figures. A grand march followed, during which each attendant unmasked before the guest of honor. The costumes in many cases were decidedly original and grotesque. Gypsy queens, cowgirls, cowboys, Mexicans, ghosts, hoboes, clowns, Yama Yama girls, "counts" and many others were included. Probably the most amusing costume worn by one of the women present was a representative suffragist. Her gown of white was decorated with numerous clippings, from newspapers, while her hat and dress were trimmed with yellow cloth. She carried a yellow banner. The handsomest costume worn by the young men present was voted to Charles Bowman, who impersonated a Mexican cavalier. The rooms were attractively decorated throughout, yellow and black crepe paper, foliage, cornstalks, and chrysanthemums being used in large numbers. Jack-o'-lanterns peeped out from many little nooks while the dim lights gave the scene an atmosphere of mystery.

The evening was pleasantly spent, games, vocal and instrumental selections being enjoyed. Music for dancing was provided by an orchestra composed of the following: Piano, Miss Marguerite Kress, of Brooklyn; drums and cymbals, Robert B. Hartshorn, and violin, Benjamin Berse. Vocal selections were given by Miss Marguerite Kress, Benjamin Berse, Alexander Dresselt and Howard Dentz.

A feature of the occasion was the telling of fortunes, Princess Zaza, an Egyptian girl, revealing to many of those present, facts about their past, present and future. She occupied a tent in the corner of the library.

Later in the evening refreshments were served. Guests were present from Nutley, New York, Brooklyn, Somerville, Metuchen, Elizabeth, Newark and this city. Late in the evening four flashlight photographs of the attendants were taken. The affair was arranged by Miss Idabel Conover.

LEON S. SKILLMAN.

The funeral will be held from the home of the parents, Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in the Methodist cemetery.

The Samptown bridge on the road to New Market was very badly damaged a few days ago by a large motor truck owned by the Potts & Kaufman Wholesale Grocery Co., of Perth Amboy. The bridge has been in a bad condition for such heavy traffic and finally gave way. The big truck went through the bridge on the north side and the front wheels fell through so that they just touched the water of the stream below. Luckily no one was hurt as both occupants jumped to safety when they heard the old bridge giving way. The truck was very slightly damaged and was towed from sight of its watery bed which it very nearly occupied.

'Plains & Fanwood.

By a rather strange coincidence both men whose terms expire this year on the two governing bodies of the township and borough were presidents of them during the past year. Ira G. Walker, who was head of the Township Committee, was re-elected to that body for another term at the election Tuesday and is the logical choice for president again. Thomas M. Norton, who was the head of the Borough Council, has retired from public office and in his stead Albert I. Riblet goes into the Council. There are several men in the Council who are qualified to be president but Albert I. Nichols will probably be the choice.

From the way taxpayers have started out on the payment of 1915 taxes in the borough, Charles Sheelen will add another year to his string of one hundred per cent. for seventeen years as collector. If Fanwood township does not have adequate fire protection this winter it will not be on account of the lack of a water supply. According to an agreement that the Township Committee made sometime ago with the Plainfield-Union Water Company twenty-six additional hydrants are to be placed in the township limits, bringing the total number from twenty-four to fifty. With the exception of a short part of the outlaying section where there is no city water, there will be hydrants approximately five hundred feet apart which should insure residents from loss by fire on account of there being no means with which to fight it.

RECREATION NECESSARY

cational clubs "gym" clubs and other clubs, which are not only educational, but are attracting young men and young women who formerly spent their spare time very differently. The dances and the clubs are all under proper supervision and the result is a general uplifting influence.

Mr. White stated that the recreation committee hoped to have community centers established in every part of the city. The school buildings are the logical places for such movements and in no other way could the taxpayers receive greater returns for their money invested in the school buildings. He said that while he did not come to ask anyone to join in the movement, he did want to make it plain that there was room enough and work enough for all and the members of the committee would be pleased to enlarge the membership roll.

Mr. Estes said that on land or sea at home or abroad the American flag was an inspiring sight to any true citizen of the United States, because that flag really stood for more than mere commercialism. It represented liberty, justice and principal rather than aggrandizement, commercialism or military power. But, to maintain this flag unsullied, Mr. Estes said, each and every individual had a personal responsibility and a personal duty to perform.

No nation had been so signally blesed by divine favor and no nation had a greater responsibility toward other nations than has the American Republic. The United States must lead in civilization, in progressive liberty and in spreading the gospel of the brotherhood of man throughout the world. It must play the part of the big brother toward weaker nations to the extent of strict justice toward them in our own relations and to assist them in getting strict justice in the family of nations.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey made a few remarks in a humorous vein in which he complimented the speakers, and paid a glowing tribute to the men in his congregation. He said that perhaps his male parishioners had been given a scare at the recent suffrage election and had determined on a course of preparedness for any eventualities, and were learning to wash dishes, prepare meals and other things which heretofore had been considered the exclusive province of women. That they had made considerable progress was evidenced by the manner in which the supper of which all had partaken had been prepared.

The supper preceded the speaking and was an excellent one. Oyster cocktails, salads, cold meats and numerous side dishes all attested to the proficiency and independence of the men of Warren chapel when it comes to housekeeping.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW

Mr. Commuter (lunching at the Rathskeller with Billy Uptowne).—Yes, sir, Billy, I tell you the suburbs is the place to live. You know I'm out twenty miles, and it's an actual fact that I can get into my place of business just as quick as when I lived upon the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street. Steam cars, you know, and express trains, and you are always sure of a seat. I get out a cigar and read the paper all the way in, don't you know? Then when you get out home in the evening you are away from all the dust and dirt and racket of the city, and—say, I wish that you could see my garden! It's a dandy! We had lettuce from it yesterday, such as you never buy in market, and nice crisp radishes! Had a nice mess for dinner last night. And running a lawn-mower once in a while is mighty good exercise for a fellow. Then it's nice of an evening to sit out on your own little piazza and smoke your cigar, or run over to some of the neighbors and chat. Lots better than being tucked up in some little fifteen story flat! Better get you a place out our way and settle down in it. You might come into the city for three or four months in the winter, but once you get a taste of suburban life you'll never want to live in the city again. It's great out in the suburbs old boy!

Mrs. Commuter (lunching in Lonelyvale with Mrs. Billy Uptowne)—My dear, you are a perfect godsend, and it's just lovely of you to come away out here to see me! We are apart from our friends out here as much as if we lived in Kalamozoo, Michigan! It seems to me— Of course you had an awful time getting here! We have only one express a day each way, and all the other trains stop at everybody's front gate! And it takes twelve good minutes to get to the station and twelve or fifteen more to get anywhere near the shopping district once you are in the city, and—That? I suppose it was a mosquito. There are millions of them here as soon as the sun goes down, and— Do we have a garden? I'll show you the garden before you go. We have about three square feet of lettuce bed, and we have had six gnarly little radishes so far this year. We have six hills of corn and three tomato plants. We paid a man four dollars and a half to get the garden ready, and— Of course that was a rooster you heard! The people in the house back of us have chickens. You'd think it was a rooster if you were here some morning at about three o'clock when it and some forty or fifty hens begin to cackle and keep it up until daylight! You are the first living soul excepting mamma and some of my husband's sisters and his mother who have been out here from the city in the three months we have lived here! I haven't said anything to Harry about it yet, it's my last summer out here! We take a flat in the city in the fall. That is settled as far as I am concerned. Don't you ever let Billy Uptowne coax you into coming into the suburbs to live. A woman might just as well go into a convent, and one might as well die as be out of everything. It's good old Broadway for me, my dear!

William Kitchen, former proprietor of Hotel Kensington, but now of New York city, visited Plainfield yesterday.

Featherston, tenors, and Alfred Korff and Alva Dunham, bassos. They will be supported by the regular choir of the church, consisting of Mrs. James Gilbert, soprano; Mrs. S. B. Moffatt contralto; Franklin Clyde Doane tenor, and S. B. Moffatt, bass.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

How To Cook Green Peppers

The following ways of preparing sweet peppers are recommended by the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Cream of Pimento Soup.

Two tablespoonfuls of butter; 3 tablespoonfuls of flour; 2 ounces of ripe peppers, cut into small pieces; 1 cup of water, or stock; 3 cups of milk, a few drops of onion juice, salt.

Cook the pimentoes in the water or stock until they are soft, and rub them through a sieve, saving the water. Melt the butter, and cook the flour in it, being careful not to brown the mixture. Add the milk, pimentoes and the water in which they were cooked, and reheat, stirring constantly. Season with the onion juice and salt. A small piece of onion cooked with the pimientoes can be substituted for the onion juice.

Creamed Eggs with Sweet Peppers.

Four hard boiled eggs; 3 tablespoonfuls of butter; 3 tablespoonfuls of flour; ½ cupful of juice from canned pimientos; 2 canned pimentoes cut into small pieces.

Heat together the butter and the flour until the flour is thoroughly cooked, being careful not to brown the mixture. Gradually add the milk and the juice from the pimentoes. Stir until smooth and add the pimentoes and seasonings. Cut the eggs in slices or in quarters, pour the sauce over them and reheat in the oven. Sometimes this dish is covered with buttered crumbs and baked long enough to brown the top.

The hard boiled eggs may be dropped into the sauce and then the mixture may be poured over toast or crackers or served with a border of boiled rice.

Fried Sweet Peppers.

Fried sweet peppers make an attractive garnish to serve with mutton chops, lamb chops, pork chops, ham, or veal cutlet. Clean the peppers as usual, cut into three or four pieces and saute until tender and lightly browned, using butter or other fat enough to keep them from burning. If canned peppers are used, drain carefully and allow them to stand until they have dried a little.

Steak Smothered in Sweet Peppers.

1½ pounds of beef round steak; 1 cup bread crumbs; 1 small onion; a little sage or mixed poultry seasoning; 1 quart of mixture of canned tomatoes and canned peppers, or 1 quart of mixture of fresh sweet peppers and fresh tomatoes cut in slices.

Spread over the steak a layer of bread crumbs mixed with the onion and other seasonings. Roll and tie into shape. Place the meat in a casserole or other dish with a cover. Pour the tomatoes and pepper over the meat and cook very slowly in the oven or on top of the stove for three or four hours. If the tomatoes and pepper do not cover the meat, add a little boiling water.

Veal cutlets can be used in place of steak.

Sweet peppers are sometimes called pimientoes and sometimes pimentoes. This latter name, however, is not correct, as pimento really means allspice.

NEW WAYS OF SERVING TEA.

There are several ways of serving tea that are practiced by the hostesses in European households that it would profit the American housekeeper to learn, for a bit of variety even in the serving of the "cup that cheers" will add greatly to its enjoyment.

The Russian sometimes substitute for the usual slice of lemon a teaspoonful of strawberry preserve, and this, when added to the hot tea, makes it very delicious.

Another custom is to crush mint leaves in the bottom of the tea cup before pouring in the tea. Sometimes, too, a few drops of rum are added to the tea, this last concoction often taking the place of punch for informal entertaining.

The pungent lemon verbena flowers are used by the Spanish in their tea. A few leaves are put into the cup and the hot liquid poured over them. In addition to the flavor thus added the lemon verbena is said to possess certain medicinal qualities that counteract the harmful ingredients in the tea.

A few drops of essence of ginger and a slice of lemon are sometimes used in serving tea, though a more universal custom is to serve several pieces of crystallized ginger with the tea, as some people do not like the taste of ginger and would object to having it in their tea.

A MOTHER'S CARE.

It has been said by great teachers that the character of a man or woman is fixed at 6 years of age, thus putting the formative period very early in the development of the child.

Most mothers do not believe this dictum, or ignore it, as they entrust their children to nurses more during those first six years than at any other time. There are, however, an increasing number of women who realize that good habits are more easily formed, and good impressions more easily made, in very early childhood than later on.

So now careful mothers are arranging to supervise as thoroughly as possible the nurseries of their babies, and to take an active share in the training of the little ones.

One modern mother, though possessed of ample means, refuses to employ a regular nurse. She takes entire charge of her two little children, a girl of 4 and a boy of 2. This is not the result of theory on her part, but an outgrowth from her own experience.

MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD.

This may be made of any green vegetables, but in the smart restaurants the chefs put the following things together: French lettuce, endive, cucumbers, celery hearts, green pepper, asparagus tips, pimentos and sometimes string beans. A nest is made of the plain lettuce, the endive is cut in fine strips, and if the asparagus or string beans are of the canned sort they are first washed off with fresh water and then thoroughly drained. The cucumber is cut in paper fine slices. All of the ingredients are put together in a mixing bowl and tossed lightly in a French dressing—olive oil, vinegar or lemon, salt and cayenne. Unless requested not to do so, the French chef also adds a taste of garlic or onion. When served this salad lies in the nest of lettuce leaves with a border of sliced cucumber or radishes cut to look like fuchsias.

TO REMODEL HALF-WORN WAISTS.

Since the day of the blouse "all-buttoned-down before," is now with us, there are many sighs over many a half-worn waist, with its lovely embroidered front, laid away. By a little ingenuity and the weave of a magic needle, there may be given a re-birth in an even more desirable form.

If the front is large enough and in good condition, it may serve as the top to a "baby" pillow—dear to every woman's heart—put to its plain back with a two-inch imitation Cluny, or possibly its own entre-deux of Irish crochet, for the moment out of favor for shirtwaists.

If more worn and the heavier embroidery is trying to tear away from the background, every good motif may be cut out and appliqued to a new foundation to the flavor thus added the lemon summer workbags and the lingerie lamp or candle shades so popular and so expensive in the shops as to be out of reach of the average purse.

A SALT RUB.

A salt rub is splendid for patients not too ill, and is matchless in its effect upon the skin and complexion.

With all its virtues it is the simplest and most easily managed of all similar measures, and can be taken at home easily.

Put a few pounds of coarse salt—the coarsest you can get—in an earthen jar and pour enough water on it to produce a sort of slush, but not enough to dissolve the salt.

This should be taken up in handfuls and rubbed briskly over the entire person, but anyone in ordinary health can do it for himself very satisfactorily.

A CAREFUL SHAMPOO.

Great harm is done the hair by slovenly or too strenuous shampooing. In the one case, harsh alkalis or uncleanly soaps remain in the hair, and in the other too drastic substances are employed for cleansing the hair from oil and dust.

The home beauty doctor takes her patient to the bathroom, throws a combing cape of Turkish toweling over the bare shoulders and folds another small Turkish towel on the edge of the stationary washstand for the patient to rest her chin on.

In a bowl close at hand she has ready the yolk of one egg, beaten thoroughly, with one pint of warm rain water and an ounce of rosemary spirits. The egg will remove dandruff and cut the excessive oil in the hair. Rosemary leaves behind a pleasant perfume. Dipping both hands into the shampoo mixture, she puts it into the scalp, rubbing thoroughly with the finger tip. When the scalp is saturated and the dandruff is loosened, she has the patient rest her chin on the folded towel and the rinsing begins. The hair is not washed to full length, but the shampoo, as it is washed down, cleanses the hair.

A Rubber Tube.

A rubber tube, which can be adjusted to any pipe, and which has a perforated spray nozzle, is useful for rinsing, and warm, not hot nor cold, water should be used. The right hand directs the flow of the water, and the left is held at the base of the brain or on the forehead to prevent the water from running down the back or into the eyes.

Soft, warm towels are used for patting the hair dry. It should never be rubbed violently. Then it is fanned. Drying in the sun makes the hair lighter in tint, but this often induces headache.

The beauty doctor understands scalp massage, and knows that the mere rotary movement of the finger tips over the scalp is not sufficient, but the scalp must be loosened from the skull, because if the scalp fits too tightly to the skull the hair cannot grow.

TO WASH FEATHER BEDS.

Now that fall house cleaning is on in earnest, an easy and satisfactory way to wash feather beds and pillows might be appreciated. Get cheesecloth and make as many cases and the same sizes as your beds and pillows.

Empty the feathers out of each into one of the cheesecloth cases and sew up opening. Select a warm, sunshiny day and have plenty of good warm soapsuds made of white soap and a little ammonia. Wash each one in this and rinse in two or three clear waters and hang on line to dry. Keep turning and shaking feathers until dry.

When good and dry leave them in the cheesecloth cases and put back into the ticking cases which have been washed and ironed. When they are to be washed again all that has to be done is to remove them from the ticking and they are ready for the tub without the usual dread and work.

TO MARK A POISON BOTTLE.

Push two common pins in opposite directions through the corks of bottles containing poisonous medicine and there will be no danger of picking up the wrong bottle even in the dark. The prick of the pins will remind one of the contents of the bottle.

Just a Few of Many Furs

Every woman loves beautiful furs. Few understand how to tell a dyed from a natural fur, a piece from a whole skin, a blended from an entirely natural fur. Nor are they always sure what constitutes a good fur—whether the color should be light or dark, whether the hair should be long or short.

Most people know in a general way, but the fur experts at Wanamaker's know in a most particular way. It is wonderfully satisfying to go into the Fur Salons and know that every single fur there has been individually selected—and is in the salons because it is the very best fur possible at the price.

Among the moderate-priced furs are these—

Taupe wolf sets, $42.
Jap mink scarfs, $10 to $17.50.
Jap mink muffs, $14 to $16.50.

Blankets at $6.75 Pair That Cannot Be Made Today to Sell Under $9

When we made the offer for these blankets—some time ago—we didn't think it would be accepted. But our offer was for all there was; and the manufacturer was better satisfied to make one negotiation out of it. His alternative was to scatter the blankets around in several stores; no other store buys blankets in the quantities we do.

These blankets are

All Pure, Staple Wool

No cotton, shoddy or inferior yarn of any sort is mixed with it. They are heavier blankets than are usually made outside of England. Each pair of double bed size—70 x 82 inches—weighs 5¼ pounds.

Five Cases in Today

White, with pink and blue borders. Small plaids in pink and white, tan and white, blue and white, gray and white, gray with blue borders. Each pair in box.

PLEASE NOTE—The blanket situation is growing more serious every day. Wool and cotton rising, shortage of good dyes, great call for wool to fill European orders—these point to higher prices still. But we shall sell these blankets on the basis of their cost to us.

Beware of Ruts

Perhaps the easiest thing on earth to do is to fall into a rut. This is particularly true of business girls. The average working girl rises at the same hour every morning, follows the same daily schedule, week in and week out; she meets the same persons, in fact she almost thinks the same thoughts every day in the month. Gradually all her ideas are centered in one direction and she has no opinions at all on other subjects. She goes along in the same rut, not even seeing what is going on in the next furrow.

Have you ever worked for any length of time in a big office, where a hundred or more workers are employed? Have you ever noticed how each one does his duties like clockwork? The whole business is like a huge machine, and each individual is but a cog. If you ever have been employed by such a concern perhaps you have remarked how quickly individuality is lost, how separate characters become merged in the whole.

Falling Into a Rut.

That is the pity of it all. Girls enter such concerns with definite decisive personalities, but soon they fall, each into one groove. Perhaps they feel themselves sinking into the rut and attempt to re-establish themselves on even ground. Perhaps they try to strike out in new directions. Unless they have the most forceful perseverance and most powerful initiative within themselves, they soon lose courage at the fearful odds against them and sink back again into the old rut, glad to rest after the struggle.

It is so much easier to stay in your rut, girls, so if you are looking for peace and content, go along in the groove into which you have fallen. If you are not content to be just a cog in a well-oiled machine, if you wish to make a mark of your own, if you wish to be recognized as a distinctive personality, you must strive unceasingly toward self-improvement and progress.

Some one once said that genius is not so much a question of inspiration as of perspiration. This is solid truth. To make your mark in this world requires not only a natural talent for your particular field, but also initiative and hard work. You will never get anywhere by sticking in a groove. It takes strength of purpose to keep out of a rut, and perseverance and force to make progress on the rocky road to success.

There is always room for one more on the ladder leading to fame, but there are plenty of contestants for that place. If you fall, some one else is willing to grab your place.

Widen Your Scope.

The first step toward making your mark in the world is to keep out of ruts. If you find yourself growing narrow in your views and limited in the scope of your knowledge, you will know that it is time for an extra hard burst of work in another direction.

KEWPIE POWDER BOXES.

At the doll counter in one of the department stores a woman was buying a half dozen little celluloid kewpies, all the same size. Curiosity prompted the query: Why does she want so many of the same size?

"Oh, they buy them to make talcum boxes," the clerk answered. It seems that a hole is made in the back and a lot of little holes in the head of the poor little kewpies. The powder is put in the back and a stopper inserted and the holes in the head are used as a sprinkler.

TO KEEP TOMATOES.

To have fresh tomatoes for Thanksgiving select unripe ones, wrap each carefully in a square of paper or put each into a paper bag, place in a grape basket and hang in the cellar.

Bruised fruit should not be used. Small tomatoes for garnishing foods may be kept in the same manner.

The idea is to exclude the air and keep them cold.

TO CLEAN A PAINT BRUSH.

To soften a paint brush that has been allowed to harden, try boiling for half an hour in a vessel containing enough vinegar to cover. The brush will come out like new.

The Woman Who Frets

It must be conceded that women are more given to fretting than men. The tendency to fret over things which impoverish and disappoint is stronger in the average woman than in the average man, mainly because, in the vast majority of cases, the man's mind is occupied by competing worries and prevented from dwelling upon one, while the woman's more restricted duties permit her to dwell upon what were better forgotten or ignored.

She recurs to the cause of worry and fretfulness again and again, even while her common sense bids her banish it from the mind. As she dwells upon it it is magnified in size and importance, gets a firmer grip on the mind, affects more powerfully the heart, until, at length, it gains power to torture the whole nature.

How many good women's lives have been overshadowed, weakened, robbed of beauty and charm by just this power of outward happenings to plunge them into uncontrolled fretfulness.

Somebody disappoints them and they fret over it; somebody speaks harshly to them, and they fret over that; or they lose a dear friend, and they fret themselves into a condition bordering upon despair.

If fretting conferred any advantages it might be possible to tolerate it, but it is utterly useless. It does not lessen the evil mourned over, much less does it confer any power or strength to endure. On the contrary, it adds to the original evil, heightens the sense of disappointment, increases the sense of wrong, makes heavier the loss.

No one ever thinks of attempting a defence of the habit, for it is indefensible, even by those who indulge it. "I know I am very silly to fret in this way, but I can't help it. No, it does not comfort me, but I just have to fret; I suppose it's my nature!" Such a one ought to remember the feelings of their fellows. Are they to be tortured by the uncontrolled emotions of people who know their conduct to be useless and absurd?

The Moral Danger of Fretting.

To plead the rights of their neighbors may be to waste effort, but it's just as well to remind "fretters" that the habit is not without its dangers to themselves.

No one can unduly indulge the emotions without self-injury, and a fretter gives unrestrained play to her emotions. The danger is that the emotions become exhausted, or, at length, only can be affected by artificial means.

As a rule those who "fret" are dead to troubles of others. They simply cannot weep with those who weep, for they have exhausted their tears on their own real or imaginary sorrows. They drift into a world of their own imagining and become intensely selfish.

The habit can only be overcome by resolutely turning the mind away from the person or event which may have awakened the fretfulness.

It is true there are happenings in every life which evoke bitter sorrow and lifelong grief, but to dwell upon them to the exclusion of all the brighter and joy-giving events of daily life is folly.

True wisdom is shown by the man or woman who elects to dwell upon the people and the events which have flooded his or her life into gladness.

TO CLEANSE FEATHERS.

Open one corner of the ticking and pour boiling water in, plenty of it. The feathers will get into a pulp and be handled easily. Take them out and wash thoroughly in soap and water, using plenty of water to free them from the soap. Put them back into the washed cover and hang in the open air. They will get perfectly dry, if tossed about now and then, and be light and fluffy. Sew up the corner and all is done.

PILLAR OF FIRE LEADER JAILED

Oliver Wilson Convicted After Lengthy Trial in the City Court Today.

LAWYERS HAVE TILTS

Former Prosecutor Reger, of Somerset County, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Hetfield Take Part in Trial.

Oliver Wilson, leader of the Pillar of Fire cult in this city, who has headquarters at 48 Craig place, North Plainfield, was committed to the Union county jail at Elizabeth this afternoon for a period of twenty-seven days following conviction in the city police court this morning on charges preferred by Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, who alleged that the defendant conducted a street meeting in front of the Plainfield postoffice on the night of Sunday, October 31 without a permit. In passing sentence City Judge William G. DeMeza declared that he did not intend to tolerate the practice this sect has made of defying the city ordinance and sentenced Wilson to pay a $20 fine and serve seven days in jail, in default of which he will have to remain in confinement twenty-seven days. Immediately following the trial former Somerset County Prosecutor John F. Reger, who defended Wilson, told a Plainfield Daily Press reporter that he would take the issue up to the Supreme Court to test the validity of the city ordinance making it necessary for an individual or organization to first obtain a permit before conducting a street meeting or parade in Plainfield. Prosecutor Reger contends that there has been a violation of the constitutional right of free speech.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, who conducted the case for the city, used as his witnesses Chief of Police Kiely, Mayor Leighton Calkins, and City Clerk James T. MacMurray. In the course of cross-examinations of witnesses the rival attorneys became involved in heated discussions when Mr. Reger attempted to show that personal animosity existed between members of the police force and the Pillar of Fire exponents. His insistence in applying questions intended to bring out this fact caused the court to rebuke him on several occasions and in one instance Mr. Hetfield leaped from his seat in a heated frame of mind and exclaimed: "Reger is making a grandstand play for the benefit of the public in this Pillar of Fire case and I suggest that he get some other place to make his speeches in beside the police court."

Mr. Reger replied that he intended to bring to the attention of Mayor Calkins the fact that the police department had been derelict in its duty, as far as giving the Holy Jumpers protection was concerned. Judge DeMeza intervened at this point by stating that Mr. Reger or anyone could bring a proper complaint before him in the right course and he would entertain it, at the same time admonishing him to keep within the legal bonds prescribed for cross-examination.

On the stand Wilson admitted that he had sung two verses of a hymn, had knelt in the road in prayer, and had been preaching from a box in the street before Chief Kiely. Sergeant Andrew Saffron and Patrolman John Kelly arrived on the scene. He also admitted not having a permit.

MONEY STONES OF YAP.

Natives of the Island Do Not Carry Change In Their Pockets.

Propped up against the house of the native chief of Yap, which is one of the Caroline islands lying southeast of the Philippines, may be seen a row of "money stones," the current coin of the island. In shape these stones are like millstones, but they do no grinding. They serve simply as a parade of the wealth of the village. Their value lies solely in the difficulty with which they are obtained.

The yellowish granite of which they are made is found only in the island of Palao, 200 miles away, and when the monsoon favors forty or fifty natives voyage there in their canoes. After paying the king of Palao with presents the work of hewing the walaka, or money stones, begins, lasting for months until the monsoon changes, when the toilers start homeward with their "coin."

The smallest of these stones is about a foot in diameter and three inches thick, with a round hole through its center. It will buy food for a family for a month. The large stones, about three feet in diameter and eight inches thick, have relatively much greater value, since it is more difficult to transport them in cranky canoes over such a long stretch of sea. Indemnities can be paid with such a stone or the aid of neutrals purchased in time of war. —William L. Cathcart in St. Nicholas.

THE NUMBER NINE.

Easy to Multiply by It if You Will Remember This Rule.

Examine any one of the statements of equality in the multiplication table of nine, up to and including nine times ten. Select, for example, 9×7=63; or 9×2=18.

Observe that in each case the first digit in the product is one less than the number by which nine is multiplied, and the second digit in the product is such that when added to the first digit, the sum of the two is nine.

You may make practical use of this peculiarity of nine and its multiples by applying it in the following way:

If nine is to be multiplied by eight, for example, think at once of seven (which is one less than eight, the multiplier); then think of two, which must be added to seven to make nine, and you have seventy two, the product of nine and eight.

Or, if nine is to be multiplied by five think of four, which is one less than five; then think of five, which must be added to four to make nine, and you have forty-five, the product of nine and five.

By using this method the nines, usually among the hardest of the tables to fix in the memory, may, in a short time, be fairly classed with the fives and tens and elevens, which are said to "remember themselves."—Youth's Companion.

A High Priced Fricassee.

Lord Alvanley, a noted wit and high liver in England a hundred years or so ago, insisted on having an apple tart on his dinner table every day throughout the year. On one occasion he paid a caterer $1,000 for a luncheon put up in a basket that sufficed a small boating party going up the Thames. Being one of a dozen men dining together at a London club where each was required to produce his own dish, Alvanley's, as the most expensive, won him the advantage of being entertained free of cost. This benefit was gained at an expense of $540, that being the price of a simple fricassee composed entirely of the "noix," or small pieces at each side of the back, taken from thirteen kinds of birds, among them being 100 snipe, 40 woodcocks and 20 pheasants—in all about 300 birds.

Cold Baths.

A few years ago the remarkable discovery was made by Profesor Winternitz of Vienna that general cold baths have the effect of increasing the number of active cells in the blood to a very remarkable extent, the increase sometimes amounting to one-fifth or even more. This is one of the ways in which the cold bath increases the resisting power of the body, and rallies the blood cells, so to speak, calling them out from their hiding places and preparing them to fight with vigor the battles which must be waged every moment in defense of the body.—Good Health.

Barrister's Fees.

The barrister's fees are irrecoverable in law, but he can pick and choose his customers and can also insist on cash in advance. Until recently every barrister had on his table a gentle reminder in the way of a fee bowl. In earlier times the client used to drop surreptitiously the money in a little bag at the back of counsel's gown. A trace of this receptacle still figures in legal costume.—London Chronicle.

Eliminating Risk.

"I hope the motto of this railroad is safety first."

"It is," replied the man who thinks only of pecuniary precaution. "I notice it never lets anybody travel a mile without paying in advance."—Washington Star.

WILL ERECT OLD LADIES' HOME

ty-eight years ago, namely, in the year 1847. In his last will, he, the said Joseph Webster, empowered his grand-daughter, Catharine R. Webster, to dispose of his estate among a certain class of his relatives, and appointed three executors, all of whom have long since died.

"Catharine Webster died in the latter part of the year 1906, leaving a last will and testament and codicil thereto which were probated before the surrogate of Union county. This will was prepared by the late Joseph B. Coward and not by the late Craig A. Marsh as stated. This will was complicated, but unavoidably so, as the drafting of the will necessitated an interpretation of the will of Joseph Webster.

"Miss Webster in her said will appointed the said Joseph B. Coward and my father, John H. VanWinkle, the executors thereof and made disposition of her own estate and also attempted a disposition of the estate of the said Joseph Webster in accordance with the terms of his will.

"Shortly after the decease of the said Catharine R. Webster, Joseph B. Coward, who had been her attorney for many years (and not Craig A. Marsh as stated) died, thus leaving my father the sole surviving executor wholly unfamiliar with Miss Webster's matters.

"Craig A. Marsh, who then represented my father in the matter of the estates, suggested that it was necessary in such a complicated matter to have a construction of both of the wills, namely, of the will of Catharine R. Webster and Joseph Webster, made by the Court of Chancery the preparation of this bill in Chancery necessarily occupied Mr. Marsh a long time, and after it was prepared and filed, and while the matter was progressing, Mr. Marsh departed this life.

"After Mr. Marsh's decease my father was represented by Raymond T. Parrot, of Elizabeth, who after familiarizing himself with the quantities of papers in the case placed the matter before the Court of Chancery and a decree was made by the Chancellor and filed in October, 1912, six years after the decease of the said Catharine R. Webster, in which he among many other matters decided that the lands of which Joseph Webster died seized should be sold by me as the administrator with the will annexed of Joseph Webster and the funds or proceeds of sale of Joseph Webster's property should be turned over by me to my father to be divided among the persons named in the will of Catharine R. Webster as distributees of Joseph Webster's estate, who were living at the time of the death of Catharine R. Webster, and the share of those persons who were named in the will of Catharine R. Webster as distributees as aforesaid who died prior to the decease of Catharine R. Webster was to be returned by my father to me, to be by me distributed to the heirs at law of Joseph Webster.

"I will also state that shortly before the decease of Mr. Marsh, my father was taken ill and for a portion of the time was critically ill, and is only now recovering, and as his health was of much importance to me, I requested him not to bother with business matters at all and suggested that I would attend to them for him.

"During the period which followed, the premises of Joseph Webster were sold at public auction and two lengthy accounts were prepared, one for each estate and after being duly advertised were both passed by the Orphans' Court of Union county. Subsequently petitions were filed in the Orphans' Court of Union county, namely in the year 1914 for an order of distribution on the estate of Joseph Webster with a view to obtaining an order stating the proportionate shares to which the beneficiaries were entitled. An order was obtained in November, 1914, showing such proportionate shares. The class of beneficiaries who were living at the time of the decease of Catharine R. Webster numbered about 45, some of whom received a 1-3 of a 1-3 of a ¼ of a ¼ of ¾ of the entire estate, which share amounted according to the decree of the Orphans' Court to a 4-768th share, the other beneficiaries receiving different proportionate shares. The parties interested in this class resided in different parts of the country, namely, in Ohio, Missouri, Wyoming, New Mexico, Iowa, Massachusetts, Philadelphia, Denver etc., and administration had to be taken out on the estates of ten or more beneficiaries in this class who died after the decease of Catharine R. Webster.

"The genealogical research revealed to us, in the other class namely the heirs at law of Joseph Webster, as far as we could ascertain, the names of some 410 different heirs, of course, this number was always increasing owing to the death of some of the heirs, which then brought in all of their respective heirs at law, which had to be added to the list above stated. The payments to the parties in the first class alluded to were not completed until the latter part of December of last year, and although waivers were signed the statutory limit of appeal did not expire prior to the present year.

"It was impossible to pay out any of the funds of Catharine Webster until the estate of Joseph Webster had been completely settled, as the Joseph Webster estate was an integral part of the estate of Catharine R. Webster.

"I wish to state that if the parties who inquired at your office, had called on us they would have received courteous treatment and I venture to say more definite information.

"The whole amount of money to be devoted to the building and maintenance of the Ladies' Home, which was the balance or residue of the estate of Catharine R. Webster, as established November, 1912, by decree of the court, with accumulation since said date, now amounts to over $70,000.

"As already stated by my father, it is his intention to select, during the coming winter, a suitable site, upon which will be erected shortly thereafter the home."

BOY PREACHER TELLS STORY OF HIS LIFE

Addresses Large Audience at Closing Revival Service in This City.

The Park Avenue Baptist church was crowded to the doors last evening by men and women in all walks of life, who had come to hear the boy preacher, Charles F. Taylor, give his life story. For two hours this child, who has been associated with his father in evangelistic work since he was three and a half years of age, entertained his audience by the recital of his varied experiences. Pathos and humor combined to keep that vast congregation spell-bound under the influence of his personality. Coupled with a natural gift of oratory, is a simple child-like way of presenting things to his audiences that added new interest to the story of his eventful life.

In addition to his preaching, which would do credit to many of maturer years, this boy has literally sung the gospel into thousands of hearts in theatres, mansions, churches, mission halls, cottages, market places, saloons, factories, salt mines, coal mines, on top of mountains, and in Bunyan's House at Bedford, England, as well as in Spurgeon's church in London.

His young life has been full of great things. The young evangelist will leave many friends in Plainfield as he enters upon another campaign in Long Branch, where he is to hold his first service tomorrow morning.

NEWEST BATTLESHIP IS READY FOR TRIALS

Rockland, Me., Nov. 6.—The battleship Nevada, next of the heavy first-line fighting ships to be added to the United States navy, will be given her official trials off this port next week. She must make at least 20½ knots per hour for four hours continuously. The Nevada should have been completed some months ago, but for trouble with the type of engine at first installed. The Navy Department gave its consent to a change in the type of machinery.

The Nevada is of 27,500 tons displacement, or 500 tons larger than the Texas or the New York. She is a sister ship of the Oklahoma. She carries fourteen-inch guns in three gun turrets. While the Nevada is one of the world's largest and most powerful battleships, she will soon be surpassed in size by the seven battleships now under construction, some of which are nearly ready to be commissioned. The Arizona and the Pennsylvania are the nearest ready, and they are of 31,400 tons displacement. The California, Idaho, Mississippi and two others which have been authorized, but not yet named, will be of 32,000 tons each.

SING SING ALUMNI ASS'N TO FORM ORGANIZATION

New York, Nov. 6.—The "Sing Sing Alumni Association" is completing plans for a permanent organization. The charter members are sending out invitations to all "graduates" of the institution conducted by Thomas Mott Osborne, outlining the benefits and social advantages of the new organization.

One of the first things in view is the establishment of an employment bureau for the "graduates," to find employment for men as they leave their alma mater. Because of the wide variance of training and adaptability of the Sing Sing "graduates," the committee will have its hands full to find just the right job for each man.

Then there will be established a club-room for the alumni, with a library and writing-room. On the reading table, of course, the "Star of Hope," the periodical now published in Sing Sing, will find prominent place, with other periodicals of the day. Comfortable chairs will be provided, so that the "old grads" can sit and talk over the good old days.

Then again, it is planned to have an annual banquet, at which their former jailers will be the guests of honor.

"Though it may sound strange," says Deputy Warden Church, of Sing Sing, "there is a good, sound theory underlying the proposition. These men have decided to make a clean breast of their records before the public, and to help other ex-prisoners who might otherwise fall into the old paths. They will consider their Sing Sing training as an asset. With nothing to hide, it can at least be said that the probability of the men going straight will be greatly increased."

COMMUNION SERVICE.

Communion will be observed at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Immediately following the morning service the session of the Bible class will be held at which Dr. Wilbert W. White, of the Bible Teacher Training School, New York, will give his first of seven talks on the "Gospel of St. John." This class is for men and women and all interested are invited.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, NOVEMBER 6, 1915.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor today is R. F. Huntsman, Advertising Manager for the Brooklyn Standard Union.

Did you ever read three hundred and fifty advertisements in an evening, with an idea of determining which one was the best?

Or did you ever try to count the stars?

The scholars in the two local High Schools have been struggling with the advertising problem recently, and they produced some very good "copy," too.

The Plainfield Trust Company, which offered liberal prizes, and the judges in the contest, were equally surprised by the advertising which these scholars produced—so much of it was good.

There were many interesting revelations in these advertisements, showing the influence which various forms of advertising had exerted upon the minds of these young contestants.

For instance, of the 360 advertisements submitted to the judges, probably one-half contained the words, "Stop, Look, Listen." Probably fifty more contained the words "Safety First." The first words have no application whatever to a trust company advertisement because they constitute a sign of warning.

It may be interesting to know that these three words, "Stop, Look, Listen" constitute the best paid for advertisement of its size ever written. I believe it was the Pennsylvania Railroad which asked it's lawyer to prepare a warning advertisement to be placed at railroad crossings; a warning that would legally protect the railroad from every point. It is stated that the railroad paid this lawyer $10,000 for these three words. This warning has been adopted by practically every railroad because its meaning is conclusive and legally protective. Therefore, you see the importance of using words of exact and proper meaning in every advertisement you write.

That these words, "Stop, Look, Listen," should be used by so many scholars is proof of the value of reiteration in advertising. It shows that when these scholars started to write advertisements themselves they naturally turned to the words which had been so successfully burned into their brains by reiteration. This influence was so strong that they lost sight of the fact that the words themselves constitute a sign of warning and, therefore, totally unfit for the advertising of a bank.

The committee found it necessary to eliminate several advertisements because they overstated facts. Misstatements such as "The Plainfield Trust Company is the largest Trust Company in the world," "The Plainfield Trust Company is the largest banking institution in New Jersey," "The Plainfield Trust Company is the best Trust Company," etc., were not a few. It would be foolish for the Plainfield Trust Company in any advertisement to claim that it is anything that it is not. "Best" is a word to avoid in any advertisement.

An advertisement is merely a salesman—your personal representative. And you will be judged by your advertisement just as you will be judged by the conduct of your salesman.

If you have an untidy, untruthful salesman, addicted to slang phrases, a man who is unreliable, one who does not keep his promises, you cannot build a successful business.

And if your advertisement is boastful, untruthful, or misleading, you will be judged by its faults. Advertising surely brings results, and if you make false statements in your advertising you may be sure that sooner or later your reputation as a liar will be firmly established.

The greatest advertiser in the world is John Wanamaker. He prints words so simple that every reading child can understand their meaning. He never takes a chance with the truth, and that is one of the reasons why he is the greatest advertiser in the world. An advertisement that does not state the truth had better never be written.

Advertisements which won prizes in this contest were those which expressed an original idea calculated to bring a prospective depositor into the Trust Company office. The advertisements which furnished an incentive to save money were naturally the best advertisements, because if a person saves money he will want to put it in a safe place. Some of the prizes were awarded for advertisements which are almost crude in construction, but which had that spark which overcomes the inertia of the reader, and gives incentive to respond.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The famous Ned Wayburn, who will be remembered as the originator of the Wayburn Minstrel Misses, who created a furore in vaudeville circles a few years ago, has devised another variety musical sketch known as "Ned Wayburn's Musical Melange", and it is coming to the Plainfield theatre next Monday. It will be the headliner for a fine vaudeville bill of six acts. "The Wayburn Melange" has a cast of ten people and has been seen during the past month at the leading cabaret shows in New York city. It is filled with song and dance numbers such as only Ned Wayburn can devise while the costumes and scenery are absolutely lavish.

The vaudeville bill for the first half of next week will only be presented Monday and Tuesday the program giving way on Wednesday to the Aborn Opera Company's production of the "Bohemian Girl" on Wednesday afternoon and night. An entire new vaudeville bill is booked for the last half of the week commencing Thursday. This will also include some big special numbers, the names of which are to be announced later.

The second big "Country Store" was conducted at the Plainfield last night and beside bringing joy to the scores of persons who received valuable presents the awards provided wholesome amusement for the two big audiences. One of the gifts was a diamond ring, and there were a number of others almost equally as valuable. The Country Store is to be a feature every Friday night and if you have not already been one of the lucky patrons, keep the date in mind.

Off Again, On Again

STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

Not Impressed

"This is the perfume," the salesman told me,
"Exclusively used by the millionaire heiress."
I guess he presumed this fact would "hold me"—
This news he proclaimed of the money-world's bearess.

But I, who believe such distinctions are stupid—
I stolidly listened, nor turned a hair.
I'd had an experience, once, with Cupid,
And Dan hadn't acted exactly fair.

And so (as we do when the flunkies dare us)
I replied (and I know that he thinks me a churl),
"Instead of calling her 'millionaire heiress,' Why shouldn't they call her a 'one-scent girl'?"

"It is mysterious to me," said the ordinary citizen, "to note how desperately those Italians are fighting to get those bleak mountain summits, covered with snow-drifts, away from the Austrians."

"It merely illustrates," said the wise guy who was once employed in the passenger department of a great railway, "what desperate things men will do to get hold of any kind of a pass."

Real Joy

Ask anybody you meet what is his idea of real joy.

If the askee is not a wooden man, he will enter into the asker's play and tell you.

And out of fifty people asked you will get about forty-five to forty-nine different answers.

For our own part (who asked us? Nobody, thanks), we are most nearly at the summit of complete delectation when we have on an old pair of pants that nothing could spoil.

We like to crawl out of these sissified affairs with creases and cuffs, and inject ourself into an old hand-me-down striped pair with a hole across one knee.

We made that hole once with a handsaw when we were trimming a tree.

When we get into these we go and unroll the hose and sprinkle, no matter if it is raining at the time.

We do this largely because every time we take the hose off the reel our orderly wife makes us re-roll it, which is the messiest job we know anything about.

When we do this with our better trousers on, we have to take them right back to the cleaner's for sponging and pressing.

But when we wear the old fellers with the hole in the knee—gosh! We just hug that hose and dast it do its dirtiest.

We can sit down on the lawn and pull dandelions, dig potatoes and go down on our knees to it—ah, this old-pants joy has all the other varieties faded to a bleak drab.

One can even oil one's car and never have a single thrill of fear of gear-grease and oil-smudges.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

A Woman's Doctor's Contribution

CLELIA DUEL MOSHER, A.M., M.D., Medical Adviser to Women, Leland Stanford Junior University, is responsible for a highly scientific and eminently practical means of relieving a very common and troublesome condition in women, namely dysmenorrhœa, or painful periodic function.

Dr. Mosher, after many years of observation in the cases of hundreds of young women students, arrives at conclusions which merit general diffusion.

She cites as possible causes of the purely functional cases of periodic suffering (1) upright position, (2) alteration of normal type of respiration by disuse of diaphragm and abdominal breathing muscles, (3) lack of general muscular development, (4) inactivity during the period, (5) psychic influences. She emphasizes the fact that the great vena cava, which carries the blood from the lower half of the body back to the heart, has no valves; and hence a great weight of blood presses upon the pelvic structures when the body is in the upright position. And the principal factor in the return of blood through the great vein is the "suction" action produced by act of inspiration. Obviously any deficiency in breathing capacity will favor pelvic congestion.

By the "normal type" of breathing above referred to Dr. Mosher means abdominal breathing, which, in both sexes, is physiological, but in the female sex, thanks largely to the abdominal splint, the corset, is rendered more or less impossible, be the corset tight or loose. Says Dr. Mosher: "The upright position, lax abdominal muscles, costal (that is, upper chest) instead of diaphragmatic breathing, and constriction of the body by clothing which interferes with the use of the abdominal muscles and diaphragm—all combine to develop and promote this excessive pelvic congestion. As a result, there is pain at the menstrual period, prolonged hemorrhage and undue loss of blood."

The remedy proposed by Dr. Mosher is so simple that any one may use it without medical supervision:

The woman lies on her back on a firm mattress or the floor, all tight clothing removed, knees flexed, arms at sides, the right hand resting upon the abdomen. She then sees how high she can raise the hand by lifting the abdominal wall, then how far she can lower it by forcibly contracting the abdominal wall. In other words she exercises her normal breathing muscles. The movements are repeated ten times night and morning. Followed out faithfully for three months this exercise will bring relief in many cases. The onset of the period is distinctly not a reason for postponing the exercise.

THE HIRED GIRL QUESTION

THE hired girl question is one reason why we should all be happy and content with a carefree life of poverty. It is only after a man begins drawing a salary instead of wages that he comes down with the hired girl question.

The hired girl is a movable body who travels in an ellipse like a comet. She comes from no one knows where, and departs immediately into obscurity. Comets are an improvement on hired girls, however, because they do not take handkerchiefs and teaspoons with them when they go away.

The hired girl is a movable body introduced into the household by the housewife to provide a change of trouble. When she can't stand cooking any longer she gets a girl. When she can't stand the girl any longer, she goes to cooking again. They say that Heaven is a place where there are plenty of hired girls who are good-natured, industrious, neat, honest and talented designers of good dinners and who never, no never, go away. This explains why four women attend church to one man.

The hired girl is usually imported, and when first unloaded in this country is earnest, timid and obliging. Unfortunately, hired girls pick up American ideas very quickly. The best hired girls are found in the homes of your best friends, and can be obtained for a dollar extra per week. This explains why there are so few permanent friendships in America. The job should be approached with great caution. The hired girl is very shy and can rarely be induced to enter a family where there are more than two. When setting a trap for a hired girl, remove all furniture that is hard to dust, have the piano tuned, conceal the children in the attic and tack a sign, "Maid's-room," over the guest-room. Then cover the library table with gold, and trust to luck.

Hired girls are frequently taught to cook, wash dishes and do many other useful little stunts. Some people also attempt to teach them to come in early at night and handle cut glass without breaking it. But then some people will attempt anything. They are subject to many ailments, among which are relatives and matrimony. Many a fine hired girl wears herself out carrying home food to her relatives. On the other hand, matrimony is likely at any time to enter a happy home and snatch away a hired girl who is a perfect treasure.

Hired girls should always be treated kindly and the mistress of the house should not ask to go out more than once a week. In return for good treatment, a hired girl will almost always feel gratefully toward her employer when she leaves to take a place where there is no washing, and the parents have agreed to chloroform their children.

British Struggles With Our Speech

MR. CECIL CHESTERTON, like other English visitors to our shores, returns home to tell his countrymen all about Americans, but he succeeds beyond most of them in the air of detachment necessary for an unprejudiced observer. He asserts in the New Witness (London) that he tells exactly what he "observed, not what he was expected to observe." He has found out, for example, that our speaking the English tongue, or what passes for that, makes us none the less "foreigners" from the British point of view. If an American professes affection for England, it is so much and no more than a Britisher may feel for France. American sympathy for the Allies in the present war has "nothing whatever to do with the Anglo-Saxon race," but to a belief that the Allies are right; and on the distribution of sympathy Mr. Chesterton finds much more apportioned to Belgium and France than to England. The "bond of a common language" gives Mr. Chesterton his best opportunity.

"Before me as I write lie two periodicals. One is published in Paris; the other in Boston. Glancing at the headlines, I find in the Parisian paper the following:

COMMENT PROTEGER LES NAVIRES CONTRE LES TORPILLES

"Well, if an Englishman does not know any French, he will not know what it means. But, even in that case, he can look up the words in a dictionary. If he knows a little French, he will know that it means: 'How to protect ships from torpedoes.' And that sentence will seem to him natural and consonant with his own type of thought.

"I turn next to the Boston paper. I reproduce the headline exactly as it stands, and I wish to make it clear that it comes at the top of a column, with absolutely nothing preceding it. Here it is.

HE SAYS POLITICS FEATURES FIGHT TO STOP PLAY

"Now I defy any ordinary Englishman to say that that is the English language or that he can find any intelligible meaning in it. Even a dictionary will be of no use to him. He must know the language colloquially or not at all.—Condensed from the Literary Digest.

A Sewer Monopoly

Q. A man, in providing sewer for a section of property which he is promoting, puts down a short line which he connects with a privately owned line laid in the public highway. He now charges each one connecting with his line $25. During a recent auction sale of lots which he had, his auctioneers stated that purchasers of lots would have access to sewerage and water, but nothing was mentioned regarding the charge of $25 for connecting or the distance one would have to go to avail himself of the sewerage. Now, should I purchase a lot in this section from one who bought it at the sale, could the original promoter be required to extend the sewer line to my lot? Would not he be compelled to place it conveniently to every lot sold? If, however, it is impossible to require him to do this, and I am forced to run a line a distance of 200 feet or more and pay $25 for sewer connection, would not this then be my private line, and in such an event would not I have the same privilege that the promoter assumes of charging each one desiring to connect to it?

A. Your question involves a determination of whether the promoter had a right, in the first instance, to make such use of the highway, and, in the event that the authority was conferred, whether the municipality had the right, in the first instance, to confer it. Your question is of such a character that it would be advisable for you to lay the facts fully before your lawyer and be governed by his advice.

The Michigan Workman's Law

Q. In the state of Michigan there is a workmen's compensation law. It stipulates, among other things, that the fees of physicians and lawyers, in accident claims, shall be adjusted under the provisions of the statute, and that such fees shall be subject to the approval of the Industrial Accident Board. Aren't these provisions illegal and unconstitutional, since the Constitution of the state gives one the right to conduct or defend suits in person or by means of counsel selected by the individual instituting the suit?

A. The provisions to which you refer have recently been held to be valid and constitutional.

A Memorandum Check

Q. Kindly tell me what is meant by a "memorandum check."

A. It is a check given as evidence of a debt. A check of this kind is given by a borrower and he undertakes to pay the amount, instead of allowing it to be presented to a bank for payment.

The City's Sewage

Q. Kindly inform me whether a city is under any obligation to keep drains free from obstructions and whether a suit could be brought against the city for failure to do this?

A. It is the duty of a city to keep such drains in repair and free from obstructions. If damage or injury results from a failure so to do, the city will be liable.

The Person Who Looks At Our Shoes

We recognize him as far as we can see him; his eyes are continually looking at the faces of those he passes, then dropping to their feet. And we wait impatiently for him to draw near; we want to try to read him; we are curious about this man—this man who is so interested in the state of our finances. For it is for that reason, chiefly—to discover whether we are rich or poor—that he looks at our feet; he knows that, if we are poor, our shoes will show it first. "But you quite forget, Mr. Critic, that your open curiosity puts the stamp of littleness on you!" we think, as we pass him. For there, in his face, are the signs of a little heart—of a little faith—of adoration of wealth. The man of big religion isn't interested in our finances; knowing whether we are rich or poor wouldn't influence him in his fitting opinion of us. "She's sleeping," he classifies us to himself, or "He's alive." For development, not worldly possessions, interests him. And the little soul who studies our shoes is one of those who receive the "He's sleeping" classification. He's got the wrong car.

'Tis A Sad Story, Mates

A bachelor I, and you question me why,
And you look at me wroth and askance,
And I know what you blame, 'cause I don't share my name,
And like other chaps go take a chance.
But hark to the plea of most miserable me,
Of censure I've earned not a jot—
For the girls that would marry me I wouldn't marry,
And the ones that I would—would not.

There were Mabel and May—now what could I say?
For I loved to distraction Elaine,
But she didn't care, and oh, she was fair,
And so were Belle, Mollie and Jane.
Then Nan and Babette, I will never forget,
By far they were best of the lot—
But the girls that would marry me I wouldn't marry,
And the ones that I would—would not.

I would take your advice, and be hitched in a trice,
But what is a beggar to do
When he loves Guinevere in a manner that's clear,
And is bored by the worship of Lou?
So this is my plea, ah, be gentle with me,
Of blame I deserve not a jot—
But the girls that would marry me I wouldn't marry,
And the ones that I would—would not!

PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY IN PLAINFIELD

MATERIAL PRICES REMAIN FIRM

Following Advance in Cement Last Week Other Quotations Show Higher Mark.

CONGESTION RELIEVED

Freight is Now Being Moved More Readily and Manufacturers Are Preparing for One of Their Biggest Seasons.

New York, Nov. 6.—Stimulated by the sharp advance in the price of Portland cement on Monday to $1 mill, a jump of ten cents, following the prediction made in this column last Saturday, glass, lumber, oil, wire iron, sand, gravel, fireproofing crushed stone, slate and hardware interests all took up the slack in prices and quoted firmly on list for December deliveries, and in many cases even on current business.

Jobbers are finding it increasingly difficult to move materials on railroads. Contractors having building schedules to meet are already complaining about railroad delays, due to freight congestion and car shortage. Architects are beleng advised to make special provision for shipment schedules for structural material coming from Maine, Pennsylvania and the South. Even plants capable of sending material to this market by tidewater are handicapped for barges. Practically all the harbor boats are under contract to take care of the foreign shipments from docks to vessels or are being used by the railroads to relieve the dock congestion. Down the bay are numbers of barges being used as floating storehouses to await the arrival of available steamers.

In the meantime building financiers are being besieged by operators for financial accommodation. The constantly soaring prices of materials makes it apparent that early buying is a requisite for profitable operations in the spring, if the present conditions continue, as now seem entirely likely. Dealers are withdrawing concessions, especially those dealing with fir, spruce, pine, cement and brick. In the latter department it is reported that a still further price advance may be exepected before the first of December, particularly if the cement level is maintained. Sand and gravel, reflecting the new cement price level, were also reported to be firmer this week. Open rumors are current to the effect that quotations on these commodities will move up within a fortnight.

Structural steel is, perhaps, the most acute factor in the building material market. Builders of apartment houses, lofts, commercial and industrial structures entered the market for more than 180,000 tons of structural steel last month. Up to the first of the month only a small portion of this business had been placed, but since then, with the steady gain in quotations, more orders have gone in, it is said, than in any week since 1912.

Builders evidently are becoming more reconciled to the conditions forcing the price of raw materials upward. One authority told the Daily Press this week that work had already been awarded that will keep the fabricating plants busy until well into April of next year. Structural work booked for the first ten months of this year reaches an aggregate of 1,075,500 tons. If November and December develop the promised 300,000 tons, the approximate total for 1915 will be in the neighborhood of 1,375,000 tons, as against 1,033,000 in 1914, and $1,000,300 in 1913.

Building money for operations outside of Manhattan seems to be in greater demand, especially for operations going ahead after the first of February. One large lender is reported to have made engagements up to July of next year, at approximately the rates prevailing in 1912. This indicates that the price of materials is having an effect upon prospective construction work, in the way of developing good rates of interest and accommodation charges, as well as reflecting a liberal demand for construction next year.

If construction in the early part of 1916 develops as the demand of money now promises, there will be a record-breaking price level in nearly all departments, probably by April. Instead of the index figure being 2.7 above 1912 it may go as high as 4 per cent. in the ten leading building material commodities. The leasing market in most sections of the district is much improved, which is a gauge by which lenders are induced to meet applicants for building money. This is always a forerunner of new building enterprises.

MILLIKEN'S PLANT BRINGS $100,000

Big Factory Site at Linden Owned by Former Plainfielders is Sold.

A realty transaction, involving more than $100,000, was recorded in County Register Smith's office on Saturday, when a deed was filed transferring the property of Milliken Brothers, Incorporated, along the shorefront in Linden township, to the Ammo-Phos Corporation, of New York.

The latter is a chemical manufacturing company and it is said that it acquired the property for the purpose of making chemical products there. More than fifteen years ago, Milliken Brothers erected an iron and steel plant on the site but went into bankruptcy before occupying it. In consequence the plant was never operated and has lain idle all these years. Milliken Brothers, Inc., has a similar plant on Staten Island.

The Ammo-Phos Corporation acquires a property having an approximate area of twenty-two acres. It is bounded by the Staten Island Sound, the Rahway River, the Sound Shore Railroad and the premises of the American-McKenna Process Company. Possessing convenient shipping facilities by either water or rail, the property is one of the most desirable in this vicinity.

A nominal consideration of $100 is mentioned in the deed but as that document contains $120 worth of special internal revenue stamps, the actual consideration is probably about $104,000. It is understood that the new owner will make many repairs to the plant before occupying it.

IN THE SUBURBS

DUNELLEN.

John Fedderman, the hustling local real estate agent, put through quite a large deal in borough real estate on Monday last when he closed up a transfer upon which he had been working for about two months, and the titles were passed for the property involved. The extensive property on North avenue, formerly owned by Winfield R. Hetfield, and hence generally known as the Hetfield property, but more recently owned by Frank T. Farrell, goes to Wilhelm Lockenvitz, of Equator Park, Mr. Farrell receiving a business property on one of the finest business streets in Brooklyn. The property taken over by Mr. Lockenvitz includes the store occupied by the Dunellen Free Public Library, the places of business of George Koscheck, John Huff, Edgar Shively and J. Handelman, as well as apartments in the second story. The deal was closed at Somerville, the lawyers in the case being Francis J. Blatz, of Plainfield, for Mr. Farrell, and Voorhees Klein for Mr. Lockenwitz.

Work was commenced this week on the remodeling of the Michael A. Gallagher building, to make it suitable for the occupancy of R. T. Heaume & Son.

The lot of land situated on Lincoln avenue next to the Stanley Day house, owned at various times by George W. Day, Harry Tinsman, Arthur Tipling and others, has been sold by the latest owner, a Newark party, to Contractor Walter G. Clawson, who buys for speculation.

A contract for building another brick house in Equator Park was awarded last week to Contractor Charles Wrage and Contractor Walter G. Clawson, who does the mason work with him. This will make the fifth house of this style of construction which they have put up in the Park.

Work was completed this week on the erection of a new garage for George Zink on the premises occupied by him. It is to house his new Ford delivery. The building was constructed by Contractors Kirchner & Voght.

BORO BUILDING

Building permits granted by the Common Council of the Borough of North Plainfield last night were as follows:

H. DeMott, small addition to house on Somerset street.

E. O. Driver, build shed at 210 Grove street.

William Barlow, to build garage at 69 Rockview avenue.

R. W. Smith, to build garage at 64 Brook avenue.

John B. Emmons, to build one and a half story house on Watchung avenue.

E. D. Derringer, to build garage on Myrtle avenue.

Annie Carnival, to build addition to house at 271 Duer street.

W. J. Trembath, to build small addition to rear of house on Chatham street.

OCTOBER IS BIG BUILDING MONTH

Twenty-two Permits Granted by Inspector Doane, Buildings to Cost $102,910.

October proved to be one of the best months of the present year in local construction activities, twenty-two permits having been issued by Inspector T. O. Doane. The documents call for the erection of five dwellings, one church, one storage warehouse, nine garages, two sheds, one business building, and four alteration jobs. The total expenditures of the month total $102,910, as against a little over $29,000 for the month of October last year.

The prospects for sufficient work to keep the majority of the local building craftsmen busy for some little time are now in sight, and conditions are much better at this time than at this point a year ago. Alterations and repair work are playing prominent parts in keeping the journeymen at work, and the improvement in the general industrial conditions are doing great things in compelling an upward trend in the construction activities of this vicinity.

The types of buildings for which permits are being issued show that the money market is fast returning to its normal state, as is the industrial world in this section of the State. The uneasiness of the money and industrial world as a general rule effect the building activities first, and these are the last to feel the effects of the return to prosperity.

The permits for the past month were distributed as follows:

	New Bldgs.	Alter'ions.	Totals
1st. Wd...	$56,150	$ 1,500	$ 57,650
2nd Wd..	6,930	——	6,930
3rd Wd...	25,445	1,000	26,445
4th Wd...	8,385	3,500	11,885
Total ..	$96,910	$ 6,000	$102,910

FIVE PERMITS ARE ISSUED THIS WEEK

Aggregate Cost of New Building is Placed at $10,235.

November opened briskly in local building circles, five permits being issued by Inspector T. O. Deane. These cover the erection of one dwelling, one garage, one alteration job, two buildings for the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company, and the installation of volatile liquids. The estimated cost of these buildings aggregate $10,235.

As noted in another column, not in several years has the local fall building season opened under such auspicious conditions as the present year. The total of expenditures for the first ten months of 1915 exceed the expenditures of the same period of time for last year by several thousands of dollars, and there is every indication that this and next month will sustain the increases already noted.

The permits as issued during the course of the past week are as noted below:

First Ward.

Toney Correa is to erect an 18 by 24 foot, two and one-half story dwelling on Watson avenue. The construction will be of hollow terra cotta block, and will cost $1,325. Fred C. Lancaster is the architect, Matti Bony the mason contractor, while the carpentry work is to be cared for by Joseph Indice.

Michael Mangora is to build an 18 by 12 foot, two and one-half story frame extension to the dwelling at 513 East Third street, at a cost of $800. William H. Clum is the architect, and Joseph Indice the general contractor.

William N. Dunham is to erect a 12 by 18 foot frame garage at 407 East Second street at a cost of $60.

Third Ward.

Dr. P. B. Cregar is having installed a tank for the storage of volatile liquid at 429 Grant avenue, at a cost of $50.

Fourth Ward.

Further buildings are to be erected at the Saurer plant of the International Motor Company on West Front street, just west of Clinton avenue. A permit for two separate buildings was issued this week. One of the structures is to be used as an oil house while the other is to be in the nature of an extension to the present blacksmith shop, measuring 46 by 18 feet. The former structure will measure 51 by 19 feet. The estimated cost of both buildings, which are to be constructed of brick, has been placed at $8,000. John G. Brown, of Philadelphia, is the architect and superintendent of construction.

GARWOOD SHOP TO HAVE EXTENSIVE ADDITION

Garwood, Nov. 6.—Otis Wright, of Garwood, and Dr. Theodore R. Harvey, of Westfield, have purchased the business of The Beckley Perforating Company, in North avenue. The sale was consummated in Newark last Wednesday night. Albert J. Beckley, of Westfield, the founder of the business, is to remain with the concern, and Councilman T. J. Carlson will be retained as works manager.

The Beckley Perforating Company manufactures all manner of screens for mining. Of late the concern has been busy day and night making perforated metal boxes for the DuPont Powder Company. The plant is to be enlarged by the erection of a building 180x50 feet.

Otis Wright is engaged in the coal and lumber business in Cranford and Garwood. Dr. T. R. Harvey is a practicing dentist in Westfield, and the president of the National Bank of Westfield.

COUNTY CONTRACTS.

Nine construction contracts were filed at the offices of County Clerk James C. Calvert during the week ending last Saturday, calling for the expenditure of $18,247. Two contracts were from this end of the county as follows:

Catherine Bartelloui et al. with Samuel M. Titus, entire work new building, West Front street, Plainfield, $3,445.

Michael F. Watson with Albert J. Rhodier, entire work remodeling building, Grant avenue, Plainfield, $3,450.

POLITICAL LEADER WINS.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Frederick C. Tanner, chairman of the Republican State Committee, will today take as his bride Miss Jane Ogden, of Albany. The ceremony will take place in the State Street Presbyterian church, this city. Miss Olive Whitman, daughter of the Governor, will be flower girl. Among the ushers is U. S. Senator James W. Wadsworth. Many State officials will attend.

Feeding the Baby Bear.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Berne, the City of Many Bears.

"THIS is travel night!" Jack cried. And daddy began: "I will tell you a story about a city that probably cares more for bears than any other city in the world. Perhaps the reason is that hundreds of years ago bears used to visit it from the high Alps that circle all around, for Berne lies beside a beautiful river fed by snowbanks that melt on the slopes of the Swiss Alps."

"What does it look like?" asked Evelyn.

"Like a quiet town with interesting fountains, queer old clock towers, quaint bridges over the Aare—and bears. Near the east gate is a curious ancient clock where roosters crow the hour. Two minutes before the hour a troupe of bears march in a row around a man sitting on the tower. Then on public buildings are bears wearing a helmet and shield and carrying a banner and sword just like soldiers, and the nice little shops all over the city are filled with wooden bears to sell travelers, bears that the fathers of poor children spend all the long winter carving out of wood cut in the Alps."

"Aren't there any live bears?" Jack wanted to know.

"Yes, indeed!" said daddy. "On the right bank of the river Aare, near a handsome bridge, stands a bear's den with real live bears in it—a father and mother bear, brother and sister bear and a baby bear, just like the porridge story. This den is round and set down in the ground, so that visitors that stand around it looking down at the bear family are safe. Even before history was written in books Berne owned and kept this den, and still the city pays for the bears and their food."

"Does it cost much to feed bears?" asked Jack.

"Yes, for bears have huge appetites and need straw to lay on and men to take care of them. This very old bears' den is one of the favorite places visitors like to visit. It is even more popular than the wonderful old fountains that often sit right in the middle of the streets, so that women have to turn out to go around them. Some of these fountains have strange figures carved on them—jolly bagpipers playing music on amazing guitars, old ogres eating men and young archers shooting arrows into the bright air. But any afternoon you go to visit the famous Berne bears you will find a circle of people around their den, lots of little children and their nursemaids feeding the baby bear fruit and carrots and bread"—

"Do bears like bread?" cried Evelyn.

"Just as well as you and Jack do," said daddy, with a hug.

The children cried, "Thank you, daddy!" and scampered off to bed.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. D. A. LEONARD

In Which a Pleasant Evening Turns Suddenly to Gloom.

"You are certainly putting on some style, coming home in an automobile." Molly Sutner smiled into her husband's radiant face.

"Yes, Dr. Ellson picked me up on the way home and we had a ride out in the country. He found me an old, discouraged man; he brought me back young, vigorous, full of hope. It's wonderful what a friendly word will do sometimes."

"Now you will believe what I say about the Ellsons," said Molly enthusiastically. "You always half laughed at my enthusiasm about them. I really think they are the finest people in the world."

"Well, I'll back anything you say about Dr. Ellson, all right. I do not know Mrs. Ellson as well as you do. Is supper ready? I have an appetite like a bear after that ride." John caught his boy in his arms and tossed him toward the ceiling.

"Yes, everything is ready to dish. Your ride made you late, you see."

Molly hurried to the kitchen and the cheery rattling of cooking utensils was mingled with the gay laughter of Jack, who came riding to dinner on his father's shoulder when dinner was called.

"Now, tell me all about your ride, John, dear," said Molly, as she poured the tea. She had no notion of letting this cheerful mood go by without making the most of it.

"Well, I was moodily walking along, wondering what in the world I would do if Jaynes should turn me off because Benson garnisheed my wages."

"Has he garnisheed them?" interrupted Molly.

"He wrote me that he had put the matter in the hands of a lawyer, so I suppose it is done by this time. As I was saying, I was finding myself very poor company, when a machine stopped by the curb and a cheerful voice asked me to ride. I needed no second invitation, I assure you. He began in his friendly way to tell me that I was not taking good care of myself, that I was pale, and advised me to take more exercise in the open. I said it was not work but worry that hurt people. One thing led to another and before I knew it almost I was telling my worries. He had such a sympathetic way of drawing me out. Do you know"—John laid down his knife and fork to be more impressive—"that blessed man actually offered to lend me money to help me out of my difficulties."

"Will you accept the offer?" asked Molly in a troubled tone.

"If I find I am likely to lose my position over this Benson affair I shall be only too glad to find a way out. Why?"

"Oh, I care so very much for them as friends, and I have heard it said that mixing up money matters with friendship often made trouble, that it was a good way to lose friends," said Molly hesitatingly.

"Of course I will not borrow it if there is any other way out. I suppose you would rather I struggled along alone than have me take advantage of his kind offer. I thought you would be glad or I would not have told you." John's face was clouded over. "I might have known that you would put any and everything before my best interests." This was the old bitter tone that she knew.

"Oh, I surely am very glad you have a way out, John, dear; I only meant——" she trailed off dismally as he gave a contemptuous shrug and resumed his eating in silence.

"Why must I always say the wrong thing," she thought despairingly. She rose and went around to his chair and laid her hand on his shoulder, but he did not look up or notice the effort to restore pleasant relations. Molly turned with a sigh to her place at the table and the customary gloom prevailed.

Live News From All Branches of Winter Sports

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Those Georgia Crackers have funny ideas of sport. Ty Cobb saw a football game at Atlanta, Ga., the other day and pronounced it brutal. He said: "If football was a daily attraction it would last about a week. Its brutality, if nothing else, would kill it. This afternoon several boys were hurt and put out of the game. This might attract for a day, but it would not appeal to America long. In football the spectators only have a vague idea of what is happening; the game is not followed as easily as is baseball."

Brutal, eh? We know football isn't to be compared with the favorite sport of Ceorgia's sons, but the spectacle of that young prisoner who was taken from his cell and hung to a Georgia oak one morning last July is still in the minds of Georgia people and it has not caused a shudder that is perceptible to an outsider. And the manacled body, with an open wound on its throat stretched by the lyncher's noose, hung for a day in—yes, it was Cobb county. They should be able to stand for the brutality of football for more than one week.

Carranza will apply to organized baseball for the right to put a baseball league in Mexico. This is probably kindness cropping out in the whiskered Mexican chief. He figures that Villa's army will be reduced to a normal baseball squad by spring and wants to find entertainment for the revolutionists. Baseball would prove a big factor in bringing Mexico to civilization, but nobody will ever find our application on file for a job as umpire in a league down there.

Organized baseball's plan to bring about peace with the Feds by selling out to them ought to be mightily popular in St. Louis, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Harry Sinclair denies that he is trying to buy the Cincinnati Reds, thereby proving that he is contemplating the purchase of a baseball team.

That there are a number of hop-smokers and snow-sniffers mixed up either in the baseball business or the newspaper fraternity is shown by the number of fairy tales that are spread each fall, each of which has for its subject a big trade in baseball. Already Frank Baker has been sold several times, the New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Americans have changed hands. Pat Moran has signed with several National League clubs, and Fed magnates have bought out O. B., but spring will find all the boys back in the same old places. These fall fancies are to be given about as much credence as an official German war report. The story that has gained the greatest circulation is one telling of Harry Sinclair, of the Newark Feds, making a big offer for the New York Giants. It is shattered by the following statement from Secretary Foster, of the Giants:

"If Sinclair is so anxious to buy a ball club he should have no trouble in getting one without bidding for the Giants. He can buy the Cleveland Americans or the St. Louis Browns. He can purchase the Shibes' stock in the Athletics or a half interest in the Boston Red Sox, providing he will put up enough money. Personally I believe that all this talk about buying ball clubs is part of a scheme to make the Feds in Buffalo, Baltimore and Kansas City come to the scratch with new bankrolls. I do not believe that Sinclair or any other Federal League man will buy a franchise in the National League and I am sure that they cannot break into the American League as long as Ban Johnson is president. It's easy to talk about buying baseball property, but it's not so easy to dig up the necessary coin."

MASONS WILL OPEN LEAGUE SCHEDULE ON NOVEMBER 15

The Masonic Bowling League, in which Plainfield is represented by five teams, will begin its 1915-16 season Monday night, November 15, when the Herman and Essex Lodges oppose each other. The Plainfield lodges, Ancient and Jerusalem, will begin operations a week later. Seven teams are on the circuit this season and the schedule will be concluded March 2.

On November 18, two matches will be rolled between Washington and Tyrian on the German Lutheran alleys. Orient Lodge will travel to Rahway on that date to appear against Lafayette Lodge. The Tyrian team, which copped high honors last season, is out to repeat. Azure Lodge, of Cranford, will roll its first series on November 22.

Close competition marked the Elks' League bowling match on the alleys of the Newark lodge, Newark, last night, capturing two games out of three from the Jersey City quintet. It was the opening match of the season for the Newark quintet.

In the first game the Green street pin knights accounted for a victory by twenty-four pins, having a total of 894. There was clever pinning on both sides. The next game saw the Newarkers just about maintain their pace, totaling 887, to which VanNess and Speary each contributed 203. Levy had 203 for the visitors, but the team total was only 863, the Jersey City five being again twenty-four pins to the bad.

The best bowling was done in the windup contest. The Newarkers advanced to 921, but this did not prove to be quite sufficient, the Jersey City five, with 930, showing the way by nine pins. Murphy led the visitors with 210 and Delehanty helped considerably with an even 200. VanNess led the Newarkers with 205 and his average for the series was 201. Here are all the scores:

THE NATIONAL HORSE SHOW A SOCIAL EVENT

New York, Nov. 6.—The National Horse Show, which opens today in Madison Square Garden, will be the only great indoor horseshow in the world this year. The variety of prizes, the high-class entries, the enthusiasm of leading horsemen and horsewomen, and the wonderful scheme of decoration which makes the Garden a bower of beauty, all contrive to make the event a notable one in the horse world.

The interior decorations have transformed the Garden into a fairyland. Ivy-covered arches, fountains, miniature lakes, banks of growing plants and flowers are on every side. Under the direction of E. T. Stotesbury, the Philadelphia millionaire, who is president of the association, three thousand dollars a day will be spent for floral decorations.

The show will have an international aspect this year. Canada has sent some of its best horses, and has loaned some of her best judges, including Lady Beck, a qualified judge of saddle horses.

Prizes and trophies, many in number and of great value, have been offered by the Vanderbilts and other patrons of the show. Lord Decies has given a trophy for a new military class in the judging. Another trophy for the army men is the Canadian Challenge Cup, given by Sir Adam Beck.

The National Horse Show will continue all next week, and the judging will take place from day to day, by classes.

SPEAKER GETS NEW CONTRACT

Boston Red Sox Star May Net Receive $18,000 Next Season.

Tris Speaker, probably the highest salaried player in either league, said to draw $18,000 per season, will have to sign a contract before next season, as the one which netted him this fabulous sum expired with the past season.

Ty Cobb, who is said to be getting $15,000, has another year to play for that figure, his contract not expiring until at the close of the 1916 campaign. Cobb is sure to keep up his present pace for a couple of years or more, and he will naturally want to earn as much as he can, so that it would not be surprising if he, too, should ask for higher pay when the time comes to sign a new contract.

CLAUSS BOWLING OVER 200 MARK

Elizabeth Man Will Be Near the Top in Season's Averages.

When the averages are compiled for the Elks' League bowlers, one individual who will be near the top is Henny Clauss, of the Elizabeth team, says the Elizabeth Times. Henry averaged well over the 200 mark in the first series last week. In the opening matches with Rahway he averaged 218.2. His average for the six contests he has bowled is 197.5. When he gets back on his own wood he may be expected to return to the double-century department. Henry is the same old enemy of the lignum vitae. As each season progresses he may be found at the foul line assaulting the timber with the vengeance of old.

And the "289" team in general is to be extended some praise for its triple victory in New York Wednesday night. Although it reached the 900 mark only once, yet it came within two points of this score in one of the games and was only thirty shy in another. When it is considered that the New York team did not ascend to within fifty of the 900 tally the work of the Elizabeth aggregation is appreciated. The Betsytown troupe is leading the tournament, having won every one of its six engagements.

BATTIN GIRLS MAY PLAY BASKETBALL

Parents Force School Board to Allow Game During This Year.

As a result of a united protest by members of the Battin High School girls' basketball team and their parents, the committee on course of instruction of the Board of Education has recommended to the Board that the order abolishing the girls' so-called varsity team in the High School be suspended for the present school year. The order abolishing the team was adopted a short time ago by the Board, at the committee's suggestion, and although suspended for the present, will be put into force next year.

Miss Harriet Townsend, chairman of the committee on course of instruction, made the report on the decision in the basketball team controversy. Miss Townsend introduced the first report several meetings ago, which did away with the girls' team and also modified other forms of exercise for girls in the public schools.

Because of inability of the Midout A. C. football team to come from Brooklyn the Holy Cross game for this afternoon on Cricket Field has been cancelled. Notice of the failure of the visitors to make the trip was not received in Plainfield until this morning and local players had been expecting to stage the contest until almost noon, when the Midout manager notified Capt. Wilson that he would not be able to come. It was too late to secure another team for today's game and the local players reluctantly called it off.

LOCAL STUDENTS HIGH IN YALE COLLEGE RECORD

In announcing the list of students who carried off scholarship honors last year at Amherst the college faculty placed the name of Carter Goodrich, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Goodrich, and valedictorian of the graduating class of 1914 in the Plainfield High School, near the top of the list. During last year as a freshman at that college he attained the highest honors of his class in the entire four subjects in the course, and as a result has been honored by being elected to one of the most exclusive clubs in the institution.

The name of Willard MacKay, another local boy and valedictorian of the class of 1913 at the Plainfield High School, stands high on the list of Yale's honor men. He also carried off scholarship honors in his class last year as a sophomore and has already been mentioned for high standing so far this year in the junior class.

PERCY STEWART ACCEPTS INVITATION TO SPEAK

Former Mayor Percy H. Stewart has accepted the invitation of a number of prominent citizens of Plainfield to give a public address at the Plainfield High School on Thursday night, November 11, giving his experiences in the camp at Plattsburg, N. Y. Mr. Stewart's letter of acceptance to Ernest R. Ackerman follows:

"I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of the kind invitation to address the citizens of Plainfield on my experiences in the camp at Plattsburg. I fear that the many kind friends who have signed the request have much over-estimated my ability; but, if anything in my personal experience, or the information imparted to us by the most eminent military experts, may be of assistance in aiding the public to come to a decision as to their duty in matters which are of supreme importance to the American people, I am at your service.

"I shall, therefore, be most happy to address you on November 11, at 8 o'clock in the evening, at the High School, if this time and place is agreeable to your committee."

STEALING BASES EASY.

Kansas City Federal league players are telling a story of their ball game with the convict team at the Leavenworth (Kan.) federal prison. The Kansas City boys give the score at 23 to 1 in their favor.

In the seventh inning the score was 13 to 0, and the 2,000 convict rooters were calling for a score. The convicts' manager sent in "9502," a postoffice burglar, as a pinch hitter. He got on by a walk, was sacrificed to second, stole third and then stole home, scoring the only run.

POLICY FLYNN AN EASY WINNER OVER M'MAHON

Dan "Porky" Flynn, the Boston heavyweight, scored an easy victory over Tom McMahon, of Pittsburgh, in the feature ten-round bout last night at the American Sporting Club in Harlem. The Boston boxer won the honors in every round by his aggressiveness. McMahon was awkward as compared with his opponent, and although the Pittsburgh heavyweight was always trying and willing, Flynn easily held him at a safe distance with effective jabs.

THE TEST OF THE "PINCH."
There are few things you buy and use which are not fairly good—until the "pinch" comes.
But when that pinch comes—when you want satisfaction what a difference there is in service.
We have come to the rescue so often, when the pinch comes, that it isn't strange this office has so many friends.

"MEMBERS AND NOT MONEY" THE SLOGAN

Y. M. C. A. Ready to Open Week's Campaign Here Next Week.

"Members, Not Money!" will be the slogan of the Y. M. C. A. campaign to enroll 800 new members, which will commence next Thursday and continue six days. Twenty-four teams, of twelve men each, will canvass the city for new members, each in a friendly way endeavoring to secure a larger enrollment than its competitors. The campaign will be under the direction of J. A. MacArt, the veteran campaign manager, who comes to Plainfield from Lowell, Mass., where he has completed a successful campaign for 1,600 new members.

Evening luncheons will be served each evening at 7 o'clock, when teams will report and in a general way ginger and enthusiasm will be infused in the minds of the workers.

A bureau will be established in the lobby of the association building for the purpose of handling the office details of the campaign.

The division chairmen of the campaign are:

Division A, William N. Runyon; Division B, J. W. Gavett; Division C, Donald McGee; Division D, James McClymont. The last division is the boys' division.

The campaign will open on Thursday night, with a supper in the association building, when the final arrangements will be made for active work.

You May Find a Worker Trained and Fit to do Your Work.

A worker whose salary you will voluntarily raise in a short time!

"Getting along" with half-competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

The quest for the Competent Worker is important enough to justify a real campaign of classified advertising in the Plainfield Daily Press—although it does not often require a very long campaign.

TO DEDICATE EAST END CHURCH SOON

Edifice for Netherwood Reformed Congregation Nearing Completion.

A REMARKABLE GROWTH

Structure Now Being Erected at Cost of $14,000 Will Be Suitable for Services and Bible School Uses—Description of Building.

The new chapel of the Netherwood Reformed church which is being erected at a cost of $14,000 and will be suitable both for church and Bible school uses, will be completed, it is expected, early next month. Eventually an entire new church building will be constructed, but for the present it was deemed advisable to proceed only with the chapel.

There will be room for about 250 in the main room and class rooms besides a well lighted and comfortable room for the children. The basement will be deep enough for basketball games and a gymnasium as well as conveniently arranged for a dining room with a commodious kitchen.

The material used is hollow tile and stucco, with artificial stone trimmings and, as required by the building code of Plainfield, the floor will be fireproof. This will make the entire building fireproof.

Soon after the coming as pastor of Edward S. Ralston, May 1, 1914, a call to whom was extended at the spring meeting of the Classis of Newark in that year, plans were prepared for a new church building, and Charles W. Bolton & Son, of Philadelphia, were selected as architects. The outbreak of the war and the financial stringency delayed for a time the beginning of the work, but during the past winter the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed church made an appropriation for this purpose.

About the same time notice was received of a legacy of $1,000 left by Mrs. Susan P. DuBois for a building. Soon after, Mrs. Ralph Voorhees, of Clinton, gave $5,000 for the same purpose. With this encouragement the church took up anew its plans and in the summer of this year ground was broken.

The Netherwood church is one of the youngest in the Classis. Early in 1909 Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, discovered in the eastern part of the city a section growing rapidly and without any place for religious worship. As a result of his investigations at the spring session of the Classis, money was subscribed and lots were secured and a portable church bought. On July 4 of that year this portable building was opened for services in Leland avenue, a block from the main line trolley.

The property was centrally located for the eastern section and about a mile from the nearest church. The work grew rapidly and January 5, 1910, it was organized by the Classis under its present name, with a charter membership of twenty-nine. Rev. Royal B. Stout, who had been in charge of the work from the beginning, was made pastor.

Under Mr. Stout's leadership, the successful growth of the church continued until his resignation in August, 1913, when he accepted a call to a Presbyterian church in Philadelphia. During this pastorate a comfortable parsonage was erected and a substantial increase in membership was made.

During the past year the membership of the church has increased materially. The Bible school has so outgrown the present building that the beginners' department meets in the parsonage. The attendance of the school is increasing rapidly, the record being 148 two weeks ago.

For a year past the portable building has been the community center, and there being no public school near enough, the Board of Education made arrangements with the consistory of the church and a kindergarten and first grade have been accommodated, thus caring for about eighty children five days in the week.

The Plainfield Public Library, at the request of the pastor, installed a branch in the building, which is open Saturday afternoons. Also, a year ago, Mr. Ralston called together the residents of that part of the city and organized the East End Civic Association, which now has a membership of about 100, and has done good work toward the improvement of the neighborhood. Mr. Ralston has been the president and at the annual meeting last week was re-elected. One great work of the association has been the securing of a new school building for that part of the city. What so much done already by the church those interested believe there is great promise for the future.

The Basores will meet tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock with Mrs. W. D. W. Miller, of East Seventh street.

WORK AMONG THE BELGIAN REFUGEES

Mrs. Nina Duryea Tells of the Relief Given to Destitute in France.

Appearing in an informal talk before the members of the Plainfield Branch of the Belgian Relief Committe, yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Frederic W. Wallace, 996 Hillside avenue, Mrs. Nina Duryea, who returned from France last June, told the local committee of the relief work being conducted in France in caring for the Belgian refugee. Mrs. Duryea, who was associated with Miss Anne Morgan in the work during her stay there, reported that thirty thousand Belgian refugees passed through Dimard into France and that France was caring for about one-third of the entire population of Belgium. She portrayed in graphic word pictures the great need among the people, especially the Belgian babies, of whom thousands were born in France. The mothers being in absolutely destitute conditions have no clothing whatever for their children. In order to alleviate this suffering, Miss Anne Morgan had devised a plan whereby the women of Paris, who have no work now, could sew at the rate of twenty cents a day, thus making clothing for these infants, if the materials could be supplied. The English had also planned a scheme whereby with one yard of flannel, costing in America ten cents, a baby layette could be made, consisting of a little dress, undergarment and shoes. Machines cut thousands of these at one time. Mrs. Duryea announced to the local committee that she would provide the material if the citizens would provide the money and that Miss Morgan would pay the women of Paris for their work.

She made an urgent appeal to the public, citing the fact that a ten-cent contribution, the cost of a glass of soda water, would buy a complete outfit for one of the babies. Flannel costing ten cents in America costs twenty-three cents in Paris. Mrs. Duryea illustrated her appeals with pictures of the intense suffering and destitute condition of the people.

Mrs. Wallace has called a meeting at her home tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, of the Belgian Relief Committee, to go on with the work conducted here last winter. She will announce at that time that she has received a cable from the Queen of Belgium, particularly appealing to the Plainfield people for help in providing for the babies in northern France. She has also made a plea for American portable houses, whereby forty babies could have a roof over their heads.

PROFESSOR SCHULTZ TO LECTURE IN THIS CITY

Arrangements have been made for the appearance of Professor Charles H. Schultz, of Carlton Academy, in the Columbus Club auditorium on West Front street, tomorrow night, when he will deliver a lecture on "Why I Became a Catholic." The speaker will deal with the subject from the point of view of a convert and this, coupled with his well known ability as a lecturer, will make the affair a particularly instructive one.

It is expected that a large audience will be present as it will be free to all sects. Previous events of this nature have attracted considerable attention from non-Catholics and a general invitation has been extended to people of all creeds.

FAVORS NATIONAL DEFENSE PLANS

Charles S. Sminck Emphasizes the Importance of Country Being Prepared.

GIVES HIS REASONS

Urges Citizens to Attend Meeting at High School Thursday Night When Former Mayor Stewart Will Speak.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the national defense meeting to be held at the High School on Thursday night, when former Mayor Percy H. Stewart will tell of his experiences at the Plattsburg encampment. Charles S. Sminck, who has just been elected a member of the City Council, is among those who are active in this movement and in conversation with a representative of the Plainfield Daily Press said that he felt it to be the duty of every citizen to attend the meeting and inform himself on this vital and timely question. Mr. Sminck, commenting on the subject, said:

"The statement has been made by a distinguished writer that if the people of the United States were not prepared to defend the Stars and Stripes and its traditions that their sons and daughters would become the vassels of some foreign power. Let us discover if there is any truth in this proposition.

"The longer the war in Europe continues the higher becomes the economic level of the United States as compared with the powers engaged in that dreadful conflict which is straining and tearing the heart of humanity. The true interests of the United States lies in peace both at home and in Europe.

"After the war Europe will be poor and the United States rich. Judging the future by the past that condition will excite envious irritation. Both the Orient and Europe will seek to unload on the United States which will then have the richest market in the world. That is a statement of fact.

"Congress without political division may attempt in some way to prevent a possible commercial reaction and a lowering of the economic level of this country.

"Europe armed to the teeth and trained in war may through its diplomats serve notice that any such legislation will be regarded as an unfriendly act. In other words the liberty of the Congress of the United States to legislate for the United States may be called in question. In that event the people of the United States would be called upon to defend their independence.

"How then will we maintain our national dignity and self-respect if we have no means of defense

"It seems certain that a program of national defense should be promptly started to make certain the enjoyment and continuance of free institutions and to prevent any calamity in this country like that now inflaming our suffering and afflicted brothers on the European continent. National defense means an insurance against war. A defenseless country at this time means an invitation to war. Let us protect from militarism our country dedicated to freedom with its broad acres of three million five hundred thousand square miles reaching from ocean to ocean.

"Let us study this question and support the public men and statesmen who take the 'long view' with measures to prevent 'our sons and daughters from becoming the vassels of some foreign power.'"

BORO WINS $240 IN ONE SMALL GAME

Eight Italians Arrested for Tempting Chance Pay That Amount in Fines.

A gambling game in the store of Joseph Luppo, 57 Somerset street, Saturday evening, ended in the manner hoped for by all who are crusaders against the evil—everybody lost. That is, everybody who sat in the game lost, and lost heavily, but the borough of North Plainfield came out winner to the extent of $240.

Luppo runs a small restaurant in the borough and makes a specialty of spaghetti. For some time the police have suspected him of selling intoxicants because of the popularity of his place. Chief Weiss put detectives on the case last week and Saturday night they made a raid, headed by the police chief. Luppo and seven other men, all Italians, were arrested. They were taken to the station on charges of disorderly conduct and gambling.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., used modern police methods Sunday to secure conclusive evidence against the men under arrest. Instead of going to church he gave three hours to the cause of public peace and law enforcement. All of the men except Luppo were brought before the Mayor, Sunday, and he secured a statement from each, in which they admitted their guilt and told of the sale of Vermouth to players by Luppo. They also admitted that Luppo operated the game and "cut-a-kitty." Later when the proprietor started to plead not guilty he was confronted with this evidence and confessed.

Luppo was fined $100 by Mayor Clark this morning and the seven gamblers were fined $20 each. All of theim paid their fines and the borough was enriched $240 as a result of their Saturday evening's gaming.

LOUISE CAMPBELL'S CONDITION CRITICAL

Child Who is Undergoing Blood Transfusion at Hospital Suffers a Relapse.

The condition of Louise Campbell, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan G. Campbell, of Newark, who is undergoing blood transfusion at Muhlenberg Hospital, was reported today as being critical. A relapse came last night, after a good day following another operation Saturday, in which a pint of blood was taken from James Holden, of 151 Passaic street, Newark. The child rallied speedily after receiving the arterial fluid and the hopes of the physicians and parents rose accordingly. As the result of the decline today Dr. Lindeman thought it advisable to have no more tranfusions for a week, hoping in the meantime to give by other means the strength the child needs to undergo the trying ordeal.

Mr. Holden, who was the blood volunteer Saturday, is employed in the freight offices of the New Jersey Central, and went to the hospital through friendship for Mr. Campbell. Many other employes from the same department and those in various offices of the New Jersey Central have notified Mr. Campbell that they stand ready to contribute the needed fluid when ever wanted. A large number will be examined within the next few days in order to have them ready as soon as the child rallies sufficiently to go on with the treatment.

The case has attracted widespread attention and scores of inquiries have been directed to this city, asking for information as to the manner in which the transfusion is carried on. The disease with which the child is afflicted is called leukemia and Dr. Lindeman, who invented the new "hpo" process to offset its ravages, is exercising personal supervision of the needed operation.

TWO LANTERNS BROKE.

Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett reported to the police department that two traffic post lanterns had been demolished over the week-end, one located at Fifth street and Park avenue, and the other at the Sixth street intersection of Park avenue. The identity of the guilty parties is being sought by the police and if caught they will be severely dealt with.

STEPPED FROM BEHIND WAGON IN AUTO'S PATH

Mrs. Hyman Sadler, of 427 West Fourth street, was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Bergen Naylor, of West Front street, this morning. The woman stepped from behind a wagon directly in front of the on-coming auto. She was carried to a house nearby and the ambulance was summoned, but when that vehicle arrived it was determined that her hurts were not serious enough to warrant the victim's removal to the hospital.

Patrolmen Martin Welsh and Arthur McGinley, who were at the scene of the accident, brought Naylor to police headquarters. He will be given a hearing tomorrow morning to determine the responsibility for the accident.

KNIGHTS OF GOLDEN EAGLE FAIR A GREAT SUCCESS

The first annual fair of Freedom Commandery, No. 5, Knights of the Golden Eagles, closed Saturday night after a week of unbroken success. The fair was held in Armory Hall and all the attractions were liberally patronized.

The dances were probably the leading attraction, but the country store, antique in design and well stocked, had a long list of customers. While the financial statement has not yet been made public, those in charge declare that the fair was a great success in every way.

ITALIAN SLASHED IN SUNDAY FIGHT

One Man in Hospital and Four Others Held for Trial Tomorrow Morning.

One man is in Muhlenberg Hospital and two others are suffering from scratches, cuts and bruises as the result of an Italian brawl that created a stir in the Netherwood section of the city about 11 o'clock last night. The injured man, Salvadore Combioner, of 240 Jackson avenue, is suffering from a razor cut extending from his mouth to his left ear and was in an unconscious condition when removed to the hospital last night. It is not believed that his injuries will prove fatal.

Tony Seneca, Joseph Viperino Louis Ronzo and Nicholas Chup, four other foreigners, who were mixed up in the affair, were arrested at their homes by Patrolmen Fred Bader John Neylon and Roy Martin, and were held in bonds of $500 to answer to a charge of atrocious assault and battery before Judge DeMeza tomorrow morning. The men, when arraigned in court this morning, presented sorrowful blood bespattered countenances and all looked the worse for their part in the fracas, which is said to have started over a card game.

BELIEVES GERMANY WILL BE VICTORIOUS

C. H. Frost Gives Interesting Talk on War Before Round Table Club.

That Germany will win the war unless it is continued for at least two years longer was the belief expressed by Charles H. Frost, who was the speaker today before the Round Table Club at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Kensington. Mr. Frost bases his belief on the fact that the Germans have the finest military system in the world, and are better equipped than any of their adversaries to continue to strike decisive blows.

The prediction was made during the course of remarks in which the speaker told of his experiences at the Plattsburg citizens' training camp, where he spent four weeks last summer. He said that the need for men to participate in these camps was great and urged all his hearers who were able to do so to attend the camp next year, when it is hoped that there will be 5,000 men in training. Unless we prepare an adequate defense he feels that the time will come when some foreign power will land on our shores and exact a big indemnity before we can drive them off. In his opinion a victory by Germany in the war will result in her demanding that this country pay a great sum because the Germans look upon us as one of the Allies.

PAID $20 FOR STEWING OVER AN OYSTER STEW

Claiming that oysters "R" in season, and making a fuss because an East Front street restaurant keeper could not serve him with a stew made from the juicy products of the sea, got Harry Wieler, of 1226 Clinton avenue, into some trouble Saturday night that cost him $20 when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning. Wieler, with two companions, who peculiarly enough have been his pals since he came to Plainfield six months ago, and appeared as witnesses in his behalf this morning, insisted on being served with an oyster stew and when he did not get it he became boisterous.

The restaurant keeper summoned Patrolman Martin Flatley to his place of business and Wieler was ejected, Flatley giving him an opportunity to "beat it" when he got outside. The troublemaker, however, had some things to say about the copper and used language of an impressive nature in getting them out of his system. This caused his arrest and confinement in the city jail. After one of his companions had finished vouching for Wieler's good conduct Saturday night on the witness stand this morning, Chief Kiely caused him to admit that he was intoxicated and, were the truth to be known, he remembered but little of the affair.

HAS WIFE ARRESTED, THEN FORGIVES HER

Husband Leaves Man Found With Her in Jail, However.

Somerville, Nov. 8.—County Detective George D. Totten arrested James Cassidy and Mrs. Archie Eyler both of Middleburg, Maryland, last Saturday night in their three-room apartment on Main street, South Bound Brook.

Word was received here a few days ago by the county authorities from Archie Eyler that his wife had eloped with Cassidy, she taking their two sons, eight and three years old.

Cassidy and Eyler are employed by the Allen & Frech Co., who are building a road in West Virginia. It seems that Cassidy was transferred from that place to South Bound Brook, where the Allen Construction Company is building a sewer.

Saturday evening, after locating Cassidy and the Eyler woman, Totten got Eyler, who had came on, and together went to the apartment.

The door was broken in by Totten and in the room Cassidy, the woman and her two children were found.

All were brought to the county jail. Eyler and his wife, after a long talk, made up, and Sunday morning left with their children for the south.

Cassidy was released Sunday night under $500 bail furnished by Diamond Hahn, of Raritan.

A Galley o' Fun!

A QUIET LITTLE AFFAIR.

"Yes," said Mrs. A. Algernon Defere to Mrs. P. B. Augustus Lenoxmythe at the afternoon tea, "our little Helene is to be married early in June. The invitations will go out in a day or two. It will be a very quiet little affair. Helene's tastes are so simple and Percy hates anything like display. We shall not have more than six hundred at the church nor more than five hundred at the house, and everything will be as simple as possible. There will not be more than six bridesmaids, and our daughter, Mayrie will, of course, be the maid of honor. The two little daughters of a niece of mine will be the flower girls, and we are to have the double ring ceremony, and we mean to have a vested choir supply the music. Of course we shall have roses for the church decorations as the month will be June. I have just ordered a hundred dozen, and we will need about fifty dozen for the house besides several dozen potted plants. We don't want anything overdone or anything even suggestive of ostentation, and with the exception of the ceremony at the church it will be a quiet little home wedding—simple and without any ostentation."

PARTING.

"We must part!" faltered Gabrielle.
"No! No! No!" cried Hermann, looking at his watch. "I have but ten minutes!"

She regarded him wonderingly. Mere child that she was, she had to learn that fond hearts may not part and do it right in less than two hours at the least.

ALL ENTITLED TO THEIR OPINIONS.

Friend—Of course, some folks object to dogs and parrots.

Aunt Sally—Yes; and some object to folks who object to dogs and parrots.

CHINESE PECULIARITIES.

"Mr. John Smith, of our town," scribbled the reporter—

"By the way, Mr. Smith, how long did you say you were in China?"

"Spent a week in Hong Kong," said the man who was being interviewed.

"—who has spent a portion of his life in China, ascribes the present troubles to the ignorance and superstitions of the Chinese. You say they're awfully superstitious?"

"Yes," said Mr. Smith. "And their anti-foreign ideas! They think our customs absurd."

'Just so," said the reporter. And he put down on his pad, reading as he went along:

"Believe it is lucky to walk under a ladder or to see the new moon over one's left shoulder; never eat unless they are thirteen at table—"

"I didn't say anything about—"

"That's all right. Consider a rabbit's foot a hoodoo; wouldn't begin any important work except on Friday—"

"I didn't say—"

"Don't worry, Mr. Smith! The public doesn't bother about trifles. Good-by. I must rush to get this in!"

FAITHFULLY REPRODUCED.

Hercules was keeping the big stick busy during his famous encounter with the Hydra. But, as you know, every time he struck off one head, two succeeded it. Finally the humor of the situation struck the strong man. "I'm sure giving a correct imitation of what Charlie Murphy is doing to New York state!" he chuckled.

NOT THE ONLY ONE.

"I don't know good music from bad myself."

"Well, sah, dere's a lot of folks like you, only dey doan know it!"

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS.

He—I want to know, once for all, who is master of this house?

She—You'll be happier if you don't find out!

A MANIFEST IMPOSSIBILITY.

Warwick—Why is it that there are no real skyscrapers in London?

Wickwire—There is no sky.

A SAD POSITION.

Mother (ultra English)—Yes, Robert, "the king can do no wrong!"

Bobbie—Shucks! Then there can be much fun bein' a king!

—There's a job for you—if you have a good head and willing hands and feet. But you must advertise yourself into the job.

FOUND A MAIL POUCH.

An U. S. mail pouch was picked up about twenty-five feet west of the local west bound Central Railroad depot by Patrolman Charles Wicht last night. The pouch was probably dropped from a passing train and was turned over to the baggage-master.

We are closing out our room sizes of Oriental Rugs. If we had to duplicate them under present market conditions we should have to PAY considerably more than our regular prices, from which we have now made substantial reductions. The war has played havoc with the weaving of these masterpieces, whose incomparable beauty and everlasting durability are understood in every part of the globe. In future we intend handling the smaller rugs only, and this decision has resulted in an opportunity for our patrons that has no precedent in the history of the Oriental rug business. It is unnecessary to dilate on the glorious colorings and inimitable designs of these rugs.

MANY WORSHIPPERS AT VESPER SERVICE

Special Music by Large Choir Popular at First Presbyterian Church.

More than two hundred people attended the vesper services in the "Promenade Church" yesterday afternoon, when the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, preached to the largest second-service congregation he has had in a long time. The augmented choir, introduced for the first time yesterday by Herbert J. Harold, organist and musical director of this church, proved a popular feature and the large attendance and encomiums bestowed upon the organist and choir after the services insured it as a permanent Sunday afternoon feature hereafter.

Nineteen parents brought children to the vesper service and carriages and automobiles in the parking place in the rear of the church showed that this is already a popular feature with automobilists either passing through the city or out for a neighborhood spin just before supper time.

Congregational singing and the fact that the pastor is making a special effort to bring to this service Plainfield's Sunday afternoon promenaders through a modern and well developed sacred musical program and helpful sermons to the young people are responsible for the constantly increasing Sunday afternoon attendances.

At the morning service Mrs. Clarence Leslie Bond, Miss Marjorie Pruden Searing, Mrs. Kate B. Smith, William J. Bradley and James Fenner became members of this church.

On Wednesday evening there is to be a special congregational meeting when the matter of authorizing the Italian mission to proceed to the purchase of a lot for the ultimate erection thereon of a suitable edifice, will be taken up. The work of the mission will be reported upon.

ROSELLE BOROUGH ELECTED TOO MANY PEACE JUSTICES

Roselle, Nov. 8.—Roselle borough, after May 1, will have four justices of the peace. The official ballot Tuesday called for the election of three justices.

There are two justices in office at the present time and with the three elected the borough would have five but as the population of the borough is less than 4,000, the law will only allow two of those elected Tuesday to qualify, making a total of four in the borough. William Mulford, who ran third on the ticket Tuesday, will not qualify.

COMMUTERS WILL FIGHT INCREASE IN THE RATES

Camden, Nov. 8.—Mayor Charles H. Ellis, of this city, president of the South Jersey Commuters' Association, has issued a call for a meeting in the Camden City Hall, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, of representatives of the towns and organizations interested to take action to unite the commuter associations of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and New Jersey in a joint appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission to set aside the increases in railroad fares.

So far no formal complaint has ever been filed with the Federal Board, the commuters of each State making complaint to their respective State utility commissioners, all of which have decided against the commuters except in New Jersey.

E. C. C. Bleakly and William Carey Marshall, attorneys of the South Jersey Commuters' Association, have had a conference with the attorneys of the Pennsylvania and Maryland commuters respecting the possibility of the decisions of the State boards being set aside by the Federal body.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY TO MEET IN JERSEY CITY

The Newark Conference of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold its annual meeting in the West End Avenue church, Jersey City Thursday and Friday, November 11 and 12. Addresses will be made by Miss Jessie E. Arbuckle, superintendent of the Deaconess Home, New Haven, Conn.; Miss Grace Roraback national field secretary, and from delegates to the annual meeting of the Board of Managers. Thursday night a young people's rally will be held and "The Light Bearers," a pageant for Home Missions, will be given.

TRIPLE HANGING.

Crawfordsville, Ga., Nov. 8.—Three young negroes, Jake Turner, Guy Young and Sam Harden, convicted of the murder of Charles Rackley at a saw mill on the night of October 9, will be hanged today. Two other negroes who pleaded guilty to being accessories were given a year in the chain-gang.

HUNTSMEN ENJOY EXCITING CHASE

Few Spills But No One Injured in Fifteen Mile Run After the Hounds.

Members of the Watchung Hunt Club met the hounds Saturday afternoon at the Netherwood Water Tower, and enjoyed a long run of about fifteen miles. The line led over the Sheppard estate, through Scotch Plains, the first check being at the Brass Kettle Inn. From that point the chase continued to Westfield through Fanwood and across the New Jersey Central tracks to Netherwood, the finish.

There were a few spills, but no one was seriously injured. A number of big jumps were encountered and the hounds were very fast. These riders finished:

R. C. Finch, M. C. H.; Harry A. Bourne, Mrs. William Hughes, Mrs. Gertrude Mallock, Harry W. Evans, A. C. Beling, A. C. Fox, Col. C. E. S. Bellows, Lawrence Smith, Huntsman Harrison and the whip.

SECRETARY DANIELS ISSUES NAVAL ORDER

Given Over the Wireless 'Phone From Washington to Brooklyn Navy Yard.

At 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon the Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, demonstrated to the naval forces of the nation the great value of the recent wireless telephone accomplishment of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and Western Electric Company, when he used the new device to issue the first navy order ever given by wireless telephone, to Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, in command of the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Secretary Daniels, sitting at his desk in the Navy Department Building at Washington, spoke into a regular Bell telephone instrument and his words were carried by wire to Arlington, Virginia, a distance of 6¼ miles thence by wireless to the Western Electric Laboratories in New York city, an air line distance of approximately 225 miles, and thence by wire to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, a distance of 4 miles, where Admiral Usher received the order of his chief.

Following Secretary Daniels' talk Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, also spoke to Admiral Usher.

Mrs. Daniels, wife of the Secretary who is the first woman ever to speak over the wireless telephone, then talked with Rear Admiral Usher. Following Mrs. Daniels, young Frank Daniels, age 14, talked with Admiral Usher. Young Mr. Daniels is, therefore, the first boy to speak over the new wireless telephone.

Secretary of State Lansing came in before the close of the demonstration and exchanged a few words with Engineer E. H. Colpitts, of the Western Electric Company.

NEGRO, POSING AS DEAF MUTE, BEATS MANY, BUT NOT COURT

Elizabeth, Nov. 8.—Pitiful was the story Benjamin Wright, thirty years old, colored, told to fellow members of his race, who are active churchgoers, as well as to many trusting white persons, and that is why Wright found the getting of money quite a simple task.

Wright is in jail at police headquarters now, still smiling and unshaven, but is now in the county jail for a term of six months.

A long, carefully-worded, typewritten appeal, that was composed by Wright himself, was the magic means that touched the hearts and the pocketbooks of worshippers in Newark, Madison, Morristown, Bayonne, Plainfield, Jersey City and Scranton, Pa. He used this method because he posed as a deaf mute.

In the statement Wright recited how he lost his speech and hearing after an attack of typhoid fever in Oxford, England, his home. His father, an "eloquent preacher," as well as his mother, a brother and sister died of the same ailment; hence Wright's sad plight.

Among the many churches, church organizations and individuals contributing to Wight's appeal were Bethel chapel Sunday-school, Plainfield, $10.45; Calvary Baptist, St. Luke's Methodist Episcopal, Newark, a total of $18.55, also Laura Cole, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Scudder, of 240 Broome street, Newark.

"I beat the ministers," Wright said jokingly to Captain John T. Hiney.

TO GIVE A EUCHRE PARTY.

FIELDER TO PLANT TREE IN HIGHWAY

Elaborate Ceremony to Mark Beginning of Improvement of Coast-to-Coast Road.

Jersey City, Nov. 8.—Now that the Lincoln highway, which stretches from this city to San Francisco, is nearing completion, the National Federation of Women's Clubs intends to take up the work of beautifying the great road. At the request of the State Federation of Women's Clubs Governor Fielder will plant an oak November 15 and Mayor Mark F. Fagan will set the roots of an elm tree in the ground near the point where the highway begins in Communipaw avenue.

Commissioner A. Harry Moore, of this city, and Mrs. William Wouters of Bayonne, chairman of the conservation committee of the State Federation, Saturday afternoon selected the place of the initial planting.

It is planned to plant trees along the highway for the entire length of 3,000 miles. The women's clubs of each State will superintend the work, co-operating with each other.

"It is proper that the women of this city should cause the first tree to be planted," said Mrs. Wouters Saturday. "Jersey City is the sunrise of the highway, just as San Francisco is the sunset."

Several thousand school children clad in red, white and blue costumes will form a large American flag on the playground in Hudson County West Side Park, which adjoins the old Plank road, now a part of the Lincoln highway. The Fourth Regiment, Boy Scouts, and other organizations, will parade, and other exercises are being planned.

DISCUSS "SHIPS AND A NAVY FOR THE AMERICAS"

In the November issue of the Engineering Magazine there appears an article on "Ships and a Navy for the Americas," from William L. Saunders, of Plainfield. Mr. Saunders is vice-chairman of the Naval Consulting Board and president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. His picture, with a brief biography, also appears in the Engineering Magazine.

MANY LOCAL ENTRIES FOR CHICKEN FANCIERS' SHOW

Many local and suburban poultry fanciers are grooming entries for the Union County Poultry Association and the New Jersey Association for the Improvement of Poultry show to be held in the Elizabeth armory from December 16 to 19, inclusive. It is expected that birds will be received for exhibit from all parts of the country inasmuch as the usual restrictive ban to Union county fanciers has been lifted. Plainfield is largely represented in the latter organization and in the past birds from this city have taken many awards.

In previous years the Improvement Association has conducted its show in this city and it has always proven successful. The consolidation of the two organizations made it necessary to secure larger quarters and as a result the armory has been selected.

AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHTS PUZZLED DRIVER OF FORD

Blinded by the glaring headlights of an approaching automobile, Ludwig Kohlweiss, of 254 Whittier avenue, Dunellen, returning home from New Brunswick in his Ford car Saturday night, lost control of the machine at a spot in the River road, located between the Lehigh Valley and Central Railroad bridges. The right front mud guard of the car struck a telephone pole, and the force of the impact was enough to turn the machine over, throwing the driver out.

The chauffeur of the auto with the strong headlights failed to stop, leaving Kohlweiss lying unconscious in the road. It is believed that the victim laid in the spot where he was thrown for a half hour before another machine came along, picking him up and carrying him to the Somerset Hospital, at Somerville. The victim was only slightly hurt and was able to go to his work at the Simplex Auto Company's plant in New Brunswick this morning.

CHANGED HIS MIND.

Percy Cook, of 327 Watchung avenue, met City Judge William G. DeMeza on the street Saturday night and pleaded to be sent to jail for life. A police officer came to the rescue a few minutes later by locking him up in the city jail on a disorderly charge. When arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning Cook had changed his mind about being deprived of his liberty and explained his strange actions of Saturday night by explaining that he had lingered too long at the gilded bar.

NEW MEMBERS RECEIVED AT PARK AVENUE CHURCH

It was an eventful day for the members of the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday. Coming as an aftermath of the evangelistic meetings that have just closed, both the morning and evening services were unusually impressive, and added to this were two stirring sermons by the pastor, Rev. Dr. S. Birney Hudson.

In the morning six members were received into the church by letter and received the right hand of fellowship in connection with the communion service; in the evening nine candidates were baptized. The evening service was also made of special interest by the singing of the gospel songs used in the recent evangelistic meetings conducted by the boy preacher, Charles Forbes Taylor.

The prayer service Wednesday evening will be of special interest, and a full attendance is most earnestly requested, particularly of those who signed the decision cards during the recent evangelistic meetings.

Reading Character

is always interesting, but a study of a tradesman's business character as indicated by his advertising is even more interesting and always profitable.

Just glance over the advertisements in the Plainfield Daily Press of the merchants whose places you know.

Does not the merchant write his store character into his advertising? Is it not possible to form a pretty good idea of the store from the manner in which it makes its announcements in the newspapers?

Merchants are coming to realize more and more that when they write an advertisement they are painting a business portrait of themselves—indicating their business character.

They are more careful in their statements, more modest in their language and pay more attention to typography and illustration.

Advertising is prepared now-a-days more carefully than ever before and there is more of it every day.

And by the same token it is going to be more interesting and profitable to the readers.

RUNYON ANNOUNCES HE IS A CANDIDATE

Formal Declaration of His Intention to Seek Speakership Honor This Year.

Formal announcement concerning his candidacy for the speakership of the House of Assembly was made by Assemblyman William N. Runyon, of this city, Saturday, in the form of a congratulatory letter sent to Assemblyman George R. Dalrymple relative to the latter's re-election to the House by the Passaic county voters last Tuesday. In his reply to Mr. Runyon's communication the Passaic legislator reiterates the newspaper announcement of his candidacy to the speakership and predicts a pleasant, though warm, contest for the office between the prospective seekers, all of whom were in the Assembly last year.

Those intimately concerned in the affairs of John B. Kates, of Camden county, who was a candidate last year against Dalrymple and and Carlton B. Godfrey, will not run for the nomination. It is said that he reached this conclusion prior to the election. Two other men are known to be sprucing up for the fight that will certainly ensue. One of them is known to be a formidable candidate, while the second is generally conceded to be less dangerous. Solid support would probably be lacking in the case of the last mentioned.

Mr. Godfrey will not be an aspirant for the post of presiding officer again, having previously stated that he thought it would be most unusual to name the occupant of the chair as a successor. Last year, it will be remembered, the Atlantic county man won the honor from Assemblyman Kates after a heated contest. In retiring from the race Mr. Godfrey declared that there were several competent men such as Mr. Runyon and Mr Kates who would make good timber for the chairmanship.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Belongs to Assemblyman Runyon.

The Speakership of the Assembly is an important position. It is hardly expected that it will be won without a contest. There are several strong Republicans bidding for the honor. The office carries with it much personal influence and power. It is also a position important to the work of the law-making body. The effectiveness of the work of the Lower House depends very largely upon the presiding officer.

This important position belongs to Judge William N. Runyon, representative of this county. There are many reasons why he should be advanced to it. He is in direct line for the promotion. He was floor leader of the majority party last year and proved his worth and ability as a statesman.

Assemblyman Runyon was Speaker Godfrey's right bower in the work of the Assembly at its last session. His experience as a co-worker with the Speaker last year admirably fits him to be Speaker Godfrey's successor. He is better experienced than any of the other candidates. He is also the equal of any other candidate in general ability and executive force.

The Speakership belongs this year to Northern New Jersey. The Speaker of last year was from South Jersey. The honor, manifestly very fairly and consistently belongs to the Union county man. He will fill it to the advantage of the State and to the majority party.—Elizabeth Journal.

Runyon and Pierce in the Next Legislature.

Assemblyman Runyon, of Plainfield, was re-elected last Tuesday by a handsome majority, and he is the logical candidate for speaker at the session which begins in January. His name has been frequently mentioned for the place, and now it is up to the Republicans in the Assembly to recognize the superior ability displayed by Mr. Runyon last year as leader of the party's forces, and select him as the speaker. No more forceful, independent, conscientious or capable man is to be found in the lower House. Assemblyman Runyon does honor to Union county in whatever position he may occupy.

In the Senate, Union county is represented by one of the most able gentlemen ever sent to that body. Senator Pierce has given the county and State during his terms of office, most careful, deliberate, efficient and progressive service. In grade crossing and taxation matters he is recognized as an authority and a strong leader. The Herald and all of his friends in Summit and Union county would be most happy to see the splendid work of Senator Pierce recognized by advancing him to the position of leader of the majority party in the upper house. We commend this suggestion to the serious consideration of the Republican Senators.—Summit Herald.

LOUIS WILSON WEDS MISS E. F. RANDOLPH

Ceremony is Performed by the Bride's Father, Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph.

Miss Edith F. Randolph, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. D. B. F. Randolph, became the bride of Louis V. P. Wilson, son of Mrs. Zipporah Wilson, of Watchung avenue, this city, at a pretty wedding Saturday night solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, on West Fourth street. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, Rev. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church.

The bride was attired in a Luxor taffeta gown and wore a tulle veil crowned with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was Miss Emma E. Randolph, a niece, of Jersey City, who acted as flower girl. She wore a white dress over pink. The Misses Marion, Ethel and Frances Randolph of Philadelphia, were dressed in white, and Wilson F. Randolph, Jr. of Jersey City, nieces and nephew of the bride, formed an aisle with ribbons and smilax, through which the bridal party passed. Rev. Dr. Edward F. Randolph, of Philadelphia, a brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. The Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches were played by Mrs. Arthur R. Humble, a sister of the bride.

The young couple, who are well known in this city, were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. Guests were present from Jersey City, Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia, Roselle Chatham and this city. After a wedding supper, which was served by Day, of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in their newly furnished home at 1007 Watchung avenue, where they will be at home to their friends after December 1. Mr. Wilson is in the banking business in New York city.

SACRIFICED BLOOD FOR DYING CHILD

William Riley, Machinists' Agent, Assisting in Saving Infant's Life.

Resorting to blood transfusion as a last possible means of saving the life of the five-day-old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Riley, of Newark, who are well-known in this city, physicians in charge of the case have met with apparent success and the infant is rapidly gaining strength. Mr Riley, the father of the child, who is business agent of District No. 47 of the International Machinists' Association, was in Easton, Pa., the latter part of last week when he was called home by the serious illness of the baby.

Physicians in charge of the case told the parents that the infant could not live, but, as a last resort, finally agreed to experiment with the new Lindeman method of blood transfusion and Mr. Riley immediately offered to give up the necessary fluid. He was put through the customary examination and although his blood was found to be in excellent condition the physicians were backward in operating on him in view of the fact that on only three other occasions have transfusions from a parent proven successful.

One pint of blood was taken from Mr. Riley's left arm and deposited in a wax-coated receptacle. After getting the necessary amount the infant's breast was opened and the life-giving fluid was transfused. The child immediately gained strength and has since taken food regularly and is as healthy as the average baby of its age.

Mr. Riley, although weakened by the loss of the blood, was able to be about [illegible] after the unusual operation and appeared to be little the worse for having undergone the ordeal today.

CONDEMNATION CASE UP.

Washington, Nov. 8.—An important decision handed down by the U. S. Supreme Court holds that in valuing land taken by the City of New York under condemnation proceedings for the Ashokan dam and reservoir the especial adaptability of the land for reservoir purposes need not be considered as an element of value. The case is a test case and will have an important bearing on the cost of the land condemned for the great water project.

Fresh Figs.

The first known reference to in the Bible is the fig tree. We are apt to think of figs as very sweet dried fruit, brown in color, packed into long wooden boxes. When newly gathered figs are rather like pears in shape and of a green or purple color. Eaten in this state, the people of the east consider them the most delicious of fruit, but the figs are also dried, and in that form are included in almost every meal.

The Modern Way.

Mrs. Henry Peck—Men have degenerated sadly since the days of chivalry. Sir Walter Raleigh spread his cloak on the ground for the queen to walk on. Women do not walk on men's cloaks in these modern days. Mr. Henry Peck—No; they walk on men's necks now.—Puck.

Open to Conviction.

"I understand," said Mr. Dolan, "that you declared there should be no more fightin'."

"I said that," replied Mr. Rafferty. "But I never was obstinate, an' mebbe a few words of argument from you can make me change my mind."—Washington Star.

A Dilemma.

Wife—Henry, you really must have the landlord come and see for himself the awful damage the rain did to our ceiling. Hub—I can't without letting him see the damage the children have done to the rest of the house.—Boston Transcript.

We are all born for love. It is the principle of existence and its only end.—Disraeli.

To the College Boy.

When you enter college keep in mind the sound advice that a wise college president has offered to such as you. "Follow the preparatory school rules for the first year," he says. "Keep up the momentum that the school has given you rather than take advantage of your new liberty all at once. Watch the upper class men. See how they have improved or abused the freedom of the college life and the opportunities at the college and then deliberately make up your mind what kind of man you want to be."—Youth's Companion.

Can't Be Done.

"Mrs. Giddy has invited all the members of the sewing circle to a luncheon and matinee party."

"Doesn't she know they have been gossiping about her something awful?"

"Of course she does. That's the reason she's trying to square the circle."—New York World.

Practice Makes Perfect.

Hobson—I never in all my life saw a man who could so readily guess riddles and conundrums as that Henry Peck. Dobson—No wonder! Just think of the practice he has. His wife keeps him guessing all the time.—Puck.

"THE PRINCE OF PEACE."

William Jennings Bryan feels forced to "dissent" from the policy of preparedness as outlined by President Wilson in his Manhattan Club address, and in his criticism of our nation's head at this time and on this subject he appears in the most foolish position of his remarkable career.

In the outset let it be said that Mr. Wilson's policy does not even lean toward militarism. If he has erred at all it is on the side of unpreparedness. He has asked America to take steps that the "permanent interests of the country may be made safe against disturbance" and military men refuse to agree that his trained army of reserves would prove adequate in case of attack.

According to the Dissenter "everybody knows that we are able to defend ourselves if necessary." Can it be possible that Mr. Bryan has become so blinded by his own dreams of a personal triumph as "Prince of Peace" that he believes such idiotic statements? We hardly think so. He must be charged with a willful misstatement of facts or amazing ignorance and the latter charge can not be substantiated by his political and private record. It is admitted even by those in command of our army and navy that we would be hopelessly at the mercy of an attacking nation of strength on land and sea. Mr. Bryan cannot but be in possession of facts that are known to every man, woman and child in the country.

All nations fear internal strife even more than a war with a foreign enemy. Russia is considered fortunate just now that its people are united, even though it has suffered terrible reverses in its battles with Germany and Austria. There is a greater menace to the prosperity and happiness of American citizens than the German army or the big guns of the Japanese fleet. Our nation is passing through the most momentus period of its history. If we remain neutral while our brothers across the ocean are engaged in a war of ruin, and yet preserve the respect and confidence of other people we will emerge master of all nations and in control of the world's commerce. President Wilson is working with this dream always before him, and he needs the loyal support of every American citizen. If German born citizens can forget their love for the Fatherland where their brothers are fighting for existence in their new-found patriotism, cannot Mr. Bryan smother his political aspirations long enough to see the Ship of State through these perilous waters? He cries peace while he attempts to foment what virtually amounts to a revolution. He would have the Stars and Stripes trampled in foreign countries and citizens murdered and robbed under its shadow out of a love for all mankind, yet he strives to promote trouble at home. In any other country it would be treason.

The nation has every confidence in the wisdom of Wilson, but there are many who will listen to the silly, selfish prattle of Bryan because it is all "in the interest of peace." Peace, like charity, should begin at home.

JIM NUGENT'S "BONE."

That James R. Nugent pulled the biggest political "bone" in the history of New Jersey in the recent election, is the opinion of an editorial writer of the Newark News, who says:

"James R. Nugent is a shining example of a man hoist by his own petard. The very means that he took to insure the defeat of Commissioner Charles P. Gillen actually made the latter's re-election a certainty. Nugent made Gillen a martyr and supplied him with an irresistible appeal to popular sympathy. In sporting parlance it was a "bonehead" play.

"In the public eye Mr. Gillen was to be sacrificed because of his refusal to bow to bosses. He was to be crucified at the demand of the beneficiarcies of privilege whose schemes he had thwarted. His defeat was to serve as a warning to any other office-seeker who might cherish the mistaken belief that he owed some duty to the people who elected him. The Gillen candidacy came to represent a good deal more than the mere success or defeat of Mr. Gillen. It was a test of the manhood of Newark voters.

BACK TO THE NEWSPAPERS.

It has taken the railroad companies several years to realize that the best way of getting their timetables before the public is to advertise them in the newspapers, as was formerly the custom. They may have saved a few dollars by maintaining large information bureaus and employing men to post train schedules in offices and public places—though this is doubtful—but the saving has been at the expense of efficiency, says the Trenton Times.

Withdrawal of newspaper advertising was coincident with the abolition of free passes and the passage of regulative laws. It was in pursuance of an agreement, and the American Traffic Association has decided to go back to the newspapers; whereat there will be rejoicing on the part of many patrons who are dissatisfied with the ungracious and often incorrect answers given by "Information."

There's nothing like the newspapers to reach the people.

Man was ousted from furnished room at Hoboken because landlady's husband said he was too handsome, and now he is suing. Probably just wants to get that handsome charge given due publicity.

Man in Connecticut poorhouse inherited $50,000 and has received ten offers of marriage every day since he left the institution. He is afraid he will have to go back to keep from getting married.

It might be encouraging to President Wilson just now to recall that in all his career Mr. Bryan never has been with the majority.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

One of the very few operatic presentations that attract and delight children is the Aborn Opera Company's big spectacular production of "The Bohemian Girl," which comes to the Plainfield Theatre, matinee and night, Wednesday. Balfe's masterpiece in its present amplified form contains much that interests both old and young. Realism is now attained in the several great scenes by the employment of pigs, chickens, monkeys, geese and dogs, the introduction of which does not mar in the least the beauties of Balfe's beautiful music. A cast having as its important members, Edith Allan, Henry Taylor, Mildred Rogers, George Dunstan, Francis Tyler and Ralph Nicholls insures an artistic rendition of the opera.

The Deadliest Blow

When you've schemed and schemed for the biggest trade
You could get on your old "boat" aus ge spiel,
When the dicker's done and your hand is played
And you take your place at the steering wheel,
You're a blithesome man, as we mortals go,
But your keenest pleasure will come to naught
If, through the papers, you come to know
They reduced the price right after you'd bought.

The man with the car all stiff and new,
With his mind wrapped up in the shifting gears,
Is one of the proudest things, 'tis true,
We've ever seen in this vale of tears.
But he has to feel 'twas a foxy buy
That showed his shrewdness, as all trades ought.
So it makes him wretched enough to cry,
When they cut the price just after he's bought.

But there's balm for the bruises the hurt ones feel!
They say, with a sigh: "What a lucky thing
We grabbed this make of auto'bile
Before the quality went down—'bing!'"
He'll point with joy—will the fresh-stung man—
To the cheap-John tricks the company's wrought.
Sure, Mike, he'll knock whenever he can
The car that was cut just after he bought!

Cooks

Cooks are what too many of spoil the broth.

Cooks come and go a great deal, which gives rise to the well-known term, "Cook's Tours."

A chef is a cook that gets more than ten a week.

It is not safe to trust any person's unbiased judgment as to his or her own qualifications in the cooking line.

Your opinion after sampling the result may differ O so widely!

Many an individual who couldn't boil water without scorching it advertises herself as a first-class cook and, in some cases, gets away with it.

The only way in which such person makes good in the cooking line is when she grills the mistress after she has been canned.

Canned cooks are not the best, any more than canned food is the best.

There is likely to be some poison in the disposition of both.

Some of the best cooks have violent tempers that they could not govern, even if they tried.

But not all persons who do not govern their tempers are cooks.

Not by a busy-Bertha shot.

We are not a good cook, but we are effective.

We were once very tired of a camping expedition on which we were, and we volunteered to do the cooking.

Next day camp broke up and all, who were able, went home.

Some of the best cooks won't do anything about a house except cook.

Some of the worst cooks won't do even that much.

There is no rule regarding cooks. They are freaks of nature.

A good cook is born, not made.

Most of the cooks we have had were made.

Health Talks
By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Measles

THE death rate from measles is higher than that from scarlet fever, notwithstanding popular notions to the contrary. Pneumonia as a complication and tuberculosis as a sequela of measles renders the disease a serious one. Any one knowing of a case of measles, or suspecting the existence of a case, commits an inexcusable crime in failing to report it to the health department. A mother who would conceal such a disease and return the child to school before the chance of contagion has passed ought to be punished to the full extent of the law. Too many children have been sacrificed to this selfish kind of cruelty.

From the time of exposure until the appearance of the first sign of illness there is a period of seven to eighteen days—much longer than in the case of scarlet fever.

The onset is with our old friend, a common "cold." The "cold" lasts three or four days, with slight feverishness, sneezing, running at the nose, some cough, redness of the eyelids and coated tongue. The doctor can see certain spots (Koplik's spots) in the mouth at this stage which clinch the diagnosis before the skin rash appears.

The rash appears about the fourth day—like little flea bites on the forehead and face. The spots can be felt under the fingers, unlike scarlet fever rash. In a day or two the whole body is covered with the blotchy, irregular rash, which also breaks out inside the bronchial tubes and throat, increasing the cough and feverishness and restlessness.

The contagion is spread by the secretions from mouth, throat or chest—not by the skin rash.

The child should have all the cold water he can drink. This talk about "the measles going in" is just an old wives' yarn. It comes from the fact that, when a child with measles develops pneumonia or some other serious complication and fails in strength, the circulation fails and the rash fades—as a result, not as a cause of the complication.

The eyes are very irritated. They may be protected by dark glasses, rather than a dark room. They should be bathed often with warm boric acid solution (tablespoonful of boric acid dissolved in a pint of boiled water). If the lids stick together smear them lightly with sterile vaseline from a collapsible tube.

The factor of safety in measles is beyond all question cool, fresh air. That is Nature's preventive against pneumonia. Give the patient all the fresh air there is. Keep the patient comfortably clothed, not sweltering under an excess of blankets.

In both scarlet fever and measles the patient should have a cleansing bath, a sponge bath in bed, at least once a day. Any other applications for the skin should be directed by the attending physician.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Skin Specialist?

I have acne or pimples on the face, writes C. J. B. I have been advised to go to a skin specialist. Will you please recommend one for me?

Answer—No, because any family physician can treat you as well or better than a specialist. Leave it to the family doctor to send you to a specialist, if necessary.

PROFITS

PROFITS are what the storekeeper has after he has paid his bills, and you have settled his account.

If it wasn't for profits, the storekeeper could not live. This would cause the factories to close down, banks would fail, and jobs would become as scarce as noble, high-minded burglars. Thus, it seems that it is profits after all that makes the world go 'round.

But, the trouble is that some people seem determined to make the world exceed the speed limit.

There are three kinds of profits: fair profits, big profits and trust profits. There are also net profits and gross profits. The English call gross profits "takings." For a nation, which doesn't know a monopoly when it sees it, this is a remarkably clever definition.

Profits vary greatly in various lines of business. You can buy a pound of silver for $8, but if a solemn man with long hair takes that silver, and hammers it for two days, he can make it into a tea tray full of sublime dents, and sell it for $175. That is what comes of mixing profits with brains.

On the other hand, the hardware man will sell you a small iron bolt for 5 cents, and will make 4 cents profit on it. But the automobile repair man will charge you 75 cents for the same bolt, and $3.25 for putting it in place, and a quarter for the wear and tear on his wrench and overalls.

That is what comes of mixing profits with gall.

Occasionally, a man gets all of something that there is. In that case, what he makes isn't profit. It is swag.

Some men are better at making profits than others. The farmers are getting rich selling hogs at 9 cents a pound, while the packers claim they are getting poor selling pork at 25 cents a pound. Some presidents get $50,000 a year for their services, and die poor, while some aldermen get $1 a meeting and amass vast fortunes.

Jobs as scarce as noble, high-minded burglars

Large profits are pleasant, but dangerous. They cause financial congestion, which has to be relieved by long applications of society, automobiles, gay sons, private yachts and ticker tapes. On the other hand, small profits are usually only light lunches for some other fellow's big profits.

Take it all around, profits are a worry which only ceases after we have died and the undertaker has made a 265 per cent. profit by mixing it with grief.

The great trouble with this country is the fact that there are too many profits without honor in it.

Do The Children Share?

Q. Under the laws of Wisconsin, has a widow with three children (all married) a right to sell property owned jointly by her and her deceased husband which has never been probated? And if so, are the children allowed any of the proceeds of sale by law if it is so disposed of?

A. Your statement of the facts is hardly adequate. It may be said, in general, that, under the laws of Wisconsin, "the real estate of every description, including all held in joint tenancy with her husband, and the rents, issues and profits thereof, of any female now married shall not be subject to the disposal of her husband, but shall be her sole and separate property as if she were unmarried," and further that "any married female may receive by inheritance or by gift, grant, devise or bequest from any person, hold to her sole and separate use, convey and devise real and personal property and any interest or estate therein of any description, including all held in joint tenancy with her husband, and the rents, issues and profits thereof, in the same manner and with like effect as if she were unmarried, and the same shall not be subject to the disposal of her husband or liable for his debts."

The Contractor's Bill

Q. When a building contractor has presented his final bill, and the architect has written upon it the words, "O. K.," signed by the architect, will the contractor be in a position to demand and sue for the balance due under the contract?

A. Yes, unless there is some other fact or circumstance that would take the case out of the general rule.

A Written Agreement

Q. Where lands are exchanged, does the agreement have to be in writing? A. Yes.

Altering A Contract

Q. Please tell me whether the parties to a written contract may alter it by means of a verbal agreement?

A. They may do so if the contract has not been performed by either of the parties.

Knowledge

There is an old saying that "What you do not Know will not Hurt you." This is but part true. For every day that you neglect to learn more and to find out new things, you hold back your Progress, take away from your daily Joy, and the possibility within you for doing greater things. You trample upon the latent Energies within you that are fairly pawing the ground to get into action and accomplish something.

Learn Something NEW every day. The wisest man that ever lived never knew it all. Never in the history of the world has it been so easy to accumulate Knowledge as now. A few pennies will buy masterpieces that a few years ago were to be had only by the wealthy or highly educated.

Learn Something New every day. This is an age of the making of many Books and the creating of many Inventions. Instead of the slacking of Opportunities, never in all history have there been so many. So that if you fail to Get and to Grow, you have but yourself to blame. Knowledge is awakening, and it permeates the very air for those who will breathe it in, but ignorance is a sleeping thing, always dormant.

Learn Something NEW every day. Get Knowledge systematically. Map out a course of reading and put down as a program the things you desire to accomplish. Definitely search for Knowledge wherever it may be had. Then distribute it into every quarter that you are able, for in so doing Knowledge reaccumulates. In new forms it comes back to you as Increased Knowledge.

Our Own Delicatessen Dialect

Once there was a little boy
Whose name was Postmark Wheezer,
And every Friday afternoon
He had to speak a peeze.

So many poems thus he learned
That soon he had a store
Of recitations in his head,
And still kept learning more.

Now this is what happened:
He was called upon one week
And totally forgot the piece
He was about to speak.
His brain he cudgeled,
But not a word remained within his head,
And so he spoke at random.
And this is what he said:

My beautiful, my beautiful,
Who standest proudly by,
It was the schooner Hesperus,
The breaking waves dashed high.

Why is the forum crowded?
What means this stir in Rome?
Under a spreading chestnut tree
There's no place like home.

When Freedom from her mountain height
Cried "Twinkle, twinkle, little star,"
Shoot, if you must, this old gray head,
King Henry of Navarre.

If you're waking, call me early,
To be or not to be,
Curfew must not ring to-night,
Oh, woodman, spare that tree.

Charge, Chester, charge! On Stanley, on!
And let who will be clever,
The boy stood on the burning deck,
But I go on forever.

How to Keep Our City Moving

We must keep moving. A city booms only so long as its manufacturers and merchants keep moving. The wheels of every line of endeavor must be kept turning if the city is going to develop, and what is of deeper concern than the wheels of Plainfield kept turning?

HAMS OF WESTPHALIA.

Processes by Which They Are Cured and Flavored.

The famous Westphalian hams, which are eaten without cooking, are cured by an elaborate process that has been worked out patiently and skillfully by generations of expert workmen. A writer in the New York Sun thus describes the process:

After being rubbed thoroughly with a solution in which there are 100 pounds of salt to one pound of saltpeter, the hams are placed on cement floors, or in vats, and thickly strewn with salt. They lie under salt for two weeks and then pass to a vat that contains a 22 per cent solution of brine. They remain in that solution for eighteen days. Every day they are shifted in the vat; the hams on the bottom are brought to the top, and vice versa.

At the end of the eighteen days the hams are packed, one upon another, in a cool, dry cellar, where they remain for four weeks, in order to ripen—that is, to take on color and become tender. Then the salt is washed off with a stiff brush dipped in lukewarm water, and the hams are put to soak for twelve hours in fresh water. After that they are ready for the smokehouse.

The smokehouses are two or three stories high, with holes bored in the flooring. The fires are kindled on the ground floor, and the meat is hung on the second and third floors. The fires are made entirely of beech wood, but the workmen constantly throw juniper berries and juniper twigs on the embers. The fire burns brightly. It is checked with beech wood sawdust whenever it burns too briskly.

The smoking continues for about eight days. Under the ancient curing methods, however, the hams were often kept in the smoke rooms for six weeks, and it is by this latter method that the best hams are still made by the country folk of Westphalia.

WHAT A MAN READS.

It Is a Big Factor In Determining His Course of Life.

A certain low form of aquatic animal life anchors itself to a rock and feeds on whatever the current brings. The average man feeds his mind in much the same way. He falls into line for current amusements. He reads only current literature. He listens to what happens to go by. He makes but little systematic attempt to shut out the unfit or to put himself in line for the fit.

The result is a defective grade of human life that rarely elevates society and often degrades it. If a man would make the most of himself, and that is manifestly the supreme purpose for which he was put into the world, it is worth his while to do his daily work where unclean things, mental and physical, are not made common.

It makes a good deal of difference in the worth of the man today as to whether his reading last night was "Hamlet" and "Isaiah" or "The Other Man's Wife," whether he went to the art institute or the burlesque show. An ancient teacher of well balanced mind gave this direction to his disciples as to the topics to be selected for deliberate thought:

"Finally, my brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report. If there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."

To think on these things one must see and hear these things. To see and hear these things one must make an effort to do so.—Minneapolis Journal.

Sunlight and Vegetation.

The early rays of the sun exercise a more powerful effect in promoting rapid vegetation than the sun's light during the later hours of the day. The active little chlorophyll grains work faster and better in elaborating food for the plant under the action of the blue and yellow rays of the early morning than under the later violet and blue rays. Practical gardeners should make use of this fact by growing early produce as far as possible in a position where the plants will get the full benefit of the morning sun.—London Mail.

QUEER AFFINITIES.

Love Plays Some Curious Pranks With Human Hearts.

ROUSSEAU AND HIS THERESA.

Story of a Genius Who Wedded an Ignorant Kitchen Maid and Never Regretted It—Bulwer, Lytton's Tragic Union—Tschaikowsky and Fate.

Some affinities really defy explanation. Take Rousseau as an instance. A distinguished writer has said:

"In the whole story of the human race I question if there is anything so wonderful as the prolonged affection of Rousseau for Theresa."

Here was one of the outstanding literary geniuses of his time, a man who could talk on equal terms at least with the most brilliant women of his day, marrying a kitchen maid, who never could be taught to read with ease, who could not follow the order of the twelve months of the year or count a sum of money or reckon the price of a thing. Even a month's instruction left her still unable to read the hours on the clock face.

Theresa le Vasseur could never have given Rousseau one hour of true companionship. She could neither have read his books nor have understood him when he explained them. She was even without beauty and grace. Yet this mighty spirit chose her, loved her and went on loving her. The alliance lasted happily, for by some mysterious spell she held him, and after twenty-five years Rousseau could write to her: "I never had, my dearest, other than one single solace, but that the sweetest. It was to pour out all my heart in yours. My every resource, my whole confidence is in you, and in you only." Here was a mystery indeed.

Bulwer Lytton, the novelist, provided another of the matrimonial mysteries. Lytton was one of the sanest men in ordinary matters, but he was foolish enough to marry a vulgar girl, Rosina Wheeler, who proved to be wasteful, improvident and a wretched housekeeper. The marriage ended miserably, and all through her life Lady Lytton pursued her husband with the fiercest rancor. She published book after book in which she held him up as a monster and did everything in her power to render his life unhappy.

She made herself the "heroine" of a most extraordinary episode on the day when Lytton, then colonial secretary, was re-elected by his Hertfordshire constituents. He was in the middle of his address when there advanced a female with rouged face and dyed hair, brandishing a yellow umbrella. Mounting the hustings, Lady Lytton—for it was she—saluted the newly made minister with:

"Fiend, villain, monster, cowardly wretch, outcast! I am told you have been sent to the colonies. If they knew as much about you as I do they would have sent you there long ago!"

For once Lytton's presence of mind failed him, or, rather, he fainted, and knew no more till he found himself back at Knebworth in bed. Husband and wife had not seen each other for twenty-two years before this, and they never met again.

Probably the most mysterious of all marriages was that of Tschaikovsky, the great Russian composer, whose "Pathetic" symphony is such a favorite in the concert room today. Tschaikovsky was a moody, pessimistic, shy, reserved man. As he said himself, he had lived for thirty-seven years "in antipathy to marriage" and then was "made a bridegroom by sheer force of circumstances without being in the least charmed by the bride." It is one of the queerest stories imaginable, as told by Tschaikovsky himself.

He says that one day he received a letter from a poor girl whom he had known for some time. She declared her love for him in the most passionate terms. He went the next evening to see her and told her that he could give her nothing but sympathy and gratitude. Later when he had thought it over he feared that Antonina might make way with herself, so he went to see her again, pleaded his irritability, his uncertain finances, his antipathy to matrimony, and then asked her if, after all this, she still wished to be his wife.

Her answer was "Yes." Tschaikovsky bowed before the inevitable, as he regarded it.

"My conscience is clear," he wrote. "If I marry without loving it is because circumstances have forced this upon me. I console myself with the thought that no one can escape his fate, and my meeting with that girl was fatality."

The marriage took place in 1877, and the pair lived together barely three weeks. Tschaikovsky got into a state of nervous collapse, and his mind was more or less unhinged. The doctors declared that a complete change was his only chance, and the poor wife never saw him or heard his voice again after he said hoarsely to her at the railway station: "Now go! God be with you!" Need we wonder that the "Pathetic" symphony is so pathetic?—J. Cuthbert Hadden in London Family Herald.

Bibbley Wah And the Boys Go Chestnutting.

Bibbley Wah Climbed the Big Rock.

"ONE fall day when Uncle Ben was going over to Pond Hill to see that his men fixed the fences," daddy began, "he invited the boys and Bibbley Wah to go chestnutting. So Anne made up a delicious luncheon basket, and they all three piled onto the back of the yellow buckboard. In about an hour Uncle Ben left them all alone under the beautiful tall trees just beginning to open their burrs to Jack Frost. Jim, who was bigger than Bobbie, shinned up a tree, walked far out on the strong limbs until they swung with his weight and shook the glossy brown nuts rattling down into the dry leaves for Bibbley Wah and Bobbie to pick up. Then Jim would take turns picking up nuts, using a short stick to knock the leaves off the top of them. The bright sun made the hollow where the chestnut grove stood delightful and warm, and there were so many trees that each one did not need to be shook long.

"Did Bibbley Wah eat as she picked up nuts?" asked Jack.

"Just like she ate berries when she picked them," said daddy. "The children had stuffed their pockets, their caps and their little baskets that Anne had given them to fill for her when suddenly she threw up his arms and yelled, 'There's a young bear! Run for your lives! Bibbley Wah, get up on that big rock and stay till I kill him with this club!' She grabbed a stout piece of broken limb. Bobbie got another, and fast as his short legs could carry her Bibbley Wah scrambled up onto the big rock, for safe enough, there right under the very biggest chestnut tree stood a furry, short-legged, rather ugly looking animal sniffing at the children's footprints, even into Bibbley Wah's little basket, which he rudely overturned with his nose. Bibbley Wah was too scared to yell at him. How she did tack her toes under her, make herself small and wait while the boys screamed that they would save her and whacked away at the dead leaves around the young bear, too afraid to go very near it!"

"I think they were very brave," said Evelyn.

"Presently the sound of wheels came across the clear air, and Uncle Ben drove up to take the children home. 'Bear' yelled excited Bobbie; 'it's a bear and may bite you and old Jim.' 'Why, children,' Uncle Ben burst out laughing. 'It's an old woodchuck, Robert, who went out for a walk in the sunshine and lost his way home. There's his hole over yonder.'

"So he picked Bibbley Wah off the rock, all shaky with thrills, and off home they all drove with their nuts," daddy finished.

"That was a lovely story!" cried the children, running off to bed.

"I haven't been kissed yet!" daddy called after them.

John Sutner's Employer Decides to Give Him a Chance.

"Pardon me, Mr. Jaynes, but could you spare me a few minutes of your time?" asked Tyler.

"Come in," said Jaynes briskly. "Have you anything to report?"

"Yes, the man I sent to Alpine to make inquiries about Sutner has just returned. He does not have anything very favorable to report. It seems he left the town leaving a lot of small debts. He owed the grocer, the butcher, everybody."

"What did these men seem to think was the reason? Has he been sick?" Jaynes was frowning fiercely.

"His wife had a long sick spell when the boy was born, but that was about four years ago. Everybody says she was a very extravagant woman for a person in their circumstances. It takes management to live on a small salary. Then they did not get along well together. The neighbors used to hear them quarreling."

"Oh, your man went into things in earnest," sniffed Jaynes. "I wanted to know about his reputation for honesty and square dealing, not how he got along with his wife."

"I thought——" began Tyler, but Jaynes interrupted him with:

"Have you anything more to report?" Tyler rose.

"If not, you may send Sutner to me." He turned to his desk.

John's hand trembled as he laid down his pen when Tyler delivered Jaynes' message. Julia and he exchanged glances as he followed Tyler out of the room.

Jaynes did not turn for a minute when he entered and John pulled himself together to meet he knew not what. Suddenly Jaynes wheeled around and motioned to him to be seated.

"I have just heard the report of the man I sent to Alpine to make inquiries about you," he began as John sank in a chair. "While they are not very encouraging, I am willing to give you the benefit of the doubt. There is one encouraging feature: you have not run debts here and your bills have not been large. I have been poor myself, and I never want to be hard on anyone who is working in good faith to get out of debt, but I want to be sure that he is working to that end. He must be honest enough to support himself. I will make arrangements to pay that Benson bill on the instalment plan. That's all."

John turned and left the office as if he was walking on air.

"Saved for the present," he said in a low voice as he passed Julia's desk. She answered with a pleased smile.

"Well, I have not been fired this time," said John that night at supper, "and you will be glad to know that I can get along for the present without accepting Dr. Ellson's kind offer to loan me money. Mr. Jaynes said today that he had made arrangements to pay the Benson bill on the instalment plan."

"I am so glad. Now you will be relieved of your greatest worry." Molly beamed at her husband over the teacups.

"Yes, until the next creditor gets on the rampage," sighed John.

"We have saved more this month than last, or any month, in fact," boasted Molly.

"Part of that is the price of your hard work, work that you are not strong enough to do. Money that you save by overworking is dear saving," insisted John.

"I do not mind. I am willing to do anything to help pull us out of the hole." Molly was so happy to have her husband express concern about her health that she felt equal to anything.

Household Hints..

USES FOR CRACKED FRUIT JARS AND GLASSES

Take small square pieces of clean cheesecloth, tie teaspoonful of tea into each and keep in a closed fruit jar. The string or thread used for tying can be left long so as to lift the tea ball out of the teapot when tea is steeped enough. A package of tea can be done up this way and is always ready for use without having to measure it each time tea is made. Keeps tea leaves from sticking in the pot and forming a crust inside.

Coffee can be made the same way, using larger squares of cheesecloth and one level tablespoon ground coffee to each cupful wanted.

Save cracked fruit jars for such things as coffee, candied fruit, tapioca, prunes, rice, cereals, raisins, cocoanut, yeast cakes, lemons, etc. Staple articles, if kept in glass jars, will always be clean and fresh, as no dust or insects can get into them. Then, too, there's no need looking into all the packages in the pantry for the article wanted, for one can see what's in the jar without opening it.

Lemons and cheese kept in air-tight jars will be fresh until used. Nutmegs, spices, grated orange peel also keep their flavor and strength. Cracked jelly glasses with covers can be used for these.

THE TABLE.

Corn Cakes to Serve With Meats—Three-quarters cup of corn (canned or cut from cooked ear). One-half cupful of milk, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, two eggs, one scant cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; pinch of salt. To the corn add the milk, eggs well beaten and the sugar. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Combine the mixtures and drop by spoonfuls in well greased and muffin rings set in a baking pan, and bake in a moderate oven.

Frosted Apples—Take six large, perfect apples, core and stew until the skin can be removed easily; peel and dip each apple in clarified butter, roll in sugar, then in cocoanut, and fill the hollow left by the core with chopped dates. Place apples in slow oven and let them remain until the sugar sparkles.

Apple Sauce Cake—Cream together one cup sugar, one-half cup butter, pinch of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful cloves, one teaspoonful cinnamon, pinch of nutmeg. One cupful seeded raisins; stir one teaspoonful soda into one cupful of warm sour apple sauce, letting it foam over the other ingredients; beat all well and add last two cupfuls (scant) of flour; bake in slow oven about forty-five minutes. This makes a splendid pudding when old and dry. Steam and serve with hard sauce.

Bran Muffins—One cup wheat bran, one and one-half cups graham flour, one-third teaspoon salt, three tablespoons molasses into which has been stirred one-half teaspoon baking soda dissolved in one-fourth cup boiling water, one tablespoon melted butter, one cup milk (sweet or sour). Bake thoroughly in twelve portions.

Steamed Indian Bread—Two cups Indian meal, one cup flour, half cup baking molasses, one pint sour milk, two scant teaspoons soda, pinch of salt. Mix thoroughly and put in two-quart pudding dish well greased; steam two hours. Very delicious.

SAYS MORAN IS ONE GREAT BALL LEADER

Pitcher Mayer Cannot See Anyone Else to Lead Phillies Next Year.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 8.—Eastern sport critics have been criticising stories [illegible] manager Moran and directors of the Philadelphia National League club are at loggerheads, and that may not be a the least of the rows next season.

Whether Moran will manage the Quaker City team or not during the 1916 campaign the average fan isn't in a position to know, but there is one gentleman in Atlanta who doesn't think there is a chance of anyone but Pat holding the reins over the Phils next season. The party is Erskine Mayer, the local lad, who, next to Alexander, was Moran's biggest aid in pitching the Phillies to a National League pennant and into a world's series.

Mayer returned from the East a few days ago, and was very much surprised at the report that he might have to work for a new boss next season.

"Just say for me," said Mayer, "that baseball never boasted of a better manager than Pat, and you can bet he will hold his job next season. Why, just think of what he did during the 1915 campaign. Before the season started there wasn't a critic who picked us to finish in the first division, let alone win the pennant.

"Moran took the ball club in hand. He signed up several cast-offs, took a youngster in Bancroft and made him the greatest shortstop in baseball, and won a pennant for the Quaker City. Pat is one of the finest men in baseball to work for, and I am positive that the Philadelphia baseball directors know it, too. If Pat is having any trouble you can wager your last nickel everything will be fixed up to his satisfaction when April rolls around."

Mayer also let it be known that it was no fault of Moran's that Alexander didn't pitch the last game of the world's series. According to Erskine, Alex was suffering from an injured arm, and it was for this reason alone that "Big Alec" was not sent to the slab.

"I am not alibing for our defeat," said Erskine, "but this is a fact that was never made public before. Alex told Moran that he would go to the mound, even if it meant the loss of his right arm, but that would not take such a chance with a man who had done so much for his club as Alex. My arm, too, was in bad shape from overwork, but I couldn't turn my manager down, and I went in. They knocked me out, and I didn't offer an alibi, either. Few fans knew that Moran had these things to contend with, but he was too good a sport to try to hand out an excuse for not making Alexander pitch the final contest, although he came in for much abuse."

DOVER HIGH WARRIORS TRIP UP WESTFIELDERS

Westfield, Nov. 8.—Handicapped by the absence of four regulars, Westfield High School was unable to hold the fast eleven from Dover High School in the game, Saturday afternoon, at Westfield, and went down to defeat, 13 to 0.

ANOTHER FEATHER IN RED AND BLUE CAP

P. H. S. Team Scores 14 to 0 Verdict Over Heavy South Side Eleven at Newark.

The Plainfield High School gridiron warriors regained their stride at Newark, Saturday afternoon, and took the heavy South Side High School eleven of that city into camp by a 14 to 0 score. Both the team and individually the Red and Blue players put up the best game of the season, the work of "Polly" Snyder during his few minutes in the game, bringing the large crowd that witnessed the fray to its feet in a hurry. On the next play after he had replaced Peacock at quarter he intercepted a forward from King, the South Side quarter, to Schwartz, and ran seventy-five yards through a broken field for a touchdown.

Apgar kicked off to open the game and before the Red and Blue eleven had gotten their bearings the ball rested on their twenty-yard line on a half dozen line plunges by the heavy opposing backs. The local line stiffened and held for downs, giving Daniels a chance to rip off fifteen yards on the first play, when Plainfield had the ball, but three attempts at the line failed to gain any ground and Noonan had to punt to King, who brought it back ten yards. Again the Newarkers had to give up the ball on downs, this time at midfield. Apgar reeled off a pretty end run for thirty yards before he was stopped and on the next play Daniels went around end for ten more to the ten yard mark, where Noonan took it over on a line plunge for the first touchdown. Apgar kicked the goal as the whistle blew for the quarter. Apgar again kicked off to King, who was downed in his tracks. South Side had to kick again, the ball hitting the ground and rolling without anyone touching it. It was Plainfield's ball on her own twenty yard line, but on an end run Apgar returned it to midfield and line plunges had taken it to within the third chalk line when a South Side back intercepted a forward, but was downed in his tracks. Davidson spoiled two forwards in succession and a futile attempt at the line forced King to kick to Daniels at the end of the half.

King kicked off to Fitch, who ran back five yards, but after Davidson had completed the only forward pass of the game, South Side got the ball on downs. Noonan fell on a fumble, but on the next play King grabbed an attempted forward to Fitch. Neither side could advance the ball and kept kicking, with Noonan holding the upper hand. At the start of the last quarter Peacock replaced Alpaugh at quarterback, but on the first play after Plainfield had held for downs on their own fifteen yard line, Peacock received a twisted ankle, when he was tackled, and fumbled the ball. The locals again held for downs and standing in the shadow of his own goal posts Noonan had to punt, but Snyder, who had taken Peacock's place, partly blocked it in trying to keep a South Side man out and the ball went to the Newarkers on the twenty-five yard line.

On the first play King tried a forward to Schwartz, but Snyder jumped in front of the end and, grabbing the ball, started down the field. He warded off a half dozen tacklers, the last one reaching him just before he crossed the goal line, barely missing him. Apgar kicked the goal and then kicked off to South Side, who had succeeded in taking it back to the twenty-five yard line again when they tried another pass on the same kind of play. Again Synder was on the job and this time went for forty yards before the fullback, the last man left in front of him, made a pretty tackle. The final whistle ended the game with Plainfield in possession of the ball on South Side's second white line.

Whelan, at center, played his best game this year and broke through to muss up nearly every play before it was started. Noonan's work, too, was good, especially after Peacock left the game, when he called signals from fullback, using good judgment and getting the plays off well. Alpaugh's work in running the team for three-quarters of the game was excellent and Apgar and Daniels did well. King, a Chinaman, put up a sterling game at quarterback for the losers, while Gardner did most of the ground gaining.

HUNTING NOTHING BUT TROUBLE HERE

Owners on First and Second Mountains Give Warning to All.

Those who go hunting on the first and second mountains near Plainfield this season may as well carry a trouble bag, because that is all that they may hope to find, according to property owners who have banded together to protect their estates.

Chief Marshal Canning has been instructed to engage a corps of assistants for the season and it is announced by the spokesman for the property owners that all violators of the trespass law will be "arrested and prosecuted."

The hunting season opens Wednesday. The principal loss in past seasons has been from forest fires started by hunters to drive game from covers. The two mountains have been burned several times and much loss to property has resulted. The property owners are determined to save this trouble, annoyance and expense, they say.

Property that is now being patrolled and will be patrolled during the entire season is owned by the Mali and Hyde estates, Union County Investment Company, Dr. Charles A Eaton, Joseph W. Gavett, Dr. Moldenke, David T. Kenny, Watchung Spring Water Company and others.

SCHEDULE FOR ANNUAL TOURNAMENT OF K. C.

At a meeting held Saturday afternoon in the Newark clubhouse of the Knights of Columbus, arrangements were completed for the annual tournament of the Knights of Columbus which will be inaugurated for the season tonight. The schedule for the first week is as follows:

Tuesday—Star of Bethlehem at Bayley, in Elizabeth.

Friday—Jersey City at Ascension Bayonne at Plainfield, Paterson at Olivet.

The Newark Council team will not perform until next week.

BOB FITZSIMMONS ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT

Newark, Nov. 8.—Robert Fitzsimmons, former heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, has been summoned to appear in court Wednesday to answer a charge of assault and battery made by James Hendrick, of Allenhurst. It is declared by Hendrick that when he went to serve a dispossess notice on Fitzsimmons about a week ago he was struck in the face. Fitzsimmons does not deny the accusation, but says he had good grounds for his action.

Dickerson, sporting editor of a Grand Rapids, Mich., newspaper and former president of the International and Rocky Mountain Leagues, was elected president of the Central League at a meeting of club officials here Sunday afternoon. SOMERVILLE TEAM WINS.

THREE SCORES POSTED.

These scores were posted in the sweepstakes at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday: D. H. Howland, 95, 21-74; G. A. Bomann, 95, 21-74; T. S. Wheeler, 92, 13-79.

CALIFORNIA STAR TO SHINE IN EAST

Robert Lindley Murray.

Robert Lindley Murray, the young left-handed tennis player of Palo Alto, California, who scored a success in the tennis games in the east last year, has joined the ranks of eastern tennis players. He ranked fourth in the national list of players last year.

BUSH LEAGUE STAR WILL OFTEN RISE OR FALL WITH TEAM HE PLAYS WITH

The success of a recruit from the bushes often depends greatly on the team he signs with. It has been seen again and again that a promising youngster from the brush can soon lose all his eagerness and pep if the players about him are listless and lazy. On the other hand there have been cases of ordinary young players who have been so fortunate as to get a berth with a speedy bunch and who have blossomed forth with great class thereafter.

The shopper may often reduce the VALUE-GETTING POWER of her dollar to fifty cents—simply through neglecting to read the ads, or to know values—and by buying at "the nearest place."

If values and prices ruled about alike in all stores at all times, there would not be any such thing as store competition. And, as finding desirable values would require no especial knowledge or insight, store advertising would be superfluous.

Buying for the home cannot be done wisely and economically unless the "buyer" is a student of the advertisements—no more than a store may be made prosperous without advertising.

MOTHERS' CONGRESS TO MEET AT TRENTON

W. D. Murray, of This City, Among Those Who Will Address Gathering.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations will be held in the State Normal School, at Trenton, Friday and Saturday, November 12 and 13. The morning session on Friday will comence at 11 o'clock, the former part of the session being devoted to business and the latter to reading of reports from the various committees. A feature of the afternoon session which will open at 2 o'clock, will be an address delivered by Governor Fielder and greetings from J. M. Arnold, superintendent of schools of Mercer county; Mrs. Frederick Schoff, president of the National Congress of Mothers, Mrs. C. W. Stockton, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Miss Elfreth, president of the State W. C. T. U. Miss Lillie A. Williams, of the State Normal School will deliver an address on "Education for Co-operation." An informal reception for the officers, delegates and visitors will be held at 5 o'clock.

William D. Murray, of Plainfield and Dr. J. J. Savitz, superintendent of schools of Union county, will deliver addresses at the evening session. Their topics will be "Higher Ground" and "The Country School" (illustrated), respectively.

Reports of club presidents and their representatives will occupy a portion of the Saturday morning period. At that time Mrs. William M. Sandford, of Plainfield, representing the Parent-Teacher Associations, and Mrs. Herbert E. Parker, of Plainfield, dwelling on home economics, will deliver interesting reports. "Two Agencies for the Training of Children: the Home and the School," will be the subject of a talk by Dr. C. N. Kendall, State commission of education. Miss Jane S. Davis, county attendance officer of Monmouth county, will address the delegates on "Two Views of Our Children in School: The Parents' View and the Teachers' View." Saturday afternoon, Mrs. George S. Martin, of Plainfield, will talk on "Work of a Parent-Teacher Association In a Rural District."

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The present gait at Proctor's Theatre has caused a stir in this city and many of the old theatre-goers who have formed the stay at home habit are being won back to see the good shows at the popular theatre. The importance of the bookings of the features, "The Birth Of a Nation," "The Battle Cry of Peace," "The German Side of the War (Chicago Tribune) Pictures," "Carmen," the original William Fox Academy, N. Y., version with Theda Bara, and those already presented including Mrs. Fiske and "Trilby," indicate that the new management of Proctor's are "doing things" in a big way. The slogan is "Quality Not Quantity," and instead of trying to give six, eight or ten acts of vaudeville for prices ranging from five to twenty-five cents, with perhaps five of the lot poor ones, the management have been offering special big photo-play features that have made records in New York city. With these big photo-plays, a splendid vaudeville program has been arranged, and instead of a great number of acts of mediocre quality, the management have arranged a few specially selected acts that are bound to please, for instance the show the first half of this week includes: "Sam. J. Curtis and his ten golf girls," a real headline act for any program, and not a try-out. There are other features, among them "The Leech Wallen Trio," a big novelty act, and others. The photo-play feature is "The Family Stain," starring Frederick Perry, who won a big triumph last season in the phenomenal run of "On Trial," at the Candler Theatre. "Carmen," the latest New York film sensation, will be an early booking. This is the original "Carmen," with Theda Bara, which scored a tremendous hit at the Academy, New York.

A woman with buying to do never saves any time by omitting to read the advertisements. Nor does she always secure par value for her dollar.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

"Trade-marked" articles—things sold by NAME or DISTINGUISHING and IDENTIFYING BRAND—must be kept at the highest standard of quality. The VALUE must never vary. For a maker to "cheapen" such an article would be to throw away the prestige he had fought so hard, and advertised so effectinvely, to gain.

SAUNDERS ARGUES FOR BIGGER NAVY TO PRESERVE PEACE AND EXTEND AMERICAN COMMERCE

Plainfield Man, in Exhaustive Article in Engineering Magazine, Shows Why United States Should Exercise Paternal Care Over Latin-American Countries—Explains Work of the New Naval Consulting Board—Opportunity for New National Trade.

An exhaustive, logical and potent argument for a larger navy for the United States as a protection for its trade on this continent and that it may exercise a paternal care over smaller countries in Latin-America is contained in an article in this month's Engineering Magazine by the Hon. William L. Saunders, of Plainfield.

Mr. Saunders is a member of the Naval Consulting Board, and is vice-chairman of that body. He is also president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. His article in the technical journal is run in connection with similar ones from the pens of Admiral Dewey, Rear-Admiral Edwards, Frank J. Sprague and others. It follows:

"My colleague, Mr. Sprague, of the Naval Consulting Board, has covered the theory, functions and possibilities of this newest creation in our naval organization so thoroughly that I can well afford to turn my attention to another and a vital phrase of our naval and commercial policy—the present and imperative need of 'Ships and a Navy for the Americas.'

"But before discussing this phase of the subject I am prompted to offer a few words of explanation in correction of mistaken newspaper comment which I have observed in the daily press.

"The recommendation of the Naval Consulting Board that a physical laboratory be established on tide-water for the conduct of experiments by the government seems to have been misunderstood. It is not true that it is proposed that such a laboratory be under the direction of the civilian board. On the contrary it is to be controlled and directed by the United States Naval Officers.

Made by Naval Officers.

"It is not true that the civilian board, or any other board of inventors, is expected to go within the walls of this experimental station and invent or produce devices for the use of the navy. The proposition is that this shall be a great physical workshop for the purpose of trying out and developing inventions which have been submitted from all sources to the United States Government. When such inventions are

DRIVERS GO OVER Y. M. C. A. TRACK

Get Acquainted With Rough Spots Before Big Six Day Race.

ARE OFF THURSDAY

Chairman MacArt Explains Rules and Gives Final Instructions—800 Members is the Speed Limit Promised for the Event.

Drivers who will pilot cars in the big auto race of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. that gets under way Thursday, were at the association building last night going over the track and getting acquainted with the rough spots on its surface and dangerous curves and hills.

The track in this campaign for new members is the list of "prospects" that has been made out by association heads and to which workers will be assigned.

Thursday evening the drivers are to tune up their engines, and get the mechanical part of their equipment in shape for the six-day race. Team members correspond to the mounts and a lazy or indifferent member of a team may lose for the entire body just as a groaning joint or a bad carburetor would lose for Burman, Oldfield, Anderson or Resta in the big auto events of the year at Sheepshead Bay or the Indianapolis track. *At the dinner of Thursday each cap*tain will meet members of his team and go over the work of the campaign. If he has a weak member or one who appears to be in the car

PLAINFIELD MEN SUED FOR $10,000

W. F. Austin and C. E. Lipscomb Defendants in Contract Litigation.

Newark, Nov. 9.—Walter F. Austin and C. E. Lipscomb, of Plainfield, are made defendants in a damage suit for $10,000 that is on trial here today before judge and jury. The plaintiff in the case is John DeP. Schench, of Philadelphia, who was formerly employed by Messrs. Austin and Lipscomb.

In 1907 the three men entered into a contract to buy an apple orchard in Oregon, according to the testimony of the plaintiff. A sum of $4,000 was paid when the contract was entered into. Because of complications over the title the owner was not able to transfer the orchard, and owners of a claim against the land secured a temporary injunction against the sale. Before this was dissolved trees in the orchard were blighted and the apple crop was ruined. The owner is said to have admitted that the orchard might be permanently damaged. Austin and Lipscomb refused to go into the sale after this, and the owner returned the $4,000 that had been paid. Schench claims that he lost $10,000 because of the failure of his partners to go through with the contract. He states that the property has since sold for $65,000 and that it is now worth $90,000.

THREE ARE ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Joseph Luppo Taken Into Custody After Paying $100 Fine in Borough.

Charged with maintaining a disorderly house at 128 Liberty street, Joseph Lupo, was arrested by Captain John J. Flynn, of the local police force, yesterday, and is confined in the city jail. Two women, one giving the name of Annie Nugent, and the other a woman claiming to be her stepmother, are also in custody, having been apprehended by Flynn yesterday afternoon. When arraigned in the city police court this morning Lupo was held in bonds of $1,000 by Judge DeMeza for trial tomorrow morning. Bonds of $500 were required of the younger girl and the woman was held in bail amounting to $300. In speaking of the case after court this morning Chief Kiely said that charges of a serious nature would be drawn against all three persons. George Cioci, an Italian living on Race street, North Plainfield, was also taken into custody as a material witness tomorrow morning.

The police have been "shadowing" the Liberty street address for several weeks past and a strong web of evi*dence is said to have been woven* about the prisoners. According to the authorities Lupo brought the Nugent woman here from New Brunswick some time ago and witnesses are said to be available who can furnish evidence that will prove material in gaining convictions.

In a statement made before Chief Kiely, Captain Flynn and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., this morning, the girl is said to have admitted her culpability and to have implicated Lupo strongly in the alleged acts.

Immediately after being committed to a cell Lupo requested that his counsel, J. Victor D'Aloia, of Newark be notified and the latter came here yesterday afternoon. Efforts on his part to obtain bail, however, were futile and the prisoners were held until this morning before being arraigned.

Lupo's arrest by Flynn yesterday followed a hearing in the borough court, when he was fined $100 by Recorder Fred Hand for conducting a gambling establishment at 57 Somerset street. He is said to be well known to the police, who have been keeping a strict surveillance on his movements since he came to Plainfield.

LAWRENCE HUBER, JR.

Lawrence Huber, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Huber, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents on Greenbrook road, near Sebring's Mills. He was ill only a short time with an attack of heart failure. Mr. Huber was born in Plainfield twenty-six years ago and had always resided in this vicinity. Previous to his illness he was employed at Peapack as a chauffeur. He had many friends and a number of relatives in the city and borough. The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon and burial will be at Somerville.

CITY PARK WILL INCREASE VALUES

Mrs. H. C. White Points Out the Advantages Before Monday Afternoon Club.

COMMUNITY BENEFIT

Audience is Shown How Ground Space Can Be Economically Utilized to Make Place of Beauty Out of Small Tract.

"A Park for Plainfield," was the topic of an enthusiastic discussion at the meeting of the department of miscellaneous topics of the Monday Afternoon Club, held in the parish house of the Congregational church, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Henry C. White gave an informal talk, dwelling particularly on that phase of the question dealing with the increased valuation of property surrounding such a location as well as the enormous good effected to a community in which public parks flourish. She gave specific examples of the growth of parks in surrounding cities within the last few years and brought to the attention of her audience facts showing how ground space could be economically utilized in such a manner as to make a place of beauty out of a comparatively small tract of land. Vacant lots, which are numerous throughout the city, instead of being eyesores in many cases, could be remodelled into attractive and ornamental sites. Possessed of much natural beauty, Plainfield could advantageously make use of this fact, as well as the wonderful trees and

SELECT REGALIA FOR LOCAL COPS

Chief Kiely's Suggestions Are Adopted by Councilmanic Police Board.

METROPOLITAN STYLE

No Patrolman Will be Compelled to Purchase New Uniform, However, Until His Present One is Rendered Unfit for Use—Other Business.

Suggestions for new department uniforms were made by Police Chief Kiely to the councilmanic Police Board at its meeting last night, the recommendations being unanimously adopted. It has also been decided that no patrolman will be compelled to purchase new regalia until the uniform he now possesses is worn out. The suggested style is similar to that in vogue in the New York city department and it is proposed to make it the regulation model for the local patrolmen. The Police Board will designate the maker of the uniforms and all local concerns desiring to submit prices should immediately see Chief Kiely and obtain from him the specifications. Every opportunity is to be given to Plainfield merchants to compete with those of Newark and New York. A chance will also be given patrolmen to express their preference as to maker, although the decision will be made by the Police Board and will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder.

Considerable business came before last night's session, principal among which was the settling of charges

Washington, Nov. 9.—Fresh com*plications in the controversy over* American shipping and its rights on the high seas sprang into existence today through the confiscation of the American registered liner Solvfig by a French prize court. BENNETT BRITTIN WILL IS PROBATED

The will of Bennett Brittin, who died on Monday, October 25, aged 103 years, was offered for probate in the surrogate's court, Elizabeth, yesterday. John H. Van Winkle, Sr., is named as the sole executor of the estate. While the value of the estate is not known at present, it is said to be considerable, consisting chiefly realty in this city. He owned several valuable tracts of land, chiefly in the West End, and in addition is said to have had a considerable fortune.

There are a few bequests to relatives and intimate friends, but the residue of the estate is left to Mrs. Susanna DeCastro, Mr. Brittin's daughter, who lived in Havana, Cuba, but who had been living with her father during his last illness.

The will was made in the early part of this year and was witnessed by Thomas B. Tilsworth and John H. Van Winkle, Jr., the latter a son of the executor. It will probably be some days before an inventory of the estate is made to determine its exact value.

Mr. Brittin was believed to be Plainfield's oldest citizen, having resided here for a number of years. He was born in Paterson and later conducted a hotel in New York. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted and served with distinction.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED.

A bill of dissolution, dissolving the partnership of Chryssafides Brothers who have been conducting the New York Lunch at 127 West Front street was filed in the Court of Chancery at Newark last Thursday. Irving Kunzman acted as attorney for those interested. The dissolution was the outcome of considerable trouble in the local police court several months ago when one of the brothers accused the other of stealing a quantity of coffee and considerable cash.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Stanley Lewak, of South Plainfield, who was injured at the coal station at that place January 15 last, and was crippled as a result, has started suit for damages against the Lehigh Coal Sales Company. The case will be heard in the Common Pleas Court at New Brunswick in the near future. Irving Kunzman, of this city, is representing Mr. Lewak.

REQUESTS REMOVAL OF LOCAL TRUSTEE

L. V. F. Randolph One of Three Made Defendants in Suit of Beneficiary.

Action was begun in the Supreme Court of New York yesterday by Mrs. Susan T. Smith, a niece of the late Samuel J. Tilden, to obtain the removal of three trustees for the estate of the latter, one of whom is former Mayor Lewis V. F. Randolph, of this city. The other two are George W. Smith and Charles F. MacLean. She charges that their advanced ages and their inability to agree in the management of the assets makes their management detrimental to her interests. She asks the appointment of a trust company in their stead.

Mrs. Smith says she is a beneficiary under two trust funds of $100,000 each, the first paying her income since the death of Mr. Tilden in 1886 and the second since the death of Mrs. Ruby T. Smith, a niece, Mrs. *Smith having been a contingent lega*tee. In addition to seeking the removal of the three men Mrs. Smith also asks for an accounting, although she does not charge that there has been irregularity.

Mr. Smith was made a defendant once before in an action brought by heirs seeking his removal. They charged that he was unable to agree with Mr. Randolph on the appointment of a third trustee to succeed the late John Bigelow. Justice Newburger in the Supreme Court determined that Mr. Smith should not be removed from his office, and appointed Mr. MacLean as the third trustee. Mr. MacLean was formerly a justice of the Supreme Court.

In answering the first action Mr. Smith alleged that the heirs who sought his removal in reality desired to obtain a partition of the fund *which had been set aside for the con*struction of a Tilden monument. Mr. Randolph was for years Mr. Tilden's private secretary. He was appointed to serve as trustee in 1903, to succeed Andrew H. Green. Mr. MacLean was appointed in November, 1913, and Mr. Smith is the only survivor of the original trustees. Mrs. Smith describes Mr. Smith as more than seventy-four years old, Mr. Randolph as more than seventy-seven and Mr. Mac*Lean as more than seventy-nine.*

Mrs. Smith alleges that Mr. Smith will not co-operate with Mr. Randolph, and that because of "a personal animosity" between the two the various trusts are not properly managed. She also says there is evidence of "incompatibility" between Mr. Smith and Mr. MacLean, "as evidenced in acts of opposition and refusal to co-operate in the ordinary conduct of business of the estate, which greatly hinder the plaintiff's interests."

NO BAIL FOR FORMER MANAGER OF BEACHEY

Warren S. Eaton Held in Brunswick Jail to Face Serious Counts.

Up to a late hour this afternoon, Warren S. Eaton, who says he is a supervising constructor of the Wright Aeroplane Company, with offices at 5 Nassau street, New York city, was enjoying the hospitality of the Middlesex county authorities as an inmate of the New Brunswick jail, his attempts to secure the necessary $1,250 bail for his freedom having proven unsuccessful. Together with Leopold Blankenburg, an employe of the Sloane Manufacturing Company at Bound Brook, he is held on charges of attempted conspiracy and breaking and entering, preferred against him by the Bound Brook concern.

The charges against Eaton and Blankenberg are made by John Eyre Sloane, a son-in-law of Thomas A. Edison and head of the aeroplane company. Mr. Sloane told Justice of the Peace Arthur S. Moore, of South Plainfield, before whom the men were arraigned, that Chares H. Day, his superintendent and chief engineer, telephoned him at Mr. Edison's home in West Orange on Sunday that Eaton, who had been seen about the plant for several days, had offered a bribe to Mr. Day in return for the coveted patents.

Mr. Sloane said he hurried to Bound Brook and learned that Eaton had approached also Albert Hoffer, an employe of his plant, so he arranged that Hoffer was to pretend to accept Eaton's offer and fix an appointment for 6 o'clock last evening, when Eaton was to thrust his hand through an open window and receive the patents and blue prints from Hoffer.

According to Mr. Sloane, Eaton appeared by arrangement. Unexpectedly he went nowhere near the window, but instead joined Blankenberg, with whom he entered the plant. Mr. Sloane said that Eaton made notes from some blue prints which had purposely been left visible, but did not see the papers he was after. He and Blankenberg were arrested as they left the plant.

On Mr. Sloane's charge of conspiracy Justice Moore held each man in $1,000 bail and held Eaton in $250 more on a second charge of breaking and entering the plant. Eaton was indignant. He said Blankenberg had invited him into the factory to look at some of his work and he had gone with no other purpose. He said he would employ counsel and fight the case to a finish.

Eaton was once manager of Lincoln Beachey when that aviator was making sensational flights.

EXPECT TO RESUME BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Little Louise Campbell Shows Decided Improvement and Hope is Renewed.

*Reports from the bedside of eight-*year-old Louise Campbell, for whom the specialists from this city and New York have been waging a desperate battle, indicate that the patient is slightly improved and there is now some hope that blood transfusion may be resumed within the next few days. Dr. William H. Anthony, the child's uncle, who has had charge of the case since the leukemia victim was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital from her parents' home in Newark, has received scores of offers from persons who would give blood to save the child and today appealed to the newspapers in an effort to curb the number. The physician stated that enough applicants have been registered and sufficient blood is available now for whatever transfusions may be deemed necessary.

The latest offer which examining physicians have accepted has come from Elmer W. Smith, of 339 Washington avenue, Belleville. A test of his blood proved satisfactory and he will probably be called upon to give up some of the fluid when the doctors operate again.

TWO PLAIN CLOTHESMEN FOR DAY DUTY ON CITY STREETS

Because of the large number of automobile accidents that have been brought to the attention of the police department recently the councilmanic Police Board has instructed Chief Kiely to detail two plainclothesmen to do street duty in the daytime.

It is hoped by this means to run down the guilty parties and to break up the practice of reckless driving certain local autoists have been making of late.

MARRIAGE BETTER THAN LONG TERM IN JAIL

Somerville, Nov. 9.—Choosing marriage rather than a sentence of from three to seven years in the penitentiary, Ben Sadewski today stood up and said "yes" while he held the hand of Mary Yackowski, both of Somerville. Sadowski was indicted by the grand jury in September for seduction. The court ordered him to marry the Yackowski girl, but he refused until he heard sentence pronounced upon him, and then he picked marriage as the lesser of the two evils.

CITY STILL ENFORCING THE 1911 MOTOR LAWS

Suggestion by certain public spirited autoists that it might be well for the city to bring its automobile law signboards on the outskirts of the city up to date, has led the councilmanic Police Board to order new boards which will be erected in the near future.

The signs now read, "1911 speed laws enforced," and the 1911 will be changed to 1915. Just why the 1911 notice has been left standing this long is not known but those there are who have noted the tardiness of the municipal authorities in caring for this detail with keen regret.

RELIEF FOR COMPLAINING RESIDENTS OF NETHERWOOD

The Councilmanic Police Board has ordered a traffic post to be placed at the intersection of Belvidere and South avenues. The guide will be similar to the others in use in various parts of the city. Residents of the section have complained considerably of late regarding the practice Netherwood commuters have made of speeding down Belvidere avenue and up to the Central Railroad Depot and also against the fast driving on the good stretch of South avenue that runs along that section.

It is believed that the new traffic post will serve to regulate conditions at that street juncture and also to cause motorists to slow down as they approach the station.

TROLLEY CAR SCUFFLE ENDED IN POLICE COURT

John Martin, a machinist living at 307 Madison avenue, was arraigned in the city police court this morning charged with creating a disturbance and fighting on a Fourth street trolley. According to the testimony of the complaining witness, Daniel Carroll, the defendant refused to stop smoking a cigarette on the trolley and when he, Carroll, who was the conductor in charge, pulled the "coffin-nail" from Martin's mouth, the latter is alleged to have punched him three times.

The witnesses in the case, all conductors employed by the Public Service, could not testify to seeing any blows struck, but said that their attention was attracted to the trouble between Martin and Carroll by the distressed cries of women. Each witness said that he ran from the front of the car to the back and saw the two men clenched, but no one saw the blows struck. Judge DeMeza ordered Martin to apologize to Carroll in open court and when he had done this the court suspended sentence, at the same time warning him that any further rowdyism on his part would mean a heavy fine or possibly imprisonment.

INCREASE BAIL OF MAN HELD ON KNIFING COUNT

Bail in the case of Tony Ronzo, one of a quartet of Italians who were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court yesterday morning, charged with atrocious assault on one Salvadore Combonier, of 240 Jackson avenue, was increased from $500 to $1,000 by the court magistrate yesterday afternoon. The victim is still confined in Muhlenberg Hospital with a serious head wound, said to have been caused by a razor in the hands of Ronzo.

The other three, Tony Seneca, Josepa Viperino and Nicholas Chup, were originally held in bonds of $500 each, but when investigation revealed the fact that Ronzo was probably the guilty party, their bonds were reduced to $200 each. The trial will be held Saturday morning, when it is thought that Combonier will have recovered sufficiently to appear as a witness.

FIRE AT SAURER PLANT.

A break in an oil feeding pipe in the forge department of the International Motor Works at Clinton avenue and Front street at 5:45 this morning caused a slight fire which for a time threatened to be dangerous. The workmen believed it would get beyond their control and turned in an alarm from box 49. The fire department responded promptly but found nothing to do on their arrival. The damage was slight.

EXPECT MORE DELAY IN ROUNDEY TRIALS

Change of Attorneys May Necessitate Adjournment to a Later Date.

Owing to a change of counsel at the eleventh hour it will probably be necessary to grant a further postponement in the John K. Roundey divorce litigation which was slated to come before the Court of Chancery in Newark today. Included in the legal tangle which has been before the courts for nearly two years are the suits of Mrs. Florence E. Roundey against her husband, who was formerly the head of the Eldress Company in this city, for separate maintenance; the divorce action of Mr. Roundey for an absolute decree of divorce; and Mrs. Roundey's counter suit for divorce.

Until a few days ago Martin Stutsman handled the affairs of Mr. Roundey, but he has since been succeeded by Robert Newton Crane, another local attorney. On the strength of this change it is believed that application will be made to the court for further adjournment.

PUGILISTS CLAIM THEY WERE FIGHTING FOR FUN

Their claim that they were "only fooling" drew suspended sentences for William Barnes and Clarence Coles, two colored youths, when they were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning charged by Patrolman Martin Welsh with engaging in a pugilistic combat. According to Welsh the young men had drawn an imaginary ring at Fourth street and Plainfield avenue and were disp[illegible] of the time passing with various effect on each other's cranium when he happened along.

Welsh stepped between the two as peace maker, whereupon Coles and Barnes have declared that he was determined to make a "finish fight" out of the fracas, at the same time lunging a stiff right uppercut to Barnes' jaw. At this juncture the copper sounded the bell and took the fighters into custody. Arraigned in court they were profound in their statement that they were having a good natured tilt and that the alleged rough-house was imaginary on the bluecoat's part.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

It required only 25 seconds for the plane to make its descent.

Mrs. Duncan, who is of Scotch extraction, has seven sons serving in the British army in France, and this reminder of the great conflict was mailed to her by one of her nephews.

Objections Taken to Application of Walter Arnold for Discharge.

In the United States District Court at Newark this morning Judge Haight, after hearing argument of counsel, reserved decision on the objections filed by Peter E. Van Fleet against the discharge in bankruptcy of Walter Arnold, of 203 Liberty street.

This action grew out of a damage suit in 1912. Mr. Van Fleet was employed by Arnold, a contractor, in building a house, and fell from a scaffold, sustaining severe injuries. He recovered damages in the amount of $2,980 against Arnold. The latter then went into bankruptcy.

The referee recommended the discharge of Arnold, but W. Gordon Williams filed objections. Williams claimed that Arnold failed to keep books of record and that he went into bankruptcy to escape payment of the judgment and other claims. Judge Haight ruled that the objections had not been maintained, but that he would reserve decision to permit Van Fleet's attorney to submit explanations of the points of law raised.

DOLL LOSES BUGGY AND WANTS IT BACK

Maybe Somebody Stole it, But He Must Have Been Awful Mean Man.

If it was a burglar he will never fit into a modern short story, because a man who would carry off a baby's doll buggy couldn't qualify as a hero, even if he was dressed up by Gouverneur Morris, or some of the other geniuses who grind out real stories about unreal people.

The child of Mrs. Lewis Squires, of 676 West Eighth street, has lost her doll buggy and somebody got it. The doll buggy was left on the front porch yesterday afternoon while its owner took her doll for a walk, and when she returned it had disappeared. Of course everybody knows a doll buggy cannot run away itself, and the little owner suspects foul play. Her doll doesn't like to change models in the middle of the season and she wants her buggy back. A reward has been offered by the mother in the hope that the buggy rolled off the porch and was picked up by some careless passerby, but it might have been stolen, and if it was there is little chance of getting it back because the man who took it is about mean enough to keep it.

COMMISSIONER DILL HAS NOT FULFILLED PROMISE

Despite the fact that Commissioner Dill, of the State Department of Motor Vehicles, assured Mayor Leighton Calkins in a written announcement last spring that he would see that Plainfield was provided with a license agent by early fall, no appointment has been made known to date. With a view to accomplishing this end Mayor Calkins has forwarded a second letter to the commissioner asking for information concerning the appointment and calling his attention to the former promise.

Motorists of the city have complained considerably of the trouble they have been put to because of the fact that Plainfield has no authorized representative of the State Department and that there is an urgent need for such an officer is generally conceded by both the local auto owners and the State Motor Vehicle Commissioner. Just what has caused the delay is unknown and the mayor believes that some explanation is due.

Busy Days, Now

The Tepper store is busier than ever these days, not only because so many thrifty housekeepers are preparing for the coming Thanksgiving festivities by replenishing their linen supply, or because the thermometer impels an additional supply of blankets and underwear, but because more people are beginning to see and appreciate the splendid service, the splendid stocks and the unmatchable values of this store.

This store is the progressive store, growing better, bigger and busier day by day.

The Ad-itor

is always interesting, but a study of a tradesman's business character as indicated by his advertising is even more interesting and always profitable.

Just glance over the advertisements in the Plainfield Daily Press of the merchants whose places you know.

Does not the merchant write his store character into his advertising? Is it not possible to form a pretty good idea of the store from the manner in which it makes its announcements in the newspapers?

Merchants are coming to realize more and more that when they write an advertisement they are painting a business portrait of themselves—indicating their business character.

They are more careful in their statements, more modest in their language and pay more attention to typography and illustration.

Advertising is prepared now-a-days more carefully than ever before and there is more of it every day.

And by the same token it is going to be more interesting and profitable to the readers.

PARK WILL INCREASE VALUES

foliage throughout the city, which enhances the atmosphere probably more than anything else.

Mrs. Howard M. Canoune followed Mrs. White and told of the many city squares, triangles and open spaces which could be successfully made into parks. She illustrated her point with the small site at the point where Crescent avenue runs into Watchung avenue in the city, and where Orchard place runs into Rockview avenue in the borough, both places adding to the appearance of the streets. "Washington Park," situated on the crest of the Watchung Mountains, and which was realized largely through the instrumentality of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCutchen, was called to the attention of the members of the club by Mrs. McCutchen who told of what would be done in the future for the improvement of that scenic and historic place.

That portion of the city in the vicinity of the Tier property, including the pond, brought forth much discussion, being one of the most popular choices for a park. Another property that was mentioned was the White estate on Myrtle avenue, that opposite the home of Samuel Townsend. Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins spoke of the splendid opportunities offered the children at Parker Field and Crescent Oval, but the fact that they were such a distance from the city made it practically impossible in scores of cases for the boy or girl to enjoy the various recreations there. The value of an attractive station park, both to the railroad as well as to the city it reveals to the passerby, was excellently told by Mrs. Benjamin J. Shreve. The Greenbrook road park, which had been offered to the city for such a site, was brought to the attention of the gathering by Mrs. Deuse M. Van Vliet, who regretted the fact that the offer was refused because the city could not afford to keep it up. Miss Ruth Wean, for the past summer a supervisor at the Irving School Playground, gave an interesting account of that feature of a city and said that many more such recreation fields were needed in Plainfield to accommodate the large number of attendants.

Mrs. Charles Rice urged the promotion of school yard gardens whereby the love of nature and the art of beautifying surroundings is inculcated in the child. The feature is proving highly popular in other cities and many schools are following the example by setting aside a portion of the yard for this purpose. Here the child has an individual plot where he is taught the planting of flowers, shurbbery, as well as their care. In a number of towns such beginnings have laid the foundations for attractive parts in the summer and winter.

So much interest was manifested during the time permitted for the discussion that it was decided that the club appoint a committee of women to take up the study of the subject more fully. This committee will be appointed at the next meeting.

The final part of the meeting was devoted to the reading of a paper on "Banking" by J. Herbert Case.

The next meeting of the club will be held in the parish house next Monday afternoon and will be in charge of the literature department of the club. Papers will be read on the following subjects: "Education—Treatment of the Jews," by Mrs. John M. Whiton; "Social Customs of Russia," by Mrs. David H. Rowland.

BIGGEST MEETING OF SCOUT COUNCIL

Members Register for Another Year of Work Among Boys.

70 DOLLARS IS DONATED

Will Attend Lecture on Plattsburg Preparedness Camp in a Body—New Troop in North Plainfield—Plans for Future Work.

Hardly had it become known to the public that $70 was needed by the Boy Scout Council to connect the new Boy Scout camp in Terrill road with the city water mains when it was possible to announce that the full amount had been provided by a friend of the movement. Thus it will be possible to start work today or tomorrow to supply the building with this much needed commodity.

The announcement that the money had been provided was made at the Y. M. C. A. last night at the biggest meeting of the Boy Scout Council ever held in this city, when the members of the council registered for another year. The new council will consist of: President, Theodore G Davis; first vice president, L. M. Leek; second vice president, Frederick M. Genung; secretary and treasurer, Dr. George T. Moore; chairman of the executive committee, William N. Runyon; William Abbe, DeWitt D. Barlow, Lindsey Best, Paul R Collier, W. W. Coriell, Dr. N. W. Currie, A. C. Estes, Leslie R. Fort, Charles H. Frost, LeRoy H. Gates Joseph Cavett, Edward Harding, John Leal, Frederick S. Linn, Dr Henry M. Maxson, Brockholst K. Miller, Alexander Milne, William D Murray, Samuel Rothberg, Howard W. Satterfield and Oscar W. Smith. A. M. Palmer and Isaac H. Marvin were elected new members of the council and guests present were D. C. Harrower, F. V. Lawrence and George Hoagland. These members have registered or have signified their intentions of serving another term and were sufficient to bring the number up to the requisite total for applying to the National Headquarters for a new charter for the Plainfield Council. Other members of the Scout Council who served last year may send their registration fee of $2 to Dr. George T. Moore, secretary, 525 Park avenue.

The members decided to attend the lecture on the Plattsburgh preparedness camp to be given by Percy H. Stewart at the Plainfield High School auditorium, Thursday night, in a body.

These scouts made application for examination and their assignments were made as follows: Troop 5, John Richards, scoutmaster, Russell Hunt, first class examination, assigned to Dr. Henry M. Maxson; Jack Faucett, painting and camping, assigned to C E. Bond; Allan Mogensen, first class, assigned to Howard W. Satterfield; troop 8, H. Douglas Davis, scoutmaster, Edward H. Ladd, 3d, first class, assigned to A. Russell Bond; Harold Searles, first class, assigned to Charles H. Frost; Hayward Erickson, for examination in merit badge promotions in swimming, bugling, life saving, cooking and marksmanship, assigned to Councilmen William Abbe and Frederick M. Genung, troop 14, Ernest K. Powlison, scout master, Robert Fuller, first class, assigned to Second Deputy Commissioner E. A. Sprowl; Kenneth Bennett, for examination in these merit badges, athletics, first aid, scholarship, cycling and carpentry, assigned to L. M. Leek; troop 11, Raymond Manley, scoutmaster, Walter Marder, first class, assigned to DeWitt D. Barlow; Robert Vesey, first class, assigned to Mr. Leal; Vincent Smith to A. M. Palmer and Irving Wiltse to Leslie R. Fort.

Second Vice President Frederick M. Genung reported having advanced Scouts Erickson and Searles, of troop 8, to rank of first class scout, and John Leal reported having passed Harold Condict, of the same troop, to the rank of first class scout.

Third Deputy Commissioner F. E. Bach reported the formation of a new troop, No. 18, in Warren chapel, with Andrew Stiglitz, Jr., as scoutmaster, and Albert Van Winkle and Edward Windham as assistant scoutmasters. This is the first troop in North Plainfield. Commissioner Sprowl reported favorably on the application of W. F. Richards as scoutmaster of Troop 12 at Hope chapel, with W. Milwater as assistant scoutmaster.

H. Douglas Davis, scoutmaster of Troop 8, through Commissioner Sprowl, made application for the appointment of H. J. Runyon as assistant scoutmaster for his troop in the Crescent Avenue church.

Council endorsed the proposed membership of the four local commissioners in the Northern New Jersey Scout Commissioners' Association.

Plans were outlined for the coming year, but were not formally taken up at last night's meeting. President Davis, in closing the meeting, said:

"This is the first meeting of the new year and the interest in scout work is growing very fast, not only among the boys, but among our citizens. People are already beginning to see the effectiveness of scout work and that they are in accord with the work is shown by the splendid financial help they have given in furthering the work. We have been singularly fortunate in not having any difficulty in the past to effect the high purposes of scout work and our part is to make the scout movement and its work grow with the public sentiment. To this end I ask your full co-operation."

INTEREST OF BOY SCOUTS IS AROUSED

Will Be Largely Represented at Lecture on "Preparedness" at High School.

Scout troops probably will be represented in larger numbers than ever before in the history of the local organization on Thursday night, when they meet to hear about former Mayor Percy H. Stewart's experiences at the Plattsburg preparedness camp. Special letters to all the scoutmasters in the city went out yesterday asking them to assemble their troops at 7:30, Thursday evening, at Grace Episcopal church parish house, to march in a body in full uniform to the High School Auditorium. Every scout in the city has been urged by his scoutmaster to be sure to be present at this meeting.

The scout motto has been "Be Prepared" ever since the scout movement was started in this country, and it has shown itself as a very good motto to live up to by the acts of service performed for the Grand Army men at Gettysburg, at the Panama-Pacific Exposition and in various helpful capacities in this city. The motto "Be Prepared" is that which makes a boy scout refuse a tip for gratuitous service performed, because "Preparedness" means the safeguarding of his self-respect. Former Mayor Stewart carried the same thought to national preparedness in the sense that this nation should be able to maintain its self-respect and see that suitable respect is shown it by others. Every boy scout and his parents are urged to be present. National Scout headquarters has approved the broader interpretation of the motto "Be Prepared," and parents interested in the purposes of the Boy Scout movement throughout the country are urged to be present At any rate they are requested to urge their scout sons to attend.

REGALIA FOR LOCAL COPS

against a number of patrolmen accused of delinquency in failing to ring in. As the practice has been most noticeable of late the Board has decided to adopt strenuous measures in breaking it up. In almost every case the accused patrolmen give excuses that are trivial and unconvincing The Board has received expert advice to the effect that the Gamewell call box system may be relied upon for its accuracy, and the Board therefore contemplates adopting a hard and fixed rule to the effect that whether or not a patrolman has rung in on time will be determined by the record on the tape at headquarters and in no other manner. This will involve no hardship or unfairness to the patrolman, because the Gamewell device enables him, when he rings in, to know whether or not his report is received, and the Board intends to place the responsibility squarely up to the patrolman. A police officer who is in doubt as to whether or not his call has been received can ascertain positively in ten seconds by telephoning the desk sergeant.

Eight or nine applications for the vacancies on the police force have been received by Chief Kiely and he was instructed to proceed with mental and physical examinations in the customary manner.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press.

Regarding the shop at home problem which the Plainfield merchants and other citizens are boosting, it is to be regretted that this sort of agitation does not become a sort of an epidemic. Otherwise, here are some illustrations from our point of view: The patrolmen's benefit ball: The police force, supported by the public, goes to Newark to hire the music for this affair at considerable expense, and we might add also that they have made this an annual offense, and then practically canvass every merchant and others and unload a bunch of tickets on them. And then we have the Muhlenberg Hospital, a semi-public institution, and at every call the citizens have responded generously. Yet, when any social affair in the form of a dance, etc., is held, New York or Brooklyn music is procured for the occasion.

The Plainfield High School dances or commencements. Here is another instance supported by the taxpayers, yet the music is generally from some high-class hotel from New York.

In conclusion, we might add that there has and no doubt will be other instances of just this sort, but in a spirit of fair play and co-operation we ask for the publication of this in your valuable paper to show that we, even though not yet one year old in possession of our charter as members of the American Federation of Union Musicians, are keenly alive to the wants of our splendid city, and certainly feel assured that we stand ready at all times to do our share, if given the opportunity.

paign because "he could not get out of it," he will either repair the weak spot in his machine or replace it then, because it will be too late after the race is on. Only quick tire changes and minor repairs can be made then.

L. D. Albin acted as chairman of the meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. last night, and there were 21 of the leading business men of Plainfield, both young and middle-aged, present. After explaining the purpose of the gathering Mr. Albin introduced J. A. MacArt, who is to have personal charge of the membership contest.

Mr. MacArt explained the "prospect" lists and other features of the work. He asked that all campaigners observe the rules as printed on the captain's report envelopes. They are urged not to solicit a membership from any man not assigned to them. This rule is for the comfort of the general public. Its enforcement will prevent one man being asked to join by ten or twelve different men.

Mr. MacArt and five local secretaries will begin the campaign tomorrow. They will spend the entire morning at the railroad station, giving out small folders which contain "Ten Reasons Why You Should Join the Y. M. C. A." No attempt is to be made to solicit members Wednesday, but each commuter leaving the city of Plainfield will be given one of these folders to read during the trip to New York so that he will be acquainted with the purposes of the campaign and the work of solicitors for members will be made easier.

Each night during the campaign all captains and team members will meet at dinner at the Y. M. C. A. when reports of the day's work will be submitted. There will be a separate table for each team and the band that scores the largest number of points during the day will sit under a pennant which bears the words, "High Team." Pennants will also be provided for the second and third highest teams. They are to be won each day until the campaign is over and the final score is in, when they will be permanently awarded as souvenirs.

Eight hundred new members is the limit set by the workers, and the campaign slogan is to be "Members, not money."

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

One of the best bills for variety and excellence is offered at Proctor's playhouse this week. The Golf Girls, headed by Sam J. Curtis, is of unusual excellence, and a big time act of quality. Carlyle and Midgely, Gilson and Denotte, and the Wallen-Leech Trio are of high-class calibre, and the feature photoplay, "The Family Stain," is a masterpiece.

The last half of the week will bring another attractive program, including the "Black and White Revue," with seven people, introducing comedy, music and song. There will also be the singing and dancing skit, Ryan and Bernard, and the colored entertainers, Jennings and Evers, a sure-fire comedy act.

"The German Side of the War" will be the film feature, and it is one of the greatest and most popular film attractions presented in New York city. It is the only authentic feature showing the German side of the war, with pictures taken on the German battlefields by the Chicago Tribune staff photographer. The famous goose step of the German soldiers, the Kaiser and all his generals, the taking of Russian positions, the trenches, the bursting shells, the big guns, and the remarkable German army in action will be shown in these wonderful pictures.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Bob Fitzsimmons has been arrested for fighting in Newark. They may make a charge like that stick against an old timer like Bob, but could never prove it on any of those who make a living in the padded arena these days.

Coach Glenn Warner has begun to put the University of Pittsburg on the football map, which means to gain recognition for that distinguished seat of learning. While Pittsburg has more than 4,000 students and is one of the oldest institutions in the country it is hardly known outside its immediate territory. This is due to the fact that it has been wasting its money on instructors and not spending it for football coaching. Within a few years Pittsburg will be classed as one of the "big colleges" of the country—if they let Warner have his way.

They are fixing to make an announcer's job at a prize fight the most difficult task in the world, not forgetting that there will be need of umpires in Carranza's Mexican baseball league. A movement now on in New York would force fighters to use their real names. Those that think the European war is horrible because of the unpronounceable names it has brought are to suffer a rude shock when they tackle some of the handles that our American sport kings carry around. Imagine a crowd of U. S. citizens paying good money to see Kid Nunzziatti dance ten rounds with Young Luriehofsky for the championship of the world—and we left off the first names. They can't get away with it.

It is said that Jess Willard is to get $32,500 for a bout in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras, and nobody knows yet who he is going to fight. New Orleans always did go crazy during Mardi Gras. It's a sort of a spring Hallowe'en.

Walter Camp explains Harvard's victory over Princeton last Saturday by saying that there were holes in the Tiger line. Sure! We saw Mahan put them there.

With a defeat over Harvard to her credit Cornell looms up just now as the bright star of college football. Although she does not boast of as many individual stars as the Tigers or the Crimson eleven, her men have played better football, and have shown a more powerful attack in the earlier games. However, the Harvard offensive was better developed against Princeton than in any previous game. While this is but natural, the improvement was beyond any ordinary effect of normal progression. It was the work of Percy Haughton. There is little consolation in such honors for Cornell, however. Were Harvard and Princeton to battle over again it would be a game man who waged more than a week's salary on the boys who copped last Saturday. Fortune might favor Glick instead of Mahan if the game were to be played again, or theTiger crew might be persuaded to adopt more of the ideas of the little wonder worker, Rush, and triumph over Haughton's established system of winning. But a man who is content to figure the thing out on paper and let it go as it stands there can call Cornell the 1915 champions and no one can prove him wrong.

We were with Ban Johnson, Garry Hermann and others when they announced a few weeks ago that post-season baseball games were foolish and harmful and set their big feet down on "barnstorming" on the part of major leaguers. Cannot somebody assume authority to put an end to "all-star" football games. A bunch of young men two or three years out of college, and so far away from condition that they will never get back, who don football togs and pummel each other over the field, or who battle against a school team properly cared for by a coach and trainer, are fit subjects for Mattewan, and somebody ought to look out for them. We are not sure where the authority lies, but it is a case for the S. P. C. A. or a lunacy commission.

CLAUDE ENNIS HEADS TUSCARORA CANOE CLUB

At a meeting of the Tuscarora Canoe Club, held yesterday afternoon, Claude Ennis was elected captain of the racing crew. Ennis succeeds William H. Schooley, the captain for the last season.

The new leader paddled in the doubles with Franklin Olds and was also a member of the club four which, with Schooley, Burt and Kiefer, made such a fine showing last year.

Ennis will captain the crew that will have to defend the three championships which were won last year, namely, the Atlantic coast, State and city titles.

RUTGERS TO MEET ALL-STARS SATURDAY

Hamilton Fish Has a Great Lineup for Exhibition Game.

Hamilton Fish, Harvard's one-time captain and All America tackle, was the busiest man on the side lines at the Harvard-Princeton game on Saturday rounding up players for his all star eleven, which will meet Foster Sanford's Rutgers University team at the Polo Ground next Saturday. While the Crimson undergraduates were doing their snake dance after the victory Mr. Fish announced that he had corralled about fifteen Yale, Princeton and Harvard veterans from which he said he expected to pick a team that would beat Rutgers worse than his all star team had beaten the Carlisle Indians in the Harvard Stadium last fall in a game for charity.

Among the men Mr. Fish expects to have in his lineup are: Charles Brickley, famous drop kicker, "Hobey" Baker, Princeton's brilliant open field runner and one-time captain; "Tacks" Hardwick, last year's All America end from Harvard; Crawford Blagden, formerly Harvard tackle; "Vic" Kennard, Harvard full back, whose drop kick beat Yale one year, and several Yale stars, including "Steve" Philbin, halfback; "Art" Howe, quarterback, and John Kilpatrick, who is rated with Hinkey and Shevlin as the best ends that ever represented Old Eli.

FEDS MEET TODAY TO DISCUSS PEACE

Owners Show Confidence as They Gather for Winter Confab.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 9.—The magnates of the Federal League met here today to repair its fences and lay plans for its future. Although the death of Robert S. Ward has removed one of the strongest supports of the "outlaw" organization, the band of moguls appeared confident as they gathered.

While nothing is given out as to just what the Federals will do in the immediate future, it is assumed that they will decide to carry through their original plans, with slight settlements here and there. The report that the league will reduce to six clubs is not credited by baseball men. Although the Baltimore, Kansas City and Buffalo clubs had hard sledding in their finances last year, it is not believed any of them will be dropped, say one, in event the deal to put a club into New York city goes through.

The baseball war is now altogether beneath the surface, and there is less of that bitter open controversy between the rival factions. Whatever is going on, it is believed that a climax will be reached this winter, with an excellent possibility of peace. It is said that the main stumbling block to a peaceful arrangement which big Indian will make some sort of truce is the person of Ban Johnson, president of the American League. Ban has persisted in saying that the Federals were "all in."

PLAINFIELDER IN CHAMP TEAM

A banquet will be tendered the baseball players of the Greystone church, of Elizabeth, Thursday evening. On this evening Mahlon Morey will present to the Greystone team a silver cup, which they won as champions of the Sunday-school League, of Elizabeth. The league started with twelve teams and ended with nine teams, three dropping out. Bert Trotter, of this city, played second base on the Greystone team and was considered the best second baseman in the league.

Newark bowlers got a severe setback when they dropped three games in a row in an Elks' League match at New Brunswick last night. Connie Mack Has Large Collection.

In one of the Athletics' closing games the newspaper men took a census of Connie Mack's stock on hand. It developed that there were on the field or on the bench four catchers, seventeen pitchers, ten infielders and six outfielders. Mack was asked to name them, but said he could not without referring to the club's books. He wanted it understood, however, that he expects to win the American league pennant in 1917.

FRANK MORAN HAS HAD A HARD ROAD

Many Obstacles Confronted the Pittsburgh Heavyweight.

WILL BOX JESS WILLARD.

Heavyweight Champion to Give Moran a Crack at the Title—The Latter's Defeat of Coffey Recently Sent His Stock Skyward.

When Frank Moran knocked out Jim Coffey in the third round of their scheduled ten round contest in New York recently he finally reached the top of the heavyweight division after years of hard struggling. The only thing that stands between Moran and the heavyweight championship of the world is Jess Willard, the champion, and this is indeed some barrier.

During his career in the fight game Frank has had knocks galore. He was never looked upon as a great fighter—only a mediocre performer and a good trial horse for the promising heavies. Frank took all the rebuffs and kept plugging away, and finally the blond fighter from Pittsburgh toppled over the hope of the Irish race with a smashing wallop to the point of the jaw. Now he stands as the foremost rival of Jess Willard.

It is likely that the big champion will soon box Moran, for the latter is now the leading heavy. Recently Jess announced his intention of going home to Los Angeles for a rest. He has been on the go for nearly a year now and thinks he is certainly entitled to a short vacation. He trained for months for the Johnson fight, even before it was assured, and since dethroning the big black he has been active every day in vaudeville and circus work.

Willard has accumulated riches by his show performances and doesn't really have to fight again, but the big, smiling cowboy says he loves the game and is ready to fight as hard now as he was before he became champion and had to worry about his meals.

Jess' syndicate of managers announced recently that the big westerner would be ready to defend his title in February. Moran and Coffey were then matched for a ten round gallop in New York, the winner to meet the champion.

This was Moran's first fight in this country for nearly two years. He had just returned from Europe, where he knocked out several heavies and lost to Jack Johnson, April a year ago, in a twenty round scrap for the title of Paris.

Moran trained diligently for the Coffey fight and was chockful of confidence in his ability to knock out Jim. Very few fans took Frank seriously in this declaration and bet their money on Jim, who on dope should have beaten Moran, but dope in the boxing game is as far off as in other sports, and Moran gave this a kicking by stepping in and finishing the big fair skin ned Roscommon giant.

Moran is one of the gamest heavies in the business and deserves all the credit in the world for spirit in overcoming all obstacles and rising to the occasion when he got his chance. When Luther McCarty was at the height of his career Moran was [illegible] a match with the cowboy in New York.

While training for the bill Moran broke his hand, and in order that the fans and promoters wouldn't be disappointed and call him a quitter Moran went on with the bout and just before entering the ring learned that McCarty's managers took up all the money in the [illegible] and that he wouldn't be able to [illegible] for his services. But Moran [illegible] consent to fight and went out with his injured hand and box [illegible] American champion as McCarty was then known.

FOREIGN PLAYER FIRST IN TENNIS

Miss Molla Bjurstedt.

For the first time since women were ranked as tennis players a foreigner will be named as the first woman tennis player in the United States. Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the sensational Norwegian, holder of the national indoor and outdoor titles and winner of half a dozen state and sectional championships, will hold first place.

PROPOSED GOLF TOURNAMENT FOR BALL PLAYERS WOULD HAVE NOVEL FEATURES

Jack Knight, the long-legged and hard-hitting manager of the Cleveland A. A. team, has recently proposed to athletic friends that there be a golf tournament for ball players each fall. The idea was so eagerly considered by all approached by Mr. Knight that he has determined to take the thing farther and perhaps carry it through.

Mr. Knight himself is a very tolerable golfer. It may be that in forwarding this idea he has been nursing the hope of becoming the world's foremost ball player-golfer. However that may be it is sure that he will have real competition. Ty Cobb, Terry Turner, Chief Bender, Christy Mathewson and others well known on the diamond are gifted with the brassie, too, and most always manage to break the nineties on a course.

There is something like a hundred ball players in the big leagues, and perhaps more in the minors, who would be interested in having part in such an affair. Probably in exciting moments of play they would feel the lack of an umpire handy to curse, though this could be remedied somehow if it would help their game. A player might occasion great mirth from the gallery if after driving off in good shape he should run in all haste to the next hole, sliding in on the green. These little things, however, would only enliven the sport and give the game an added interest. It isn't unlikely that if Mr. Knight's idea is carried out we will have an event that will compete with the world's series in the fall.

NATIONAL HORSE SHOW.

New York to Hold Big Annual Event This Month.

Premiums amounting to $30,000 have been announced by the National Horse Show association for its thirtieth annual exhibition, beginning on Nov. 6 in New York.

Prize lists for 116 competitions were issued to 5,000 owners of show horses throughout the United States. The number of classes to be judged is larger than the last exhibition and with one exception the largest since the first horse show in 1883.

This result is due to doubling the number of saddle classes, the new departure of separate competitions for long tailed horses of the thoroughbred type and docked horses of the New York riding school type. This innovation promises to be one of the features of the show.

A number of special prizes have been added to the list. For the first time a woman has been invited to become one of the judges. She is Lady Peck, Canadian director of the International Horse Show association, an Englishwoman who rode her own hunter in the last show.

Ice Racing In Canada.

The Hull Driving club will hold its annual ice racing program on the Ottawa river, Canada, starting Jan. 27, 1916. A total of $23,000 will be given in prizes. The feature race will be the Hull City $5,000 purse for pacers eligible in the 2:13 class. It will be decided Jan. 27.

Possibilities of the Lateral Pass.

The possibilities of the lateral pass may be almost unlimited, as set forth, but the same thing was said in behalf of the forward pass for several seasons after its introduction. It, too, may have its possibilities, but they aren't being developed very extensively.

Temperance
NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by
THE W. C. T. U.

Excerpts from Address of Anna A. Gordon, President National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at Seattle, Washington.

Beloved Comrades and Friends:

In the forward march of our world-wide temperance reform, the year 1915 will shine out as one of unparalleled advancement—a year whose progress presages the speedy downfall of the legalized liquor traffic.

Looking backward over the past twenty months and forward to the year 1916 one might epitomize the temperance movement in retrospect and prospect as "a movement of victorious yesterdays and confident tomorrows." These months chronicle an unprecedented number of prohibition victories. The temperance transformation of Russia; the anti-liquor measures in effect in German, French and English military circles; the complete abolition of alcohol in the United States Navy and in the Panama Canal Zone; the outlawing of the liquor traffic in Virginia, Colorado, Oregon, Washington, Arizona, Arkansas, Idaho, Iowa, Alabama and South Carolina; the majority vote for State-wide prohibition in both branches of Utah's legislature; the triumph of the enemies of the saloon in a large number of counties and cities; the upholding by the United States Supreme Court of the constitutionality of the prohibition provision of the Indian treaties—making one-fifth of Minnesota dry; the victorious prohibition elections in forty-five of Minnesota's counties; the battle royal for prohibition in the District of Columbia; the total abstinence rules enforced by many industrial and railroad corporations; the decrease at the rate of $1,250,000 a month of the internal revenue collections on distilled spirits despite the fact that wines are paying a high tax as a result of the emergency war tax law enacted by the last Congress; the enactment in prohibition States of stricter enforcement laws; the discussion of total abstinence and prohibition by press and popular magazines, and the marked decrease of their liquor advertising; the growth of anti-alcohol sentiment in the medical world—these, with the endorsement of National Constitutional Prohibition by hundreds of influential organizations and the outspoken declarations of men prominent in the official and political life of the United States and other nations in favor of prohibition and total abstinence, have given a marvelous impetus to the movement for the banishment of John Barleycorn from the business, the social, and the political life of the civilized world. The majority vote on the Sheppard-Hobson bill in the United States House of Representatives on December 22, 1914, even though it fell short of a decisive victory, was a triumph for nation-wide prohibition.

The spirit of humanity, of brotherhood, of co-operation, is rapidly, developing, and its mighty, mutual benefit is becoming better understood. Rejoicingly and reverently we catch President Wilson's vision of the patriots of our republic, fused, melted, welded, into one great pulsating heart, "the heart of America that shall interpret the heart of the world." Let each temperance patriot wear in his heart the flag of our country. Let each patriotic heart be linked to God by cables of faith and prayer. So shall we speedily win our fight for a sober nation, and the purified heart of America shall worthily interpret the heart of the world.

An Inclusive Temperance Organization.

The National Abstainers' Union is a new temperance society, offspring of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America—a federation which represents thirty denominations and seventeen and one-half million church members. The N. A. U. is the result of two great mass meetings held in New York and Philadelphia, addressed by William Jennings Bryan. It is non-sectarian and non-political. A committee of one hundred leaders in the industrial, financial and labor worlds, will appoint an executive committee to carry on the work. An advisory committee includes nine United States Senators, twenty-one members of Congress, ten Governors, church dignitaries and leaders of national temperance organizations. The founders of the National Abstainers' Union characterize it as a movement "to improve the public health, safeguard the home and ennoble humanity." A fund of $1,000,000 is to be used the first year in a nation-wide educational campaign which will bring to the people the latest scientific data of temperance research, and in urging personal abstinence.

Liquor to Blame.

"During my service on the bench," said Judge Gemmil of the Municipal Court at a meeting of the Chicago Dry Federation, "I have tried 50,000 persons for committing various crimes—crimes committed because liquor had robbed their perpetrators of their moral backbone. The saloon is an outlaw, for it robs men and women of every good thing in life."

NATIONAL GUARD ASS'N MEETS IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—The annual convention of the National Guard Association of the United States opened here this morning, and this meeting promises to be the most important in the history of the organization. The association has been for many years the strongest factor in promoting the interests of the organized militia and securing federal legislation and appropriations for the State troops. The principal officers in the National Guard of the various States have gathered here today to consider what shall be their attitude toward the plans of the federal administration to organize a new civilian army. Many of the foremost military authorities of the country believe the American system of State militia is fundamentally wrong and that no adequate reserve can be created upon the basis of utilizing the National Guard of the several States. The widely differing laws of the various States governing the military forces, the faulty methods of selecting officers which now prevails in many instances, the varying appropriations of the various States, all tend to interfere with the carrying out of any comprehensive scheme of providing a uniform force that can be relied upon in case of emergency, is claimed. On the other hand, the leaders in the existing National Guard believe that next to a strong standing army, the creation of a strong reserve army through the medium of the organized militia is the best and most practical answer to the problem. It is maintained by the officials here today that with the greater financial assistance from the federal government and under the operation of the pending militia pay bill the National Guard can be brought to a satisfactory strength and standard of efficiency even in those States which have made little progress.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

An announcement that is certain to make a strong appeal to music lovers is that the Aborn Opera Company will present its mammoth spectacular revival of "The Bohemian Girl," at the Plainfield Theatre on Wednesday, matinee and night, November 10. With the old version of Balfe's masterpiece many are familiar, but as it was revived several seasons ago and is now being presented by the Aborns, it is a vastly different and greatly improved presentation of the grand old opera. Those tuneful ballads, "The Heart Bowed Down," "Then You'll Remember Me," "Bliss Forever Past," "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," continue to charm as they have throughout the more than seventy years since they were first given to the public. From the musical standpoint Balfe's work has not been changed, but otherwise it is entirely new. Some idea, it is said, of the length to which the Aborns have gone in their elaboration of this favorite opera may be had when it is explained that to it they have given a scenic investiture comprising six massive and beautiful scenes among which are Count Arnheim's chateau in the mountains, a gypsy camp, and the marble halls, each a gem of the scene painters' art.

The new vaudeville bill which came to the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and which remains only until tonight, because of the "Bohemian Girl" performances tomorrow, is positively the best Manager Shannon has yet presented at the cosy Second street playhouse. It is made up of six numbers, three of which are absolute headliners, although the preference is given to Ned Wayborne's "Hotel Lassies," a musical production with ten people, all clever singers and dancers. Anyone who has ever seen a New Wayborne number knows that anything he lends his name to is bound to be a crackerjack.

A second big feature on the bill is the electrical wonder, "Lareine," and a supporting company of eight people. This is an act absolutely new and novel and took yesterday's audience by storm. In the course of the number "Lareine" introduces "Beauty," the smallest pony in the world and a positive delight to the children. Charles Russell and Company present a comedy sketch that is a sure cure for the blues entitled, "Going, Going, Gone." The bill is rounded out by the "Sterlings," high class expert roller skating artists; Beth Lewis, singing comedian, and Louis Granat, the human parrot.

The third installment of the greatest comedy photo film ever produced, "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," will be shown Thursday afternoon and night, at which time there will also be a complete change of vaudeville. The Plainfield Theatre's "Country Store," which has become the talk of the town, is held every Friday night. Many valuable presents are given away and incidents occur during the giving that keep the audience in roars of laughter.

ALL WITH WILSON.

Whether President Wilson is right or wrong in his latest note to Great Britain, signed by Secretary Lansing and protesting against alleged infractions of the international laws protecting neutral shipping, he has the knowledge that American newspapers, and therefore the American people, stand squarely back of him in any development that might arise as a result of England's acceptance or rejection of the administration position.

Never has there been such a wholesale commendation of a public yet. Editors in all parts of the country, irrespective of party politics, have expressed their opinion of the official communication in such language as "an able legal document," "reflects American sentiment," "dignified and forceful," "insisting on established rights," "exposes pretense and hypocrisy," "most effective answer," and "so clearly put that it can be arbitrated."

An optimistic note of impersonality has been noted by all who carefully analyzed the note. They term it an expression from a nation that speaks as the champion of all countries not involved in war, and pronounce it in entire accordance with the best traditions of American diplomacy.

That the note must be backed up without delay is the opinion of a great majority of the editors who have commented upon it, and it is in this that they assure President Wilson of the support of the nation. One paper, and a journal that has supported the Republican party during its lifetime, says, "to submit to further delay would be futile, weak and belie the terms of the note. * * * It is time to end England's piratical course, and the President will find the country back of him in this as he had it back of him in his controversy with Germany."

Others urge that Mr. Wilson hold England to a "strict accountability" for her violations of the rights of neutral shippers and force her to "alter her high-handed course."

The only strain of pessimism that runs through all the comment is a paragraph from a Pittsburgh paper, which reads, "Nevertheless, when you get through with it, there still remains the old question, 'What is our government going to do about it?'"

Well, if Bryan hadn't howled everyone would have thought him dead.

HELP THE Y. M. C. A.

Workers for the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will this week begin a campaign for new members. It is not necessary to point out the many virtues of the cause or to recount the many glorious victories of the association in the past, but there are many who will concede that they should be a member and yet want to put off joining until spring, or summer or some other time. Now is the time to join. The Y. M. C. A. wants to help you, and you will benefit yourself, young man, far more than any association or set of men, when you enroll on its membership list. A number of the hardest workers in Plainfield are giving their time to the campaign and this means personal sacrifices for many of them. Do not keep them away from their business any longer than is necessary to enroll your name; if you are not already a member, and if you are, help them secure the signature of a friend that should join.

If the Suffs follow the lead of European nations they can still send out reports of occasional victories along with stories of strategical retreats and soon everybody will be wondering who won.

King George has already fallen from his horse, and we know another ruler over there who is riding a high one very unsteadily.

Kitchener is going to Serbia. He is just the type of old-fashioned soldier to want to lead his troops.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—The 355th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor opened here yesterday, with President Samuel Gompers in the chair. All sections of the country are represented, and all the organized trades have sent their duly elected representatives. Canada is also represented, and the English unions have sent two delegates.

Labor legislation that will be presented to the new Congress next month will be discussed by the leaders of the Federation. The main issues to be fought for are industrial education, vocational training and the conservation of human life.

The labor troubles brought on or attempted by the propoganda of foreign agents in the United States will be threshed out, it is expected by many delegates, and it is hoped that President Gompers will expose the inside story of these plots. The attempt to inveigle American labor leaders into various movements to interfere with the manufacture and shipment of ammunition and arms was throughly probed, and the delegates are hoping for full expose.

One of the first issues to come before the convention is the protest against the seating of delegates from religious bodies. This protest was begun by the Milwaukee Building Trades Council, not in opposition to religion, but on the ground that "denominational churches have not lived up to trade union principles and have not and cannot cope with the causes that have and are at work to impoverish the working people"

It is pointed out in the protest against the religious delegates that the fundamental principle of the Federation is to organize and unite the workers irrespective of their creed, color, nationality or politics, and points out that the introduction of religious questions must lead to disruption.

The Milwaukee Building Trades Council declares that the Sacred Heart Sanitarium, and the Knights of Columbus Clubhouse are being erected in that city under non-union conditions, and that the labor men could not induce the religious bodies to have the buildings erected by union labor. The supposed cooperation between churches and unionism, to bring about a more just civilization, is "nothing but hypocrisy", says the Milwaukee Council.

TRIAL OF GUNMEN.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 9.—The trial of Walter Noonan and William Husbands, charged with robbing officials of the American Tar and Turpentine Factory of $600 at the point of revolvers, is set for today. After the specatcular hold-up, in which masks were worn and guns flourished, Husbands attempted to make his get-away in an automobile but was caught when the chauffeur bravely drove his machine into a canal. Noonan was caught a few days later.

Hope Springzyturnal

I had an awful night, but it is morn,
And Hope stands up and begs to be reborn.
Last week my business brought me only fret—
The morning mail's not been delivered yet!

It may contain an order that will give Me not alone a chance to work and live,
But to put by some for a rainy day,
I don't expect it, but, you know, it MAY!

And when the mail's been laid upon my desk
With its assortment, cheeky and grotesque,
Of begging schemes such as no man may heed,
I find not that which I so sorely need.

I will not yet despair—you bet I won't!
People who have good gumption always don't.
Because it hasn't come, must I bewail?
Great Cæsar, no! There'll be another mail.

Cows

Cows are what supply the basis of the milkman's justly-celebrated product.

After the rippling rill or the pump have put on the finishing touches, the wagon starts.

Nearly every dairy has a cow or so displayed prominently in the pasture nearest the public road.

This is the sign of a dairy, just as a pole of varied spiral colors is the sign of a barber shop.

Barbers used to bleed people, and cows used to be depended on to supply milk.

Some dairymen cling to that old-fashioned and antiquated habit.

Any dairyman who gets sore about this is a nice dairyman, and we didn't mean him at all.

So why should he stop his subscription and cuss the editor out?

When one approaches a cow for one purpose or an udder, said cow is requested (at least she used to be) to "back her leg."

This is figurative. The cow is really expected to go away with three of her legs, leaving the off hind one where it was.

Then the squirtfest begins.

We well remember when we were as nearly an innocent child as we ever were, that we used to get much pleasure out of milking.

Far more out of it, than in it.

We remember, with tears in our beautiful eyes, an old seersucker-colored cat who would rear up on his hind legs, or hind up on his rear legs, whichever way you prefer to have it said, and open his mouth while we milked large, warm, juicy, creamy streams into said orifice.

This feline target practice was sometimes interrupted by our male parent with a large and macadamized barrel stave.

Country life is one of unalloyed joy.

It is nice to look back at it and to know that it will stay back there and won't backfire on us, or respond to any of our fool encores.

Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

How One Man Conquered His Rheumatism

HE WAS sixty-two years old, a prosperous merchant, but sadly crippled with what was called "chronic rheumatism." All the home doctors and all the best men for miles around had tried their hand. He had tried endless remedies to no effect. His bank account was the worse for many a trip to the noted mineral springs and health resorts; yet the "rheumatiz" stuck, and he became a pessimist and smoked horrible nine-inch stogies.

Then one day he had one of those accidents that people facetiously call lucky. He had an automobile accident, and in it broke a tooth. Otherwise the casualties were trifling.

The dentist strove valiantly to save that broken tooth. Unfortunately, however, it wasn't a very good tooth to begin with; it had a little abscess at the root, the dentist found. After some hesitation the dentist decided to draw that tooth.

He did. He cleaned out the abscess cavity and finally discharged the patient cured.

Cured?

Surely!

Within two months every vestige of the patient's rheumatism had disappeared. He was the spryest young fellow in the boot and shoe trade. The sad part of it is that he didn't happen to be trying anybody's rheumatism treatment at the time.

What accounts for the cure?

The accident uncovered a septic focus—the root abscess—and when that was cleaned up there was no more poisoning of really good blood with streptococci and other noxious cocci. Nature did the rest.

Don't steer your automobile into a lamppost. It might not work so well in your case. An easier way would be to have your jaws Röentgenographed, and, if any foci appear in the X-ray negative, have them cleaned up forthwith—it would do your rheumatism as much good as an accident.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Manipulation

Do you think treatment by an osteopathic physician would be of any avail for my headaches? asks Mrs. R. L. W.

Answer—Not if the headaches happen to be caused by adenoids or uræmia or a brain tumor. However, if the physician can diagnose your condition accurately perhaps he could relieve you. Obviously a condition with so many different possible causes is not amenable to any one treatment.

When Arsenic Is Medicine

I am twenty-two, thin, scrawny, anemic, finicky appetite and frequently a victim of the thing you call coryza, although much in the open air. An old doctor advises me to take two drops of Fowler's solution of arsenic in water after each meal. Is it a safe venture?

Answer—It is safe and, we think, good.

ANCESTORS

ANCESTORS are found along with old furniture and captive skeletons in all of our best regulated families. Ancestors consist of forefathers and foremothers, to say nothing of foreuncles and aunts, who have done something grand or noble, like being beheaded by a king or having a relative who was governor of a colony. This enables them to be pointed at with pride by their descendants forever more.

Being an ancestor is one of the easiest and most attractive of jobs. It merely consists of being boosted by one's descendants. Thus, many ancestors have been enabled to make good after they are dead. More than one ancestor who has gone out of this life a poor person, and only a few jumps ahead of the sheriff, has had the good fortune, a century later, to become the ancestor of some ambitious family with plenty of money, and has become so famous in consequence that his tombstone has had to be greatly enlarged and improved.

Ancestors are one of the most valuable and satisfactory of possessions. They are non-taxable and cannot be stolen. Their upkeep is practically nothing, and they do not deteriorate with age or neglect. In fact, they increase in value as they grow older. An ancestor 600 years old is worth a whole mass meeting of fifty-year-old ancestors. Adam is the oldest ancestor. He is 6,000 years old, and had a fine record. But he is a common possession, like education and liberty, so he is not valued very highly.

Almost all rich people own and operate ancestors. But the poorest man may have them, too. Many a man who hasn't two vests to his name, and cannot hold a job two minutes, has ancestors which are the envy of his automobilious neighbors. We cannot buy ancestors, if we do not have them, but we can buy them for our children by marrying discreetly. A full set of fine imported ancestors can now be purchased for a million dollars. The great trouble with these imported goods is the fact that they are often badly infested with descendants. Some of the very finest ancestors have been almost ruined by these parasites and there is no legal cure.

A full set of ancestors can now be purchased for a million dollars

In England, everybody has ancestors. Some of them are over 1,000 years old, and are still in a state of excellent preservation. The best American brand came over in the Mayflower about 300 years ago. Most of the better grades of American ancestors are now controlled by a trust, the Daughters of the Revolution.

We should all be proud of our ancestors, but not out loud.

Comic Relief In Belgium

THERE have been sorrow and misery enough in Belgium, and undoubtedly there still are. Yet a traveler who has recently returned from the captive nation is able to say: "Belgium is so little conquered in spirit that it is kept from instant revolt only by the hope that the Allies will soon drive the Germans out." And he records such a glimpse of the temper of the people as this:

I saw a street-vender selling little buttons bearing the portraits of the King and Queen of Belgium, and, while this would not have struck me as noteworthy in Brussels, where nearly the whole population flaunts its loyalty by wearing the portraits of Albert and Elizabeth, it was another matter in Liège. The iron hand is much more prominent there. So I asked the vender if he was not afraid of offending the Germans. He was only a street-vender, but he rose to the situation. Stepping back and placing his hand on his heart with perfect dignity, he replied without a trace of heroics, "We are always Belgians."

Needless to say, where there is such a sentiment thrilling the hearts of a conquered people, there are sure to be here and there outbreaks of ironic humor and rather bitter satire which, however galling to those in authority, are amusing to outsiders, even to the most neutral. In his article in The Outlook, Arno Dosch, who is quoted above, tells of the outbreaks of the Marollians, natives of a quarter of Brussels that is quite uncontaminated by foreign invasion of any sort and distinctly Flemish. Says the writer:

Their quarter, with its steep, winding, narrow streets, hugs the hill on which the Palais de Justice stands. This impressive building is a barrack now, and shortly after Brussels was occupied two 77-millimeter guns were swung into position near it, commanding the Marollian quarter. As soon as they were placed, from every house in the quarter where there was an extra length of stovepipe a dummy cannon was shoved out of a window.

The soldiers made the Marollians take down the stovepipes, but they could not arrest a quarter of a million people.

Regular patrols were placed in the quarter then, so the half-grown Marollian boys organized to patrol the streets also. Sticking carrots through the tops of old derby hats, they contrived fair imitations of the German helmets, and for arms they carried broomsticks, into the ends of which knives had been tied. They patrolled the streets as conscientiously as the Germans, and changed the guard as regularly. Every time the German Governor issued an order the Marollian commander did likewise, and his was pasted up beside the other.

One of the orders issued by the German Governor was hardly more than a piece of advice to the people to go back to what work they could find. It was not unkindly meant. But the Marollians posted an order directing no one to return to work, giving as a reason, "Brussels is temporarily closed for purposes of enlargement."

When white paper was pasted over this, a group of Marollians kept staring at it until the German sentry asked them what they were doing.

"We are looking at a map of Germany after the war," one of them coolly replied.—The Literary Digest.

People's Legal Friend

By E. R. BRANSON

When Philanthropy Did Not Pay

Q. A year ago, while visiting my brother, I loaned him a few hundred dollars in his business and, as he was not able to pay it back, we agreed to a partnership in the business. We did not make any written agreement and there was nothing but letter-heads to show the partnership. We became known as M. Brothers. Now I see it does not pay to stay in the business and would like to leave it for my brother as it is without taking anything for myself, and engage in something else. I am afraid, however, that my brother's creditors may attach my other business, as I was a partner. One of the creditors is holding a mortgage signed by both of us. What legal steps can I take to get out of the business?

A. Upon holding yourself out to the world as a partner, you necessarily assumed all the liabilities which the law imposes upon a partner. While it may, under the circumstances, work hardship upon you, the rights of innocent third persons—of customers dealing in good faith with the partnership—must be protected. It would be advisable for you to see your lawyer, and, if necessary, have him institute proceedings in court for the purpose of winding up the partnership. Consult him, at all events, and give him the facts in detail.

Delayed Eggs

Q. I shipped some perishable goods to a merchant in another city. When delivered to the railroad company, they were in good condition. Upon arriving there, they were in a damaged condition. Isn't this negligence on the part of the railroad company?

A. There will be a slight presumption of negligence under such circumstances, but the presumption will be very slight if the goods were of a highly perishable nature.

Forfeited Insurance

Q. In case of a man's death, would a promissory note hold against an insurance policy made out in his wife's name?

A. Ordinarily, no.

Teachers' Compensation

Q. In my state there is a school law which points out certain remedies which may be resorted to by a teacher in recovering compensation for services. Does this mean that the teacher has no right to assert such claim in a court?

A. No, but if the school law points out the remedies the teacher should resort thereto before going into court.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

Pepper Talks

Frankness

Frankness is the art of saying things you honestly think exactly as you think them. To be Frank is to be naturally straightforward.

Look the other fellow in the Eye.

In the same manner as a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, so is Frankness the only right course between all people. Because nothing is wasted. The Frank man is the man best to be trusted.

Look the other fellow in the Eye.

Frankness between Employer and Employee, Frankness between a Man and a Woman, Frankness between yourself and the one who disagrees with you, is the only sensible way.

Look the other fellow in the Eye.

For if you do, he will trust you. And the beginning of mutual respect is trust. No satisfactory result in anything was ever achieved without Frankness.

Look the other fellow in the Eye.

But Frankness is not Impudence, nor is it crude Opinion. It is the face to face openness of Mind and Heart that challenges immediate acceptance of what you have to say as the uncoated Truth.

Look the other fellow in the Eye.

To-day, don't hedge. Stand squarely on your own legs. Be Frank. And you will marvel at the ease with which other people will understand and respect you. Frankness, a very precious possession, is possible to all—save one, the coward. You—start to put Frankness into use. Make it earn its board and lodging. Say out what you have to say—with Frankness.

Look the other fellow in the Eye.

When an automobile joke is sprung by a "vode-villian" it is easy enough to pick out the man in the audience who owns one. He is the man who laughs at the joke.

Interest in an elderly man's death is often superinduced by curiosity as to whether he left a will.

Buck Kilby says he is willing to meet the magazines half way. He is willing to admit Edgar Allan Poe was a drunkard if the magazines will let it go at that.

By asking their mother a man can often learn how old his children really are.

Love's other name is "trouble."

What has become of the old-fashioned bride who had her picture taken with her hand on her husband's shoulder?

We all know how boys get warts on their hands. But how do girls get warts on theirs?

No man is a hero to the family he visits.

If she wears an automobile veil the newspapers are pretty sure to refer to her as a "society woman."

Referring to vote getters, how many does a brass band make for the candidate who pays for it? How many does a window lithograph get?

Somewhere In France

Somewhere in France the fevered day is ending;
Belated wild birds in their homeward flight
Circle and dip, the while, with sweet insistence,
They voice their soft complainings to the night.

Somewhere in France the warm green of her meadows
Gleams red and dank beneath the brooding stars;
But what to her are blossom time and harvest
Whose fields are sown and garnered by red Mars?

Somewhere in France the sodden trenches cover
Dreams of warm vineyards basking in the sun,
Of little children calling through the twilight,
Of love and peace and home when day is done.

Somewhere in France the sullen night is nearing,
Bringing no dreams to those who would forget;
But what are dreams to him who knows no waking,
For whom the sun shall no more rise and set?

DRUMMER BOY CELEBRATES.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Out in Silver Spring, Md., today, the youngest drummer boy in the Union army during the Civil War, is celebrating his 62d birthday. He is Bernard Brady, who enlisted at the age of nine as a drummer with the 58th Pennsylvania Volunteers. Brady cites the records at St. John's rectory at Newark, N. J., where he was born, as to the accuracy of his age. He also shows the record of his service, which began at Portsmouth, Va., when the Pennsylvania regiment reached that town. Brady saw four years of service in the Civil War. He was only thirteen when he returned to find his relatives dead. Then he enlisted again as a drummer boy, and enlisted a third time at Laramie, Wyo. He lost his left foot in a battle with the Indians, and claims he was only twenty when he was discharged for disabilities in 1873.

And Take the Grain From Her.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— The Pet Doves Of St. Mark's Square.

"WHO would like a travel story?" asked daddy of two children climbing on his lap. They clapped their hands, so daddy began:

"Italy has one of the most beautiful cities in all the world"—

"Venice!" cried Jack, who remembered other stories.

"It is built on a lot of little islands that rise out of a wonderfully blue sea, and, instead of streets, waterways connect the islands. Long black boats called gondolas are used to carry little boys and girls about instead of the horses and carriages or trolley cars we have here in America."

"When Marco Polo was a little boy, did he ride in a gondola?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes, indeed! Now, Venice is very old and, being on the sea, has always hundreds of interesting boats, both for trade and fishing, lying at her queer wharves and landing places. This sea nearness made Venice very rich, and wonderful buildings, streets, churches, plazas, bridges and statues beautify the city, but I shall tell you tonight of only one, St. Mark's square.

"On the east side is the old Church of St. Mark's, which is so richly ornamented that it looks like a huge jewel box sitting there. Over its lacy doors stand two splendid huge bronze horses so ancient that the Roman emperor Nero used them to trim his gymnasium. The west side is open and looks out to the beautiful sunsets and dazzling blue sea, but on the north side stands a wonderful old clock tower, and every time the hour comes two bronze giants jump out of the tower and strike the hour on a big bell with great bronze hammers. Opposite are pink and creamy marble art palaces, but the giants and horses are so interesting that every afternoon the square is filled with people to see them and to feed the doves."

"What doves?" cried Jack.

"St. Mark's doves," daddy explained. "Every foot of the great square that people are not standing on is filled with these pretty doves begging for food which the travelers and the children buy. Poor men make a living selling this grain for the pet doves. They are very tame and coo and pose and strut about under people's feet. They will perch on your shoulder, walk down your outheld arm and pick the grains out of your hand, or when a pretty Italian girl hides a grain between her red lips they will perch on her upheld hand and take the grain from her. The doves belong to the city, and no one thinks of harming them. When they are full they fly away to ornament the niches in the front of St. Mark's, where they make their nests, and the people either eat ice cream at little tables in the square or go home in their gondolas."

"Thanks, daddy!" cried the children, with a bedtime hug.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. D. A. LEONARD

A Conspiracy Is Hatched; but It's a Very Benevolent One.

"You've got to help," exclaimed Olive Ellson, bursting into her friend's house one sunny afternoon.

"My valuable assistance is on tap. What must I do?" laughed Nell Norton, looking up from her sewing. She rose and drew up a chair for her friend.

"You must help convert the Sutners from the error of their ways. They are dead wrong in almost every particular, but in spite of their wrongheadedness they are very likeable folks." Olive paused for breath.

"When did you enter the mission field?" laughed Nell Morton.

"When I was too young to know any better, and now I have the habit. Listen to me. This poor little Mrs. Sutner has constituted me her mother confessor, and I am at my wits end sometimes trying to think of what to tell her to do, and she must have help. She is worrying herself into a decline, and she needs all her strength to meet her problems with."

"What are her problems?" asked Nell.

"Well, in the first place they are poor and dreadfully in debt, that is, considering what they have to pay with. The debt is not large in itself, only about three hundred dollars, but that is hard to save on a salary of eighty dollars a month, especially if they have no managing capacity."

"Well, my dear, she has shown great wisdom in putting you in charge of her finances. We all acknowledge you were a born financier." Nell playfully stuck her with her needle. "If that is the worst of their troubles, you will soon have them out of debt and on the high road to prosperity."

"This is no time for levity." Olive shook her finger menacingly at Nell. "I wish finances, or lack of them, was all that was the matter, but, alas, there is deep-seated family trouble."

"And you are mixing in other people's rows? I surely would never have thought that like you, Olive."

"My dear, do not jump at conclusions. This greatness was thrust upon me. The poor little woman broke down one day and sobbed out the whole story. She has no friends here, no one to go to, and it takes a stronger nature than hers to bear slighting treatment from a husband, financial worries, ill health, and loneliness in silence."

"I do not yet see where I come in," interrupted Nell. "I am no good on earth when it comes to giving advice."

"She has had advice enough to drown in. Now I want you to help me put a little cheer into her life. I want you and Jo Parsons to join me in forming a little card club to meet whenever the spirit moves. We will have as jolly times as possible and give her something pleasant to think about all day when she is alone. She is not much of a reader and her mind has got to be turned away from her troubles if she is to keep from a breakdown. Will you do it?"

"Surely! You are always thinking of some new plan to make someone happy. Most people think only of themselves and the immediate clique to which they belong, but you find time for so many outside that little circle, and you think of ways to help them. When shall we begin our little society?"

"Right away. I will invite all of them to our house tonight and you can meet the Sutners. We will have only tea and wafers, for if they entertain they cannot afford anything expensive."

"Good idea," said Nell with approval. "We'll have feast of reason and flow of the soul."

"Good-bye," called Olive as she sped down the walk. "I'll call up, if it works out all right and everybody can come."

RAILWAY DEVELOPERS MEET.

New York, Nov. 9.—The Railway Development Association, composed of railroad officials of the United States and Canada who are engaged in promoting industrial and agricultural growth for their respective managements, opened its semi-annual meeting here today. The convention will extend three days and is the most important in the history of the organization. It has brought together railroad and government officials and business interests to consider the commercial and agricultural activity of the two countries. Bankers and other outside business interests, as well as government officials, are taking part in this meeting, which marks a new epoch in American development work. COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

How to Keep Our City Moving

We must keep moving. A city booms only so long as its manufacturers and merchants keep moving. The wheels of every line of endeavor must be kept turning if the city is going to develop, and what is of deeper concern than the wheels of Plainfield kept turning?

Should every one who has the interest of Plainfield close at heart buy goods from our merchants, the benefits all around can easily be seen. Thousands of dollars that would otherwise go out of the city will be kept circulating here and contribute a big share towards making a bigger and busier Plainfield.

A dollar spent at home will keep that dollar at home and all will share in the profits.

ARGUES FOR BIGGER NAVY

submitted and are first passed upon by the regular naval engineers, it is proposed to submit them, or some of them, to the civilian consulting board for advice and information, and when such advice is received by the naval engineers, and they elect to go further into the suggestions made, then the physical laboratory will be a means by which it may be determined whether or not an invention is a practical one.

"The Naval Consulting Board is, as its name implies, a board of consulting engineers, and not necessarily a board of inventors. They are not expected to originate plans and practices to any greater extent than all of the people of the United States are expected to do so. Their position is identical with that of any other individual in the United States who might have a suggestion to put before the government, the difference being that in the case of the consulting board they may be called upon by the naval engineers to express their opinion, to give advice and perhaps personal assistance, in the development of ideas.

"The members of the Naval Consulting Board are responsible to no one except to the societies which elected them. They are in no way government employees or officers. They receive no compensation from any source, and they pay their own expenses.

Need for Big Laboratory.

"The United States Government has now two large and many smaller experimental stations. The principal one is the Bureau of Standards, at Washington, under the Department of Commerce, where a great deal of scientific work is being done in the nature of research and investigation There is also the Bureau of Mines, where research and experimental work is conducted in metallurgy and chemistry. At various navy yards in the country there are experimental stations, but at no place is there a plant at tidewater where actual physical work may be done in the way of building machines on a large scale for the purpose of demonstrating to the satisfaction of the United States naval officers whether or not an advance may be made in naval practice Such a station is no small affair, for to be of real value it should be so equipped as to reach results expeditiously and thoroughly. In other words, it should do for the government what Edison's laboratory has done for science and what the General Electric Laboratory has done for that company.

"Experimental or development work is necessarily expensive, but our experience in the past would seem to warrant us in believing that it is better to spend money in trying out and perfecting devices for naval service rather than to depend upon the natural course of events, during which developments take place slowly through other sources, and in the end individuals or other nations get the benefits that might accrue to this government. We have only to cite two recent cases of importance—the submarine and the aeroplane—to realize that the American navy would have been far more advanced had the government taken up through its own physical station the early inventions of Holland and the Wrights. It is work of this kind that can best be done through a large and well-equipped physical laboratory under the control of the government. The man who has had more experience in this line than any other and has achieved a greater success is undoubtedly Mr. Edison. The proposed plan for this research station is his. His greatest work has been acquired through research and experiment. Before he invented the storage batteries he tried more than ten thousand experiments, always aiming at a certain result, which he finally achieved. The General Electric Company have found it of the utmost value to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars in research work. It has paid to do it, and why should we hesitate to follow the same lines in protecting and strengthening the greatest and richest of nations? The proposed physical research laboratory, even at the maximum figures placed by Mr. Edison—five million dollars—represents only about one-third the cost of a large battleship Is it not best to first make sure that we are building this ship right, and in advance of the practice of other nations, rather than plunge forward at large expense and in the end discover costly mistakes? America has long been the birthplace of the greatest inventions. Let us untilize this creative force in increasing the safety, strength and efficiency of the nation.

We Protect Panama.

"During the construction of the Panama Canal the American Institute of Mining Engineers visited the Isthmus. At the city of Panama we were invited to attend a reception at the palace of President Arosemena, of the Panama Republic While the reception was going on the sound of music was heard in the streets and the President, turning to several of us who were standing by his side, said that he had promised to review the Panamanian troops at 4 o'clock, and would now go out on the balcony for that purpose, asking us to be good enough to excuse him for a few minutes. We requested the privilege of accompanying him which he granted, and were soon standing upon the balcony witnessing the President bowing to a company of seventy-two men in uniform and armed. We asked the President if this was the army of the Panama Republic. He said yes, that they had about sixty more at Colon, 'but,' said he, turning to us, 'this is only our police force; we have no need of an army, for you protect us.' He added, with great earnestness that the situation was a most valuable and satisfactory one to him as President of the Republic in that if anyone should attack them from without, or should a serious disturbance arise within the republic, it was simply necessary to call upon the American troops for safety and protection This,' he said, 'not only insures permanent peace in my country, but it enables me to utilize the money which a standing army would cost for internal improvements such as schools and for many other public benefits.'

Welcome U. S. Aid.

"Similar conditions exist in relation to the Republic of Cuba, and the policy has recently extended to Hayti and to some extent to Nicaragua The only reason why this wholesome influence for peace and protection has not been more general in Central and South America is because of the lack of confidence that exists there in the motives of the American Government. If it were understood and firmly believed that the United States would maintain forever the policy announced by Preident Wilson at Mobile, that no territory would be acquired by conquest, there would follow a natural diposition on the part of these struggling, and oftimes much agitated, republics, to welcome the strong arm of protection which the United States can well afford to give them.

"We owe a duty to the Americas We have undertaken to establish the Monroe Doctrine and to interpret it for their protection as well as our own. In all these years since this Doctrine was announced we have done little or nothing to convice the Latin-American countries that the people of the United States seek their sympathy and co-operation. We have to a certain extent kept aloof from them—not that we desired to dose, but because we have been more or less ignorant of their conditions due mainly to a lack of acquaintapce. There has been no sympathetic relations between the people of the United States and the Latin-American countries. We have been busy with our own affairs and have extended our interest to Europe, while the Europeans have cultivated business relations with Latin-America. In other words, people who speak different languages and are accustomed to different environments must mix and get acquainted before they can inspire confidence in each other. The best way to get acquainted with the Latin-American people is to do business with them, and the first requisite is ships, making frequent and fast sailings, with good passenger service and moderate freight rates. Then follows banking facilities, which have already been partially attained by the establishment of branch banks.

A Valuable Experiment.

"In our efforts to create a merchant marine we might well afford to try the experiment among the Americas, confining our first efforts and bending our best energies there. The people of the United States might acquiesce more readily in an experiment of government ownership of vessels if the trial is made on a moderate scale and on our own continent We might well afford to spend millions of dollars in doing our duty to the Americas, and at the same time building the foundation of personal intercourse, which is sure to follow—and for which venture the time would now seem to be ripe. While Europe is at war the money and the ships from foreign ports cannot be energetically bestowed in Latin-American trade, as has been the practice in the past. Let us take advantage of the opportunity and spend money in this field, which is now open to us, and at the same time we shall gain experience which might fit us to more thoroughly establish a merchant marine. For this purpose the Panama Steamship Line is at our service. Here is an organization owned and controlled by the government, which has had an experience of about ten years, and which in that time has accumulated assets amounting to more than twenty millions of dollars; several ships more are available and more might be obtained. The charter should be either canceled and a new government charter taken out or its privileges enlarged through the legislature which granted it. The line is directed by a board of experienced shipping men, with General Goethals at the head. He, while not a man of marine experience, is nevertheless an executive of the highest order, and his direction would inspire confidence.

To Preserve Peace Always.

"If we are to continue our beneficent policy toward the Latin-American countries we must also recognize the necessity for having a large navy. So long as we maintain armaments for defense, and so long as our motives are not selfish, the navy will act as a police force to aid in inspiring confidence and in enforcing peace These Latin-American countries can ill afford to build up larger navies. It is plain that a navy of moderate proportions is at the mercy of dreadnoughts, and dreadnoughts are so expensive that only the United States on this continent can afford to maintain them. If our policy of protection to Latin-American countries is to be a real one we can find no greater use for a large navy than in extending that protection to our brothers south of us, always with the assurance that the chief object which justifies the expense is the maintenance of peace and for the integrity of all the countries on the American continent."

Lord & Taylor

38th Street FIFTH AVENUE 39th Street

An Impressive Exhibition of

LINENS of ELEGANCE

for Thanksgiving Day Service

A Display That Will Delight Connoisseurs as Well as Women Who Entertain

Lord & Taylor have been famous for a generation, or more, among best-informed New Yorkers, for sumptuous Linens, for trousseaux and feast-days. But there are thousands of women who are going to play the part of hostess to family gatherings on Thanksgiving Day, who have no conception of the superb masterpieces of the loom that our stocks provide for this most important family function of the entire year.

In order to make it possible for lovers of fine linens to see these flaxen wonders to the best advantage, we have prepared

An Exhibition in the Fourth-floor Salon

And we have unfolded the treasures of a wonderful collection and hung them like paintings, so that all their beauties may be easily seen.

Here are the finest pictures in flax that the looms of Europe have produced—to give worthy setting to the elegant china and crystals, with which the turkey and its accessories are to be served—Linens that will give the final distinguishing elegance to the tables that they shall adorn.

A group of native lace workers will be in attendance and you may see some of the artistic handiwork of their deft fingers in the making.

Many of these Linens you would never know as existing, for they are to be found only at Lord & Taylor's.

Rich, lustrous Table Cloths and Napkins, of the finest flax ever spun, in exquisite art patterns. Priced from $28.50 to $132.25.

Magnificent Banquet Cloths, of Italian Filet and rare embroidery. Priced $2750.00 to $4250.00. Superb Luncheon Sets, of embroidery or handmade laces, in Fil Tire, Filet and Venetian Point. Priced $125.00 to $600.00.

Rare Lace embroidered Handkerchiefs; nine examples of antique and modern kerchiefs. Four were made in the early 18th century. The others are later pieces. We placeta valuation on the set of $40,000.00.

Many of these fine pieces are almost priceless; for the war has destroyed the looms that made them and turned to grim coarse work the skilled hands that did the wonderful art needlework upon them.

All marked at the prices that ruled during the fortunate days when we secured them.

You are invited to view and enjoy the exhibition This Week.

U. S. CONSTITUTION DEMANDS THAT PREPAREDNESS POLICY BE CARRIED OUT, SAYS SAUNDERS

Naval Board Member, in Address to Church Club, Declares That Man Has Not Improved One Bit Since Days of Attala, the Hun, Known as the "Scourge of God," and That Every Barbaric Act Recorded in History Has Been Duplicated in Present War.

"There is not a single recorded act of barbarism in history from the time of Attala, the Hun, known as 'The Scourge of God,' that has not been duplicated in the European war—yes, duplicated and intensified," declared the Hon. W. L. Saunders in his address on "Preparedness" before members of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at the dinner of that body held in the church parlors last night.

Mr. Saunders made a strong and eloquent plea for preparedness for peace. In addition to his vast fund of information, which gave him a mastery of his subject, and the timeliness of his address, following so close after the announcement of the administration preparedness policy, his remarks were made more interesting because of his position on the Naval Consulting Board of the United States. He is a member of that body, representing the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and was elected vice-chairman of the board at its organization.

More than fifty members of the Men's Club and of the church attended the dinner of last night. Dr Saunders was introduced by Leslie R Fort, president of the club, who acted as toastmaster.

He first read a story, which he admitted was so old as to be almost new to illustrate the position of the United States should a powerful European country threaten this nation It was the incident of the Irishman who wrote a list of the men he could whip and put Pat's name at the top When Pat heard of it he promptly called on the writer and demanded to know what he meant by writing his name into the list.

"You kaint lick me, and I'll prove it," said Pat, removing his coat and getting ready for action.

"Well, I'll rub out yer name," was the reply.

Mr. Saunders intimated that the United States was going to have to rub out somebody's name, unless it enlarged its army and navy within a very short time.

"While the world has advanced industrially and in civilization there has been little or no change in human nature," was another startling statement of Dr. Saunders. "It is the weakness of human nature that leads to war, and envy, hatred and

BIDS RECEIVED BY EDUCATION BOARD

Local Firm's Bid for School Curtains the Lowest Entered Last Night.

Routine business occupied the major portion of the Board of Education's November meeting held in the Plainfield High School chambers, last night, a volume of reports being presented by the heads of various committees. Considerable time was consumed in discussing details relative to the completion of the new school on Evergreen avenue and the bids for lockers, light fixtures and curtains were received and opened.

The proposal of Laggren & Greene, a local firm, to furnish 233 shades for $411 was the lowest of those received and the contract was accordingly awarded to this company. The lowest bids for furnishing steel lockers for use in the gymnasium and dressing rooms were submitted by the Hart & Hutchinson Company, the Durand Steel Locker Company and the Naragansette Machine Company. Six bids were received for the lighting fixtures, the three lowest being those of Broe & Company, the Lighting Studios Company and the Allen Laing Company. The first two named are New York city firms and the last one is a Plainfield concern The proposals for furnishing lighting fixtures and lockers were referred to the building committe and will be taken under consideration and awarded by that body.

CHURCH WOMEN HOLD AN ALL-DAY SEWING MEETING

An all-day sewing meeting was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. J. M. Whiton, of 821 Central avenue, by the Women's Association of the Congregational church. About twenty-three members were present and the time was spent in preparing a box to be sent to Rev. Mr. Haecker, of Isabel, South Dakota. Luncheon was served and the occasion proved to be extremely pleasant to all.

Besides the members, Rev. and Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich were in the city and were guests at the luncheon.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.

Harry Johnson, of 1220 Watchung avenue, reported to the local police yesterday that a man of suspicious appearance had been hanging around in front of his house. According to Mr. Johnson the same individual passed him on Johnston's Drive, Sunday afternoon, when the local man was out walking with his wife. At that time, Mr. Johnston says, the stranger pulled two revolvers from his pocket.

TAXI STRUCK HACK.

A taxi cab driven by Charles Barry crashed into a horse and hack owned by Peter Seader at the North avenue depot stand at 6:30 o'clock last night. The shafts of Seader's carriage were badly damaged but both drivers escaped uninjured. Patrolman Martin Welsh, who happened on the scene, investigated the accident, but in view of the fact that Seader refused to make a complaint against Barry no arrests followed.

UNITY OF CIVIC BODIES IS URGED

East End Ass'n Names Committee to Co-operate With Similar Organizations.

HOME RULE DISCUSSED

Councilman-elect Sminck and Allen E. Beals Make Interesting Addresses—Mayor Calkins Sends Communication Expressing His Views.

That there should be more of the spirit of unity and more co-operation between the civic societies of Plainfield was the sentiment voiced at a meeting last night of the East End Civic Association. The members declared that it frequently happens that questions arise where it is advisable to act in conjunction with other bodies on civic matters and to get in touch with similar organizations is a long, tedious and cumbersome proceeding. A committee of three was named to meet with similar committees from the West End Association and the Netherwood Residents' Association to form a federated committee through which each society may be able to communicate and act with the others on matters of common interest. The object of this move is not to secure any amalgamation of the societies but to secure united action when required.

NAKED MAN ANNOYS SOMERVILLE WOMEN

Jumped in Front of Them on Road—Gave Chase When They Ran.

Somerville, Nov. 10.—That a nude man has been annoying women in the vicinity of Duke Park became known to county authorities here today and an investigation has been started.

Miss Margaret Fleming, Mrs. Newells and her daughter, Anita, were driving along the road leading to South Somerville last Saturday afternoon and when nearing the second entrance to Duke's Park an Italian appeared in the middle of the road without clothing on. Mrs. Newells attempted to strike the fellow with the buggy whip when passing him.

The man disappeared but was seen again by Miss Fleming near her home after she had left Mrs. Nevells and her daughter.

The Italian was riding a bicycle and was attempting to overtake Miss Fleming. He finally vanished. Miss Fleming and the other women are greatly excited over the incident.

Mrs. R. S. Rowland, of Stelle avenue, returned yesterday from Pittsburgh, where she was called by the death of her father, William N. Frew, a prominent lawyer of that city, who passed away recently. Mr. Frew was born in Pittsburgh, July 10, 1854, and after being graduated from Yale in 1876 was admitted to the bar in 1879 and was a member of the select council of Pittsburgh, 1885-9.

Mr. Frew was also president of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute, and a member of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, Carnegie Corporation of New York, Carnegie Hero Fund and was a member of several clubs in Pittsburgh.

BOSS COMBINE DEFEATS RUNYON

Dalrymple and Baird Combine to Rob Local Man of Speakership.

PILGRIM TO GET PLUM

Essex Man Will Have Plenty of Votes in Republican Caucus — State Treasurership is Much Coveted Plum—Bugbee Urges Harmony.

Because of a combination of Alfred N. Dalrymple, Republican boss of Essex county, and David Baird, who holds the political destinies of Camden county in his right hand, William N. Runyon, of this city, will probably lose the speakership of the next House of Assembly, which convenes in January at Trenton. Although no caucus has been held, it was very evident at Trenton yesterday, when the party moguls, big and little, gathered for a talk, that Judge Runyon was to be refused the honor which has hitherto always gone to the floor leader of the preceding year.

As a result of the combination of the bosses the speakership will go to Charles E. Pilgrim, one of the twelve assemblymen from Essex county, and John Kates, of Camden, will be rewarded for his support of Pilgrim by being made the Republican floor leader.

The big fight of the coming session of the Legislature will be over the appointment of a State treasurer at $6,000 annually for three years. Ex-Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees announced his withdrawal from the contest, and for a time it looked as if State Chairman Newton A. K. Bugbee would have a clear field. He is

INSTRUCTIONS FOR OWNERS OF PLANT

Piscataway Township Committee Considers Complaints of Property Owners.

With a view to putting a stop to the receipt of many complaints from Piscataway township citizens living in the vicinity of the Glaser fertilizer plant near South Plainfield, relative to the odors that issue from the factory, the Piscataway Township Committee met in the Hotel Nelson last night to consider the matter, finally deciding to give Theodore Glaser, the controlling stockholder, thirty days to make certain specific changes in his present methods of the manufacture. H. E. Nelson, the president of the committee, presided at last night's meeting and a full quota of the members, including Frank Faulkes, William Randolph and Assessor George Corriell, were present. The committee also represents the township Board of Health.

In considering the many complaints the committee took up in detail a report submitted by the State Board of Health, dealing with the Glaser factory, and by this means settled on the proposed changes. Mr. Glaser will be instructed to equip his plant with new machinery and to make certain alterations in his buildings.

Dr. W. J. Nelson, of New Market the township physician, attended the meeting and offered his advise on the subject.

The first fall meeting of the Irving-Jefferson Parent-Teacher Association, held in the Irving School yesterday afternoon, was a largely attended session. Mrs. J. A. Babcock, president of the organization, presided at the business meeting, during which ideas, relative to the mutual benefit of the child, were discussed between parents and teachers. A motion was made that the association ask the Board of Education for a room in the school where Miss Mildred Brownlee, who is connected with the recreation work in the city, might teach the children dancing at a nominal charge. Mrs. Babcock and Mrs. C. O. Deakin will represent the association at the Mothers' Congress, which will convene in Trenton for a two-day session, on Friday and Saturday. PARENTS KEEP UP SEARCH FOR GIRL

Rose Schuster's Whereabouts Unknown After Two Months' Hunt.

Although her parents and the police of Westfield have been searching for two months, not the slightest clue to the whereabouts of pretty Rose Schuster, age seventeen, has been revealed. When she disappeared from Westfield on September 4 the local authorities were asked to aid in finding her and Chief Kiely notified all of his men to keep an eye out for the young woman. The mystery surrounding her literal drop from existence is growing deeper and the father, Frank Schuster, has made numerous trips to this city, believing that she might be in the clutches of some evil doers. To a reporter yesterday he said:

"I have done everything in the world to bring my daughter home. I have searched everywhere and unless she returns of her own accord I don't believe we will ever see her again."

Mr. Schuster was asked if he believed any bodily harm had come to his daughter and between sobs replied: "No. I am firmly convinced that my girl is well but where she is I do not know. I have been everywhere where she might go, but they all tell me they have not seen or heard from her. I cannot stand this much longer and Mrs. Schuster is worrying herself sick."

Several days elapsed after the girl's disappearance before the Plainfield police were asked to join in the search. It was explained to them that she was fond of motion pictures and a careful investigation was made to determine whether or not she had joined a movie company. This revealed nothing, however. Another clue sent the police on a wild goose chase to Perth Amboy without results. Mr. Schuster says his daughter was always a home girl. He claims she had no love affair and spent most of her spare time reading. Pictures of the girl have been mailed to the police throughout the East.

HELD UNDER HEAVY BAIL FOR HEARING

Three Prisoners Taken in Disorderly House Raid Sent to County Jail.

Pending trial on charges of a serious nature preferred against them by Captain John J. Flynn, of the local police department, Joseph Lupo, Elizabeth Nugent and Annie Nugent were committed to the Union county jail at Elizabeth today and will be brought back to Plainfield next Saturday morning for a hearing before City Judge William G. De Meza. Arraigned in the city court this morning the prisoners requested a further postponement and the $1,000 bail under which Lupo was held yesterday was raised to $2,000 and the two women were held in bonds of $1,000. No one of the trio has been able to secure the necessary bail.

Lupo is held on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at 128 Liberty street and also on a second account involving Annie Nugent, the girl whom he is alleged to have brought to this city from New Brunswick Elizabeth Nugent, who claims to be the step-mother of the girl, is being held as a material witness.

J. Victor D'Aloia, a Newark lawyer, has been retained by Lupo, and the adjournments yesterday morning and today were granted by Judge De Meza on the strength of the excuse that the attorney had court matters in Essex county which prevented his appearance here. Just what his defense will be is a matter of conjecture at the present time but the local police believe that they have woven a web of evidence that will be sufficient to substantiate their charges. The younger woman is said to have made a "clean breast" of her part in the affair and it is also said that her confession implicates Lupo to an even greater degree than was originally anticipated by the authorities.

PARISH OBSERVES 42D ANNIVERSARY

Special Services Mark Event at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Fanwood.

HISTORY IS REVIEWED

From a Mission Established in 1872 the Church Has Continued to Prosper—Church Was Consecrated Nov. 10, 1907, Free of Debt.

All Saints' Episcopal church, Fanwood, celebrated its forty-second anniversary on Sunday with exercises appropriate to the occasion. The services were in charge of Rev. Oscar Stuart Michael. The services were largely attended by parishioners and friends. Services according to the use of the Episcopal church were begun in the Scotch Plains public school house, now the Baptist parish house, on June 22, 1873, under the spiritual direction of the Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, who was then rector of Grace church, this city, and the Rev. Charles Ward, rector of Holy Cross church, North Plainfield.

For four months various clergymen officiated on Sunday afternoons and there was also a Sunday-school from the beginning. In September, 1872, $200, the proceeds of an entertainment under the auspices of the women of the parish, were deposited as a nucleus of a building fund for a house of worship. On October 31, 1873, preliminary steps, legal and ecclesiastical, to the organization of a mission parish were consummated and seven trustees were duly elected, namely, A. C. Duyckinck, R. B. Duyckinck, Charles Kyte, George Kyte, George Moore, Joseph B. Patterson and William Stanbery.

Rev. John K. Sykes was chosen resident minister in 1874, and he continued his faithful and helpful labors until 1889. During his administration the present attractive stone church costing $10,000 was built by bonds gradually paid off by various accumulations, in which the Ladies' Aid Society had a prominent part. The corner-stone was laid in 1882, the church was finished in 1883 and consecrated on November 10, 1907, in full payment of all debt.

The last $2,000 of indebtedness was raised as a memorial fund and after being offered in payment of the indebtedness was returned to the trustees of the mission by Mrs. D. P. Bell, the holder of the mortgage, who by her munificence herself thus cancelled the indebtedness. Part of this sum was spent in refitting the church and part, to the amount of about $1,200, was invested as a memorial endowment fund, whose interest is to be devoted to repairs on the church.

Rev. William Maxwell Reilly was appointed minister on the resignation of Mr. Sykes and served until 1892. In that year steps were taken to secure full parish organization and the following were elected as the first parish vestry: A. H. Gardiner and Harry P. Robinson; wardens, Paul Puzo, Frank Sykes, T. M. Queresa, Wright Babcock and L. J. Briggs, Jr. In 1893 the Rev. Edward H. Trust was called to be the first rector. He served until 1899 and was followed by the following rectors: Rev. William R. Mulford, 1900; Rev. Edward Sabler, 1910; Rev. B. S. Levering, 1913; Rev. G. H. H. Butler, 1914, and the present rector, Rev. Oscar Stuart Michael.

Confirmation instruction will begin at the church this evening at 8 o'clock.

"EXPERIENCE" TO BE SEEN AT SHUBERT THEATRE IN NEWARK

William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest have made arrangements with Manager Ottolengui, of the Shubert Theatre, New York, for an engagement of George V. Hobart's modern morality play, "Experience," called by the critics, "the most wonderful play in America," for one week, commencing next Monday, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Mr. Hobart spent two years in writing this play but an even greater task confronted the producers. William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, in selecting the players for their various parts. For the character of Love hundreds of girls were interviewed before Miss Nathalie Hope was selected. For Frivolity, Miss Sally McCombs was chosen. Restless Excitement, alluring, charming and dangerous was given Miss Peggy Dean. The serpent tongued Slander was the part selected for Miss Willie De Hon. From over two thousand applicants Miss Marguerite Mac Ree was considered the ideal type of American Beauty. For Fashion, Miss Betty Brewen was considered the exact modish young woman to show the very latest hints in ladies' gowns, hats and apparel. William Elliott will be Youth; Emmett C. King, Experience, and Frazer Coulter, Wealth.

WILL RAISE MONEY FOR PORTABLE HOUSE

Queen of Belgian's Request Meets with Response from Plainfield Women.

The Belgian Relief Committee of Plainfield held its first business meeting of the year yesterday at the home of Mrs. F. W. Wallace, on Hillside avenue.

The meeting was largely attended and was most enthusiastic. The chairman announced that in reply to a telegram to the Queen of Belgium asking what gift from Plainfield would be most acceptable, a cable had been received saying that an immediate need is a portable house large enough to shelter one hundred babies and little children, orphans for whom she is caring. After some discussion it was decided that the energies of the committee be devoted for the next two weeks to raising the money for this shelter, which will cost not more than $1,500, and that the people of Plainfield be urged to contribute as much as possible for the cause. A portable house is needed so that in case of bombardment it may be moved to another place. Ways and means of providing cribs, mattresses and blankets were discussed and various committees were formed. The children are from six weeks to six years old and their parents have been killed or lost in the struggle. Gifts of a dollar will be welcomed by the committee. Anyone who contributes from fifty to a hundred dollars is asked to give the name of a child for whom a bed can be named.

The members will meet Monday, November 22, to announce the results of their two weeks' campaign. The association was formed a little over a year ago in September and it was then hoped that its original fifty members would each contribute one dollar and raise twenty dollars for a fund of about $1,050. When the work was started the papers gave able and active support and contributions came in from all sides. The Comedy Club donated $212.65 gate receipts from two plays given one evening, and an additional $53 was contributed from the sale of candy and flowers. How much more was accomplished is evident from the treasurer's report to date:

The treasurer's report of receipts including interest shows a total of $2,772.49. The total expenditures aggregate $2,704.87 leaving a balance of $67.62. The treasurer was authorized to ask those who contributed since May 9 last if they are willing to have their contributions used for the portable house instead of for condensed milk. If not, the money will be kept towards a fund for a later shipment of milk. The chairman announced that 3,185 garments had been shipped by the committee, 2,678 of which were new, 507 of which were second-hand, but in perfect condition.

The treasurer's report shows that except for one check of $5 no money contributed has been spent for transportation or for any other incidental expenses. Every cent that the people of Plainfield give to the committee will go to the Belgians.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS READY FOR CAMPAIGN

Initial Event Will Be Banquet in Building Tomorrow Night.

Everything is in readiness for the big membership campaign that is to be launched by workers for the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. at a banquet to be held in the association rooms tomorrow night.

Team captains, and they number twenty-four, have gone over the "prospect" lists handed them and they are confident that more than the 800 new members wanted by the association can be secured in a six day campaign. They are spending today getting in touch with those who will work under them on their respective teams, and making of the prospect sheets an individual calling list for each man who is to solicit new members.

"Members and Not Money," is to be the campaign slogan. This means that one member will count one point, no matter whether he is to be classed as a contributing, active or junior member and no matter what the amount of dues he will pay to the association each year. Teams in the campaign are designated by the name of a popular automobile and the campaign will be scored as a big auto race. At the end of the six-day campaign the winning machine or team will be given a handsome souvenir for the victory.

Activity around the Y. M. C. A. building this morning was limited to supervising work on the part of Chairman MacArt, Secretary Estes and others who will superintend the canvassers. Many of the team captains called during the morning for additional instructions as to their work and copies of application blanks, captain's envelopes, and other literature that has been printed for the work.

Mr. MacArt, Mr. Estes and other association officials spent a goodly part of the morning at the station where they met commuters who caught trains for New York. Each man was handed a small booklet that contained "Ten Reasons Why You Should Join the Y. M. C. A." and asked to read it while on the train. It is believed that a perusal of these booklets will prepare the commuters for the campaign so that business men assigned to see them will have an easy time.

Tomorrow's banquet will be the initial event of the campaign and every team captain and member is urged to attend. Final instructions are to be given and several short addresses will be made by prominent local men.

SUFFS WORK TO TAKE CARE OF DEFICIT

Will Hold Sales to Pay for Recent Campaign—Not Discouraged.

No discouragement was evidenced by workers for equal suffrage at the meeting of the Plainfield League held yesterday afternoon in headquarters on Depot street. The women feel that they have been set back a few years but that they will triumph.

"Right cannot be defeated," said one of the leaders in discussing the recent vote in New Jersey, "and we are right."

Plans for the local league have not yet been adopted. Just what is to be done in Plainfield will depend on the decision of the State association which is now engaged in working out a new campaign. Local headquarters is open today, however, and will be open for some time, because there is a deficit in the campaign fund of the Plainfield League and it must be made up by rummage sales and other means. Donations will be received tomorrow for a rummage sale and it is announced that a big sale of cakes, pies and all delicacies for the Thanksgiving turkey dinner will be conducted at headquarters Wednesday, November 24, the day before Thanksgiving.

He Saved the Patent Office.

When in the war of 1812 the British, who had taken Washington, trained their guns upon the patent office Dr. Thornton, throwing himself directly before the guns, cried:

"Are you Englishmen or Goths and Vandals? This is the patent office—a depository of the ingenuity and inventions of the American nation in which the whole civilized world is interested. Would you destroy it? Then let the charge pass through my body."

And the building was spared. Twenty-four years afterward, however, it was destroyed by fire, together with everything in it.

"Saturday night some miscreant lugged off a whole cord of my wood, and somehow I can't forget about it," declared Silas.

"Have you tried to forget it?" inquired his friend.

"Yes. Sunday morning I went to church, hoping I could get it off my mind, and before I had been there five minutes the choir started in singing 'The Lost Chord,' so I got out."—Judge.

"Saturday night some miscreant lugged off a whole cord of my wood, and somehow I can't forget about it," declared Silas.

"Have you tried to forget it?" inquired his friend.

"Yes. Sunday morning I went to church, hoping I could get it off my mind, and before I had been there five minutes the choir started in singing 'The Lost Chord,' so I got out."—Judge.

Explanation.

"Willie, did you tie that tin can to the dog's tail?"

"Yes, sir," replied the small boy. "I'm trying to do a kind act every day. That dog chases every rabbit he sees. I tied the can to him so that it will make a noise and warn the rabbit."—Washington Star.

ELM BEETLE CAUSES THE REMOVAL OF OLD TREES

Under the supervision of the Shade Tree Commission three large trees were removed yesterday from in front of the First Baptist church. These trees, which were planted forty-three years ago, had suffered greatly from the ravages of the elm bettle three years ago, although it was thought that they would be all right when the blight had been arrested, but on close examination it was found that the trunks were so badly decayed that the trees were actually a menace.

They were removed under the supervision of the Shade Tree Commission, the New York Telephone Company and the Public Service Corporation.

DEMANDS PREPAREDNESS

malice exist among nations as they do among individuals," he said, "for nations are but aggregations of individuals."

We Are Not Innocent.

"Patrick Murphy, at the Manhattan Club dinner the other night, said that the catastrophe that occurred in the garden of Eden was due not so much to the lack of preparedness as to the innocence of the victims," said the speaker. "The people of the American continent are too old in experience to claim innocence as an excuse against attack. We may be as harmless as doves and as innocent of offense as a smiling Korean, but unless we are also as wise as serpents we may some day have a rude awakening.

"The American Constitution states that one of the purposes of the Government of the United States is 'to provide for the common defense. Another purpose is 'to promote the general welfare.' It is a trite and oft quoted saying that to be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace. This advice was first given us by Washington in an address to Congress, but the grass had scarcely grown upon Washington's grave before the nation which he did so much to establish found itself humiliated by a British attack on land and sea, resulting in the capture of Washington and the burning of the Capitol in 1814. This was accomplished by a small force of the regular army of the enemy acting against large volunteer regiments of untrained citizens. It is recorded in history that in the War of 1812 we had ten times as many men under arms as the enemy opposing us in the field, yet we were unable to save the Capitol. Military writers generally agree that the loss of life and property, and the long period of time consumed in our Civil War, may be directly traced to the lack of preparedness. Had the United States at the beginning of the war been equipped with an adequate trained force on land and sea the rebellion instead of lasting four years might have been settled in two. Many of us are able to recall what occurred during the Spanish War—how lacking we were in supplies, ammunition and trained men, and how incompetent they proved to be in service. These are but a few examples which have been brought home to us and which follow the course of events that is recorded in the world's history. There is not a single instance on record where a people, however virtuous have been spared by the cruel hand of war.

World Not Changed.

"Before the breaking out of the great war in Europe there were many of us who felt that the world had changed; that war was a relic of barbarism; that christianity, with its beautiful sentiments of brotherly love, would prevail against a conflict; that industrial progress, which had made such remarkable strides in the nineteenth century, had diverted men's minds from military to commercial things, and that so great was the strength and efficiency of modern armaments that destruction would quickly follow an attack by a well-equipped force. We were beginning to believe that international agreements, such as The Hague conferences, treaties and alliances among nations at peace, would safeguard the world against such widespread outbreaks as occurred during the Napoleonic Wars. It is sad but true that in all of this we were mistaken. On this point there can be no dispute, for we are now witnessing the greatest war of all history—great in its volume of conflicting forces and horrible in its wanton destruction of life. There is not a single agreement made at The Hague which has not been broken in the present war. There is not a single precept of so-called international law that has not been superseded by the new law called military necessity. There is scarcely a single recorded act of barbarism in history which has not been followed in this war. Our modern armaments have proved efficient only in that they have increased the number of men required to use and oppose them. Our great progress in industry and wealth has only added to the volume and cost of destruction, and in no sense has it acted as a deterrent to conflict, nor has it had any material effect in shortening the time involved. We have even seen such old devices as Greek fire, hand grenades, helmets and breastplates, spears, and such like used in modern action.

"In shaping our course for the present it would seem clearly to be the part of wisdom to take the world as we find it and endeavor to promote the general welfare by providing for the common defense. We are but living in a fool's paradise, and neglecting our plain duty, if we do otherwise. The fact is, it seems to me, that while the world has advanced industrially and in civilization there has been little or no change in human nature, and it is the weakness of human nature which leads to war. Envy, hatred and malice exist among nations as they do among individuals, for nations are but aggregations of individuals. Lincoln when asked why he did not go to church said that he would do so when everyone would adhere to the gospel 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and all thy soul and thy neighbor as thyself.'

Responsibilities of U. S.

"In dealing with the question of preparedness let us for a moment consider what great responsibilities we bear. If we had nothing of value or importance to protect in our homes we might be careless about locking the front door. As the things under our care are increased in value we naturally increase our protection. It would be the part of wisdom should one of us store gold in his cellar to not alone depend upon the usual precautions but to employ a guard. So it is, or so it should be, in exercising our guardianship of the nation. We have a rich and powerful country—the richest in the world. This is not only as we view it but as the world knows it, hence it is important that so long as there is a single large nation on the globe which maintains armaments we should be prepared through armaments to defend ourselves against attack. This is our first duty, and a duty so plain that it seems strange that anyone should dispute it.

"Our second duty is to our neighbors to the south of us. We have undertaken to establish the Monroe Doctrine, which, if it means anything, it means that no foreign power shall acquire territory on the American continent. If this doctrine should be accepted by all the nations of the world our danger would be very much less than it is, for we should not forget that the Monroe Doctrine is nothing more than a doctrine which has not been agreed to by other nations and which probably never will be. In other words, it must be enforced and established through the strength of our position here. This doctrine is really our greatest protection because a broad interpretation of it means that no foreign power shall be allowed to attack any portion of the American Continent, whether in North or South America. How are we to prevent such an attack except through the force of arms, and here is where the necessity for a strong navy is as apparent as it has been to the English people in the protection of their island possessions and colonies. We should, it seems to me, ultimately acquire as large a navy as Great Britain, and when once so acquired there will be no difficulty about the acceptance of the Monroe Doctrine. As soon as the present war broke out negotiations were conducted by one of the large belligerents looking to the acquisition of one of the Danish islands in the West Indies southeast of Porto Rico, and on a direct line between Europe and the Panama Canal. Had this island been acquired the power at war would have been able to maintain a coaling station for its ships which were marauding the seas and which were only destroyed through lack of a base of operations. We have to the immediate south of us one of the richest countries on the continent—Mexico. During the recent troubles there were times when urgent demands were made by Europeans living in that country that an army be sent to quell the revolution for the welfare and protection of foreigners. Under certain circumstances this proposition might have been carried out, and it is hardly necessary to call attention to the danger that might menace the United States by having a foreign power occupying Mexican soil.

Protect Panama Canal.

"The third reason for preparedness is that we should protect the Panama Canal, Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines and other possessions which have cost millions and in respect to which we have incurred a solemn obligation. In the case of the Philippines, for instance, it is now taking two-thirds of our regular army to police them and enforce our rights there. These islands are near one of the strongest and most powerful nations of the world—a nation which believes in armaments and which seeks to extend its territory because of over-population.

"We also need a strong navy to maintain our commercial rights on the high seas and for the protection of our citizens at home and abroad but a final and important reason for preparedness on sea and land is that the great wealth, influence and power of this nation may be used to enforce peace on the American Continent. By this is meant that this nation should adopt and enforce the principle that peace is to be maintained by force of arms. There have been many unreasonable and immoral reasons for war. What better reason can there be for drawing the sword than that it shall enforce peace. The people of the United States are not in any sense warlike. They are busy in industrial affairs; law abiding educated to an exceptional degree. They do not desire any more territory, being blessed with the richest lands on the globe, but it is hoped that they take a broad humanitarian view of their obligations on the American Continent and that they are willing to spend something of their means, which they have in so great an abundance, in arming a force sufficient to warrant this nation in establishing in the western world the principle that peace must and will be maintained. Let our armaments be the props of peace.

Support Wilson Policy.

"The party in power, through the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of War, and with the support of the President, has announced a policy of preparedness. This policy is the result of careful deliberation, of conferences with experts, and it seeks to meet a very difficult situation. It does not satisfy the peace-at-any-price people, nor is it sufficient for the extremists, but it is a safe ground on which to start. It is a program that is progressive beyond anything that has been done heretofore, and it is hoped that the people of this country, regardless of party, will stand behind it. In the case of the navy the plan provides an expenditure of about one hundred million dollars annually for five years. For the army the plan proposes an increase to 141,000 officers and men, and in addition to this to organize a federal continental army of 400,000 to be enlisted at the rate of 133,000 a year for three years. This continental army is to be obligated to devote a specific time to training for a period of three years and then to be on furlough for a period of three years more without obligation except to return to the army in the event of war or an urgent call for service. This continental army is to be subjected to short periods of training. The regular army is to assist in and supervise this training. The National Guard is to be increased and extended to the continental army wherever it can be effected through State action. In addition to this it is proposed to spend twenty million dollars a year for four years on coast defense and twenty-six million dollars a year for four years in the accumulation of reserve material for the army.

"To the extreme pacifists the fate of Belgium and China should be a rude awakening, for like the old lady when the horse ran away, they trusted to Providence until the tracers broke and then they doubted. On the other side we have those who believe in extreme measures of armament, in plans for an immediate and extraordinary increase in the army and navy. To such we would say with Gus Williams, that 'when we can't get the best thing let us be thankful to take the next best.'"

The address of Mr. Saunders was received with intense interest by all of the Men's Club members present and it is likely that all of them left converts to the cause of preparedness.

President Fort then introduced W. H. P. Veysey, president of the Plainfield Federation of Men's Clubs, who told of plans for the community Christmas tree in Plainfield this year. Mr. Veysey said that the event had been a success for the past two years because of the whole-hearted support of club members and he urged the same spirit in preparing for the coming Christmas celebration. A committee meeting would be held November 30, he said, when initial plans for the work would be brought up.

The Rev. W. L. Imes, pastor of Bethel chapel, was introduced to the club members. Dr. Imes thanked those of the Crescent Avenue church for their support in his work and for the opportunity of meeting them and hearing the address of Dr. Saunders.

It was unanimously voted to have a second dinner in February, when an address will be heard from the editor of the Aerial Age, the leading aereonautical journal of the world. The editor will discuss the use of aeroplanes in wartime, and tell of the uses to which they will be put to reclaim civilization when peace is restored.

DISCUSS DRESS PSYCHOLOGY

queries they wish answered which they would otherwise be reticent about asking. During the meeting the boys and girls of the primary grade rendered several vocal selections in a pleasing manner.

Following the business session Mrs. Babcock introduced Miss Edith Burtis, of Philadelphia, one of the editors of the Ladies Home Journal, who addressed the mothers on "Dress For the Children." In part she said:

"I believe in psychology of dress as a means of character development in the child. I have actually seen a child rebellous, stubborn and unhappy when gowned in a distasteful frock handed down from the older sister. When a new dress was put on that girl a perfect transformation took place. So if you do do this, remake the material into a new dress for the child." Instill a personal pride in appearance in the child which will develop its individuality, initiative, courage and imagination. If there is anything we need in work today it is imagination. We have our day dreams, we must have ideals and inspiration and we want our children to have them, but let your child have dreams that are practical dreams.

"Encourage in the little girl the love of sewing, cooking and home duties. Make her feel a pride in the possession of this knowledge and a joy of achievement when she has finished some article. Praise it and tell her it is fine. It will give her that glow of satisfaction that she has accomplished something worth while."

Miss Burtis discouraged the idea of buying ready made clothes for children, and dispelled the idea that there was any economy in it. She brought to the attention of her listeners that two-thirds of the cost of a ready made garment was paid for style. She cited an example of this truth that the public is "style-mad" at the present day. One day while shopping in a shoe store in Philadelphia, she asked the manager whether or not she could write a story about the prices of shoes and the materials that was used in their making. He immediately refused to sanction such a story ,and told her that the reason the price of shoes was so high and the wear of the article so poor was that the public demanded style, into which good serviceable material cannot be put. "Style in its right sense is the thing that suits you, and your personal taste. Eliminate that element of style in the child, and urge it to wear a dress because that dress suits it and not because some other child is wearing the same thing."

Miss Burtis further encouraged the parents to buy trade mark fabrics for making the clothes of the youngsters, both for their material and durability. She also quoted a preference for white clothes for the children, both from an economical standpoint and cleanliness.

A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed following the meeting.

COMBINE DEFEATS RUNYON

backed by ex-Governor E. C. Stokes.

Senator-elect Thomas F. McCran, of Passaic, appeared with a boom for ex-Assemblyman George W. Wright, of that county. Wright is a political lieutenant of Vice Chancellor Vivian M. Lewis, and is expected to have the united support of the Lewis followers. Alfred N. Dalrymple, the Republican leader in Essex county, is also spoken of for the place, but he says he is not a candidate. Bugbee declared himself a receptive candidate, but added that he would leave it to the Legislature to make the selection.

The Republican Senators decided on William T. Read, of Camden, for the presidency, and Charles A. Rathbun, of Morris, for floor leader. Frank Davis, of Gloucester, again is to be secretary to the body.

John B. Kates, of Camden, seems to be assured of selection as the majority's floor leader in the Assembly.

There are several aspirants for clerk to the House, Captain James Parker, of Passaic, who has had the job, being among the number. Upton S. Jefferies, of Camden, who had the place last winter, and ex-Assemblyman Leonard Pikaart are also candidates.

Governor Fielder named the Board of Canvassers to sit November 23 and officially check up the returns of the general election. He appointed Senators Edge, Read and Gaunt, Republicans, and Egan and Martens, Democrats.

Secretary of State Martin has received the official vote on the Wharton Tract purchase from only nine counties. They show 16,661 votes for the purchase, and 36,013 against it. There is no doubt of the defeat of the proposal.

Senator Edge, who presided at the Republican State convention, and who was authorized to name a committee to prepare legislation carrying out the party's pledges, appointed Mr. Bugbee as chairman, and Senators Read, Rathbun, Gaunt and McCran, Assemblymen Pilgrim, Runyon, O. H. Hammond, Whitman and Roberts.

Mr. Bugbee gave out a statement urging harmony in the ranks and asking the Republicans of the State not to fight over the spoils. He said there were honors enough to go around, and declared reports of dissension were unfounded.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 48 degrees; 11 a. m., 48 degrees; 1 p. m., 51 degrees.

"Faith In Ourselves"

The world has faith in the man who has faith in himself. Likewise it has faith in the store that has faith in itself.

For a store to have faith in itself, it must sell better things than its contemporaries; it must throw every good thing away for a better one; it must close the door on everything that savors of "fogeyism" and condition of mind which believes in the old and shuns the new.

Such, we believe, is the store we lend our name to —a store far in advance of the usual shops that sell 'THINGS MEN WEAR.'

CALKINS FAVORS A GOLF RULE CHANGE

Would Eliminate Big Field in National Amateur Tournaments.

Major Leighton Calkins has suggested a change in the amateur golf championship tournament rules which is designed to eliminate the big fields by taking advantage of the playing ability of the golfers. Mr. Calkins' system has received favorable notice in New York and is being discussed by golfers everywhere. He was formerly an officer in both the United States and Metropolitan Golf Associations and is the originator of the Calkins system of estimating par and handicapping players thereon.

His new system, as explained by him, follows:

"The problem is how to limit the field to 168. I have often thought that players who in previous years have won their spurs in national events should not be subjected to a sitting-out process along with untried and unknown men. Why should players, for example, who have competed more or less regularly for years and have qualified in the selected thirty-two for the match play rounds be required to compete with an unwieldy field in the elimination rounds?

"I suggest, therefore, that the field be limited to 168 players to play on Monday, one round stroke play for 64 places. Further, that 100 places be reserved for men of tried and known merit, to be allotted in due order of application. Various preferred groups might be designated. For example, Group 1 might include all invited guests and all previous national champions; Group 2, all association and State champions; Group 3, all players who in 1915 qualified for the match play rounds; Group 4, all players who so qualified in 1914. Group 5, all players who so qualified in 1913, going back, perhaps, five years. Each of the 100 selected places are not all filled a final group might include any player who has ever qualified (excepting the 1913 event at Nassau) for match play in a national championship. I am not particularly strong for this last group, but it might be considered.

"Finally, the program would require all other competitors to play an 18-hole stroke play round on the Saturday before for the remaining 64 places. These players would make up the unknown and untried, including, no doubt, many young, promising players. There would be included also the regular army of dubs who enter for the fun of it and have not a ghost of a chance of qualifying. There would be no danger that young players would not come out on top.

"Thus, by a very simple means the undeserving would be sifted out and at the same time the treasury would be benefited through allowing anybody to enter who wished to do so. Three hundred players could enter because as many as 200, if necessary could flounder around on Saturday. would not have the officials required to manage the Saturday event; simply provide that the players start when they wish, with partners of their own selection, keeping their scorecards and turning them in when they finish. Let it be a regular go-as-you-please affair.

"Then begin the real event on Monday with a field of 168, 64 to qualify for a qualification round on Tuesday. This could be at 18 holes, as in 1914, or it might be at 36 holes, so as to disregard the scores on Monday. This would mean two short 18-hole rounds on Wednesday, only eight players surviving, with 36-hole rounds on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Or, if it should be decided to have only the finals at 36 holes, a day could be saved. In other words, you could have the go-as-you-please canter on Monday, the elimination round on Tuesday, the real 36-hole qualifying round on Wednesday, and four match-play rounds on Thursday, and Friday, with the finals on Saturday.

"But whatever the plan for the main event, why not make use of the experience of previous years in sorting out the worthy?"

RESCUE MISSION NINE YEARS OLD

Anniversary is Observed in Vincent Chapel with Attractive Program.

The ninth anniversary of the Plainfield Rescue Mission under the superintendency of John LeMatty, was held in Vincent chapel last night. F. A. Andrews, the president, presiding. The meeting opened with a song service under the direction of Miss Marguerite and Clyde Burnett, followed by prayer by Rev. T. H. Gardiner scripture reading and remarks by President Andrews.

Harry Gee, secretary of the Mission, in his report, showed that 29 meetings were held during June and 31 during July and August, respectively, with an average attendance of between 644 and 691. The number of calls made by the superintendent during the three months amounted to 396 while 380 meals and 239 lodgings were extended to transients and strangers. His report in part was as follows:

"The Plainfield Rescue Mission is just what its name implies in the hearts and lives of many of the people of this city, and it stands for more than many of us know for the protection and good order of the community in the helping hand it extends to those transients or strangers that pass through our city and sometimes have no place to go. The Mission not only helps such in religious ways and teachings but also provides temporary lodgment and food which has sent many a person on his way rejoicing who otherwise might have been a burden to our city or to you individually.

"It has been found possible for the past two years for Superintendent LeMatty to visit Northfield for a brief rest and also to get in touch with some of the best workers in home mission ranks in the country. This has caused enlarged usefulness along the most effective lines and which is typical of the Mission in all its work."

Concluding his report, Mr. Gee expressed the appreciation of the Board for the faithful and efficient work of Mr. LeMatty, and extended to him the best wishes of all on his ninth anniversary of his association with the Mission.

The remainder of the program was as follows: Duet, the Misses Burnett, "'Tis Jesus"; remarks by Superintendent LeMatty, presenting the various phases of the Mission work; a few words of testimony by men converted in the mission; incidents of the Mission work by J. D. Loizeaux, of the executive board; hymn, remarks by local pastors, duet, the Misses Burnett and Seader; closing hymn and remarks by president and benediction by Rev. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church.

MRS. ELIZABETH GIESE DIES IN 74TH YEAR

Succumbs to Complications Following Operation at Muhlenberg Hospital.

After an illness of a few days of a complication of ailments incident to advancing years, Mrs. Elizabeth Giese, aged 74 years, died this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital. Mrs. Giese, who was the widow of the late Charles Giese, a former policeman in Plainfield, has lived in Plainfield for many years. After her husband's death she spent some time with a daughter at High Bridge, Hunterdon county, but of late has been living with her daughter, Mrs. Caspar Waglow, 118 Netherwood avenue.

Besides Mrs. Waglow, the deceased is survived by one son, Philip Giese a mail carrier of the local post office and another daughter, Mrs. Frank Conda, of High Bridge. One sister Mrs. Anna Decker, of Westfield, and two brothers, Henry Snyder, of New York, and Christian Snyder, of Jerseyville, Ill., also survive.

The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Waglow.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

A big time is anticipated at Proctor's Theatre tonight, when the famous "Bazaar Night" will hold the boards. The program is one of exceptional calibre. The big feature film production is of the same high class calibre as those offered during the past few weeks. It is Frederick Perry in "The Family Stain." The last half of the week will bring to Plainfield one of the greatest war films ever seen anywhere. They are the original and authentic Chicago Tribune pictures, showing "The German Side of the World's Great War," taken on the German battle fronts. They are not pro-German, pro-Ally, but just simple truths and facts. A splendid vaudeville entertainment will be included in the program, featuring the Black and White Revue, with seven artists, and other acts. Taken as a whole it will be a show worth while.

MATLACK BIBLE CLASS MEETING AND SUPPER

The Matlack Bible class held its monthly business meeting last evening in a class-room of the First Baptist Bible school, being preceded by a supper at 7 o'clock, when thirty members were served by the social committee. This was the first supper of the season and the committee was commended for its success under the leadership of their chairman, Mrs. Ernest Conover.

After the supper the class retired to an adjoining room for the business meeting, which opened with devotional services by the president, Miss Marie H. Moore, and vice president, Miss Minnie B. Serrell. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and approved; reports were read by the treasurer and chairmen of the different committees.

Various matters of importance were brought up and thoroughly discussed. Plans were made for Thanksgiving and Christmas work along missionary lines, as well as social events to take place during the winter months.

CAN EXPECT ACTION.

When the members of so active an organization as the Monday Afternoon Club take up the matter of a public park for Plainfield, as was so enthusiastically done on Monday by this organization there are sure to be results. After a number of those present had discussed the need for much better recreation centres it was decided to appoint a committee to look further into the matter. The Daily Press has long advocated the necessity for more parks for this city, and it is indeed gratifying to see that the matter is at last being agitated. In matters of this kind the municipality must look to the future, and if funds are not available at the present time to complete more of these open spaces, provision should be made in the tax budget for at least enough money to purchase land to be held for future development.

Plainfield is growing rapidly. Our proportionate increase in population during the last five years was greater than that of any other city in North Jersey, if not in the State, reaching nearly twenty per cent. If this keeps up, the city fathers are going to wake up too late to the realization that there is little or no desirable land left for this important purpose. It is certainly to be hoped that the movement started by the Monday Afternoon Club will be followed by the appointment of a vigorous committee that will not rest until it has at least seen land purchased for park purposes.

As usual "Dal" and his henchmen from Essex county want everything in sight. Precedent makes no difference to them in the selection of a Speaker of the House of Assembly. Fortunately the Republican representatives from the counties in the other parts of the State are not ruled by the Essex boss, and as a result William N. Runyon, of Union county, may yet win out for the place. It has been the custom for years to select the floor leader of the year before as Speaker of the House, provided, of course, that the same political party again controlled. Judge Runyon made an able floor leader last year. He was head and shoulders above everyone in the House in ability, and in direct contrast to the members from Essex who were little more than puppets in the hands of the political bosses. In spite of all this Dalrymple and his twelve hand-picked Assemblymen have declared that they want the speakership for one of their number. It remains to be seen whether the other members of the House will stand for such tactics ,or will effectively rebuke the Essex boss and select an independent, straightforward and able man for the place.

We hope that every reader of the Press will carefully study the speech which was delivered by Dr. William L. Saunders last night on the subject of "Preparedness." It is without exception the finest argument in favor of strengthening our naval and land forces that it has been our privilege to study since the subject became the paramount public issue for the nation. Dr. Saunders tells in a way that challenges contradiction of the necessity for increased protection. After reading his remarks, another phase of the preparedness question can be studied by going to the High School Auditorium tomorrow night and hearing former Mayor Percy H. Stewart tell of his experiences at the Business Men's Camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., last August. Dr. Saunders tells what is needed. Mayor Stewart will tell what has been done already. Altogether Plainfielders are being given an opportunity to learn more this week about this important topic than usually falls to the lot of any one community in so short a time.

Every reader of the daily newspapers should be an advocate of President Wilson's policy of preparedness. There are more reasons for the adoption of his plan in the right hand column of the average newspaper than in all the speeches he can make from now until he retires to private life—which will be at least five years. Wilson's preparedness policy is only a national way of saying that a policeman should carry a gun when he is on a dangerous beat. Might does not make right, but we must have might if we are to have any assurance of right.

LOCAL CONCERN BRINGING MECHANICS HERE TO WORK

E. Longley, the employment agent of the International Motor Company, is negotiating for the services of twenty skilled mechanics now engaged in work by an automobile concern of Trenton. Should he succeed in inducing the men to take positions in the local Saurer plant he will bring them to Plainfield at once. Last week Mr. Longley brought 200 mechanics from Buffalo to this city.

According to his statement the International Motor Company has enough work to keep a force of 2,000 men busy for two years at the present time. An order for a big shipment of cars was recently received from the British government and several other smaller contracts are anticipated.

AUTOMOBILE CHAUFFEUR WARNED IN CITY COURT

As the result of an automobile crash between a car driven by Harmon Jackson, a chauffeur, and one owned by Charles L. Stanley, the local florist, and driven by Harry Stewart, Monday morning, the first named was arraigned before City Judge De Meza this morning, charged with reckless driving.

According to Patrolman Martin Welsh, who made the arrest, Harmon was travelling at a speed of twenty-five miles an hour when his machine struck Stanley's car at Fourth and Sycamore streets. Upon Jackson's employer's promise to make good the damage, the accused was allowed to go with a warning to drive with greater caution in the future.

November

November is one of the niftiest little months we have.

Its name signifies ninth, but it's really not.

Years ago they began the year with January, but when February had turned in its report and was found to be two whole days short, they decided to turn over a new leaf and start fresh.

So November was the ninth month after that.

November is the month in which people recover from Hallowe'en and get ready to be thankful that the foot-ball season has ended.

Turkeys roost high during this month.

This is in response to a rigid proviso in every turkey's life-insurance policy.

Any turk roosting lower than twenty feet from the ground has his policy cancelled immediately with no return of premiums paid.

November is the month in which one gets enough of October weather to make one wish that month had stayed, and enough of winter to wish that season would hurry along.

In some localities north of the Carbondale, Ill., parallel, they do their hog-butchering in this month.

When both the moon and the hog are at their fullest, the deed is done.

Some real frosty morning the neighbor who owns a rifle comes over and makes some bullet-patches from the remains of an old cotton sheet, loads his ancient six-foot-barrel hexagonal Winchester and shoots the pigs.

Home-talent completes the job with a swift stiletto stab behind the left foreleg, and the mess begins.

The house smells of cracklin's for a week, and the boys draw cuts to see who will get the majority of the bladders.

November is the next to the last month in the year.

If it were not for one thing, it would be the last.

That one thing is December.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Acute Coryza, Called The Common Cold

WE ARE through joking about the common "cold." It is no joking matter—no, we haven't caught one for years and years, because we have no fear of air—but the more ridicule we heap upon the catching cold delusion the more mean things people say about us. So in this talk about ordinary coryza we are in dead earnest.

First, what is coryza?

It is an acute, CONTAGIOUS inflammation of the mucous lining of the nose, characterized by slight feverishness, chilliness, sneezing, running at the nose, stuffiness of the nostrils, perhaps mean, dull headache, and loss of smell and taste. No less than half a dozen different types of bacteria are known to cause attacks of coryza. And nothing but germs can cause it. These so-called "colds" in the head that come and go all in a day or a few hours are not coryza; they are merely temporary congestion of the nose and throat in an individual subject to chronic rhinitis or catarrh. Coryza is a real, serious, often fatal disease lasting at least three or four days, usually a week.

We say coryza is often fatal. In children the various complications—acute middle ear inflammation (gathering in the ear), mastoiditis, broncho-pneumonia, are what render the disease serious. In adults the acute frontal, maxillary or ethmoidal sinusitis so often developing as a complication of coryza makes the disease anything but a joke. Many a serious operation grows out of "just a common cold."

Why is coryza more frequent in fall, winter and spring than in summer? Because then people are more confined in artificially heated houses. The more time one spends in the open air, regardless of weather conditions, the greater is one's resistance against all the respiratory mucus membrane infections, from coryza to tuberculosis, not excepting diphtheria and pneumonia. Coryza, like pneumonia, is a house disease, pure and simple.

Prevention: Keep at least six feet from anybody who seems to have a "cold." No open-face sneezing.

Treatment: Go to bed. Take a dose of salts. Have a hot mustard foot bath in bed. Fast twenty-four hours, then take a milk and bread diet. If an adult, take thirty grains of hexamethylenamina (sometimes called formin or urotropin) dissolved in a glassful of water; if a child from five to fifteen grains, according to age. Sleep in the open air or with all the windows open, avoiding warmed rooms, but sleep warmly covered. Avoid coddling the nose, throat or chest. Wear light weight, knitted woolen underclothing. Don't expect to be well inside of four or five days.

An Appreciation

I wish, writes Mrs. E. W., that your fresh-air sermons could be printed in letters a foot high on billboards throughout the country. They have done our family worlds of good—although at first I thought you were an extremist.

PNEUMATIC TIRES

THE pneumatic tire is the turkey buzzard in the ointment of the automobile owner. It was invented about twenty years ago by a man who thought the recording angel had a sinecure. It was a complete success. Within five years, the R. A. had put nine assistants in the profanity department, had been compelled to instal adding machines and loose-leaf ledgers, and was working a night shift right through the summer.

The pneumatic tire is a hollow tube filled with wind and is fastened to the wheel with the aid of bolts, nuts, screws, cable wires, hooks and glue. It makes riding easier, and is also a great promoter of walking. The tire is made by the rubber trust out of gossamer silk, spiders' webs and butterflies' wings. It is, therefore, no trick at all to poke a hole in it with a nail, a rock or a bottle. When this is done, the imprisoned air at once rushes forth and mingles with the surrounding atmosphere so thoroughly that it is almost impossible to get it back intact.

The occurrence is called a puncture. A bad puncture is accompanied by a loud hissing rush of air on the part of both the tire and the owner. The latter, to fix the tire, must remove it with the aid of levers, crowbars, screw-drivers, derricks and blasting powder, and must put a patch on the inner tube. It is while persuading the tire to get back on the rim and become fat and useful again that the automobilist uses the rich, redolent words which clog up the adding machine in the Recording Angel's office, and has compelled him to do away with the girl angels in that department.

Automobile tires not only have punctures, but blow-outs. A blow-out is a $45 explosion with apoplexy trimmings. Tires also have creeps, skids, burns, blisters, slow leaks and necrosis of the fabric. Any one of these disorders will strand a $5,000 touring car full of $6,700,000 worth of prominent citizens fifteen miles from lunch. In fact, an automobile tire is as unhealthy as an imported pup, and the man who has to watch over four of them is generally too busy to pay much attention to politics. The genius who will invent an automobile with only one tire will ascend to fame and riches in a large magnificent spiral.

Tires frequently show almost superhuman intelligence. A chauffeur may get hopelessly lost, but a tire always knows the exact spot on every road which is farthest from a repair shop, or a lunch counter, and does its exploding there. Moreover, tires are excellent judges of time. A tire will stand sound and healthy in a garage for three weeks, waiting until its owner has started for the place in a great hurry to take a ride. Then it will burst with care and thoroughness. Automobile tires have made people rich and happy, but not for long. Sooner or later, every man who sells automobile tires buys an automobile himself.

Views Of The Press

The Craze For Antiques

THERE was some interesting talk about the antique rug business in a recent New York trial, in which it was alleged that a rug costing only 80 francs in Paris was "antiqued" and sold for $12,000. In another case it was stated that antique treatment worth $400 being given to a rug costing $250, it sold for $15,000. If deceptions of such magnitude exist they are, of course, unusual. But in a small way this kind of thing is going on all the time and many people are deceived, particularly as respects old furniture.

The American furniture makers of a hundred or more years ago had a great eye for simple and graceful lines. The work of that primitive age was superior to most of the things you see in the parlors of the wealthy to-day. It is natural that stuff that is both old and superior should bring fancy prices.

In the older parts of the country attending auctions of household furniture in the rural districts is one of the diversions of the idle rich. Many impecunious amateurs also flock hither, hoping for inexpensive "finds." These are rare, as good work is pretty well snapped up and many people know its value. If a family has been socially prominent, its goods are likely to bring prices out of proportion to intrinsic worth.

The demand being such, naturally the market is full of imitations. Some dealers state honestly that their stock consists of copies. Others feel that what the buyers don't know won't hurt them.

When one has old furniture in the family, it seems a part of the family spirit to hang on to it. It then suggests an ancestry with a background of culture. A house full of old furnishings, collected by skilled amateurs, is very interesting. But the average person who sets out to acquire nice old furniture is likely to buy some gold bricks. Unless he has a cultivated taste, he may fill his house with a melange that is neither beautiful, comfortable nor livable.

A Dead Man's Business

Q. When a man dies, does his executor have the right to continue the business in which this man was engaged and to use the estate funds for this purpose?

A. An answer to your question must depend upon the facts of the individual case. Sometimes a testator—a person making a will—expressly provides in his will that the executor shall continue the business. Sometimes an executor is empowered to do so by virtue of a decree or an order of court. If, however, he is not authorized to do so and makes use of the funds of the estate in carrying on the business, it is incumbent upon him to account to the beneficiaries of the estate for profits made or for interest on the money so used in case there are no profits.

Damage And Fees Separate

Q. In the course of my business, I make a great many shipments of goods over the railroads. Sometimes losses are occasioned by delay in delivering the goods. If I bring suit against a company for loss caused by such delay, wouldn't I be entitled to have attorneys' fees included in the damages and costs?

A. No.

The Right Of Way

Q. Please tell me what is included in a "right of way," in speaking of a railroad company. Does it embrace anything except the tracks and ties?

A. It includes the ground immediately under the rails and ties and also such portions of the adjacent land as are necessary to the use of the tracks.

Why Insurance Companies Get Rich

Q. I notice that accident insurance companies often put a clause in their policies which provides that the company will not be liable if an injury occurs while the insured person is insane. Is a clause of this kind legal? A. Yes.

When Happy Hooligan Travels

Q. If a man is unlawfully riding on a freight train, can he be considered, in law, a passenger?

A. No.

Faces

The most marvelous piece of work is the human Face. Strange that out of all the billions of Faces made since Time got to going, no two Faces were ever exactly alike. Strange, too, that no one Face long remains the same!

Make Something of YOUR Face.

The Face is the Key to Character. As surely and positively as does the hand guided by the orders of the Brain clear wide wastes, build great cities, and cut into life-like figures from bare rocks the story of men's achievements, so does the Brain and Thought of a man carve and fashion daily the secret workings of a man's Ideals and Purposes into the Lines and Planes of his own Face.

Make Something of YOUR Face.

There is one thing a man cannot hide from—his own Face; Where the Man goes the Face must go. How tremendous the responsibility, then, of making your Face a good Companion, a faithful Servant, an active Force, an interesting Study—a Face worth remembering.

Make Something of YOUR Face.

A Face never lies. It may be a Comic Picture, a Comedy of Errors, a Shakespearean Tragedy, a chiseled piece of Power, or a wrecked god—but it is no lie. If you would know a man, study the history of his Face.

Make Something of YOUR Face.

No one could get a hearing from a library of malicious tales about Lincoln. His wonderful Face would contradict it all. To learn what manner of person a man is, study his Face. It is all there. Pope said that the proper study of mankind was man. But he meant his Face. Be not so foolish as to try to "hop bail" on your own Face. You can't. Better start associating more with it. It is your largest asset, for no man can take it from you. Realize now, then, that the most important job for you each day is to—

Make SOMETHING of your Face.

Current Poetry

A Rhythmic Shiver

I remember, I remember,
Six months ago to-day,
I shucked my winter overcoat
And gave the same away.
"I'll never use this heater more,"
Said I with lofty glee,
"The summer's nigh, no more have I O coat, a use for thee."

It was springtime, I remember,
And birdies sang and flew,
And in my gay exuberance,
Perhaps I warbled, too.
I planned to buy another coat
Before the blighting fall,
But now that sere October's here,
I have no coat at all.

'Tis with sorrow I remember
My optimism then!
I planned to save a bag of loot
'Ere autumn came again.
But I disbursed my weekly pay,
Nor reckoned I the cost,
And hear to-day with sad dismay
The message of the frost.

Household Hints..

CABBAGE IS WHAT YOU MAKE OF IT

Cabbage and Beet Relish—One head of cabbage chopped fine, one-half dozen beets cooked, cooled and chopped, one red pepper chopped, salt and pepper to taste. Mix all and pack in crock and cover with cold vinegar.

Sauerkraut — Cook two pounds sauerkraut one-half hour, then grind one and one-half pounds pork shoulder, add one small cup rice, one egg, salt and a dash of pepper, mix well, then with a tablespoon mold into small balls. Then put in a kettle a layer of the cooked sauerkraut and a layer of meat balls, then sauerkraut and another layer of meat balls and so on until all are used. Be sure and have a layer of sauerkraut on top, then cook until done.

Cabbage for Weak Stomach—Let a half head cabbage, cut fine, come to a boil with a pinch of soda in it. Pour that water off, cover with boiling water again, cook till tender, drain again; then dress with a cup of milk, one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful butter, salt and pepper; serve.

Filled Cabbage Head—Large head of cabbage, boil one-half hour, then take and put cabbage head on platter, spread out the leaves one after another the way they are grown, all except the heart of the cabbage. Then take pork sausage, about one pound, and remove skin. Take bread crumbs, one cup or more, one or two eggs, nutmeg flavoring; mix it in sausage and spread in between leaves and cover leaf after leaf until all. Fold in rest of leaves and tie it up with string and finish boiling until soft. It takes about two or three hours. When done remove from fire and put on platter, melt some butter, brown and pour over top. You can cook potatoes in same water. Very good German dish.

TO WASH SHAWLS

To wash knitted or crocheted shawls, fold them as fat as possible and lay carefully in a pillow case, run through at intervals with basting thread to keep flat. Then they should be put through the washing and rinsing waters as other woolen goods. If washed separately, observe the usual precautions for woolen goods, gently squeezing through the hands and keeping the suds and rinsing water of the same lukewarm temperature. Take out of pillow case, but do not hank knitted goods up to dry. Put in the oven on a big platter, shaking and turning occasionally, or lay on a clean cloth in the sunshine.

FOR CHILDREN'S PARTY

A pretty centerpiece for the children's table at a birthday party is made by filling a toy wheelbarrow with flowers, in which may be concealed small gifts. Fasten each gift to a flower with a ribbon streamer extending to each plate. The streamers are pulled at a given signal. Gild the toy wheelbarrow or wrap wheels and handles with ribbon. Small wheelbarrows made of cardboard could be used as favors. These should be filled with small candies. If squabs are reasonable in price serve one to each child in a wheelbarrow made of toasted bread with a slice of lemon for a wheel.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

A snap clothespin has untold possibilities if kept near the kitchen stove. It may be used to lift hot kettle lids, pull saucepans from fire, and will assist, without burning fingers, in turning pies or cakes in the oven.

To Clean Drain in Sink—If kitchen sink is clogged, don't send for a plumber until you try this: Take dishrag and douse it up and down over the drain, it will create a suction and will open the drain. To keep it open, pour the coffee grounds in sink. Being rough, or in small particles, they will carry the grease out with them; and it is grease that clogs the pipe.

PIES DON'T RUN OVER

Berry pies positively will not run over if the upper crust is measured and cut so that it comes just to the edge of the tin, but not over. This leaves a small space for the juice to bubble and the pie looks just as good when baked. Put a little flour and sugar on lower crust when pie is

CROWN JAPANESE EMPEROR TODAY

Coronation of Yoshihito Takes Place in Ancient City of Kioto.

The coronation of Yoshihito, Emperor of Japan, takes place today in the ancient city of Kioto. In strict privacy, with only a few Shinto priests in their straw sandals moving about, the Mikado will read a formal address to his family spirits. The spirits of Jimmu Tenno and the other 120 of his human ancestors will be told that Yoshihito has come to the throne. Then the new ruler will pay tribute to his ancestors and offer sacrifices.

The big public event, at which the ambassadors and accredited representatives of other governments will be present, takes place this afternoon. This is the formal coronation. For the first time the common people of Japan will take part, with the princes and nobility of Japan.

The imperial throne is erected in a great pavilion called the Shishenden, built of plain white wood. For months the villagers have been preparing this unique building, which is constructed on the old order. No nails were used in its construction and the lumber was cut with ancient ceremonies.

In the court-yard outside the building some two thousand members of the Japanese Diet, peers and notables of the empire, are assembled. Here also will be seated the foreign delegations, in many uniforms. When the hour of coronation arrives, Count Okuma, the Premier, will ascend the steps to the throne and read a royal address to the Emperor, to which His Majesty will reply. Then Count Okuma will retire to the food of the standard in the courtyard and call for three "banzais" for the Emperor.

The United States government is represented at the ceremony of coronation by Hon. George W. Guthrie its ambassador, and Rear Admiral Winterhalter, commander of the Asiatic fleet, United States Navy.

The main difference between the ceremonies in Kioto today and the coronation of European monarchs lies in the fact that the European ceremonies are religious, while the Japanese ceremonial is national. Yet the religious element is not lacking for the Emperor is high priest as well as monarch. At the coronation and at other national occasions he worships the ancestors of the nation, and the divinely descended Emperor as head of the nation is intermediary between heaven and earth. So goes the ancient Shintoism, the national worship.

JAPANESE CELEBRATE.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Incidental to the crowning of the new Emperor at Kioto today, the Japanese Embassy will hold a brilliant reception this evening in honor of the new ruler of Nippon. Hundreds of official and resident friends of the ambassador and Viscountess Chinda have been invited.

The annual inspection of Winfield Scott Relief Corps, No. 10, will be held Friday night, November 12, at Post headquarters in Reform Hall.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The Aborn Opera Company will present their modernized edition of "The Bohemian Girl" at the Plainfield theatre today with its striking scenic investiture that is said to eclipse any previous presentation of this work, and countless new and startling incidental features never before attempted in opera. This mammoth spectacular revival was one of the important successful novelties of the past few seasons. Balfe's masterpiece, which forms the basis of the performance, is one of the oldest English grand operas that has retained its popularity up to the present day. But in the revised and amplified version arranged for this special production there have been so many changes and so much that is new introduced in past. This is the first special scenic production of this version of the opera since the revival at the Theatre Lyrique, in Paris in 1869, when it scored a tremendous success, and Balfe the composer was made the lion of the hour and decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by Napoleon III. Among the original scenes are a complete fair or Kirmees of old Bohemia, introducing the characteristic array of troubadours, dancing girls, fortune tellers and acrobats, each in separate corps.

Pontoni, protean pianologist, is to be the star on a well balanced and brilliant bill at the Plainfield Theatre for the last three days of the week. After a lay-off of one day—Wednesday—when "The Bohemian Girl" is being shown, the management resumes the variety program and offers six big acts for their patrons.

In addition to Pontoni, who is really a vaudeville star, and who goes from the Plainfield Theatre to one of the big New York houses, there will be Youth and Folly, America's foremost juvenile comedians; the Princess Doveer, an artistic interpreter of the terpsichorean art; Deg non and Clifton, novelty acrobats; Miles and Southern, in nifty nonsense, and Williams and Merrigan "Big and Little Casino."

Thursday afternoon and night the excellent entertainment will be augmented by the third installment of "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," the most popular serial ever filmed which has already taken Plainfield by storm. Friday night there will be a repetition of "The Country Store," a feature of the week at the Plainfield which has won the hearts of all local theatre-goers and is proving the biggest theatrical feature of the year. A diamond ring and other valuable articles are to be given away and all have a chance to win one of these prizes.

ROSE SYDELL PLAYING IN COLUMBIA THEATRE

Rose Sydell, burlesque's most popular "queen," is at the Columbia Theatre this week with her widely known London Belles organization. To those theatre-goers that patronize this form of amusement, it is perfectly known Miss Sydell always provides entertainment of a conspicuously distinct type. There is a first part, an olio and an afterpiece and there is broad comedy, lively music and Amazonian marches punctuated by every description of dancing and last and best of all in the estimation of burlesque audiences, there are the living pictures in which shapely chorus girls display their physical charms. Miss Sydell is now, as she has been for many years, supported by Johnie Weber in the principal comedy role and that unique German comedian, with the assistance of his old time running mate, W. S. Campbell, repeat his intensely laughable specialty called, "Oh, Papa," as the feature of the vaudeville division of the performance.

Daisey Harcourt, the English comedienne and songstress, will be seen in one of the principal parts as well as in her specialty, and Gertrude Dudley, Kathleen and Chauncey Jesson, James Wilson and Harry Dudley will contribute their services. Miss Sydell is said to have provided an unusually beautiful scenic and costume adornment for her present season's offering, with electrical effects and other devices calculated to bring the production up to the standards established in the more pretentious Broadway musical shows.

SMART FUR SETS EASILY MADE

No. 9149.

The fur styles for the coming season are attractive, to say the least; but, in addition, they are so constructed that the furrier's services can be dispensed with by those who do their own dressmaking—in fact any woman can make her own fur set by following the simple pattern directions. The above, Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9149, shows an easily made smart set of furs. The pattern is cut in three sizes, small, medium and large, and in two styles, another of which will be described here later. The set consists of 3 pieces, hat, muff and neck piece. The above requires 2¼ yards 18-inch, 1⅝ yards 27-inch, 1⅛ yards 36-inch, 1 yard 10-inch, 3¾ yards 1-inch fur and ½-yard 20-inch lining for muff.

Patterns can be purchased at the store of A. E. Force and Company.

"HACKNEY DAY" AT SHOW.

New York, Nov. 10.—Today is "Hackney Day" at the big National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden, and it bids fair to be a memorable occasion for admirers of this ancient British breed of high-stepping harness horses. To help make it so and to emphasize the cordial relations between this country and its Canadian neighbor, the Canadian Hackney Horse Society has offered four costly gold medals as prizes for hackney stallions and mares shown "in hand." Members of the American Hackney Horse Society have subscribed about $1,200 to provide the largest prize ever offered at the National Horse Show. The late Alfred G. Vanderbilt was the prime mover in starting the fund. Among the members of the American society are James J. Hill, of St. Paul; William de Pont, of Virginia; Joseph E Widener, of Philadelphia; Edward B. McLean, of Washington, and Reginald C. Vanderbilt, of New York.

CONFER ON ROUTE.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 10.—The directors of the Jackson Highway Association will meet today to receive the report of the pathfinders who have motored over the various routes suggested for the big Jackson Highway from Chicago to New Orleans. It is expected that the route will be definitely settled at today's meeting, although there is much controversy over the various sections as to which should have the big highway. The directors met here last September, but put off the final argument pending the report of a board of investigation. A government engineer took part in this preliminary view of the various routes.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—— Miss Hazel Nut Goes For a Horseback Ride.

Ran Away With Miss Hazel.

"A STORY, daddy!" cried Jack and Evelyn soon as he sat down.

So he began: "One beautiful bright November day Miss Hazel Nut was taking the air beneath her home tree, which happened to stand in a big city park. She had on her new brown velvet gown and looked very charming. Presently Mr. P. Nut passed by on his daily walk. 'Good afternoon, Miss Hazel,' he said, with his politest bow. 'I feel very fortunate to find you out for the air. Will you give me the great pleasure of going for a horseback ride with me tomorrow afternoon?'

"Now it happened that Miss Hazel Nut had a stepmother who did not like Mr. P. Nut. Her name was Mrs. Cocoa Nut, and she was as tall as broad, and her straight, coarse hair hung middle, under her little knob of a hat. She had no style at all. Neither her stepdaughter nor Mr. P. Nut liked her, and their ride in the park was like two children doing something their mother knew nothing about."

"Was Miss Hazel disobedient?" asked Evelyn.

"Rather," said daddy, "but she liked her beau very much, and all nuts belong to the same family, you know. The next afternoon, while Mrs. Cocoa Nut was taking a quiet nap, resting her headache, Mr. P. Nut, all slicked up in his new tan broadcloth suit, rode up for Miss Hazel, who tripped out to mount his huge black horse. She wore a riding habit of brown velvet, and her short hair was bobbed in with a perky black satin ribbon. Off through the park they cantered under the sunny sky, when whizzing around a corner came an automobile, which so frightened the huge black horse that he ran away with Miss Hazel.

"The poor little nut held on as tight as she could, but she only bounced up and down on his huge broad back, while Mr. P. Nut was left a mile behind. It began to look dangerous for Miss Hazel when off she tumbled right in front of a carriage, which happily held her stepmother out airing her headache. Much surprised to find her daughter in the park, Mrs. Cocoa Nut jumped out, exclaiming, 'You poor dear!' She took Hazel into her carriage. 'Drink this nice warm milk. You'll feel better.'

"With a rough hand she tapped her head just behind her left ear and out flowed delicious milk that soon made Hazel feel well. All of this proves," said daddy, "that people are often much nicer and kinder than they look. That night Mr. P. Nut sent Miss Hazel a bunch of violets, a token of his regret for not taking better care of her," daddy finished, with a big hug and a kiss from each kiddie.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. RA LEONARD

An Evening With New Friends Cheers Molly Sutner.

"Wasn't it a lovely evening?" exclaimed Molly Sutner, as they felt their way along the dark, slippery streets, "and wasn't it beautiful of Mrs. Ellson to invite us to meet her pleasant friends. It almost seems as if she means to include us in their little circle."

John was too busy picking his way over the crossing, carrying his sleeping boy in his arms, to answer for some minutes. When they were again walking along side by side he said:

"Really, I had forgotten people could be so happy as all these folks seemed tonight. You can see they have no wolf to drive from the door every hour of their lives. Easy circumstances; pleasant friends. No wonder they are jolly and sweet tempered. It is just as I said to Julia Osgood: It takes a man in comfortable circumstances to be good natured. Peace in the home is largely a matter of being well fed."

"Not if people love each other, John." Molly clung close to her husband's arm.

John did not answer, and they walked the remainder of the distance in silence.

The little cottage certainly looked dingy and bare compared with the beautiful home of the doctor, and as they entered their door the heavy weight of anxiety that belongs to the life of those dogged by the pressing need of money settled down on their shoulders.

"If the Mortons invite us to their house I want to ask all of them here next time," began Molly as they prepared for bed.

"We can't ask those people here. Everything is shabby and old-fashioned. I would be constantly thinking of the difference between their houses and ours." John had settled back into his irritable tone of voice.

"Don't be foolish, John, dear. We need friends as much as we need money. If those people ask us to their houses and give us such pleasure, we would be very foolish to refuse because we cannot entertain as royally as they do us. They know our circumstances, and they expect nothing from us that we cannot give. We can frankly do our best in the spirit in which they gave to us." Molly placed her hand on his shoulder and smiled into his gloomy face.

"You are bearing your end of the burden better than I am, Molly, and I am only adding to it. God knows it is heavy enough at best." He stooped and kissed her for the first time in months. Molly dropped her head on his shoulder to keep him from seeing the tears that sprang to her eyes, tears of happy surprise. When she could control her voice she said:

"If we can lift together the burden will not be unendurable for either of us."

John heaved a heavy sigh and turned away. The evening had cheered Molly, but it seemed only to have emphasized their poverty to John, and he felt that a great gulf was fixed between him and the comfortable people on "Easy street."

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Adv.

OUCH! BACKACHE! RUB LUMBAGO OR STIFFNESS AWAY

Rub pain from back with small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints.—Adv.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Now they are boosting a "football world's series," just as though two teams could be picked from the mass of gridiron aggregations that are competent to enter a contest on which such a title hinges. But why not? They have wrestling matches for the world's championship in which Frank Gotch is not entered and prize fights between hams in their different weights. It sure would be a money-making proposition for the teams that were lucky enough to get in on the gate receipts. The suggestion may be credited to Robert McCarthy, sporting editor of the Pittsburg Leader—if he can get any glory out of it. In arguing for his idea he says:

"A world series in football is a near future event. Such a clash this year would bring thousands of dollars into the treasury of the contending teams. Football is experiencing the same commercialism that has marked the major league baseball clubs, and when so many gold pieces are dangling in front of the athletic committees, theirs just for the plucking, it is bound to come. Commercialism must enter into these big college frays. To handle a crowd such as attended the Pittsburg-W. & J. contest of last Saturday at anywhere from a dollar to two dollars each, means real business ability behind the box office. Just now three teams stand out prominently in the football world—Harvard, Cornell and Pittsburg. Colgate might have a little claim for the title, as they have not had their clean slate broken, but the three teams that must be rated in the final reckoning are Harvard, Cornell and Pitt. This is the first year Pittsburg and Cornell have not played for the past several seasons. Pittsburg trounced the Ithacans a couple of times and were dropped from the schedule. Without much question Pitt could take over Cornell this year, even though the Big Red team is strengthened.

"A contest between Pittsburg and Harvard would draw an immense crowd, staged either on the Harvard or Pittsburg field. If Harvard was brought here a crowd rivaling that of last Saturday would turn out. If Pittsburg would play at Boston or Cambridge, the entire east would flock to the field. This money cannot be overlooked. A game scheduled for the Saturday after Thanksgiving, or the second Saturday after the holiday, when the two leading clubs of the year would meet, would be a real windup classic. It is being considered seriously in the east; the only thing preventing it is the big chance of Harvard or some of the other old leaders being beaten. However, a big financial return might overcome the moral effect. Perhaps next season we will have a 'world series football game.'"

For those who refuse to believe that football is on a higher plane than baseball we submit an interview with Capt. Frank Glick, of the Princeton football team. Can you imagine Pat Moran admitting that the Red Sox won because they played better ball, or Alexander saying that Boston copped because he was outpitched? We can't. But Glick, of the Tigers, has this to say about the Princeton-Harvard game: "Harvard outplayed Princeton. That is the story and we have no alibi."

Battling Levinsky broke a guy's jaw in a fight at Shenandoah Monday night. Are we dreaming?

Bozeman Bulger, who is fed dope by the New York World that he may entertain baseball bugs, has figured out that the major and minor leagues of the country paid more than $7,000,000 for baseball players during last season. What did they do with them?

If the New York Boxing Commission persists in its intention to force fighters to use their real names it will be necessary to import some announcers for future frays. Or they might get around it by throwing the names on a screen.

SPORTING NOTES

Dartmouth has a freshman football star who is minus an arm. He is making good at guard and the coaches say he will make the varsity next year. Guy Neeley is the name of the gritty youth.

Ted Lewis, the English battler, has been putting it over with regularity on some of the best mitt artists of America. Joe Mandot and Young Saylor found him too tough, and he will make the going interesting for any fighters of his weight.

Phil Bloom meets Patsy Drouillard at Windsor, Ont., tonight and takes on Saylor at Toledo, on Nov. 19th.

Soccer football comes to the front this fall with a national championship. Reports show the game is growing in favor in all sections of the country. The National Association will meet in Boston on November 21 to organize.

Yale and Columbia crews, which have not met on the water for forty years, will compete next Friday in New Haven harbor, as a preliminary to the Yale-Princeton football game. Yale will send a crew of veterans against the New Yorkers.

The handicap billiard tournament with Willie Hoppe at scratch, will begin next Monday in New York. There will be six contestants. Hoppe recently ran out a balkline game of 400 points from the opening shot, breaking his previous record.

Jim Delehanty, manager of the Hartford baseball team, is the 1915 batting champion of the Colonial League. His mark is .370 for 76 games.

The next big motor race is the 150-mile Grand Prize at Phoenix, Arizona, to be run on November 18, and to be followed on the 20th with a track race over the same distance.

Baseball ears are to the ground listening for some word of peace agreement at the Federal meet at Indianapolis. Nothing much can be expected until their major rivals get together in conference.

In the first game there was a tie at 860 at the end of the regulation ten frames. On a roll-off Plainfield got the decision by fourteen pins. The Rutherford five came back with 861 and took the second game by nineteen pins. In the final and deciding game it was easy for the Rurtherford five. Oakes, who went in as a substitute for Luening, accounted for 236, and with Clark tallying 204, Rutherford accounted for 957. The Plainfields stopped at 884. RECREATION CLUB PLAYS ST. PAUL'S TEAM TONIGHT

The Recreation Boys' basketball team will appear in their second game this season on the Plainfield High School court tonight when they lineup against the quintet from St. Paul's Parish House, Westfield. The local boys held a short scrimmage practice last night preparatory to the game this evening. The Recreation Club has been augmented by several new players and before the season gets much under way, the aggregation promises to have one of the strongest fives in the city. Captain Ricketts will probably have the following men on the floor tonight: Forwards, Ricketts, Pesce, Adams; center, Marston; guards, Naylor, Smith, Allegar and Poole. The game will start promptly at 8:15 and will be followed by dancing.

TURKEY CLAY CLUB SHOOT.

The Climax Gun Club's Thanksgiving shoot will take place Saturday, November 20, rain or shine, on the grounds on Plainfield avenue. The event is being looked forward to with much interest as the members' shooting has been exceptionally good so far this season, the majority of entrants averaging 80 per cent. and over. A lively competition is expected. The sweepstakes events will include 15 and 25 targets, while the poultry events will have 20 and 25 targets. Prizes include two turkeys, two ducks and two chickens. The three high guns for the entire program (100 targets) will receive cash prizes of $3.00, $2.00 and $1.00. The traps will open for practice at 12:30 p. m. and the shoot will commence at 1 o'clock.

T. A. B. S. PLAY PLAINFIELD A. A.

The Plainfield A. A., one of the T. A. B. S.' greatest rivals on the baseball field, will create a still greater amount of rivalry when they meet for the first time on the T. A. B. S. basketball court on Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock. Manager Jones, of the Plainfields, has rounded up one of the best teams in the city and the T. A. B. S., with their fighting spirit, should give them a good battle.

RUTGERS PREP BOYS USE ROUGH TACTICS

Lose to East Orange High School by Score of 18 to 6.

Rough playing and illegal tactics, which resulted in many penalties being handed out to the Rutgers "Prep" School eleven, marred the football clash between the New Brunswick boys and the East Orange High School youths at Ashland Field, in East Orange, yesterday afternoon. Incidentally, the "Prep" School boys were eliminated from any proposed rating as State champions, as the East Orange youths won the game after a hard tussle, 18 to 6.

Rutgers "Prep" did something, however, that seven other teams could not do. This was the scoring of a touchdown in the last period of play. It marked the first time this season that the Red and Blue goal line has been crossed. Jimmy Olson, the sterling left halfback of the New Brunswick team, was the boy to carry the ball over the line. Olson was a star in High School circles in Manhattan last season and ran through a broken field with rare skill in yesterday's game, evading one tackler after another. He also hit the line for substantial gains and was easily the best youth on the "Prep" school eleven.

Maurice Lequin, the "Tibbott" of the East Orange eleven, had his right toe very much in evidence yesterday. Lequin, who is one of the most accurate drop kickers developed hereabouts in High School ranks, counted twice from the field.

The lineup:

HUNTING SEASON IS ON IN NEW JERSEY

Enough Game to Keep Gunners Busy While Shooting is Open.

Beginning this morning, the season will be open for the hunting of quail, rabbits, squirrels, male English or ring-neck pheasants, partridge, prairie chicken and Hungarian partrdige. These game birds and animals along with the black-breasted and golden plover, woodcock, Wilson snipe, mudhens, geese, ducks, shell drake and brant should keep the hunters busy.

The law has excepted wild turkeys, female pheasants and wood duck, together with all small shore birds from the list, and there is a heavy penalty for killing them or having them in possession.

Sportsmen are looking forward to some fine shooting as numerous quail, pheasants and rabbits have been seen all summer, and the deer hunters say that it is many years since they saw so much game in the woods and fields. That part of Ocean county bordering on Barnegat Bay will have its full quota of hunters on the epening day, as quite some game always gets away from the pen at the Forked River State Farm. Thomas Cunningham, one of the Camden sportsmen who is well acquainted with the hunting in Ocean county, reports rabbits galore and many quail west of the villages of Forked River, Wartetown and Barnegat.

Automobile hunting parties will find enough to keep them busy at Forked River. The pine woods and brush west of the railroad tracks contain cover for quail and rabbits, and this year a number of English pheasants have been seen there.

Somerset county has been the recipient of more English pheasants during the last two years than any other county in the State. Many of these birds have been liberated by Senator Smalley. The advice received from Somerset county is to leave the trains at small way stations and then work in the direction of other stations. One instance mentioned is for the gunner to start from Somerville on the Lehigh Valley and work across country to Hamilton on the Philadelphia and Reading.

COLUMBUS LEAGUE BOWLING.

Knights of Columbus League bowlers started the season last night, the Star of Bethlehem Council quintet capturing two games out of three from the Bayley Lyceum five, of Elizabeth, on the latter's alleys. FEDS TO PUT A CLUB IN NEW YORK CITY

Indianapolis, Nov. 10.—Directors of the Federal League at their annual meeting here yesterday definitely decided to place a club in New York city in 1916. The Kansas City club, whose franchise was declared forfeited, will be sent to New York and strengthened so that it "will merit the support of the New York fans." James A. Gilmore, who was re-elected president of the league, stated after the meeting that grounds had been obtained on Manhattan Island for the New York club. He said plans had been submitted for stands to seat 55,000 persons, and that the league would be ready for operation in New York at the beginning of the 1916 season.

The Buffalo franchise also was forfeited, but it is understood that the owners will reorganize and that Buffalo will have a place in the league next season.

"BRICK" OWENS IN AMERICAN.

Ban Johnson has signed Clarence "Brick" Owens to umpire in the American League next season. For the last two seasons Owens has been with the American Association, and before that was a National League umpire. He left the latter league because of a difficulty over the question of salary. During the greater part of his career as an umpire, which covers a period of about ten years, Owens has been identified with the American Association. A number of years ago both the National and American League made offers for his services, but at that time he preferred to stay in the American Association. Owens has long held the reputation of being one of the most competent umpires in baseball.

STAR PITCHERS OF YESTERDAY HAVE VARIED CAREERS; SOME ARE PROSPEROUS, WHILE OTHERS HAVE GONE BACK TO SHOVEL

The pitchers who thrilled the fans of twenty or thirty years ago have had varied lives since leaving the diamond. Sooner or later the best of them had to bid the game goodbye and names that once were national toasts are seldom heard now. One of the best known baseball names of the 1870's is just as well known in athletic circles today. A. G. Spaulding won four straight pennants when he was pitching for the Boston Nationals.

In those days a club seldom had more than one or two pitchers and the teams played only every other day with shorter seasons. Spaulding pitched every game for his team and made an iron man record that will stand as long as the game lasts. When he finally quit the game he made a fortune selling baseball gloves and balls.

Charles Radbourne was another star of Spauding's time whose career was brilliant and who made a record. He pitched and won eighteen games straight for the Providence team when the only other pitcher the team had left them in the lurch. Radbourne worked too hard, broke down under the strain and died of consumption.

Pitching stars who have come to the game from humble station often shortened their careers with gay life and dissipation, being dazzled by success and fame. Amos Rusie was one such. He had plied a spade in a ditch when it was found that he could pitch, and John T. Brush, then owner of the Cincinnati Reds, gave him his chance. Rusie bloomed forth into the greatest pitcher of the day, but he soon faded. He was swinging the pick till the Seattle ball club gave him a job taking tickets at the gate.

Charles Sweeney was another whose love of exhilirating beverages darkened his prospects. In 1894 he was at the height of his career, but he was so ill-advised as to jump to the outlaws, where he lived a life a bit too fast on the bases and soon languished. John Clarkson, who pitched for Boston in the late 90's, made a great record. He also succumbed to the well known Demon. And Rube Waddel, one of the greatest favorites of his time, is another illustrous name to mention in this connection. But old Cy Young lived the cleanest of lives and attained a baseball senility never equalled before or since. He had been in the game twenty-two years when he retired.

For all-around requirements most men favor American-made woolens; others show a pronounced preference for imported fabrics.

The cloths produced here, from imported wool, do not handle as well as foreign cloths made from identical stock—the imported goods are more "clothy and buxom."

For men with "a preference" our variety of imported materials, the world's best, is a revelation, supplemented by generous quantity and highest type of skilled tailoring.

UNITY OF CIVIC BODIES URGED

school building in the East End was assured caused much satisfaction. It was announced that the building would be ready for use when school opens in September.

The members of the organization expressed a desire that the Common Council should name Councilman-elect Sminck as a member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment as the East End has no representative on the Board of Education. No formal action was taken by the organization. Eight new members were added to the association.

Allen E. Beals addressed the meeting, stating that he brought a message from former Mayor Percy H. Stewart inviting all to attend the meeting tomorrow night in the High School auditorium when addresses will be made on preparedness.

Councilman-elect Sminck gave an interesting talk on matters pertaining to the welfare of the city and the questions that may confront the Councilmen during the coming year.

President Ralston called attention to the lack of parks in Plainfield and urged that plans be formulated for a park planning campaign in this city.

Attention was called to the need of a storm sewer on North avenue and it was decided to petition the Common Council to take steps to have the condition remedied.

President Ralston explained that Mayor Calkins, who was expected to address the meeting on "Home Rule for Municipalities," could not be present. The following letter from the Mayor was read:

"I am sorry I shall not be free to attend your meeting to speak on home rule for cities. There is no more important subject. We have grown up under a presumption that a municipality has no powers to do anything except those expressly conferred and necessarily incidental. This should be reversed; so that, in the conduct of purely local affairs, a city may have power to do anything not expressly withheld or denied by the State constitution and laws enacted thereunder.

"The State should expressly reserve authority over matters of general concern to the State, such as game laws, State highways, honest elections, religious and political freedom, the debt contracting power of cities, the public health, public safety etc. But a city, as a business community, supported by the people who make up the community as a social and business enterprise, should be free from legislative interference in all matters relating to its internal management.

"This is not only just, it is also common sense. It is no exaggeration to state bluntly that the legislature in Trenton is absolutely incompetent and unfit to decide local problems for Plainfield for the simple reason that it has no knowledge of local problems or conditions to form a basis for intelligent decisions.

"People who oppose Home Rule (I mean intelligent people) simply do not understand what it means. They suppose it means that each city might do anything it wished. They fail to note that under a constitutional grant of Home Rule the legislature would still have power to pass general laws affecting all cities alike. But it would not be permitted to pass laws interfering with the local affairs of a particular city. If a matter can be legislated on for all the cities in the State it may reasonably be considered of such importance as to be a matter of State concern. The absolute prohibition of special legislation in regard to local affairs is the only restriction on the legislative power which the partisans of a reasonable measure of Home Rule demand. The proposed Constitutional amendment last winter was properly defeated because it was a carelessly conceived measure which would have left the State helpless to safeguard matters of State interest.

"The State should also have reserved to it the power to pass laws local in application, in matters of State concern.

"But the Constitution should confer a broad grant of general power to municipalities; which should be presumed to have all powers, within the general grant, not expressly denied—including the power to adopt their own charters, if approved by the voters of the community. Why should not a community frame its own organic local law. Do the representatives from the north, south, east and west portions of the State know as much about Plainfield conditions and problems as we do? Are they as well fitted as our own leading men tried by experience, to decide what machinery is best calculated to give results here? There is no objection to forms of municipal charters drafted by the legislature. But cities should not be obligated to adopt them. And by 'charter' of course I mean only the general outline for local government, namely the provisions for regulating local matters.

"This is merely a rough idea of what is meant by Home Rule. It is not an untried experiment. Constitutional self-government is given to cities in several States; and English cities do not derive their powers as to details of government, from parliament, but from ancient charters, leaving all such details to the respective localities."

Newark, Nov. 10.—John M. Rhodabeck, former agent of the State registration bureau for motor vehicles, will be tried today on the charge of embezzling $1,307 of the funds of the State. MASTER BUILDERS SEEK PROTECTION Decide to Join the State Manufacturers' Ass'n for Liability Insurance.

CUTS RATE IN HALF

By This Method Local Bosses Will Save 30 Per Cent.—Dispute Between Masters and Hodcarriers Still Pending.

The Master Builders' Association of this city at a meeting last night, after a full discussion, decided to join the insurance company which was started some time ago by the master builders of Newark, as a protection against the provision of the State employers' liability law. The company formed by the Newark master builders has been a success. It was capitalized at $100,000 and has been able to cut the rate of liability insurance one-half in Newark.

Later it was decided to form a State body known as the Manufacturer's Association and since then arrangements have been made whereby all the Master Builders' Associations of New Jersey may join the State organization.

By this method the master builders will be able to save between 25 and 35 per cent. on the cost of their liability and it was decided by the local association last night that here in Plainfield there would be a saving of about 30 per cent. Insurance that formerly cost $1.50 can be secured at a $1 rate. The question of liability insurance has been a perplexing problem to the Plainfield master builders because of the high rates charged and by joining the State association it will help to solve the question to a large extent.

The local association has a membership of about ninety and one new member was elected last night. At an early meeting it is expected that Secretary Williams, of the State association, will be present and explain in detail the workings of the insurance company.

The master masons have not yet reached an agreement with the hodcarriers. It is the contention that union wages should be paid for such work as hodcarriers do, but that it should not be paid to that class of labor that carries materials to a concrete mixer or is employed in digging trenches, which does not require skilled help. The masters claim that this is the whole matter in dispute and they can see no reason why the hodcarriers should insist on the union rate for that kind of labor mentioned.

One of the masters said today that there had never been any dispute over paying the union scale to hodcarriers who are employed as such and the bosses believed that they were entitled to the present wage. No doubt a conference between the masters and the hodcarriers will be held soon in another effort to settle the dispute.

FREDERICK W. STACK SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS

After a lingering illness Frederick William Stack, aged 44 years, of 508 Watchung avenue, died yesterday. The funeral services will be held tomorrow at noon in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where the burial will be made in the family burial plot.

Mr. Stack, who was a son-in-law of the late Mayor George W. Rockafeller, had lived in Plainfield for twenty years and was prominent in Masonic circles. He was a member of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., a member of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., and affiliated with Mecca Temple, of New York city.

Besides his widow, Mr. Stack is survived by one son, Earl, at home, and his mother, who lives in Poughkeepsie.

INTEREST CONTINUES IN MONROE CHURCH REVIVAL

Interest in "Win-my-Chum" evangelistic services in the Monroe Avenue M. E. church has been well maintained during the week.

George Horne, of Plainfield, spoke very earnestly last evening on the "Christian's Reliationship to God." Tonight the Japanese evangelist, Rev. K. S. Hiraide, of Drew Seminary, Madison, will be the speaker. Mr. Hiraide is a very forceful speaker and has been engaged in evangelistic work in both Japan and the United States, and will soon return to Japan.

Tomorrow night, J. D. Loizeaux will be the speaker. It will be the Sunday school night.

VERDICT OF $3,000 AGAINST LOCAL MEN

Austin and Lipscomb Must Pay for Breaking Orchard Contract.

Newark, Nov. 11.—John De P. Schench, of Philadelphia, was awarded damages in the amount of $3,000 by a jury in the United States District Court here yesterday afternoon in his suit against W. T. Austin and C. E. Lipscomb, both of Plainfield.

The case grew out of a contract between the three men and a fourth party in Oregon for the purchase of an orchard. At the time this contract was made Schench was working for the two men in Plainfield. He was to buy a fifth interest in the orchard and the total purchase price was to have been $49,000.

Because of developments over a title to the land and a blighting of the crop the contract was not carried out, and Schench sued for $10,000, claiming that he had lost that much through failure of his partners to carry out the contract. It was proven in court that the sale had been called off by R. G. Wilson, acting as agent for Austin and Lipscomb, and that the property had been sold since for $65,000.

After deliberating one hour and one-half the jury decided that Schench had lost $3,000 because of the broken contract and he was given a verdict for this amount.

PLANS FOR ITALIAN MISSION DISCUSSED

Ways and Means Committee Authorized to Secure Suitable Site.

The congregation of the First Presbyterian church met last night, and following the organization of a ways and means committee, of which Grove P. Hinman is the chairman, authorized that committee to proceed with the collection of funds to provide a suitable place for the work of the Italian Mission.

This matter has been under advisement for some time, the church contributing regularly to the work being carried on among the Italians of the city. Sometime ago a lot in the East End was donated for the purpose of erecting a house of worship thereon, but the location was not considered suitable. It is now proposed to find a site that will be adapted for the purpose.

The Italians who are identified with this work have already given about $200 toward a fund of $1,300 on hand. After the site is chosen steps will be taken to erect a building.

ASYLUM GUARD GETS SENTENCE FOR MURDER

Kicked Patient to Death for Turning Over Dining Table.

Somerville, Nov. 11.—Frederick C. Holbrook, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the Somerset County Court yesterday afternoon, before Justice Charles H. Parker, was sentenced to from two to ten years in State's Prison.

Holbrook was an attendant at the State Epileptic Asylum located at Skillman, when William Van Riper, a patient, died from injuries received at the hands of Holbrook.

Former Prosecutor F. A. Pope, in presenting the case to Justice Parker, stated that on August 16, Holbrook rang a bell at 6 a. m. for the inmates of the Garretson Cottage to assemble in line for breakfast, after which the patients filed into the dining room.

Van Riper was in the lead and upon getting near the dining table he upset it, turning cups and plates over, after which Holbrook grabbed him and forced him into the hall. Van Riper fell down and grabbed Holbrook around the legs. Holbrook kicked his legs loose and picked Van Riper up and got him into a room, placing him on a bed.

About 7 o'clock that evening Holbrook started on a few days' leave and while he was away Van Riper died. Holbrook returned and was arrested, charged with murder.

Prosecutor A. M. Beekman stated that he had no objection to the plea being accepted as the State would probably not be able to convict Holbrook, having to rely on the testimony of patients.

DOLLIVER DOES NOT ASK REAPPOINTMENT

Borough Clerk Will Retire to Law Practice—Other Changes.

Because of pressing personal business, Charles M. Dolliver, the popular clerk of the borough of North Plainfield, will not accept re-appointment to that office January 1, and Mayor-elect Smalley is looking around for his successor.

Mr. Dolliver has held the office of borough clerk for the past four years, during the term of Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., and has made an efficient official. He is engaged in the practice of law in Plainfield and is also clerk of the joint sewer board, and feels that he cannot spare further time from his law practice.

There are several candidates for the position, and Mayor-elect Smalley is giving the appointment much consideration. Frederick Martin and Frank Rowley, both of whom have held the office in the past, are understood to be in a receptive mood, as is William J. Trembath. The new mayor has not discussed the office of clerk publicly and it will not be known who he will appoint until he is ready to make an official announcement, which will be after he has taken over the duties of his new office.

The most important change to be made in the government of the borough under the new mayor will be in the department of streets. Because of his policy of economy which is to be inaugurated beginning January 1 Mayor Smalley will insist on a reduction of the salary of the street commissioner, and it is likely that he will appoint John Y. Barrett to succeed William Uhrhahn in this position. The new man is not to be given a salary, but will be paid for the work that he performs for the borough.

Many other offices in the borough are to be filled by new men after the first of the year and speculation is rife among politicians there as to who will receive the plums, but until Mr Smalley gives some intimation of his intentions no definite statement can be made.

NEW POLICE FURNITURE.

Two new pieces of furniture arrived at the local police headquarters this morning in the form of desks for Captain John J. Flynn and Lieut. Maurice Higgins. Heretofore the department officials have never had places to keep their personal papers and the new equipment will be useful as well as ornamental.

WILL INSPECT WORK.

The authorities of the Nutley High School have sent L. E. Garwood, of their history department, to inspect the work of the history department in the local High School, especially that of the first year students, which is unique.

AIRCRAFT PLANT TO LOCATE HERE

Sloane Manufacturing Co. Leases D. T. Kenney Property on North Avenue.

BUSINESS INCREASING

Owing to Big War Orders Concern is Forced to Seek Larger Quarters—Change to Be Made Within a Week.

Big orders received recently for aeroplanes has compelled the Sloane Manufacturing Company, which has been located at Bound Brook, to seek larger quarters and announcement was made today that this concern has rented the factory formerly occupied by the Kenney Vacuum Cleaning Company, on North avenue, through the agency of the State Trust Company. Since locating in this vicinity the Sloane Company has attracted wide attention and Plainfield is fortunate in having it come to this city, inasmuch as an increasing number of men will be given employment as the plans develop.

The machine constructed by this firm has great stability, as well as power in the air, and is considered one of the advanced types of aeroplanes. Some of the officials from the United States government, and also representatives from some of the governments of Europe, have witnessed the many tests conducted at Bound Brook and all have expressed themselves as being well pleased with the machines. One aeronautical engineer who witnessed a recent test said he considered it an exceptional machine, and one from which much might be expected.

The aeroplane manufactured by the Sloane people is a combination of two types, the monoplane body, with biplane wings. The body resembles the motor-speed boats in shape with the six-cylinder motor well forward. From each cylinder exhaust pipes of an inch and a half in diameter and eighteen inches in length extend, while two radiators are built on the side and in front of the driver's seat. Directly in back of the driver's seat is a second opening for a passenger, as the biplane is built to carry two persons. The consumption of gasoline and lubricating oil is about the same as the big motor of a racing car. It is forty-two feet in width and fifty feet in length. It weighs 1,750 pounds, and attains a speed of eighty-two miles an hour.

VITAPHONE COMPANY ENJOYS PROSPERITY

Local Concern Rushed With Orders and Will Enlarge Its Plant Here.

A large volume of business due partly to the aggressive management and partly to the merits of the product, the Vitaphone Company's plant near the Netherwood station is an unusually busy place at present. All departments are working at full capacity and if the present increase of business continues it will be impossible to delay much longer the additions to the plant which have been in contemplation for some time.

The Vitaphone Company occupies a site of three acres and the plant consists of a number of one-story buildings constructed to exactly fit the work for which they were intended, light, convenience and comfort of the employes being prime considerations in their plan. The company has its own electric power plant for both lighting and motive purposes. In every way the plant is complete but is rapidly becoming inadequate to meet the demands of growing business.

Plans are already completed for the erection of an additional building 60x170 ft. to be used for housing the machines. Ground will be broken for this building within a few days. Other improvements are in the directors' minds but they have not yet assumed definite shape.

When asked if the war in Europe had any effect on the business an official of the company declared that he doubted if it had any appreciable effect, but that the growing demand for the vitaphone was due to the satisfaction it is giving.

Special features no doubt account for the growing demand for the machine, which has resulted in the business outgrowing the capacity of the plant and making a material increase of capacity an immediate necessity.

Clarence Frone, of Clinton, has returned home after visiting friends in this city for a few days.

Miss Eva Davis, of Plainfield, is the guest of Mrs. John Hall, of Whitehouse, for a few days.

COPS' ANNUAL BALL BROKE ALL RECORDS

Annual Event Held Last Night Set a Precedent for Fine Entertainment.

Entertainment of a varied and enjoyable nature was provided "at the coppers' ball," conducted in the Columbus Club auditorium last night by the members of the Plainfield branch of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association. The affair was attended by five hundred guests, many of whom came from nearby places such as Westfield, Cranford, Rahway, Dunellen, Somerville, Bound Brook, Elizabeth, Newark and New Brunswick. Included in the assemblage that packed the big auditorium were city officials from Plainfield and the borough including Councilmen A. D. Edgar, Charles Graves, John Cose, Francis J. Blatz, George S. Clay and Richard A. Claybrook.

The Plainfield department was largely represented, Chief P. S. Kiely heading the delegation. Erwin Neighbour presided over the culinary department and refreshments were dispersed by Patrolmen Roy E. Martin, Fred Bader and John Neylon. Patrolman Arthur McGinley had charge of the door, Patrolman Welsh checked hats and Lieut Maurice Higgins managed the dance floor, having as his assistant Court Clerk John Rinehart. Sergeant Dennis O'Keefe headed the reception committee and was assisted by Patrolman Martin Flatley.

Excellent music, furnished by Anderson's orchestra, of Newark, was a pleasing feature of the evening's program, the major portion of the guests participating in this part. In the basement of the club tables were laid for refreshments and the two bowling alleys were turned over to the patrolmen and their friends.

The auditorium was tastefully and appropriately decorated for the occasion with bunting, cut flowers and palms. The rostrum on which the musicians were seated was a veritable bower of autumnal foliage and P. B. A. emblems. So successful was the event that those in charge claim it to be the best ever held under the association's auspices. The selection of the spacious Columbus Club for the celebration was a pleasing innovation and one that came in for a wealth of favorable commendation.

One of the novelties that attracted attention was the dedication of the musical numbers of city officials and police department members.

DEATH UNDER TRAIN ENDS MIXED ROMANCE

White Man Who Married Rich Negro Widow Instantly Killed.

Somerville, Nov. 11.—One of the strangest romances that has ever been known to the residents of Somerset county was ended here this morning when Alfred Archibald, aged 89 years, was run over and killed by a Pennsylvania train near New Brunswick.

Archibald had been living in Somerville with his negro wife since he first came to this city seven years ago. He was traveling with an itinerant circus and during the evening performance he fell in love with a negro named Hall, the widow of a rich colored citizen. Archibald quit the show to pay court to his dusky love and so well did he plead his cause that the next morning the two started out to find someone who had authority and would unite them in marriage. They called on every recorder in the city but none would officiate. They finally found a recorder in Bound Brook who united them. That night a band of negro admirers of the woman, indignant over the act of the white man, called at his new-found home and beat him. He recovered and has lived quietly with the woman until yesterday afternoon, when he took $50 and started out for a good time. His celebration was ended this morning by the accident which resulted fatally.

GAMBLERS' FIGHT COST THEM DEARLY

Two Colored Men Pay Heavy Fines When Arraigned in City Police Court.

That crap shooting does not pay was the admission of William McNeal, colored, of West Third street, who was fined $50 by Judge DeMeza in the city police court this morning after being found guilty of assault and battery committed upon one Thomas Johnston. The victim was also arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct for his part in the feud and was fined $20 with the option of spending forty days at Elizabeth.

According to the story told in court this morning Johnston and McNeal became involved in an argument over money matters following a gambling game in the house owned by William Mosely on West Third street. McNeal, in defending himself against the punches of Johnston, who is of herculean stature, drew a penknife and slashed widely at his adversary. Johnston's clothes were cut to shreds and he sustained bad gashes in the wrist and cheek. Following the scuffle, which occurred last Saturday night, McNeal fled and was caught by the police of Westfield. Johnston had sufficiently recovered to appear in court today. Francis J. Blatz, of the local law firm of Codington and Blatz, represented McNeal.

A Galley o' Fun!

ALWAYS.

Time haunted her. She laughed at him, she resorted to a thousand devices whereby to discomfort him, but he was not to be shaken off. At length she lost her temper.

"Can't you see," she flared out reckontantly, "that there's no room for you where beauty dwells?"

"There is always," Time rejoined, touching his scythe significantly, "room for one mower!"

PROGRESS.

"The clowns nowadays are a great deal more accomplished than they used to be."

"Yes, indeed! When I was a boy, a clown needed nothing but a make-up and an almanac."

THE CROSSED FINGERS.

He swore that her kiss was the first he had had;
But his fingers were crossed!
He'd kissed but his mother, when he was a lad—
Yes, his fingers were crossed!
He vowed that not only he'd ne'er had a taste
Of quivering lips, but that no other waist
Had ever been clasped by his arm
Then in haste
His two fingers he crossed!

The speller he gave her he'd purchased that day
But his fingers were crossed!
No previous maiden had worn it—nay, nay!
But his fingers were crossed!
And never, so long as his life should endure,
Would eye, cheek, or lip of another maid lure.—
He knew it.—past every doubt he was sure.—
But his fingers were crossed!

She listened to all of the guff he had said
While his fingers were crossed!
She laid on his bosom her wise little head
While his fingers were crossed!
She answered so low that the famed "little bird"
Who peddles sweet secrets could scarcely have heard
As she breathed, "Oh, my love, I believe every word!"
But HER fingers were crossed!

TEMPERAMENT IN FOLLY.

The fool, in his heart, saith a number of things. Suppose he happens to be a phlegmatic fool, with a fondness for luxury.

"I do not care," saith he, in that case, "to go out into the damp, chill woods, and mistake a toadstool for a mushroom. I much prefer to get up in the night, in my comfortable flat and drink out of the wrong bottle."

THE MUSCULAR TEST.

Oh! for the days that are no more,
When, clad from head to heel,
And even on their hands men wore
Dress fabrics made of steel.

I wish I had then lived, alas!
So I could firmly stand
And give the laugh to some young lass
Who tried to grip my hand.

—Those accustomed to getting SERVICE from the classified columns would consider it a very foolish thing to do to pay too much rent, either for a store, a house, an apartment or a furnished room.

PLAINFIELDER'S INVENTION NOW SOUNDING EVERYWHERE

Wilbert T. Bintliff, of this city, has received word that all Ford automobiles now being turned out of the Ford factory are equipped with the electric signal horn which Mr. Bintliff patented about a year ago. A consignment of the cars coming to this city the past week had the horns on them and the familiar tone is now to be heard all over the country. The device, which can be used only on a Ford machine through its being attached to the magneto, is made by the Bridgeport Brass Company, and its first order was for 300,000. Mr. Bintliff receives a royalty on each horn and has been notified by the Ford company that it will probably use 500,000 next year.

Mr. Bintliff, who is employed by the Laing Auto Company, has invented a number of automobile devices, all of which have proved successful and are being extensively used. He is also an authority on marine motors and has built several speed boats which have made marine records.

MISS MEAD AN OFFICER OF NORTHFIELD ASSOCIATION

The way in which young women who attend the summer conferences at Northfield, Mass., seek to pass on the spiritual help and the practical suggestions received there in their own communities was learned Tuesday afternoon at the first of three business meetings of the year held by the New Jersey Northfield Association in the Newark Y. M. C. A. building. The session comprised the election of officers, discussion of business plans and an address by Miss Helen Carlton, of Westfield. Miss Caroline Moore, of Elizabeth, the retiring president, was in charge.

Miss Dorothy Dennis, of Morristown, who has served as secretary, was unanimously elected to succeed Miss Moore, who organized the association three years ago, and has been its only president. Others elected were: Secretary, Miss Katherine Vaute, and treasurer, Miss Henrietta Finckel, both of Montclair. The vice-presidents comprise the branch leaders as follows: Elizabeth, Miss Henrietta Halsey; Englewood, Miss Ruth Oliphant; Fanwood and Scotch Plains, Miss Elizabeth Babcock; Jersey City, Mrs. Harry Louderbough; Montclair, Miss Gladys Frost; Morristown, Miss Mildred Eddy; Orange, Miss Mary Kilbourne; Plainfield, Miss Margaret Mead; Princeton, Miss May Erdman; Ridgewood, Miss Ethel Boyd, and Summit, Miss Hilda Frost.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Not content with giving away diamond rings, watches, household goods and many other valuable articles, at the Friday night "Country Store" at the Plainfield Theatre, Manager Shannon now proposes to go himself one better. At tomorrow night's store he is going to donate a horse to some lucky patron. It will not be an ordinary slow-going worn out animal, but a genuine thoroughbred racer, brought from the blue grass region of Kentucky especially for the purpose. The horse is registered under the name of "Tornado," and those who keep posted on track affairs will recall that he has won many races within the past five years. He captured the American Turfmen's $10,000 handicap at Latonia during the big meet of 1913. "Tornado" has a record of two minutes on the flat and can do it almost any time.

Announcement that this valuable thoroughbred would be given away absolutely free to some patron of the theatre attending the "Country Store" has already created a mild sensation throughout the city and Manager Shannon has been besieged with queries as to what it all means. His only reply is that it is a bonafide offer and the proof will be given at the theatre when "Tornado" will be led before the footlights and presented. If the lucky winner does not care to keep the animal he can easily sell it at a good figure as the horse can still pull down good money on the track. The offer has caused comment because nothing so valuable has ever been given away at a theatrical enterprise either in this or any other city, and Mr. Shannon's liberality is making everybody sit up and take notice.

There will be many other articles given away at tomorrow night's affair, similar to those which have been presented within the past few weeks. The awards are absolutely on the square and everybody has a chance. The new vaudeville bill for the last half of the week opens at the theatre today and as an added attraction at the performances this afternoon and tonight the third installment of the greatest moving picture comedy serial "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" is being shown.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

One of the best shows of the season is holding down the boards of Proctor's Theatre this week, and in addition to the vaudeville, which includes the "Black and White Revue," there are other specialties, including the great Chicago Tribune war pictures, showing the German side of the great battle scarred European war territory. These pictures were taken on the German fronts, and are actual pictures of the warring nation's fighting men, neither pro-German, or pro-Alley, pictures that both sides should see. The great guns that helped the German drive in Prussia, the German generals, the famous goose step, and the Kaiser among his troops are all shown clearly on the screen, in addition to the actual fighting in the trenches. These war pictures will be shown for three days, starting today. Other features on the program will be Jennings and Evers, polite colored entertainers; Ryan & Bernard, and other splendid features will make up an excellent vaudeville and feature photo-play entertainment. Toy matinee will be given as usual for the benefit of the children and the big feature film attraction for next week, the first three days, will be the famous "Carmen," one of the most sensational films that has ever been shown on the screen. Mail orders are being accepted for "The Birth of a Nation," which will be shown at this theatre November 22, 23, 24, three days. The regular seat sale will take place Thursday of next week. All seats will be reserved.

TRU-TRED SHOES

For Children

While it is important that grown folks wear Shoes, such as Tru-Treds, to insure comfort, it is more than important that children wear Shoes that insure fullest freedom to their growing feet.

Tru-Tred Shoes are built on lines that give the foot a chance to live and breathe. They permit the toes to lie side by side instead of being cramped one atop the other, and the boy or girl can romp or play in them without suffering the least discomfort.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Adv.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-know authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork they get sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and no body can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Adv.

Y. M. C. A. CONTEST TO BEGIN WITH BANQUET

All Team Members Will Meet at Dinner Tonight at 7 O'clock.

Assemblyman William N. Runyon of Plainfield, and F. A. W. Lawrenson, of New York city, are to be the principal speakers at tonight's banquet at the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. which will inaugurate the association's big six day membership contest.

Judge Runyon is actively interested in the contest, being chairman of Division A of the campaign committee. Mr. Lawrenson is business manager of Association Men, official organ of the Young Men's Christian Association, which has a circulation that reaches every corner of the world.

Many other good things are promised for those who attend the banquet, including an excellent turkey dinner. Chairman MacArt and Secretary Estes also give assurance that the dinner will be over in time for all who desire to hear the lecture of Percy H. Stewart at the Plainfield High School to reach that building before Mr. Stewart begins. This means that the dinner must begin promptly at 7 o'clock. The dinner will be prepared by Mrs. Johnson which is sufficient recommendation as to its quality.

Two new teams have been entered in the membership contest. One will represent the International Motor Company and will be called the Saurer team in the auto race, and the other will represent the Spicer Works. It will be designated as the Oakland-Spicer team. George B. Zimmer is captain of the first named and Gus Engler of the latter. Both captains will have their team members at the banquet tonight to receive instructions for the six-day contest.

This makes a total of twenty-six teams that are entered in the contest and already they are making great promises as to the results of their work, which pleases Chairman MacArt because it evidences the kind of friendly rivalry that he had tried to promote. There will be no reports from team captains tonight, although some have already received applications for membership, but tomorrow night the contest will be under way and the first of the daily reports will be received. These dinners are to be held each night during the contest excepting Sunday evening, of course and the number of points scored by each team are to be posted at each dinner, so that the standing of each in the race can be readily seen by the public at all times.

COMPANY M. FAIR ON IN SOMERVILLE ARMORY

Somerville, Nov. 11.—Company M fair opened last evening in the armory with a blast of megaphones, music and a large crowd of people. Pretty girls were in charge of the many booths and the Boy Scouts of this place assisted.

This evening is military night and Col. Horace M. Reading and staff are expected, also Brigadier General Nelson Y. Dungan and companies from the entire Second Regiment.

Among the women who are assisting the soldier boys with the fair are: Mrs. L. C. Gaston, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. G. V. W. Voorhees, Mrs. Cleaj, Miss Elvin and Mrs. J. D. Case.

General Frelinghuysen Chapter, of Somerville, and Middlebrook Chapter, of Bound Brook, D. A. R., are rendering assistance also, each having beautiful flower booths.

LEGISLATORS TO ATTEND TRADE BOARD MEETING

Union County's representatives in the Legislature—Senator Carlton B. Pierce and Assemblymen Charles L. Morgan, William N. Runyon, of this city, and Arthur N. Pierson—have been invited to attend the "legislation" meeting of the Elizabeth Board of Trade tonight.

At this meeting there will be opportunity to suggest any legislation that the members think should be considered at the coming session of the Legislature. Ideas may be advanced as to the desirability of changes in existing laws on such subjects as employers' liability, mechanics' lien laws, taxation and other important matters.

The New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, through its commercial, agricultural and civic federation, has asked commercial organizations in the State to devote their November meetings to the consideration of new laws, and various suggestions forwarded to the trustees of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce will be by them considered, to the end that whatever recommendations seem desirable may be made in the name of the State chamber, and with the weight of the united commercial organizations of the State back of them.

William Hamlin Childs, a director of the Tariff Commission League, will give a talk on the work of that organization.

UNION AND SOMERSET COUNTIES SHOW DECREASE

According to reports issued by the State authorities at Trenton, the total assessment on bank stock this year is approximately $89,000,000 compared with $94,173,459 last year, or a decrease of $5,600,000.

This decrease is made up from among ten counties, among the number being Union and Somerset. The decrease in Union is $1,012.78 and in Somerset the loss is $414.65.

The total bank taxes this year in the three counties are as follows: Union, $28,394.22; Somerset, $4,163.70; Middlesex, $18,326.50.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Denver, Colo.—The first white woman to cross Death Valley, in southwestern California, is Mrs. Marius R. Campbell, wife of one of the leading scientists of the U. S. Geological Survey. Every summer Mrs. Campbell closes her home in Washington and goes out into the wilds with her husband, following him on every step of his journeys into remote places. She has just told of the thrilling experiences she met while crossing Death Valley. The place is the lowest known spot in the United States, being 350 feet below the sea level. In summer the heat reaches 130 degrees. The water holes are few and far between. Mrs. Campbell went through the oft-told agonies of the desert, when she and her husband were victimized by a mirage. They could see before them a wonderful lake, with cool, rippling water. The party was short of water and eagerly rushed forward with canteens when the mirage disappeared.

New York.—Mrs. Alexander Grinager is designing the wedding gown and trousseau for Mrs. Norman Galt, who is soon to be the bride of President Wilson. She was formerly a Minneapolis girl, and she married a prominent artist. Her hobby was designing, and her ideas are much sought after by wealthy women.

Chicago.—Women interested in landscape gardening and farm and garden work gathered at the Art Institute yesterday for the formation of a Chicago chapter of the Women's National Horticultural and Agricultural Association. The women gardeners are an enthusiastic body, and they have already planned to cooperate with the men gardeners in a flower festival. The president of the national association, Mrs. France King, of Alma, Mich., attended the meeting yesterday.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Through the liberality of Mrs. Helen Nielson Morison, of New York, the Minneapolis Institute of Arts is in possession of the baptismal robe of Gustavus Adolphus, the national hero of Sweden. The robe has been in the Morison family for 76 years. Like the fame of the great man whose infant form it sheltered, the robe is firm and unbroken after the lapse of 321 years.

Montreal.—The right of woman to enter examinations for the practice of law in the Province of Quebec has been denied by the Court of King's Bench, in dismissing the appeal of Mrs. Annie Langstaff, who asked for a write of mandamus compelling the Bar Association to admit her to the examination. In turning down Mrs. Langstaff, and putting up the shutters to bar the women from practice of law, Justice Trenholme, who voiced the opinion of the majority of the judges in appeal, said in part:

"By her sex alone, woman has always been excluded from this profession. It is on that ground alone that we think the appeal should be dismissed. The contention that the masculine gender in the statutes includes the feminine as well does not hold good here. Under French and English law alike, tradition is against the study of law by woman." Justice Lavergue made a stand in favor of women, but he was alone against four other learned justices. "So far as I am concerned," he declared, "Women would be welcome in all learned professions in the Province of Quebec."

San Francisco.—The "American war baby of Tsing Tau", whose first recognizance of life included the fire of artillery and the explosion of bombs on the far China shore, recently arrived at San Francisco with its parents. She is little Damaris Peck, daughter of W. A. Peck, American Consul at Tsing Tau, and Mrs. Peck, who brought her back to American soil. Although less than two years old, the child is the veteran of the famous siege of Tsing Tau by the Japanese, one of the most notable events of the war in the Far East. When the attack began, shells fell near the American consulate, and Mrs. Peck took the child into the basement. A shell clipped a hole in the American flag over the consulate, and another struck near the building, but the "war baby" was uninjured.

"Faith In Ourselves"

The world has faith in the man who has faith in himself. Likewise it has faith in the store that has faith in itself.

For a store to have faith in itself, it must sell better things than its contemporaries; it must throw every good thing away for a better one; it must close the door on everything that savors of "fogeyism" and condition of mind which believes in the old and shuns the new.

Such, we believe, is the store we lend our name to—a store far in advance of the usual shops that sell 'THINGS MEN WEAR.'

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"Kindling," a filmization of the drama of the same name by Edward Kenyon, in which Margaret Illington appeared last season, will be the photo-dramatic feature today at the U. S. Astor Theatre with Charlotte Walker, now supporting E. H. Southern, in the leading role. "Kindling" lifts the curtain on conditions in the slums of a great city and shows the circumstances under which the thousands of children are reared. There is a story of crime and romance interwoven and the swiftly moving plot holds the interest steadily. It is one of the photo-dramatic triumphs of the season and not the least interesting feature will be the acting of Miss Walker. Tomorrow's feature attraction will be "The Rugmaker's Daughter," with Maude Allan in the leading role. Miss Allan, who is one of the foremost dancers in America, will have frequent opportunity to dance.

MERCHANTS FEAST EMPLOYES.

Somerville, Nov. 11.—Somerville merchants entertained their employes last evening in royal fashion. After a reception to the employes a delightful entertainment was furnished by Kenney and Dunworth, of New York. Refreshments were served and later dancing was enjoyed by many couples.

Reading Character

is always interesting, but a study of a tradesman's business character as indicated by his advertising is even more interesting and always profitable.

Just glance over the advertisements in the Plainfield Daily Press of the merchants whose places you know.

Does not the merchant write his store character into his advertising? Is it not possible to form a pretty good idea of the store from the manner in which it makes its announcements in the newspapers?

Merchants are coming to realize more and more that when they write an advertisement they are painting a business portrait of themselves—indicating their business character.

They are more careful in their statements, more modest in their language and pay more attention to typography and illustration.

Advertising is prepared now-a-days more carefully than ever before and there is more of it every day.

And by the same token it is going to be more interesting and profitable to the readers.

URGES MEASURES TO SAFEGUARD SECRETS

Solicitor of Government Department Submits Amendment to Defense Act.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The necessity of the enactment of laws to safeguard naval secrets instructed to contractors who manufacture munitions is urged by Graham Egerton, solicitor of the Navy Department, in his annual report made public today. He announces that he purposes to submit amendments to the espionage act, passed in 1911, the effect of which would be to impose heavy penalties upon contractors divulging United States naval secrets to other powers.

He explains that the existing law does not prevent contractors from divulging part of the information relative to the manufacture of machine of war, and it is the purpose to safeguard all of this information.

The solicitor also discusses the policy of the department in lending navy cutters and other naval property to Boy Scout organizations. This action has not been authorized by Congress, but it is believed to have been warranted by a broad interpretation of existing law. Concerning the wireless litigation the solicitor says:

"The litigation arising out of the injunction proceedings instituted by the National Electric Signalling Company and the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America against the Atlantic Communication Company, to which reference was made in the last report, has progressed in a way that appears to be favorable to the Atlantic Communication Company and the department, but the court has not rendered its decision.

"It is regarded as not at all unlikely that yet other legal proceedings will follow from time to time against the company named above, and others as well, that the department now has or may later make contracts with, so that it will probably be some time before the department's hands are free of litigation over this prolific subject."

SEE COLLAPSE OF VILLA.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The complete collapse of the opposition to the constitutional government in Mexico was indicated today in despatches to the State Department telling of 1,500 Villa troops deserting their leader and crossing the border to Naco, Arizona.

WAR SECRETARIES ATTEND RECEPTION

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—The New Jersey building was the scene of a pretty dance last week when the secretaries of the State and Foreign Commissions were allowed the use of the building to entertain their friends. The secretaries selected the New Jersey building as the best and most hospitable among all the State buildings. An instance which happened yesterday will serve to illustrate the general opinion held of the home State building. Yesterday a lady was taken ill on the grounds and her condition became so serious that a companion sent for an ambulance to take the patient to the Emergency Hospital. As the ambulance hurried up and stopped at the small crowd assembled, the sick woman saw it and exclaimed, "Oh, I don't want to go to that place—take me to the New Jersey building, where I will be well taken care of."

Prosecutor Robert S. Hudspeth, of Jersey City, president of the New Jersey Commission, is the resident commissioner in charge of the building at present. He is delighted with the beauties and wonders of the exposition and the hospitality of the people of San Francisco. Several luncheons and dinners have been given in his honor and most of the prominent men have called on him. The Plainfield guests who registered during the week were: Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Van Mater, A. V. Honeyman and A. R. Van Mater.

BRITAIN WILL BE ASKED TO EXPLAIN

American Ambassador Instructed to Make Proper Inquiry Abroad.

Washington, Nov. 11.—That the American steamship Zealandia, which was searched by a British landing party while she was at anchor in a Mexican port was armed for belligerent purposes, may be the justification which the British government will offer for the act, it is suggested here today.

Mere suspicion, however, is not considered by officials as sufficient ground for such action and a formal request has been transmitted by the United States government to the British officials for information and explanation of the case. The American Ambassador, Mr. W. H. Page has been instructed to make the inquiry through the Foreign Office.

A report from the American Consul, Mr. John W. Germon, at Progreso, stated that the Zealandia was forcibly searched by men from a British cruiser now lying outside the harbor, presumably waiting to seize the vessel.

In the absence of complete data State Department officials were not inclined to comment on the case, but it was indicated that it might develop new points in the neutrality situation, prompting Mexico as well as the United States, to enter protest to Great Britain.

The Zealandia left the United States for Tampico and was reported to have hoisted a German flag at sea. Though this was denied by the owners. She is said to have a German crew aboard and a cargo of rosin consigned to Sweden.

PROTECT TRAINS OF WAR OIL BY ARMED GUARDS

Richmond, Cal., Nov. 11.—An express train with an armed guard carrying 750,000 gallons of petrol to fill war orders, will leave here for New York every twenty-four hours until the Panama Canal is re-opened for traffic, according to an announcement today by officials of the Standard Oil Company. The first train is to leave today over the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, with the right of way over all other traffic and with a time limit for the trip of sixty-eight hours.

The trains will consist of twenty-five cars, each carrying 30,000 gallons of petrol and each train protected by an armed guard.

BIG STEAMSHIPS ARE FREED FOR SERVICE

Montreal, Que., Nov. 11.—More normal conditions on the Pacific Ocean are demonstrated by the news that the Canadian Pacific steamship line steamships the Empress of Asia, the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Japan have been released by the British Admiralty and are now being refitted for passenger and freight business at Hong Kong. They will re-enter commercial service between Vancouver, Manila, Japan and China at an early date.

THE RAISING OF MILCH GOATS IS PROVING A PROFITABLE INDUSTRY IN THIS CITY

Prize Nubian Goat Owned by Fred C. Lounsbury

With the prevalent foot and mouth disease attacking cattle and tuberculosis condemning to destruction whole herds throughout the country, to those familiar with the subject, it seems surprising that the raising of milch goats as an industry is not more generally engaged in, particularly near the centers of population where the milk supply is scarcely equal to the demand.

Goats are impervious to attacks of foot and mouth disease; they are immune from tuberculosis, while diseases of any kind make but little headway with them. The milk of a goat is far richer in nourishment and more easily digested than that of the cow, which goat meat is recognized in Europe as a staple food and in recent years is becoming generally used in the West, thousands of these animals being slaughtered for food annually in Kansas City and Chicago alone.

To use the words of a well known authority on these animals, a goat is the equal of a cow. It weighs about one-eighth of a bovine; takes about one-eighth the trouble to care for them and one goat will produce, at least, one-eighth as much milk as a good cow. In the cost of maintenance the goat is less than one-eighth, for eleven goats can be maintained on what it would cost to keep the cow. The first year of milking a goat will yield about two quarts a day, while after that the yield will be about four quarts, and when all its hay and other feed is purchased the cost of a goat is about $1.25 a month, average throughout the year.

Fred C. Lounsbury, of 129 Plainfield avenue, this city, has a herd of about eighteen of the Nubian or Anglo-Nubian goats, with which he has already demonstrated that even on a small scale goat raising is a profitable industry. Several years ago Mr. Lounsbury was afflicted with stomach trouble and the beneficial results of drinking goat's milk caused him to become interested in goats as a field for research and experiment, and the results have far exceeded his expectations.

Mr. Lounsbury's most valued specimen is a pure registered Nubian buck, Abou Ben Adhem, No. 409 A. M. G. R. A., as shown in the illustration above. This buck was secured by Mr. Lounsbury from California, after much trouble and considerable expense. He measures 36½ inches in height at the shoulder, weighs 211 pounds and is perfect in every way, while he is also practically odorless. He is valued at from $200 to $300.

In speaking to a Daily Press reporter on the goat question, Mr. Lounsbury said:

"I am surprised at the small extent to which these small milk machines are used in the United States compared to all other parts of the civilized world. I am certain that this is due largely to prejudice. To the average person the goat is typified by the lean lanky goat of our boyhood days, which wandered about the outskirts of cities and towns picking a precarious existence from garbage piles, backyards and an occasional raid on the neighbors' gardens.

"But the goats of Swiss or Nubian blood, bred for generations for their milk production, is as far ahead of the old-time highway goat as is the blooded Holstein above the old brindle cow of a couple of generations ago. This improvement is gradually overcoming the prejudice against the goat.

"Of course, there is no danger of the goat ever supplanting the cow in producing milk in the enormous quantities required for commercial purposes, but for a supply of milk in limited quantities, where quality is the first consideration, it is without competition. The milk is non-tuberculous and it can be digested by the weakest stomachs, for the reason that the butter fat is in much smaller globules than in cow's milk, hence it is more readily assimilated. Then the goat is a veritable pocket edition of the cow bound in goat skin. While gardens on the outskirts of cities are a part of almost every home, a farm would be out of the question. Just so with the goat. It can be kept in small quarters at a slight expense where a cow would be too cumbersome and would eat her head off.

"One stumbling block in the way of goat raising is that while the does of all breeds are odorless the bucks are usually extremely fragrant. But this is not so with the Nubian. Bucks of this variety are practically odorless. Besides this the Nubian is a great producer of milk richer by far than that of any other breed of goats, the does mature young and mate all the year, whereas other varieties usually mate only in the fall.

Mr. Lounsbury says that his search for a buck entirely free from odor was fruitless until he succeeded in securing Abou Ben Adhem. This animal, who was born April 1, 1911, is practically odorless.

He says that it is entirely practical for every householder with a spacious back yard to keep a goat for the production of all the milk required by a good-sized family at a cost less than half that now paid daily for a quart of cow's milk. He says that he expects, within a few years, to see goat raising general throughout the country and when this comes to pass it will materially reduce the cost of living for families in which there are a number of children, while it will greatly improve the health of infants and smaller children.

"MILITARY NECESSITY."

We have heard a great deal of "military necessity" within the past few months and some of us are beginning to understand the real significance of the term.

When the Germans invaded Belgium they excused their act of wanton cruelty and the inhuman destruction of this brave nation and its people by the explanation that it was a "military necessity." England is now playing the pirate on the open sea and when an American ship, carrying an American cargo to a neutral port is seized, John Bull smilingly admits that it is without precedent but that "military necessity" forced his action.

All the teachings of civilization have been set aside, the solemn treaties of the Hague have been violated and international agreements have been broken—all this in the name of "military necessity."

Military necessity means nothing more than "anything to win." In his address before members of the Men's Club, of the Crescent Avenue church, Tuesday evening, Dr. W. L. Saunders said that every barbaric act recorded in history from the time of Attala the Hun had been duplicated and intensified in the present war, by one nation or the other, and excused by "military necessity."

"International law doesn't exist; it never has existed save as a fiction and a fancy. It has its only existence in the minds of a few gentlemen, of whom I am one, who call themselves international lawyers, who by lengthy polemics try to attract attention."

This was the deliberate and solemn confession of Prince Larovich Hrebelianovich, the Serbian diplomat, in an address in Pittsburgh this week, before the Twentieth Century Club.

It is a candid admission from one who has been in the places where the knowledge is sure that the rulers of the world have been dealing in counterfeits, in tricks, in falsities, in deceptions, in an effort to maintain their rulerships and the subjection of the ruled.

Is there not a lesson in this for every American citizen? It strips nations of all their honor—their boasted integrity. It leaves the United States protected from attack, from the invasion of a foreign ruler greedy for territory, only by a flimsy veil of hypocrisy called international honor, which may be thrown back at any time to reveal that modern monster, "military necessity."

MORE DIRTY POLITICS.

One of the reasons why it is difficult to get good men to run for public office came out of Trenton yesterday in a story of the frame-up against Judge William N. Runyon for speaker of the assembly. It is admitted even by those who are aligned against him that Judge Runyon is the best qualified man in the assembly for the speakership, yet the indications are that he will be defeated by a political frame-up, the whole purpose of which is to satisfy some man's greed for power. Is it any wonder that men who are really big enough to hold office refuse to mingle in public life when they are continually brought to face with such conditions? Judge Runyon is bigger than the men who may defeat him—bigger than the speaker's job, and he will come out of the 1916 session of the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey head and shoulders above all the others, no matter what office they may hold.

DO YOUR PART.

The campaign for new members of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., which is to be launched tonight, will be a success if each of the team members does the part that is assigned to him conscientiously. No matter how insignificant that part may seem, how small its effect on the whole may appear to him, the work of every man in the organization is needed if the movement is to bear fruit. Likening the teams to automobiles and the campaign to an automobile race was a happy thought. All the skill and daring in the world can not bring an automobile winner if it has a broken part—all the power and personality of Chairman MacArt and Secretary Estes will be of no avail unless they have the hearty and constant co-operation of every man who is to play a part in the work. The campaign is in a worthy cause and it calls for noble effort.

Councilman Francis J. Blatz is an ideal man for the presidency of the Plainfield Common Council. He has been a member of that body for four years and is well equipped to preside over its sessions through experience. He has evidenced executive ability and has always been faithful to the public interests. Members of the Council would make no mistake in elevating him to the presidency.

Just as Bryan was preparing another masterful address on the folly of preparedness there came the sinking of the Ancona. Perhaps he would be converted to a sane policy of putting the United States in condition to preserve peace if he could only be persuaded to make one or two trips across the Atlantic.

There must be something divine about a man who can rise above all this babble about war long enough to figure out a new system for qualifying players in the National Amateur Golf tournament, as Mayor Caikins did.

Kitchener has been sent to India to keep down a mutiny. But the mutiny that threatens is not in India.

"CARE OF THE CHILD."

The monthly meeting of the Washington School Parent-Teacher Association was held in the school yesterday afternoon, a large attendance of members being present. Dr. H. B. Corbusier gave a talk on "The Care of the Child," and illustrated his points with a chart and screen on which he showed the deformities resulting from tuberculosis of the joints and spine. Following the address refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

COURT-MARTIAL BEGINS TODAY.

Newark, Nov. 11.—The court-martial of Capt. Charles J. Hattersley, of the Fifth Infantry, National Guard, which was recently postponed by agreement until today, will begin this morning before Major Nelson B. Gaskill, judge advocate, and the trial board. Hattersley is charged with disobedience of orders in refusing to answer questions before the brigade examining board.

I Love To Farm

I love to farm, except when there are shrubs
To shuffle 'round from terrace unto bank;
It always gives me symptoms of the blubs
To get my slippered feet all grimed and dank.

I love to farm, except when there are beds
That should be dug and filled with fertile stuff.
The women folks are feeble in their heads
And know not when a man has slaved enough.

I love to farm, excepting when the rose
And lilac bushes need be dug around.
Why should an upright man live with his nose
In close proximity to wet old ground?

I love to farm—look out, here comes the truth—
Excepting when there's any work to do.
I got fed up on farm work in my youth,
And, should somebody ask you,
I am through!

Schoolmates

Schoolmates are what most of those who claim to be, after a man has made a reputation, but were not.

Schoolmates increase as the years go by, in direct ratio to the reputation a fellow accumulates.

We know a man who went to school in three rural deestricks and one college, accumulating thus a total approximating 800 schoolmates.

Later he had pieces printed in magazines over his signature, and got into the spotlight as a lecturer, and wherever he went he had from three to eleven schoolmates.

One year he kept tally, and the list totalled 3,752 people and one tenor singer.

Everybody who had ever gone to school with any of his brothers, sisters, cousins, aunts, fathers, mothers, uncles, or anybody else whose name was the same, or began with the same letter, was his schoolmate and could prove it.

For a time he gently tried to dissuade them from the belief, but soon he gave it up.

Then he agreed with everybody who claimed it, and could fake up incidents that even the most ardent liar among them had to go some to remember with him.

Schoolmates are great institutions.

If you had a schoolmate you hated in childhood because his neck always needed washing and his nose blowing, you are supposed to love him dearly if you meet when you haven't seen him for twenty years.

We do not know why.

Neither does anybody else.

Strange as it may seem, a man may be a human skunk, a skunkette, or at least skunkoid, and yet have been one's schoolmate!

The Ignorant Dictionaryist

We find, on carefully perusing our dictionary, that the chigger "is an insect found in the West Indies and South America"! We'd just like to take that ignorant geezer who penned those false lines and stake him out, barefoot, in any one of about seven million localities in these supposed-to-be United States! As soon as he could spare the use of one of his hands for a minute or so, after getting back to wherever they make dictionaries, he would revise that definition if it was the last thing he ever did, then go on scratching.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Who Owns The Prescription?

A PRESCRIPTION is a written order from the physician to the pharmacist, which directs the pharmacist what medicines to supply and what directions he shall write upon the label. In the absence of a specific order to the contrary the druggist has no right to refill a prescription for the patient whose name appears upon it; he has no right to fill it at all for another person who fancies he has the same disease.

Of course a person has a right to copy a prescription from any source available to him and have it filled by a druggist, but when the druggist attaches some physician's name to the label who has never attended or examined the person purchasing the medicine, that is an injustice. If the prescription happens to be the wrong medicine—what is one man's medicine is often another man's poison—then it is not right to lay it up against the physician who originally wrote the prescription. Copying prescriptions is a mighty precarious habit anyway. Doctors are notoriously bad writers; their cabalistic signs and abbreviations are often misinterpreted and sometimes deplorable results follow.

The reason why formal prescriptions are written in Latin, rather than English, is that all scientific names ar in Latin. Further, Latin is a dead language which never changes; it is universal—all doctors and scientific men the world over understand more or less Latin. It is retained in prescriptions for the same reason that Latin is retained in the phraseology of the law and in the Mass of the Catholic Church. Not for the purpose of concealing the names of medicines from patients, as is sometimes alleged, for many patients know more Latin than the doctor knows.

Your prescription is yours to keep. Legally, the pharmacist who fills it must retain a copy—not the original. When he insists upon retaining the original he generally does so with the purpose of forcing you to return to his store in case the prescription is to be refilled. But the courts have declared the prescription the patient's property. So it is up to the patient to keep it if he so desires. Of course the doctor usually retains a carbon copy too, and if he deems it advisable to have the prescription refilled he can give you another copy if necessary.

The words non-repetatur written or printed on a prescription mean Let it not be repeated. When a druggist consents to refill a prescription which bears those words he is beyond the pale and unworthy of confidence.

Recently we came across a queer concoction which had a well-known physician's name on the label. We took him to task about it. He repudiated the formula—he had never prescribed anything like it in his life. Some one had copied, and some one else had recopied until the prescription had lost every original character but the doctor's name.

FOOTBALL

FOOTBALL is an effort on the part of forty-four shin guards to occupy the same place at the same time. It is classed as a game, but looks more like a clinic. It is called football because the ball is about a foot long.

It takes twenty-two men to play football and somewhere near twice that number to keep them in repair. An automobile is durability itself beside a football player. In our large colleges, the football garage is constantly filled during the Fall with football players, who have had to go into the back shop for a thorough overhauling. The chief objects used in the game beside the players, are a referee's whistle, two goal posts, a Red Cross wagon, a barrel of splints, a loud, virulent yell, a carload of flags and a few thousand rooters with brass-lined throats. A rooter is a baseball fan with a cold-weather carbureter. He can stand for hours in the snow and yell without disturbing anyone outside of his own congressional district.

The football is used in the game to locate the disturbance. Wherever the ball is, there is no more peace than there is in a love-feast with an insurgent in it. The object of the game is to take the ball down the field to the goal over, under and through the opposition without the aid of axes, saws, carving knives, battering rams or dynamite. Those who have seen a good football team in action will realize how little these things are needed anyway.

Football is not a peaceful game, because of the great objection of the team which hasn't the ball to its progress down the field. A football player is the greatest standpatter in the world. If things can't go his way he doesn't want them to go at all. Some football players are so unscrupulous as to fall down before the advancing runner and twist his ankle by getting it tangled up in their ribs. Frequently also, the man with the ball will snag himself severely on a broken bone, while going through an opponent, or will dent his head on an adversary's teeth, or will slip on a slippery face and twist his knee until he yells with pain. Because of these facts football is not considered a parlor game and is making little headway in the female seminaries.

Reach out his arm twenty-seven feet

Football is an earnest game and requires various talents. A football player should weigh 180 pounds and should have copper fastened teeth, reinforced concrete shins, a lithe, limber backbone and angle iron knees. He should also have a duplicate nose if possible. The player should be so hard that he can dent a locomotive and yet so flexible that he can emerge from beneath twenty-one men, reach out his arm twenty-seven feet and plant the ball between the goal posts. He should also be able to grab a 13-inch shell around the waist and hold it until help arrives. If possible, a football player should refrain from marriage.

Football is played mostly by collegians because by the time a man is out of college he has sense enough not to play it. An old player can be told by the quiet way in which he doesn't dodge street cars, automobiles, hoodlums and lightning. If they hit him it is their own fault, and he does not hold himself responsible for the consequences.

Views Of The Press

Motor Cars And Pedestrians

WHY anybody should think that because he is driving a motor car he is privileged to order other people out of his way, especially people on foot, is a mystery beyond solution, and yet the privilege is claimed innumerable times every day, and its assumption is made the more offensive by the peculiarly harsh and discordant sounds by means of which it is asserted. For some of the milder horns there is an occasional use that is legitimate, but these are so few and unimportant, and the improper uses are so numerous and so outrageous, that almost without question both public decency and public interest would be served if the carrying on an automobile of any implement whatever, the designed object of which was to make a noise, were prohibited by law and the law sternly enforced. The immediate effect would be to make the drivers of cars more careful, if not more considerate.

The horns in all probability cause more "accidents" than they prevent, for insolently loud as are the commands issued to pedestrians through them, obedience cannot always be as prompt as the makers of the noises expect. If the automobilists had to pick their way as other people do, they would soon learn, perforce, that there is nothing in their licenses to justify them in consulting only their own haste and convenience as they pass along the roads and streets that are the common property of us all. It is not true that every time anybody is run down by a motor car the driver of it is wholly to blame, but certainly the blame is usually his, and often he is exculpated without sufficient reason. The police, for instance, are too ready to hold him guiltless when his victim has stepped suddenly in front of his car from behind another and concealing vehicle. There is contributory negligence, of course, in such cases, but that mitigates the automobilist's responsibility without by any means abolishing it.—New York Times.

AN EMBARRASSING POSSIBILITY—WHEN PEACE COMES

People's Legal Friend

BY E. R. BRANSON

Pluvial Photography

Q. Some three or four months ago I leased a building for a photograph studio. The landlord would not fix it up any, and so I paid for the papering and painting myself. Now the roof has begun to leak in a dozen different places, and it leaks not only when it rains, but for a day or two afterward, as there is a large depression in it that catches and holds the water. So most of the water that falls on the roof pours through my skylight room where my patrons are posed for their photos. And the landlord won't fix it, or doesn't fix it. Will he be responsible for the paint and paper that I paid for that is being damaged? Will he be responsible for the ruined backgrounds caused by the leaks? Will he be responsible for the customers I lose when they refuse to sit where there is water pouring down? If he is responsible, how can I collect it? Can I hold it back from the rent money?

A. An answer to your questions must depend a great deal upon the nature of your agreement with your landlord at the time the premises were leased. A building should, of course, be made reasonably habitable and wherever a legal duty is imposed upon a person, he will be liable for all damages proximately, naturally and logically resulting therefrom. Sometimes the landlord expressly agrees, at the time the property is rented, to make all needful repairs. Sometimes the tenant expressly agrees that he will do so at his own expense. In still other cases, there is an implied agreement one way or the other. If your landlord, in view of all the facts and circumstances, was under a legal duty to you, and injury proximately followed his neglect thereof, he will be legally responsible.

Usurping A Public Road

Q. If a public road should be unlawfully closed adjoining a man's land, and a new road should be illegally laid out upon such land, or if such action should be contemplated, could one bring an injunction suit? A. Yes.

Must Be Qualified

Q. Isn't it true that one cannot be appointed or elected to a public office unless he is a duly qualified voter?

A. This is true in some states, by virtue of provisions of this character in state constitutions.

Reparation For Negligence

Q. Where one's property is damaged or destroyed by a fire, which resulted from the careless act of another person, what is the extent of the damages that may be recovered?

A. If the fire was proximately caused by such carelessness or negligence, there will be a liability and the amount of damages should be such as will afford compensation for the loss.

A Partner Withdraws

Q. I am a member of a partnership and wish to withdraw. May I do so without incurring further responsibilities as a partner? If so, what steps are necessary?

A. You should give notice, by publication, of your withdrawal. You should also give actual notice to persons who have had dealings with the firm.

Insurance On Mortgaged Property

Q. If property is mortgaged to the extent of its full value, may it be insured?

A. It is generally held that the owner may procure insurance.

United Order Of Cut-Throats

Q. If a corporation is formed for an illegal purpose, will its acts be legal? A. No.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

The Life Line

BY LAURA KIRKMAN

The Advanced Daughter

Of course we sympathize with her. She has worked so hard at school to acquire correct speech—only to go home and hear her parents murder the king's English. We are rather hesitant to brand her heartless for her repeated and not too gentle corrections of these discouraging parents. But we are not hesitant to brand her foolish, time-wasting, for making these corrections; she is looking for a flower where no seed has been planted. If these parents have never known ambition, how can they show the results of ambition? Let their daughter be thankful that she herself possesses the Great Seed, and pity, not censure, those lacking it. She's trying to out-gaze the sun.

The Idle Single Woman

Thank goodness, there are not many of her kind left—not many that consider their chances for usefulness over, because they did not marry. To-day, the average single woman keeps herself every bit as busy as her married sister. She recognizes that the reason she wanted to marry is because she longed to be of use; and that she can be of use anyway! Marriage is only one way of employing one's powers—only one career. Shall a perfectly good brain relapse into apathy because it is not used in this one particular way? The world is so full of a number of things! But the idle single woman nurses her disappointment like a spoiled child. She wants to live on pie only.

Pride At The Wheel

The Fat Ones loll in easy chairs,
The Thin get pinched for speeding.
The 'Twixt-an'-'Tweens pay jitney fares—
The lot I'm never heeding.
For—Spread the news both near and far,
To fat sect and to thin sect!—
At last I own a motor car!—
I've christened it The Insect!

Its bumps make boils with so much ease
That any modern Job'll
Grow green with envy when he sees
My cockroach automobile.
'Tis obstinate as any goat!
As humpsome as a camel!—
A cross between a motor-boat
And bathtub of enamel.

As cosy as a little clam
Dame Fortune's bound and clinched me.
Ah, 'tis the happy man I am!—
A copper nearly pinched me!
Yep! That was glory dear to me!—
And Time can never dim it!
He said the speed I traveled (Gee!)
Was 'way above the limit!

The Children's Song.

Land of our birth, we pledge to thee
Our love and toil in the days to be.
When we are grown and take our place,
As men and women with our race

Father in Heaven who lovest all,
Oh help Thy children when they call;
That they may build from age to age,
An undefiled heritage!

Teach us to bear Thy yoke in youth,
With steadfastness and careful truth;
That, in our time, Thy Grace may give
The truth whereby the nations live.

Teach us to rule ourselves alway,
Controlled and cleanly night and day;
That we may bring if need arise,
No maimed or worthless sacrifice.

Teach us to look in all our ends,
On Thee for judge, and not our friends;
That we with Thee, may walk uncowed
By fear or favor of the crowd.

Teach us the strength that cannot seek,
By deed or thought, to hurt the weak,
That, under Thee, we may possess
Man's strength to comfort man's distress.

Teach us delight in simple things,
And mirth that has no bitter springs;
Forgiveness free of evil done,
And love to all men 'neath the sun!

Land of our Birth, our Faith and Pride,
For whose dear sake our fathers died;
O, Motherland, we pledge to thee,
Head, heart and hand through the years to be.

—Rudyard Kipling.

Report Cards.

When you inquire into a child's report card be sure you consider the child's point of view before you decide the teacher is right and your child lazy, disobedient and altogether wrong. Remember your child is everything to you and only an incident in the teacher's life—one who is, after all, judging your child by a mark on a paper and not by honest effort nor temptations successfully resisted, nor difficulties overcome. It is yours to help the child to judge himself clearly and to find the weak spot only in order to make it strong. Be careful not to lose your child's confidence for a teacher's opinion or advice which may be different next month if the mark be different.

New Books For Children.

"Shoe and Stocking Stories," by Elinor Merchant. Fairy tales told a small boy while dressing. They become now and then echoes of Grimm, Carroll and Anderson and are very entertaining.

"Little Pierre and Big Peter," by Ruth Ogden, is a story of Swiss people, telling the friendship of an Alpine boy and an American physician.

"The White Caravan," by W. E. Tule. The adventures of a maltreated orphan who finally escapes from the gypsy caravan and travels through England.

"The Tom Tit Tales," "Fun in the Forest" and "The Green Tulip," all by Gilly Bear, are for children from five to eight. The last gives the life of Holland in easy language for the young reader.

"The Wishing Fairies," by Madge A. Bigham, are very satisfying tales.

"The Boy Scouts of Snow Shoe Lodge," by R. S. Holland, is instructive as well as entertaining since it gives much information about the wild creatures of the Adirondacks and contains the inevitable "wise guy."

"The King of the Flying Sledge," by Clarence Hawkes, who is himself a hero every boy admires, is an entertaining biography of a reindeer which includes men, women and children in a frozen setting in Alaska.

"Home Made Toys for Boys and Girls," by A. Neely Hall, bares all the secrets of "why the wheels go round" and "why the doll says Mama" and gives in simple language directions for constructive work.

"In the Great Wild North," by D. Lange, gives trapping and trading in the Canadian wilds at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

"The Boy With the U. S. Lifesavers," by Francis Robert Wheeler, is the story of an adventuresome boy of fourteen, which gives plenty of information about government service in the lighthouse and lifesaving. There are plenty of illustrations obtained from the government departments.

"The First Christmas, from the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Luke, in beautiful white and gold, is gotten out by the Abington Press. There are three pictures, one of the Wise Men and the deep-blue sky, and of the scene in the manger when Mary "kept all these things and pondered them in her heart." The story begins "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem ———" and goes on through the simple wonderful narrative which never loses its beauty or charm.

AGRICULTURE DAY IN OHIO.

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—Tomorrow will be "Agriculture Day" throughout the State and the blessings of nature's bounty will be observed in the schools, in rural societies and similar organizations. The State Board of Agriculture has decided to continue the State-wide spelling contest, the trips of the corn boys to the State Fair, and has endorsed the creation of boys' and girls' clubs and the federation of all local clubs into an organization in harmony with the work of the National Department of Agriculture.

HAIR TONIC NOT A MEDICINE.

New York, Nov. 11.—Hair tonic cannot be regarded as a "medicinal preparation," according to a decision rendered here by the Board of General Appraisers who settle tariff squabbles. Collector Malone classified some hair tonic as a toilet article, but the importer claimed the lower tariff rate on medicines should apply.

Playing and Picking Spring Flowers.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Proserpina Became Goddess Of Spring.

"TELL us another Greek story, please, daddy!" cried the children.

Daddy took them on his lap and began. "Once there was a beautiful young goddess whose name was Proserpina. She was daughter of Father Zeus and Demeter, and one day when she was out playing and picking spring flowers in the meadow Pluto, who is god of the world underground, saw her. He fell in love with her, stole her and carried her off to his underground kingdom, where he married her. So she really became goddess of all the underworld, you see.

"Demeter, her mother, loving her very much, hunted and hunted all over the world to find her. At last the sun god, who sees everything, told Demeter that Pluto had carried Proserpina off to the lower world. Now, it happened that Demeter had the care of grains and harvests, and in her great grief at the loss of her daughter she neglected her work. So the earth grew bare and crops withered."

"She had a big farm like Uncle Ben's," Evelyn understood.

"The gods had a meeting and decided this could not go on. So Zeus sent a messenger down to the underworld to get Proserpina. Alas, Pluto had given her a pomegranate to eat, and its seeds bound her fast to his kingdom."

"Daddy, what is a pomegranate?" cried the children.

"A beautiful red fruit, something like an apple in looks. But inside it is full of wonderful yellow seeds. I once ate one at Gibraltar," daddy explained. "At last the gods agreed to let Proserpina live one-third of the year with her husband underground if Pluto would let her live the rest of the year on earth with the people who loved and needed and missed her so much. So a very attractive messenger by the name of Hermes was sent underground to make the bargain with Pluto, who finally agreed to give his wife back to her own people all but three months of the year. So Demeter got her beautiful daughter again. Now, guess which months Proserpina stayed underground?"

The children tried and tried, but they were not very good guessers.

"The three winter months, of course!" cried daddy. "All the rest of the year, when we have Proserpina with us, we have buds and flowers and leaves and grain and fruits. So Proserpina is the goddess of spring."

"She means the seasons, doesn't she?" Jack understood.

"Yes, and when she leaves us we have winter."

"What a beautiful legend, daddy!" cried the children, hopping off to bed.

"I'm glad you like it," daddy called after them.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

A Curious Incident Arouses Julia Osgood's Suspicions.

"What were you doing here so late last night?" asked Julia Osgood as she breezed into the office. "I was out in society last night and when I saw your light I had half a notion to stop."

"My light! I don't get you. I was in the bosom of my family last night. I was in bed by eight o'clock."

"Do you honestly mean that you were not here at work last night?" Julia swung around and looked at John Sutner in surprise.

"Certainly I mean it. You imagined you saw the light. It probably was a reflection."

"Indeed it was not. I came clear to the window and intended to call to you, but the shade was drawn so low that I could only see the crack of light, so I thought I would not." She stood hat in hand looking at the floor.

"What do you suspect? You seem upset." John stared dully at her.

Julia hung up her hat, seated herself at her table and fell to work making the machine clatter. The two worked for an hour or more without speaking. Suddenly Julia shoved back her chair and came over to his desk. She was about to speak when the door squeaked and looking up they saw Tyler enter.

"We were just talking about a queer thing that I noticed last night, Mr. Tyler. I was returning home at about ten o'clock last evening when I saw a light in this office. I was just asking Mr. Sutner here if he was working last night." Tyler's eyes traveled to John's face. John shook his head.

"I was not here. I suppose the janitor was late about his work," said John, after a pause.

"Very likely," remarked Tyler. "I will have the matter looked into." He looked sharply from one to the other and left the room.

"What did he come in for?" asked Julia. "He made no errand."

"You knocked all the ideas out of his head by your information about the light. I thought it worried him."

"It couldn't have been thieves, could it? We would have heard about it before this if anything had been taken."

"Oh, surely. There is nothing wrong. The janitor was cleaning the office."

"At ten o'clock at night? Hardly!"

"I wish I trusted that Tyler," continued Julia in a low voice as she turned back to her work.

"Well, we have no money to lose. Let Jaynes do the worrying. He is a sharp business man, and a good judge of human nature. I guess it is all a matter of prejudice on our part. I hope I have not sown the seeds of suspicion in your candid nature," chaffed Sutner as she took her place at the desk again.

She tossed her head and smilingly assured him that her nature was still sweet and unspoiled, and so the matter was dropped. But the subject kept bobbing up in her mind and she would think, "What could that light have meant at ten o'clock at night? I mean to go around that way every time I am out, and the next time I see a light I shall do some investigating on my own account."

Julia's most intimate girl friend was dragged past the gloomy pile of buildings so many times that she finally rebelled and said that Julia must seek her excitement in other quarters if she wished to count her in. The subject had nearly passed out of her mind when something happened that recalled her old suspicions.

Live News From All Branches of Winter Sports

Scattered Sport Gleanings

Saturday's Cricket Field bill should prove the one best bet of the local football season. Reports have it that the Wyoming sailors will bring 500 tars to Plainfield to help them splatter the kalsomine over the Holy Cross warriors and if the seamen are half as good as they were on the gridiron last year they should have little trouble in at least holding their own. The navy title was copped by the Wyoming eleven this year and, swelling under the burden of championship laurels, the eleven will come to Plainfield primed to administer a decisive licking to the red and white outfit. Stallings' men have been smoothing off the rough edges and are prepared to put the best they have to a test on this occasion. Local followers of the gridiron game will be given the chance of the season to see some real football and it is to be hoped that a representative gathering of the pigskin clans will adorn the sidelines.

Recent reports would lead the average football statistician to believe that the Plainfield High School youths are losing the grasp they had on the county scalp for 1915. That Rahway will repeat is generally conceded and the wiseacres are measuring the champions' regalia to fit the Rahwayans. Westfield and Plainfield looked like pretty formidable bets a couple of weeks ago, but the shadows of the crown have been fading of late. On the other hand Rahway exhibited signs of going to pieces at Asbury Park Saturday last and if the dreaded staleness overtakes the champions Plainfield can be counted upon to step in and make a bid with the same style of football that defeated South Side at Newark Saturday afternoon.

News that the Plainfield High School swimming suits have arrived would cause one to believe that the red and blue sportsmen are going to have an aquatic representation this winter. Let's hope that there'll be something along the line of real activity in the Ninth street school and not merely pencil and paper accounts of the water pastime.

Dame Rumor has it that Leal School is planning to withdraw its franchise from the Interscholastic Basketball League this year. If the private school is to repeat its showing of the past three years on this circuit the league will be better off without it. The title of late years has rested between North Plainfield and Plainfield High Schools and the Leal institution has offered practically no opposition. It is to be regretted that the third member, which was at one time one of the most formidable, has fallen off so much in playing strength and it is to be hoped that the Leal forces will mount to par during the course of the next couple of seasons.

With the passing of Leals the possibility of entering Westfield High School comes to the fore again. The Mt. Ararat school has been a worthy opponent of the local and borough High Schools on the basketball court of late years and as a third party to the league has all the requisites. Then, too, the Westfielders have their own court and a school following that rivals that of the Plainfield and Somerset county institutions.

OFFICIALS TO HEAD HOLY CROSS PARADE

Mayors Calkins, Clark and Smalley Will Attend Game.

Mayor Calkins, of Plainfield; Mayor Clark and Mayor-elect Smalley, of the borough, and members of the Common Council of both municipalities will lead the parade Saturday afternoon preceding the game between Holy Cross and the battleship Wyoming elevens.

The parade will start from the Queen City Hotel at 2:30. It will move over Front street and other downtown thoroughfares, and then go direct to Cricket Field, where the game will be started as soon as it arrives.

The big band of the U. S. S. Wyoming will accompany the members of the team here and will lead the parade, also appearing at the field to furnish music during the game. It is also expected that about 200 bluejackets of the battleship will come and the largest local crowd of the season is expected to attend.

HUNTERS REPORT GAME PLENTIFUL

More Than 200 Gunners Chase the Elusive Cotton Tail in This Section.

The call of the wild was heard and heeded by fully two hundred of Plainfield's gunners yesterday, the opening day of the hunting season. Auto parties went in almost every direction, while the trolleys and trains were thronged with hunters and dogs. While no extraordinary large bags of game are reported, nearly all had fair luck and game seems to be plentiful.

Jens Claasen and a party of four went to Lebanon and secured 22 rabbits. They failed to find any birds but the rabbits were plentiful, but wild.

Walter and George Baldwin, with several others, hunted near Millstone and killed 13 rabbits, two pheasants, one partridge, two woodcock and a 14-pound jack rabbit. This good luck was offset by the loss of two of their hunting dogs, one of which was valued at $35 and the other at $20.

Aaron Higgins and others composed a party that hunted in the vicinity of Whitehouse. They brought home seven rabbits, one quail and a jack rabbit.

Messrs. Randolph and Ford, of Scotch Plains, bagged 19 rabbits, while Mr. Roberts and party, of the same neighborhood, secured four rabbits and three pheasants.

While the woods were literally "full of hunters" no serious accidents are reported and no forest fires were started.

NINE TEAMS LEADING BOSTON BIKE GRIND

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—Though the riders in the six-day bicycle race on the Arena track made numerous sprints yesterday afternoon and last night, there were no changes in the standing up to 10 o'clock last night, the end of the twenty-sixth hour of the race.

Shortly before midnight the team, composed of Tommy Grimm and Victor Linart, lost a lap, and the Sullivan-Holbrook combination fell two laps behind.

At 10 o'clock the nine leading teams had pedalled 629 miles 4 laps and were more than a dozen miles ahead of the former track record. The riders began their third day's competition at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

ONLY SIX HUNTSMEN FINISH IN LIVELY CHASE

Numerous jumps over a trappy country marked the mid-week run of the Watchung Hunt Club yesterday afternoon. The hounds were met at the Watchung hills, and the chase led to Netherwood, Fanwood, Westfield and Dog Tavern, where the run was finished. There were three checks.

Col. C. E. S. Bellows was the acting master, and he led the field a lively chase, only six out of the twelve starters being able to finish. They were: Col. C. E. S. Bellows, M. F. H., A. C. Fox, A. E. Ling, Mrs. William Hughes, Huntsman Harrison and the Whip.

RAHWAY HIGH FEARS PLAINFIELD TEAM

Postpone Game With New Brunswick to Get in Condition.

Rahway High School football management has wisely postponed the game with New Brunswick H. S., scheduled to be played at Riverside Park next Saturday afternoon. The last chance of Rahway again annexing the State scholastic championship went by the board with the defeat at Ashland Oval a week ago yesterday. The game left the Red and Black eleven battered and lame, a condition which was still further aggravated in the game with Asbury Park High School last Saturday afternoon. At no time during the contest did Coach Short's boys look like the smoothly running football machine of a few weeks ago, and rather than run the risk of not only losing State honors but also the Union county championship, something Rahway has come to look upon as her personal property, it was decided to set back the engagement with New Brunswick until the Riverside Park forces had had their inning with the ever-troublesome Plainfield team.

RECREATION TEAM DEFEATS ST. PAUL

Spectacular Shots Bring up the Total Score to 27 and 14.

Featured with spectacular shots from the center of the court, the basketball game between the Recreation team and the St. Paul Parish House Five, of Westfield, played at the Plainfield High School gymnasium last night, resulted in the defeat of the latter by a score of 27 to 14. During the first period of play, Traynor made all the tallies for the Westfield aggregation, netting one goal and four fouls, while Allegar and Ricketts did the scoring for the Recreation five. The score at the end of the initial half was 10 to 6 in favor of the Plainfielders.

The second half started with a little more pep, splendid passing figuring in the game. During this session Adams and Ricketts stood high men, each caging three pretty field goals. Pool and Naylor held one of the forwards on the opposite side scoreless while the other nested one goal. Beside doing good work in this quarter each caged a pretty goal for themselves.

The score follows:

OPENING MATCH FOR EAGLE LEAGUE PINNERS

In the first match of the season in the Eagles' League, the Newark bowlers, on their own alleys last night, captured three games in a row from the Rahway quintet. There was a goodly turnout, a large number of rooters coming along with the Rahway team. Frank Harlow, chairman of the Newark bowling committee, rolled the first ball and got eight pins. Tom Denning did some sensational pinning, with counts of 213, 209 and 194 for an average of 203-1. He finished with six strikes, straight, in the last game. Charley Smith rolled 204, 201 and 200, averaging 201-2.

ARE FANS EVER TO SEE ANOTHER SNAPPY WORLD'S SERIES?

There have been recent complaints on several sides that the big world's series games at the close of the season are not the spirited affairs today that they were a few years ago. Ball players have become indifferent and careless in many little ways, it is alleged, and the result is a championship performance in the fall that is far behind those of five or six years back.

Critics point out many little matters wherein the big games today are faulty and it is clear to the most untechnical fan that much of vim and nerve is missing. Few enough players in the recent world's series ran out their outfield flies and five years ago a player in any game would have been heavily fined for such behavior. It so happened that in the third game Stock hit a tall fly to Speaker and ran it out, though it looked like an easy put-out for Speaker. But he lost the ball in the sun and muffed it, and Stock reached second safely.

Many little carelessnesses were seen in the last world's series that would not have been tolerated a few years ago. With the bigger salaries and the demand for more men, ball players have come to feel extremely independent. If their manager insists too stringently on training and other such annoying things they know that they are almost always sure of a nice offer from the Feds. Also, they have the players' fraternity to back them up whenever they wish it and to cry about injustice and abuse.

Fewer stars and fewer big salaries will help our national diversion. The languor that seems to have assailed it the past season or so may pass away when things begin to take a new aspect. But so long as players seem unwilling to spend the least effort the fans will be dissatisfied.

LOW SALARY LIMIT IN UNION BALL LEAGUES

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 11.—Representatives of each league in the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in convention here were instructed yesterday to report what salary limits would be acceptable to their organizations. This action followed a long executive session, in which the policy of retrenchment was declared to be imperative.

Charles Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn Nationals, according to J. H. Farrell, secretary of the association, who issued an official report of the meeting, advised the minor league men not to establish a standard salary limit for all leagues.

"Baseball can be saved only by sensible regulation of salaries," Farrell said. "It would be foolhardy for this convention to attempt to fix a general salary limit for all leagues. Each league should set its own figures, to which all clubs should adhere rigidly."
